Mitchel Field, N. Y., July 8.—Lieut. Russell L. Maughan will start on his dawn-to-dusk transcontinental flight between 4.30 and 5.30 a. m., daylight saving time, tomorrow if weather conditions east and west of the Mississippi are favorable, he announced today. Early reports indicated he would have clear sailing.

Clear weather will prevail, the weather man said, except in Montana and Utah, where thunder storms are expected. The aviator said these disturbances would not prevent him from starting, however. If necessary, he said he would add a few miles to his trip and fly around the storms, but he thought it likely he could fly over them.

The flight, which several times has been postponed because of the weather, is being made to develop transcontinental airways and landing fields for the stimulation of commercial aviation and to establish groundwork for the transfer of the fighting air forces of the United States to either coast in one day.

EXCURSIONISTS MAROONED ON MOUNT BEACON

Newburgh, N. Y., July 8.—A number of excursionists, many of them from New York city, were marooned atop Mount Beacon early tonight when fire, lighted by a cigarette stub, spread through the frame readhed of the incline railroad. Firemen from nearby towns haave been fighting the flames for more than two hours.

The fire, starting early this morning and burning throughout the day, attracted more than 2,000 to the top of the mountain. Nearly half of them lingered until dusk and had to be assisted down the brush-lined, stone-strewn trail. A young woman was the only casualty of the trip, cutting her leg when she slipped and fell on the stones.

Although within the Beacon city limits, the fire virtually was beyond control, since the nearest hydrant was a mile away. Dirt and brush were used to quell the flames, but the wooden roadbed was oil-soaked and 200 feet or more were quickly burned.

It is expected that the road will be out of commission for several weeks, if not for the balance of the season.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

"The Exciters" Greeted by Enthusiastic Audience

The Paramount picture "The Exciters," co-starring Bebe Daniels and Antonio Moreno, opened successfully at the Strand theatre yesterday, where it was greeted by a large and enthusiastic audience.

The story is a mile-a-minute tale of a mile-a-minute girl, for Bonnie Hand portrayed by Miss Daniels, was born on an express train traveling sixty miles an hour. This dismayed her Aunt Veronica, who predicted that Bonnie would be married sure as fate. But she wasn't and she wasn't even scratched in her many daring escapades. Speed is her mania.

In the supporting cast are Burr McIntosh, Diana Allen, Cyril Ring, Bigelow Cooper, Ida Darling, Jane Thomas, Allan Simpson, George Backus and others. The story, adapted by John Colton and Sonya Levien, was directed by Maurice Campbell.

A Buster Keaton comedy, Day Dreams, supplied grains of laughter and a news weekly completed the bill.

There is no strike on at this theatre.

Hair-able Hair-raising Scenes in Lloyds Sensational Comedy

The location is twelve stories above the street. Clinging to the side of the building, two-thirds of the way up, with a dozen pigeons roosting on his head is Harold Lloyd. The crowd below amused but frightened, watch breathlessly while the spectacled comedian continues his upward climb, overcoming the most difficult and hilarious obstacles.

This is just one of the impressions your correspondent got after viewing Harold Lloyd's seven-real Pathe comedy, "Safety Last," at the Broadway theatre yesterday. And what a comedy! Never has an audience shrieked with such uncontrollable laughter. There have been riotous two reel comedies produced in the past by master comedians but never before has one been seen in seven reels that moved at such a fast pace.

But the comedy is not all thrills. There is a real story—a delightful story with pretty little Mildred Davis—now Mrs. Harold Lloyd—the young lady in the case. We don't like to tell too much of it, but Mildred is the cause of everything—as has been with Woman through the Ages.

As the play, Harold Lloyd is at his best. He has a huge bag of new tricks up his sleeve and a recklessness in facing danger that is amazing. Mildred is sweetness personified. Then there is Noah Young, well remembered as the hard-boiled cop in "A Sailor Made Man." Bill Strathers, a real "human-fly" makes his screen debut and gets into the spirit of the fun splendidly. Westcott B. Clarke is the fence-walker and Anna Townsend, remembered as "Grandma" is also seen. And there is the funniest "drunk" we have ever seen in films.

You really cannot afford to miss "Safety Last." It's Harold's most hair-able, hair-raising comedy that will make you weak from laughing!

Breed Theatre.

How guiltless persons can be entangled in the meshes of the law and even be accused of murder is vividly demonstrated in Find the Woman, featuring Alma Rubens which is the feature at the Breed theatre today and tuesday. The screen version of Arthur Somers Roche's story, moves with the speed of an express train, keeping the pulses of the audiences tingling with one thrill after another.

Tom Terriss directed Find the Woman, the scenario being the work of Doty Hobart. A splendid cast supports Miss Rubens, including: Eileen Huban, George MacQuarrie, Norman Kerry, Harrison Ford, Ethel Duray, Henry Sedley, Arthur Donaldson and Sydney Deane.

The picture was created by Cosmopolitan Productions for Paramount.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe News and a Metro comedy.

BATTLING SIKI KNOCKS OUT NILLES FRENCH HEAVYWEIGHT, IN SECOND

Paris, July 8—(By the A. P.)—Battling Siki today knocked out Marcel Nilles, a French heavyweight pugilist, in the second round of what was to have been a fifteen-round battle.

Nilles in May was knocked out in the eighth round by Georges Carpentier, the light heavyweight. He was considered by followers of the ring to have been France's best heavyweight.

Siki's hard head and his "steel" ribs proved immune to an onslaught from Nilles in the first round. The white man carried the battle to the negro throughout this session, with Siki bent nearly double in a crouch and assimilating everything Nilles handed out to him. The judgment of those about the ringside was that Nilles was sure to be the winner of a one-sided contest.

Over-confident from his showing, Nilles came from his corner at the clang of the gong for the second as if it was his intention immediately to finish off his opponent and have the affair ended. The shifty Senegal man, however, went into a clinch with Nilles and pushed him into a corner. Then, as they broke away Siki swung his left to the jaw of the white man. Nilles went down, face foremost, as though he had been struck with an axe.

Before the fight Siki was enraged over the decision rendered by the judge of the civil tribunal, giving Edmond Lepart an injunction forbidding the promoters to pay over to Siki any part of the purse or stakes accrued from today's match. The black man because of the court's decision was fighting merely for "glory".

WORCESTER DIVIDES HONORS WITH BRIDGEPORT CLUB

Bridgeport, July 8—Worcester and Bridgeport divided a double header here today, the locals taking the first game 3 to 0 and the Coal Heavers, the twilight bill, 3 to 0.

Worcester had a makeshift lineup in the first game as Emmerich, who was traded for Orme yesterday, did not start until the seventh inning. Brown held the Coal Heavers safe at all times.

After retiring Worcester in order in six out of seven innings of the second game Slim Clary weakened in the eighth and the Boosters scored three runs on two scratch hits, a triple by Sayrs and Post's error. Lindstrom held the locals to three hits. The fielding of Johnny Nagle at second was sensational. Dick Loftus was spiked in the first game and forced to retire. Score by innings:

YANKEES GET EARLY LEAD AND TRIM BROWNS

St. Louis, Mo., July 8.—New York won today's game from the Browns, 8 to 4, by piling up a lead in the earlier innings which the locals were unable to overcome despite their last inning rally during which Bush was driven from the box. Pruett started the game for the Browns but was batted out in the third inning. Danforth, Bayne and Root followed him to the hill. Babe Ruth was an easy victim for the left hand hurlers of the Browns, getting one single in four trips to the plate.

Bush pitched invincible ball during the first six innings, but was nicked for one run in the seventh. After holding the locals to two hits during the first eight innings, Bush weakened in the final and was relieved by Jones who checked the Browns' rally. The score:

NATIONAL OPEN GOLF TITLE PLAY STARTS TODAY ON INWOOD COURSE

Inwood, N. Y., July 8—(By the A. P.)—Under a burning sun made bearable by gentle breezes wafted from the sea more than two hundred of the players entered in the national open golf championship, which starts tomorrow, went around the course today in practice. Most of the stars acquainted themselves with the peculiarities of the admirably plotted links.

Gene Sarazen, the present titleholder, went around in 71, one under par. He played in a foursome with Jock Hutchison, who, after a bad start finished strong for a 73; Jess Sweetser, who turned in a 74, and Emmet French, of Youngstown, Ohio, who found the going difficult and picked up on several holes. Sarazen's form was excellent off the tee and with irons, but his putting was not as good as usual. Had his work on the greens been better he probably would have broken seventy.

Hutchison's driving on the first nine was what he called a wee bit bad, but he was the strongest of the four coming in. Sweetser, fresh from his triumph in the victory cup event at Wykagyl had an excellent score on all but two holes, the 12th., with its water hazard, and the 410 yard eleventh.

John Black, the picturesque old gentleman from west of the Mississippi, who finished within a stroke of Sarazen at Skokie last year, set a mark for the trick shooters on the long eighteenth at the end of a well played round this morning. The eighteenth is affectionately known as the "Lauder", for about 15 years ago Sir Harry Lauder attempted to play it, but failed to get over the brook that gurgles before its large green.

Black holed a full mid-iron shot of nearly 200 yards for an eagle two on the hole, which is 415 yards in length. Black had a card of 74.

Leo Diegel of Washington made the freakiest play of the day, shooting what he called a "squirrel" shot on the seventh.

His drive swerved into a grove of trees, the ball halting behind a sapling. He attempted to pitch over the grove, but the ball fell onto a limb of the tree, rolling along the branch and dropped to the green 20 feet from the pin. Diegel sank the putt for a par three. Diegel, after that shot, was at his best. He made a birdie three on the 15th for a card of 69, three under par and the best score of the day.

Francis Ouimet, playing with Diegel, shot a 76. Bobby Jones had a seven on the par four 17th, running his total for the round to 78.

Walter Hagen played eleven holes in one over fours and called it a day.

Basing their predictions on the best cards turned in today and in yesterday's east-west team matches, some of the stars expressed the belief that scores of 155 would be needed to qualify provided weather conditions were not changed.

Among the stars who are to play in the ninety that start in tomorrow's qualifying round will be Sarazen, Hutchison, Diegel, Chick Evans, and Bob MacDonald of Chicago, Abe Espinosa, of California, W. M. Crevay, Kansas City, Jack Burke, of St. Paul, Dan Goss, of Bessemer, Ala., the Alabama champion Emil Loeffler of Pittsburgh, Captain H. C. C. Tippet, of England and William Mehlhorn.

The first pair to tee off will be James R. Thompson, of Rye, N. Y., and Jack Burgess of Lake Geneva, Wis.

Diegel, and Sarazen are paired for qualifying play and will start at 10.30 o'clock. Jock Hutchison, paired with Chick Fraser of California, are scheduled to start at 9.30 o'clock. Mehlhorn, with Pat O'Hara start at ten o'clock.

After the practice rounds were finished today the tees were set back, making the course 6,632 yards in length this being to the advantage of the long drivers.

The greatest difficulty a majority of the players will experience probably will be at the short 12th with its sloping green guarded by a pond full of gold fish and golf balls, a great gross of the latter being added to the pond bottom today. This hole is played with a mashie niblick, which if even a little short goes among the gold fish; if a little long, into the sandtraps or staff grass.

FIRPO WORKS WHILE WILLARD TAKES REST

New York, July 8—Jess Willard rested from his training activities today at his Yonkers camp, but Luis Firpo, his opponent in the battle next Thursday night at Boyle's Thirty Acres, had no letup in his siege of conditioning at Long Branch, N. J.

Firpo's workout belied reports that he had strained his back in training and been ordered to rest by his mentor, Jimmy DeForest. The big south American followed a four-mile jog on the road by boxing seven rounds with his two sparring mates, Bill Tate and Jack McAuliffe, II, and then shadowboxed and punched the bag for three more. In addition he had an hour's secret workout with DeForest, perfecting the finer points of his boxing.

Tex Rickard, promoter of the match, has had carpenters busy putting the big Jersey City pine bowl in shape and said tonight he expected to receive tomorrow the formal permit from city building inspectors, who had withheld it pending an examination of the arena as to its safety.

WEST BLANKS PUTNAM WITH THREE HITS

Tony West continued his invincible pitching for the Riverview club on Saturday afternoon at the State Hospital diamond, shutting out the Nightingale-Morse tea of Putnam with three scattered hits while his teammates secured three runs on the errors of the visitors. West fanned fourteen of the Putnam batters and at no time in the game was in danger, no visiting player getting beyond second base. His team in back of him fielded well and also bunched hits in back of errors to score. The Riverview team scored in the third inning when Gaucher dropped Schafrichs fly and Walsh was safe on an infield error. Both runners were advanced by Hart's sacrifice and Schafrich scored when Mills was thrown out at first and Walsh scored on Clabby's double. Riverview scored again in the sixth inning when Lesemann reached second on infield errors and was sacrificed to third by west scoring on Schafrich's single to right field.

Brooklyn "Y" Boys Challenge

The Brooklyn Y. M. C. A. boys, who are now camping at Massepeake, Gardner Lake, have organized a baseball team and are anxious to play some of the Norwich teams. The team is composed mainly of the camp leaders and would like to hear from 16-20 year old teams. Phone Mr. McKenzie, 1841-2.

Tonight's Twilight Game

Tonight's game in the Twilight league will be between the Cornets and the Professional Men who are fighting it out for second place in the league. The Profs lost their last game to the Harddigs but if they win tonight they will go into a tie for second place with the Cornets.

VELVETMEN SPLIT EVEN IN WEEK-END GAMES

The J. B. Martin baseball club split even in the week-end games, winning from Lebanon on Saturday, 18 to 7, and losing to the Hartford Federals on Sunday, 4 to 3. The Saturday game was an easy one for the local boys but in the Sunday game it was an uphill battle after the first inning. Both teams played snappy ball in Sunday's game and many fast plays featured the game. The score:

REDS POUND OUT THREE HOMERS TO BEAT GIANTS

New York, July 8—Cincinnati's home run hitting enabled the Reds to take the second game of the series today from the New York Giants, 5 to 3. It was the sixth straight victory the Reds have scored against the Giants, and Luque, the Cuban star, who twirled a masterful game, accounted for his third triumph of the season over the champions.

Caveney and Burns put Cincinnati in the lead with circuit clouts in the second inning and Fonseca's home run drive clinched the game in the eighth. Caveney starred both at bat and in the field. Score:

FOLLOWS PRESIDENT'S URGING.

The country must of course be gratified at the announcement made by President Harding that he has been informed that the majority of the steel manufacturers have undertaken to abolish the twelve hour day. Likewise it must also give satisfaction to the president in view of the efforts that he has made in connection with such an accomplishment.

The president has urged that the twelve hour day be abolished. At the time the report of the committee of the Iron and Steel Institute reported against it he expressed his disappointment that "no conclusive arrangement was proposed for determination of what must be manifestly accepted as a practice that should be obsolete in American industry.' At the same time he urged that it be further considered and hoped that the industry might undertake the change when there was a surplus of labor available.

Thus it becomes evident that the position which the president has taken and the efforts that he has made have not gone unheeded by the steel men. Public sentiment has played its part also and with such pressure as the president has been able to bring to bear the goal is brought nearer.

It could hardly be expected that such a radical change could be brought about immediately. That isn't proposed by the steel men. They take kindly to the suggestion of making the shift when there is an adequate supply of labor and point to the fact that it will mean the employment of 60,000 additional hands. Just where such laborers are to come from at the present time is not clear. Europe can furnish them, and can furnish that number of what would meet the qualifications of desirability, if the immigration bars are lifted. Frankly the inclination for such a step is not wrong, and there is not a surplus of labor in the country.

Favoring such a policy indicates progress. Putting it into effect may require a bit of time, but it is a move in the right direction. That Samuel Gompers should be peeved at it seems to be due to the fact that he had no hand in it.

GETTING IN THE COAL.

At various times good, sound advice has been offered regarding the getting in of the coal supply at an early date instead of waiting until it is needed and shortages caused by any one of many reasons make it more difficult to obtain.

After having gone through the conditions of the past winter relative to fuel, there is reason for serious attention to be given to the new warning which has just been issued by the federal fuel administrator when he urges immediate action to get in the winter's supply of coal and points out the mistake of inviting transportation tieups through placing big demands upon the facilities later on when they could be taken care of much better now and much more easily if distributed over a period of several months.

There is bound to be a certain amount of coal consumed. Probably more would be burned if the price was lower, but the movement and distribution of coal depends to a large degree upon the way in which orders are placed and the early filling of the coal bins. Hopes that prices may change, even though they are false may influence some to delay, but for those who like the satisfaction of knowing that they are not going to lack fuel during the coming cold weather the filled coal bin overcomes a lot of worry.

Much would be done for the relief of the fuel problem if there was a general effort to have the coal put in during the spring, summer and fall, when transportation of all kinds is so much better than during the winter. There are those without the facilities for storing coal, the transients and those who figure that they cannot meet a coal bill in one lump sum who must be provided for from month to month, but if it were only those that had to be supplied as they burned the situation would be greatly improved. That could be accomplished with much less difficulty if those who are able to take their winter's supply would rise to the situation in which they have a vital interest.

CAN THEY GET TOGETHER?

Foreign governments, because of the effect upon their steamship lines, are much concerned because of the refusal of this country to permit liquor to be brought into our ports even though such liquor is kept under seal from the time it reaches the three mile limit until it departs again and can be consumed outside the territorial limits of this country without violating the laws of this country.

As the law now reads no such action can be tolerated. It is a violation of the law and for once the government seems to possess the authority to enforce it. But inasmuch as sealed liquor would not bother prohibition in this country and it is greatly desired that these be an end put to the large amount of smuggling that is going on, this government has indicated its willingness to endeavor to better its own situation by favoring legislation that will give sanction to sealed liquor.

There is need of putting an end to the liquor smuggling. It is possible to get some cooperation from foreign countries that will greatly reduce if not stop it, and if that assistance can be obtained this government is prepared to urge congress to overcome the bothersome law relative to liquor on foreign ships, for it is a matter that rests with congress and relief can be obtained only through modified legislation.

Inasmuch as this country would be careful to safeguard itself against a flood of liquor through allowing sealed cargoes to be brought in, it would be greatly to its advantage in curtailing the smuggling should some agreement be found possible, even though the idea of a twelve mile limit is not considered favorably. There is a chance as the situation stands at the present time to do something for each other. The foreign nations are anxious for a privilege and this country seeks aid in getting respect for its dry law. The problem is of course to bring them to an understanding, which as yet has not been accomplished.

UNLICENSED DRIVERS.

While one would hardly expect that there could be any misinterpretation of the intention of the general assembly in adopting the law relative to the licensing of automobile drivers, the very fact that there are those who take different views justifies the request of the motor vehicles department for an opinion from the attorney general on the section that applies to unlicensed drivers running cars when accompanied by licensed drivers.

This seems to have been a provision for the benefit of those learning to drive automobiles. If they are going to become drivers they must have personal experience, and it is important that the users of the highway should be protected by having such persons accompanied by licensed drivers. There is slight ground for believing that there was any intention of permitting persons to escape taking out a driver's license by having a licensed driver in the car when they operate it.

If the law has been so loosely drawn that it is possible to give it an interpretation that was not intended it is unfortunate that it was not discovered while the general assembly was in session, instead of being obliged to wait for more than a year and a half to bring about a needed correction.

Evasion of the road test and the license fee under such conditions was not the purpose of the law, it is sincerely believed. It was a provision to cover the would-be driver who must have experience and who should get it only while accompanied by a licensed operator, and it will not surprise if that is the way in which the attorney general rules regarding the law. Whatever it is, however, it is well that it should be decided.

THE NAVAL BALLOONISTS.

Not only those who go down to the sea in ships but those who go up in the air in balloons are subject to many dangers. It was not so long ago that participants in a balloon race were carried far into the wild and frozen regions of Canada while endeavoring to make a record. From all indications the crew of the navy balloon that left Indianapolis on the Fourth of July has had a thrilling if not a fatal experience.

Just what happened to it is not known and it may never be known. Much will depend upon the finding of Lieutenants Roth and Null, who with the basket of the balloon are missing, having apparently been cut or torn away from the big gas bag which was picked up in Lake Erie.

It was not one of those instances where no provision had been made for safety, or against the possibility of the balloon being forced down in a lake, for the basket was so constructed that it would float and serve as a big life preserver. Whatever the revelations as time goes along it is again demonstrated that in ballooning there is a considerable degree of danger in spite of the modern appliances and the provisions that have been made for safety. It is through just such tests, however, that it is possible to determine what protective features are necessary and how effective those that are provided really are. The hope that the men are alive lies in the possibility that they may yet be with the supposedly non-sinkable basket. Ballooning even in this day and generation is not what can be regarded as a harmless pastime.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: How dull it would be from day to day if there were no curiosity.

"Fish higher this week," says a headline. Possibly the flying class is out trying for new honors.

It is going to be easier for Shelby to settle down and count up its losses than it will be to forget them.

There are exceptions to all rules. A New York woman has inherited a million and a half for keeping a secret.

It was significant of course that Al Smith's boom for the democratic nomination should come from Tammany hall.

Huge purses for the ring contests can be expected to continue just as long as the public will stand for the tax.

There is no need of asking the taxpayers of the country whether they wish reduced taxes or increased federal expenses.

If foreign vessels decide to abide by the dry law within the three mile limit it is a grand good example in law observance to many who call themselves Americans.

The estimate that there will be 2200 killed by autos in New York this year applies to only one state and calls for thoughtful reflection. Isn't it about time such a situation was stopped?

Every new monthly quota of aliens means more work for those engaged in Americanization activities. It is a good time to let the demand that all speak the English language be heard.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

To prevent potatoes turning black, add a teaspoonful of vinegar to the water in which they are boiled.

One way to insure furs and woolens against moths is to wrap them in newspapers that have been moistened with turpentine.

Always cork your ammonia, gasoline and other volatile substances tightly. Otherwise they will evaporate.

Peanuts are a highly concentrated food and may be used as a substitute for meat once in a while.

The efficient housewife will have a wall clock within the sight of her kitchen stove so that she may time her bakings without effort.

Keep your old brooms for scrubbing and sweeping the walks. This will save the one you use for the rugs.

To tough meat add a spoonful of vinegar or lemon juice, or cook it in a tomato sauce to soften the fibre.

In laying your table, place all flat silver in the order of its use. Then the guests start with the piece farthest from the plate on either side.

Powdered alum and fuller's earth in equal proportions make an excellent cleaner for white suede gloves.

If you varnish or enamel the shelves or the inside of bureau drawers they look better and may be kept much cleaner than by the use of paper.

For walls with plain coverings use striped or figured hangings, but for those with figured walls hangings should be plain, repeating the dominant color note in walls and carpets.

Any fruit whip is a delicious dessert and is made by masking the fruit, uncooked if a soft fruit and stewed if dried or hard fruits, and beating with an egg beater with the addition of sugar as needed.

CANNING UTENSILS.

One of the most essential things in choosing canning utensils is to secure them of materials that will not be affected by fruit or vegetable acids, which might affect their taste or color. For this reason preserving kettles that are porcelain lined or enameled are best. Wooden spoons and mashers are useful. Long handled wooden spoons have the advantage of not heating so that they are difficult to handle, if they are left a few minutes in the kettle with the cooking fruit.

Preserving kettles that are shallow and broad, rather than deep and narrow across, are the best shape to select, as they expose more fruit to the heat, and this cooks more fruit in a shorter time which makes a better product and saves fuel.

MAKING COFFEE.

Don't make coffee with cold water and bring slowly to the boil, or it will have a "dead" taste. Make it with boiling water, and allow it to simmer sufficiently, or its flavor will be too sharp. It should boil slowly for at least fifteen minutes over a low flame.

MUD SPOTS.

Allow mud spots to become quite dry before attempting to remove them. With the edge of a coin break the crust of each spot and brush rather lightly to avoid driving the dust into the material. Any marks which remain will vanish if rubbed with a little pure alcohol.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

There are two seasons hard on the lips, mid-winter with its frost, and mid-summer with its intense heat. Some people have chapped lips more often in summer than in winter.

File your nails to whichever shape best suits your hand—a moderately pointed oval is safest. Soak the finger tips a few minutes in the warm water, clean under the nails, smooth them off with the emery board, slip the blades of the scissors under each corner of the nail and clip off the rough bits which collect.

For large pores steam the skin by wringing face cloths from hot water and holding them over the nose for five minutes. Wash with soap and water or rub with cleansing cream if the pores are black. Rinse with cool water, rub on a paste made of ordinary white laundry starch and cold water. Let it stay on all night or for an hour or so while you do your housework, rinse off with cold water.

To make rosemary water, a mild astringent for general daily use, take a generous handful of dried or fresh rosemary leaves and tops, tie in a muslin bag with a little weight attached, drop into a porcelain lined vessel with three pints of boiling water. Let it steep on the stove, covered, three to four hours. Remove, let it cool, then add one and a half ounces of rectified spirit. Half an hour later take out the rosemary. Keep it well corked in glass bottles. It is delicious to wipe over the face and arms after washing them.

FOR BRIDE'S LINEN CHEST.

A luncheon set of raffia linen is the latest addition to the bride's table equipment. Instead of a hem the edges are rolled and whipped. Three rows of machine hemstitching extend across the napkins and luncheon cloth on every side crossing at the corners. The rows are one inch apart on the napkins and two on the luncheon cloth. The intersection of the hemstitching at the corners gives a lattice-like appearance. Between these intersections the hemstitching is slit, and through the slits narrow rose-colored grosgrain ribbon is run in one direction and old blue in the other, so that a small mat of interlaced blue and rose ribbons, appears in each corner of the square of linen. The ends of the ribbons fly free. No sewing is required for this, and the ribbons are easily removed and reinserted for the purpose of laundering.

FILL WITH BEESWAX.

Cracks in furniture can be filled in with beeswax. First slightly soften the beeswax until it is like putty, then press firmly into the cracks and smooth evenly with a thin steel knife. Sandpaper over the surrounding wood and work the dust into the beeswax. This gives a wood finish, or color, and when the furniture is varnished the cracks will have disappeared. Beeswax is better than putty. Putty soon dries, crumbles and falls out, while beeswax does not.

A SUMMER COVER.

One housewife had a cover of linoleum to fit the top of her range during the summer when there is no fire in it. It can be scrubbed and always looks neat and saves her polishing the stove during the warm weather.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

A bag and parasol of narrow black and white striped silk have much dignity.

A smart sport hat is made of red suede and trimmed with a very coquettish flower of organdie. Of course, it's a cloche.

A pouch bag of sapphire blue moire is arranged in fine pleats and has a sapphire studded silver mounting.

A bustle frock of black taffeta has an apron of white handkerchief linen, embroidered in small designs and edged with exquisite lace.

Beaded georgette crepe capes, very ornate and colorful, are worn over very simple, one-toned frocks of chiffon or georgette crepe.

Very wide metallic ribbon is joined together with fagoting to make a dinner frock for a young girl.

Beaded frocks, which play in and out of the vogue, are now shown with pleated sections or panels or with wide hip sashes.

Jabot draperies find themselves used in interesting ways on the smart new frocks, usually giving the one-sided trimming effect that is very popular now.

A frock of blue silk crepe has a collar and cuffs of white flannel embroidered in cross-stitch designs with colorful silks.

Long pearly fringe is used at the edge of the straight tunics featured on some of the smartest evening gowns of the moment.

A dinner gown of navy blue georgette is conservative and elegant with its embroidery in tones of gold and bronze.

Silver lace is combined with coral georgette to make one of the most lovely negligees imaginable. It is softly draped and has wide voluminous sleeves.

French lingerie with real lace and the finest of French embroidery frequently includes a very fancy boudoir cap repeating the trimming of the combination or chemise.

One-sided effects were featured as a recent fashion display in London. One gown that attracted much attention had one very wide sleeve and one that was short and tight fitting.

RIBBON BUTTONS.

There is no smarter trimming for the dressy afternoon frock than buttons made of ribbon. The buttons are made of one-inch ribbon, each button requiring five inches, which is gathered at top and bottom about a wooden ball. At the top the gathering string is pulled so that the ribbon does not entirely close about the ball but leaves a small opening where a twisted bit of gold ribbon makes an ornamental finish. However, a more unique finish is achieved by gilding the ball or painting it in many colors. These buttons may be used on girdle, skirt and sash ends or on coats and blouses wherever a button or an ornament is needed.

METAL RIBBON BAG.

A bag made of knotted metal ribbons is a distinct adjunct to the semi-evening costume. Narrow gold or silver ribbon or brocaded metallic ribbons may be interlaced and knotted at each point of intersection. After the interlacing they resemble a circular mat with large interstices in the weaving and a loop at each end of ribbon. Through these loops which surround the mat ribbons are run in the usual way so that they may be pulled, drawing the bag together. It should be made over a foundation of silk or satin.

SEWING HINTS.

If sewing continuously, a large firm pillow placed on the lap is very convenient. The work is raised, and the pillow saves the arms in holding the work. The sewing may be pinned to the pillow when necessary.

Use an old safety razor blade for ripping—but be careful of your fingers.

Be sure to put your needles in the cushion when you finish with them. Leaving them around where they may become embedded in upholstery is dangerous.

HOOKED TABLE MATS.

Miniature hooked rugs now find a place on the dining table. They are used for mats under hot dishes and are particularly attractive as tea cosies, or tea or coffee pot holders.

Colors run riot in this latest adaptation of the old hand hooking done by our great grandmothers, and gay tones play up well in these miniature table accessories. Some are copies of the old country hooked rugs, primly conventional, in russet brown and dark green; others are copies of early American patterns.

These hooked mats are fashioned with a burlap foundation, through which the worsted yarns are hooked. They are simple to make and the work goes quickly.

INK STAINS FROM RUGS.

When ink is spilled on a carpet or rug lay on pieces of blotting paper, changing them as often as filled with ink. Now wash the spot with a piece of sponge dipped into milk, squeezing it dry between each application and soaking it full of more milk each time. When the ink has all been taken out wash the place in weak suds and then rinse with a spongeful of clear water. Let it dry without exposure to dust and it will be difficult to tell where the accident happened.

EXTRA YARD OF CARPET.

A wisely economical housewife will always buy an extra yard when purchasing a stair carpet. Fold this surplus length in at either end, and, when the carpet is worn at the portions just over the edges of each step, it may be shifted first up and then down, so that the whole covering may be used up evenly.

CLOVER DECORATION.

Tiny four-leaf clovers, made from gold-edged green ribbon, are exceedingly smart as decorations for organdie dresses and hats. Each petal consists of one width or ribbon which is turned back at the tip and tacked into the shape of the clover leaf.

THE MODISH FLARE.

To make the new flaring cuff, on a tight-fitting plain foundation sleeve, attach four rows of one and one-half inch faille or moire ribbon, about one inch apart, sewing the ribbon on one edge to the sleeve, gathering slightly, and bringing the upper row or ribbon just below the elbow to give the fashionable flare.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Antigo, Wis., has a woman judge.

The women's clubs of Cuba recently held their first national congress in Havana.

Mrs. Charles Chick of Oskaloosa, Iowa, possesses a quilt containing 3,116 separate pieces.

In Hungary women have municipal suffrage, but are not eligible for election to public office.

Belgium does not accept women as legal witnesses to documents.

Uruguay permits women to become barristers; but not magistrate, jurors or judges.

In Rumania women may be nominated, but not elected, as members of the communal councils.

Anatolia has a woman member of the Government as head of the Department of Public Instruction.

NEW CURTAIN FABRIC.

As unusual as it is attractive is a new curtain material which comes in several different colors and has applied motifs in contrasting colors scattered colors scattered at intervals over the surface.

TORN UMBRELLA.

Use a little adhesive tape to reinforce the worn parts or any torn places in your umbrella.

SPOTTED OAK FLOORS

If water has been spilled upon a shellacked oak floor, turning it white in places, moisten a soft cloth with a little denatured alcohol and lightly rub the spots, which should immediately disappear. Do not repeat this too often, however, or the finish will be entirely removed.

RECIPES.

Planked Haddock.—Skin and bone a haddock, leaving the flesh in two fillets. Remove to a hot buttered plank, sprinkle with salt and pepper and baste with melted butter and bake twenty-five minutes in a hot oven. Garnish with a border of mashed potatoes, making two frills around the fish and the third frill set above and between the two frills pyramidlike. Brush frills lightly with beaten egg, using a small brush for this purpose so as not to injure the frills. Return to the oven and bake until potatoes are delicately browned, when the fish should be thoroughly cooked. Garnish with parsley and slices of lemon cut in fancy shapes and sprinkled with finely chopped parsley. Serve on plank arranged on a large platter. Pour tartar sauce over fish.

Tartar Sauce.—Mix one tablespoon of vinegar and one teaspoon of lemon juice one tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce and one-fourth teaspoon of salt. Heat over hot water. Brown five and one-half teaspoons of butter in a small saucepan and strain into the first mixture. Serve hot with broiled fish, lobster, breaded soft-shell crabs, etc.

Today's Birthdays

Lord Stanley, son and heir of the Earl of Derby, English statesman and cabinet minister, born 29 years ago today.

Major General Sir George Younghusband, a prominent British commander in the late war, born 64 years ago today.

Congressman James C. Cantrill, candidate for the democratic nomination for governor of Kentucky, born at Georgetown, Ky., 53 years ago today.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

President Masaryk of Czecho-Slovakia, who is reported seriously ill, has a world-wide reputation as a fighting Czech, a great political leader, and a Bohemian scholar. In a particular sense he has been the great champion of the Bohemian and other Slavs against the oppressive policy of the German and the Magyar. In a broad and universal sense, he is the visible expression of that demand for the right of national self-determination which of late years has been moving every devotee of human freedom. Whilst Dr. Masaryk, founder of the Bohemian realist party, is essentially a Bohemian patriot, his activities have not been confined to his own country. Bohemia, however, has been his training ground in the greater nationalism that can look beyond its own frontiers. It has undoubtedly given to him that inestimable endowment, an intellectual leadership of the cause of liberty.

CHILD TRAINING

IMPORTANCE OF KEEPING PROMISES.

By Edith Lochridge Reid.

To the child a promise is as serious and binding as a promissory note to a banker. Not all notes are paid, it must be admitted; neither are all promises kept that are made by mothers. Sometimes a child gets noisy at a club or public meeting, and in order to restore peace, mother whispers that if Johnny will keep still he can have a nice big box of candy afterwards. So although it is mighty hard work for the tot to control his energy, he does manage to calm down and behave with the thought of this unusual reward. Then the meeting is finally over, it is late and when Johnny begins to clamor for payment due as promised, mother dodges her obligation by saying that it is near supper time and she must get home, and there isn't any store near-by where candy can be purchased and won't Johnny PLEASE be satisfied if she'll promise to pop him some corn while she gets supper. Is it any wonder that Johnny sits down on the sidewalk and wails and kicks his heels and makes a scene?

No doubt passersby remark what an ugly disposition that child has and how hard it must be to manage him. Now this mother made two mistakes. First, she never should have made a promise that was really a bribe. Probably little son was too small to take to such a long meeting and remain quiet. But bribe or no bribe, once she had promised to get that box of candy she should have done so if the family had nothing but sandwiches for supper, because she was trailing a candy shop.

Another thoughtless mistake mothers make is keeping promises half-heartedly. Mary comes out in the kitchen just as mother is kneading bread and begs for a story. "Run along a little while, dear, and when I'm got so busy we'll read a nice long story." So Mary in all good faith plays quietly and contentedly on the strength of this promise, and after what seems ages to her, she once more approaches mother who is now at the sewing machine. "Oh, I'm so anxious to finish this dress, and as soon as I do I'll read you a story if you're very, very good until then," says mother.

Then a caller comes and after that it's mealtime again, and Mary's confidence in promises goes flickering. She stamps her little foot and pouts, so mother says, "Well, if you're going to act naughty and worry mother, I'll read; bring your book here." Then without any spirit of sympathy or enjoyment she reads the shortest story she can find in order to appease Mary's tantrum, and she considers she has kept her promise.

So our first thoughts as mothers must be not to make too many promises. Better a surprise now and then, than a promise broken. And, second, once a promise is made, never fail to fulfill it, not from the viewpoint of mother and her interest, but entirely from the child's attitude of expectancy. It is difficult and inconvenient at times but not nearly as difficult as it is to regain the lost confidence of the child, for if there is a key word in successful discipline it is CONFIDENCE.

Stories That Recall Others

Can't Blame the Dog.

Several early marketers on the way downtown recently passed a house where the milkman puts the milk on the front porch long before the family is awake. A fox terrier, who by his actions was not a stranger to the business, came around the house, walked up the steps and licked the top of the bottle where the milk had oozed up around the cap.

Then the Guests Went Home.

"Let's have a party."

This inclination of every normal little girl, especially if she be a little girl with snapping, twinkling black eyes, black hair drawn tightly back, small, vivacious and likable, was manifested by Martha, called Mattie, by inviting a large number of boys and girls to her house for a party—while her mother was gone. The guests were not the aristocracy of the town, it must be admitted.

Mattie saw her mother approaching just as the children were preparing to take possession of the house. She knew that her mother would send the "guests" home, sans party, with the result that Mattie would be sans standing with the boys and girls in the part of the town from which her guests came. An inspiration came to her.

"You better run," she told them. "Here comes my mother, and I've got the measles."

POETRY

THE YOUTHFUL CHRIST.

"And Jesus began to be about thirty years of age."—Luke 3: 23.

The stinging thorns, tormenting, pressed
Upon the head of Christ the Lord,
Were but sharp emblems of the hate
The world displays for Him, abhorred:—
But YOUTH IMMORTAL crowns His brow,
And dews of morning sparkle bright
Where pricked the thorns that once He wore,
Replaced with gleams of golden light.

For Jesus never was but young.
No flight of years He ever knew.
His earthly life, Divinely sprung,
Was but a young man's fresh, and new!
The excellency of God's own power
Revealed in Christ's Eternal Youth
Still ever 'bides since closed life's hour
On Him, the Way, the Life, the Truth.

His early manhood bore the cross,
No powers had ebbed from their full tide,
Ne'er reminiscent grown at loss
Of years receding with sad blight:—
Youth the far vision always sees,
Not backward—forward casts the eyes—
The distant goal enchants to please,
"I'll win the race—I'll take the prize!"

Stalwart—each muscle tense and firm,
Thus will youth ever onward press,
And Christ knew youth but in the term
Of years when men full strength possess:—
And on His Church the dews still rest
Of youth, and powers which He supplied
Of force and vigor, and attest
Young was its Leader though He died.

Young men alone He called to be
Apostles—walking at His side,
Himself to measure—signs to see—
Witness to bear—with Him abide—
E'en Peter, young and weak, was made
To know long years his manhood's lot,
"Not till thou shalt be old," Christ said
"Shalt thou be bound as thou w'dst not"

Thus lives Christ's Church, though fierce the foe,
Still ever young, still gaining power,
Running life's race course, each new hour
Pulsing its veins red blood will flow:—
Fresh truths it grasps—progress it hails—
The forward look enchants it still,
Weights off it throws—its might prevails
Eternal Life to win—and will!

Thus YOUTH IMMORTAL crowns the brow
Of Christ the King—His Church the same,
Its glorious Leader then, and now,—
Exulting in His wondrous Name
Effete from age can never grow;
Its life renewed from day to day
Naught but continuing youth can know
Through Christ who lives and will for aye!

TO ARCADY.

Across the hills of Arcady
Into the Land of Song—
Ah, dear, if you will go with me
The way will not be long.

It does not lie through solitudes
Of wind-blown woods or sea;
Dear, no! the city's weariest moods
May scarce veil Arcady.

'Tis in no unfamiliar land
Lit by some distant star;
See! Arcady is where you stand,
And song is where you are.

Then go but hand in hand with me—
No road can lead us wrong;
Here are the hills of Arcady—
This is the Land of Song.

—Charles Buxton Going.

Australian "Pearl Farm."

A curious farm is that situated in Torres straits, at the most northern point of Australia. It is known as a "pearl farm" and covers about 5,000 square miles. As a matter of fact, this farm is a plateau covered with shallow water, and there are found more than 250 persons irregularly employed in gathering oysters, from which pearls are taken. These pearls are sold in London for almost a quarter of a million dollars.

Mrs. William S. Breed
(Contributed)

The life on earth of Sarah Abby Williams, widow of William Sheffield Breed, came to a peaceful close a little after midnight Saturday morning, June 23rd.

Mrs. Breed was born in North Franklin, Williams Crossing, April 21, 1823, the only daughter of Capt. Lathrop and Abby Prentice Williams. Her education was gained in the public schools of Franklin and Lebanon, where even at the ages of four and five years she was usually at the head of her classes, especially in the spelling matches. After attending a private school in Norwich she was a successful school teacher for several years.

On June 12, 1860 Miss Williams was united in marriage with William Sheffield Breed of Stonington. By a former marriage Mr. Breed had at this time a son, Charles William, aged 19 months to whom Mrs. Breed was a true mother.

As a wife she was a faithful helper, standing shoulder to shoulder with her husband in all his affairs, encouraging and inspiring.

To Charles as well as to her own daughter Katherine and to her granddaughters, Mrs. Breed was a true comrade and chum, encouraging them and to the last interested in all that interested them.

In March, 1862 Mr. and Mrs. Breed moved to Sprague purchasing the farm now known as Ash Lawn, where they spent the remainder of their lives.

Mrs. Breed united with the Baptist church of Lebanon in her girlhood but after moving to Sprague she united with the Congregational church in Hanover in whise welfare she was deeply interested.

For many years she was a teacher in the Sunday school, having first a class of older women. She was an earnest Bible student, memorising the Bible to an unusual degree. She was deeply interested in education and an untiring reader to her family of good literature until her failing sight took away the great joy and privilege.

Following an attack of scarlet fever in her girlhood, her hearing was impaired and in later life this too became a great privation as it shut her out from ordinary conversation. In spite of these afflictions Mrs. Breed was a woman of unusual cheerfulness, being an inspiration of patience and courage to all who knew her.

The daughters, Mrs. Allison B. Ladd, Jr., and two granddaughters, the Misses Gertrude Huntsman and Louise Breed Ladd, are left to feel deeply the passing of a true Christian gentle woman.

Funeral services for Mrs. Breed were held at her late home Tuesday afternoon, June 26th, at one o'clock with a large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. Roderick MacLeod, pastor of the Hanover Congregational church, very beautifully conducted the service. The central theme being peece. The many choice flowers attested to the high esteem and friendship in which Mrs. Breed was held.

The bearers were personal friends of the deceased, William S. Lee, Frederick Ladd, William E. Campbell and John Robish, Jr.

Burial was in the family lot in Hancock cemetery where Revx. Mr. MacLeod conducted the committal service. Undertaker George G. Grant had charge of the arrangements.

TRUCK LANDS ON TROLLEY TRACK, COUPE IN BUSHES AT ROADSIDE

A Ford truck and a Buick coupe locked left forward wheels as they were passing each other opposite a standing trolley car at De Wolf's switch on the Montville line Saturday night about 10.30 o'clock, and when they tore apart the truck shot on to the trolley track where it turned over on its side while the coupe ran up a bank and buried its nose in the bushes. Neither Meredith Lee of the Williams Tire Co., of this city, who was driving the coupe, nor Harry Karry of 36 Truman street, New London, who was driving the truck, was hurt. The truck belonged to the New London Candy Co., of 661 Bank street.

Lee was driving towards New London and the other man towards this city when their machines met at the switch where an open trolley car was standing with one or two men on the running board next to the highway. Lee claimed that the New London man left him so little room to pass next to the trolley car that he nearly raked the men off the running board After the machines hit, each ran on 30 or 40 feet before coming to a stop.

Lee's coupe, with the tire and rim torn off its left forward wheel and caught under the body of the machine, swerved to the left and climbed a bank till it was clear off the highway with its forward end among the bushes.

The candy company's truck had the tire on its left forward wheel loosened and steering gear bent and twisted causing it to shoot across the road to the left where it crossed the main trolley line, toppling over on its left side on top of the bare rails and ties in the excavation where a new switch is being laid. Karry, the driver, crawled out through the cab door after shutting off the engine which was still running as the truck lay on its side. Neither of the machines had any glass broken.

Notice of the accident was telephoned to the Groton state police barracks by Capt. D. J. Twomey from police headquarters in this city and a state policemen arrived to investigate and take measurements.

The truck blocked the main line trolley track so that passengers had to transfer around this point until the truck could be moved. The Buick coupe was towed to the city by a wrecking car from a Norwich garage.

GARDNER LAKE FIREWORKS AT PENDLETON'S COTTAGE

About fifty friends from Norwich and nearly 150 campers at Gardner Lake were entertained Saturday night at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Pendleton when one of the most attractive displays of fireworks was given by Mr. Pendleton.

Early in the evening the members of the several camps at the lake gathered at the Pendleton cottage and entertained the visitors with their camp songs and cheers. Dancing was also enjoyed in the cottage.

At 10 o'clock the fireworks began with an attractive display of aerial bursts, single, double or triple, the many colors of the bursts lighting up the waters of the lake making a beautiful picture. There were many of the aerial bursts but the ground pieces were not less attractive there being red fire, flower pieces, Japanese jugglers, pinwheels and small set pieces.

As the final display of the evening, a large American Flag was set off while the essemblage joined in singing the Star Spangled Banner.

The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing and singing songs and refreshments of ice cream cones and hot dogs were served by the hostess.

The event is an annual one at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Pendleton and is looked forward to with pleasure by their many friends in the city and the summer campers at the lake.

MRS. HENRY R. BOND, JR., ILL AT NEW LONDON HOSPITAL

Norwich friends were startled Sunday by receiving the message that Mrs. Henry R. Bond, Jr., (Harriet Learned Howland) of Pequot Avenue, New London, formerly of Norwich, has been taken to the contagious hospital on Garfield Avenue, New London, suffering from a serious attack of diphtheria. Sunday evening her condition was slightly improved.

Mrs. Bond was very ill earlier in the year and went south to the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Foster.

Her husband is treasurer of the New London Ship & Engine Company and is interested in many other public enterprises in New London. He and Mrs. Bond are prominent members of Norwich Golf club.

FORTY NORWICH SCOUTS STARTING FOR CAMP

Over forty scouts will leave this (Monday) morning for Camp Tippecan, at Beach Pond, Voluntown, where the Norwich scouts have their summer camp. During the past few weeks the registrations of scouts have been very heavy and it was readily seen that the second and third weeks had been filled. Calls for registrations for the first and fourth weeks led to a response and these weeks are now nearly filled.

The work preparatory to the opening of the camp has been in charge of Scout Executive F. A. Benton and several scoutmasters of the local troops. The camp was put in first class order on Saturday ready for the influx of the campers today and in charge of Scout Executive Benton and five scoutmasters the weeks at camp should provide plenty of clean recreation for the scouts.

Runaway Girl Found

Jennie Tubbs, 12 years old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tubbs of 120 Dunham street, who disappeared from her home Friday, was found by the police late Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Catherine Dewire at 59 Newton street. The girl gave her name as Lucille Roy.

The girl stopped there and asked for something to eat. While Mrs. Dewire was preparing to satisfy the child's hunger she got word to the police and Sergeant Thomas Murphy brought Jennie to police headquarters.

The girl told the police she had slept in a barn on Alice street, Friday and Saturday night. She was wearing a pink dress when she left home and was without stockings but she had on a blue dress and black stockings when she was found.

Sunday night Mr. Tubbs called at police headquarters and took Jennie home. She promised not to run away from home again.

Fines in Police Court

The session of the city court was attended by a large number of people Saturday morning and there was considerable business for Judge A. F. Libby.

The continued matter of the state vs three men was called up. One of the three men was fined $50 and costs or breach of the peace but the other two were found free from guilt and discharged.

John Erle and Ralph Simonds, both of Stafford Springs, charged with shooting crap on the Yantic bridge, paid costs and were given a warning to keep away from games of chance in the future.

John Bears, aged 36, brought to this city from Middletown and is charged with beating a jitney man out of $14. The matter went over until July 10th and will probably be settled out of court.

ISSUES WARNING ON DANGER FROM MAD DOGS

Frank L. Tuttle dog warden of Norwich, has received notice from the State Department of Health concerning the preventing of the spread of rabies and asking for his co-operation in this work.

In connection with the notice the following letter has been sent out by Stanley H. Osborn, commissioner of health, to Howard Elliott, special deputy commissioner, state commissioner on domestic animals.

"Recently, with the outbreak of rabies in animals in Hartford county and the southeastern part of New London county it has been necessary apparently for the police officers and others to kill the rabid animal because of his ferocious behavior. Undoubtedly, it is occassionally necessary for an individual to kill the rabid animal in order to protect himself, but I desire to ask your co-operation in having a suspected animal chained or confined until evident symptoms of rabies develop, at which time the dog should be killed, without injuring the brain, and the head sent to the Bureau of Laboratories of this department, 185 Huntington street, New Haven, Conn. It is particularly desirable to avoid injuring the brain, for it is this part of the anatomy of the dog that is examined by the laboratory workers for the Negri bodies which are evidence of the dog being infected with rabies.

"As you know the infection of rabies may be conveyed from the rabid animal to a human being by biting, but it can also be conveyed by the mere licking of a person's hand, for instance, provided the hand has an open scratch or wound in the skin. It is also desirable to mention that cattle, sheep, cats, horses, and swine are susceptible to this disease. The incubation period—that which elapses between the bite and the appearance of the symptoms of rabies—is on the average of 40 days in a man, but may be only 10 or 15 days; in dogs, 21 to 40 days; in horses, 28 to 56 days; pigs, 14 to 21 days; in cats and sheep 21 to 28 days; birds, 14 to 40 days. (Preventative Medicine and Hygiene, by Rosenau, 1921 edition.)

"Please assure your workers that any assistance this department can give directly or through local health officers will be gladly rendered in aiding you in the suppression of this disease."

THREW STILL OUT OF SPRING STREET WINDOW

While the police were making a liquor raid Saturday night about 10 o'clock at the tenement of Edward Bezefski, 70 Spring street, somebody threw the copper boiler, coil and tub of a still out of the second story window. The articles were recovered in the yard by the officers, who arrested Bezefski, and seized two earthenware jugs, one glass jug, three bottles and two barrels of mash.

The barrels and other pieces of apparatus were brought to police headquarters where Bezefski gave bonds for his appearance in court. Sergeant Thomas Murphy with Officers P. Murphy, J. Donovan and J. Dombrowski made the raid.

Playgrounds Opening

Friday afternoon and evening sessions of the city playground commission brought forth increased attendance as the combine total of the attendance of children of boys and girls reached 723. On Monday the regular program will go into effect and it is expected that this will draw up the interest among the children as the program is broad in its scope and highly instructive as well as recreational.

The appointment by the commission last week of three men instructors for Greeneville, Lake and Elizabeth streets introduced for the first time the organized inter-playground competitions and establishes a boys' department among boys and is the establishment for the older boys under 16 years old of the department to department to care for them.

THREE WOMEN'S FARM MATRONS OFFER RESIGNATIONS

Three more resignations have been offered at the Connecticut state farm for women in addition to that of Supt. Anna M. Peterson, it has been learned. The reasons were the same as those of Miss Peterson—objections to methods of Mrs. Helen W. Rogers of Hamden, one of the seven directors of the institution, according to a report made to Mrs. Ida M. S. Thompson of Hartford, chairman of the board.

The resignations were tendered to Miss Peterson by three matrons immediately following the time the superintendent notified the board that she would no longer serve. Miss Peterson declined to accept the resignations and persuaded the matrons to reconsider. Each was in charge of a cottage accommodating several inmates of the farm. The matter was reported to Mrs. Thompson by Superintendent Peterson and the facts are in the possession of Governor Templeton, who has been asked to remove Mrs. Rogers as a director of the institution.

These resignations made a total of nine that have been offered in the upheaval at the farm caused by the objections to officials and employes to activities of Mrs. Rogers. Five of Mrs. Rogers' colleagues on the board told the governor that they would resign if Mrs. Rogers would do so, also, but the latter refused, and only one resignation, that of Miss Peterson, has gone into effect. Governor Templeton, however, has again asked Miss Peterson to reconsider, and there is a possibility that she may be persuaded to stay, under certain circumstances.

Miss Helen Hazard, educational director at the farm since last August, has been appointed acting superintendent pending the making of a permanent appointment by the board of directors for the place made vacant by Miss Peterson's leaving the institution. Miss Peterson has taken quarters in a residence near the farm, and, according to Mrs. Thompson, is acting in an advisory capacity until July 9 when she will enter summer school at Columbia university, unless her plans are changed.

CONNECTICUT LEADS U. S. IN FIREARMS MAKING

Connecticut leads the United States in the production of firearms, in the number of wage earners employed in the industry, and the value of the product manufactured, according to a bulletin giving a census of the manufacturers of firearms and ammunition for 1921 published by the bureau of the census of the department of commerce.

The canvass covered the 48 states and the District of Columbia and embraced all establishments engaged in the manufacture of firearms and ammunition. A distinction is drawn between unmounted and mounted guns, the latter being classified as ordinance and not listed in the census.

The total value of products manufactured in the country in 1921 amounted to $82,350,445, of which Connecticut manufactured $19,241,776 worth in these establishments or 59 per cent of the total manufactured in all other states. New Jersey was next, manufacturing but 7 per cent. of the total.

For the same year, Connecticut employed an average of 5,877 wage earners in the industry or 67 per cent. of the 8,870 people employed in all other states. The figures in the report refer to commercial establishments only and do not include government establishments engaged in the industry.

In 1921, salaries amounting to $3,002,007 were paid and wages amounting to $5,321,472 while New Jersey, the next state to Connecticut in this respect paid $317,601 in salaries and $432,721 in wages.

MACHINES COLLIDE AT NEW LONDON CORNER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 8.—An automobile owned and operated by Peter N. Dukes of No. 5 Lincoln court and a machine owned and driven by R. Rosenblatt of Hartford, were in collision this afternoon at the corner of Broad street and Connecticut avenue. Mrs. Rosenblatt, who was riding with her husband, sustained slight injuries, including cuts on the face and was taken to a private hospital, where the wounds were dressed, after which she was discharged. Just as the Rosenblatt car reached the intersecting street, Dukas' car emerged into Broad street and before either driver could bring his machine to a stop, they side-swiped each other.

APPRECIATIVE NOTICE OF AMANDA HALL'S POEM

An appreciative notice of a volume of verse, The Dancer in the Shrine and Others Poems, by Miss Amanda Benjamin Hall of this city, was given by The New York Sunday Times which said of Miss Hall that she "not only has a pretty sophisticated faculty in the choice of words but as a relief to the wistfulness of parting and rustic tragedy can weave them into charming nonsense."

The notice is accompanied by an excellent two column cut of the poetess.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Running out through a line of parked cars along the frontage of the church property, Henry Trahan, 8, son of Joseph Trahan, was struck just after the close of the 8 o'clock mass at St. James' church Sunday morning by a car driven and owned by James McNally, of Lymansville, R. I.

The boy hurtled across the street and on first appearance those who witnessed the accident believed that he had been seriously hurt, but this proved not to be the case. Mr. McNally took the boy into his car and in company with Chief John McFarland, of the police department started to seek out a physician. Dr. W. H. Judson was encountered on the street and made an examination of the boy at the police station. No indications of injuries of any consequence were noted by the physician. Mr. McNally was not held and the boy was able to proceed to his home.

An article that appeared in this column Saturday morning quoting the experience of Dr. Charles Zueblein, Chautauqua lecturer, who appeared here during the latter part of June, and who encountered stormy opposition when he delivered his lecture—Europe, Coming and Going, at Suffield the past week, has proved a bit provocative. Quotations from press reports published in Hartford have been taken in some quarters locally as a reflection on the local Chautauqua organization. Such a contingency was not in mind when the article referred to was published. The incident was real live and legitimate news and of surpassing local interest—as developments during Saturday has shown. Such protests against the repurint as have been heard come from enthusiastic Chautauquans. Attention may be called here to the fact that they may not hold themselves responsible any criticism that may be made anywhere—of any lecture or act that appears in a Chautauqua program. They do not engage the entertainers, nor do they know before hand anything in detail relatives to any particular lecture or entertainment. The programs are made up and supplied by the Swarthmore Chautauqua organization, which needs no mentor or apology from anyone.

However, upon it becoming evident that there was resentment or re-publication here of what a Suffield Chautauqua organization did in dealing with Dr. Zeublin, inquiry was made in the interest of this paper and how particular individuals rated his lecture as given in Danielson and it may be frankly stated that there is a widespread difference of opinion. Some found nothing at all of German propaganda material in anything he said, while others without any restraint at all and with considerable vehemence take a directly opposite view. And here you are.

This paper's interest in the matter is merely the presentation of what occurred in Suffield, with the reservation that what Dr. Zueblin said in that town might have varied materially from the text of his address on the same subject here. This often is the case with professional talkers. The point in the incident that concerns The Bulletin is that no one here is under any obligation whatsoever to defend Dr. Zueblin or to take any responsibility for what he said or did or not say. He was not employed by the local Chautauqua organization, which is made up of splendid people, but came to them and their series of entertainments as did all other speakers in the five days' program. They knew nothing at all about what he might say on the subject announced, and not knowing are not responsible for any of his utterances, any more than any person who bought a ticket to hear the lecture. And no one holds them responsible.

Relative to the Zueblin incident and to plans for next year's Chautauqua here, The Bulletin has received the following communication from Mrs. Ida E. Armington, who is in charge of the publicity end of the endeavor:

"A meeting of the Chautauqua guarantors for 1924 was held at the home of Mrs. F. O. Armington Friday evening, when officers for the year were elected.

The lecture of Dr. Zueblin, which has occasioned such adverse comment in Suffield, was discussed and all agreed that no such radical pro-German sentiments were expressed here.

The audience here was, in the words of the Chautauqua superintendent, 'a wonderful audience for attentiveness and appreciation,' which would indicate that said audience was fairly intelligent.

The superintendent also made the statement that lectures, though having the same title, varied in subject matter.

For instance, Dr. Burns gave a lecture to an attentive audience here more than he can inattentive audience wish it understood that they would find here.

The promoters of 1924 Chautauqua not devote time and effort to securing questionable entertainment and educational matter for the town."

Rev. John Roux, M. S., and Rev. J. E. Shelley, M. S., were numbered among the priests in the sanctuary of St. Patrick's church, near the state house, in Providence Saturday morning when a solemn high mass of requiem was sung at the funeral for Miss Helen R. Welch, who was almost instantly killed in an automobile accident at South Killingly on the afternoon of the Fourth. The pastor and his assistant of St. James' parish here were, with Rev. Ignatius Kent of Taftsville, quick to respond to the call for spiritual consolation when the accident occurred.

The church was filled with relatives and friends of the young teacher who met such a tragic death and 40 automobiles were in the cortege that proceeded from the church to the cemetery. Among those within the sanctuary at the requiem mass was the superior of the Dominican college at Providence and the sub-deacon of the mass was John Walsh, brother of the deceased, who next year will be ordained as a member of the Dominican order, he at present being a student at Ocean City, near Washington, D. C.

Miss Walsh's father and mother and her sister, Mary, who was driving the car, all were able to attend the church services and bore up bravely under their bereavement. Miss Mary narrowly escaped death with her sister, for close examination of the severe wound she recieved in the throat and neck showed that the jugular vein came within a fraction of an inch of being severed.

Saturday of this week, the second annual poultry field meeting under the auspices of the Windham County Farmers' association will be held at the farm of Harold Storrs, two miles south of Willimantic on the Norwich road. A large number of pourrymen have signified their intention of being present at this meeting.

Friday evening, at his home in Brooklyn, a birthday party was given in honor of Harry E. Magoon, assistant treasurer of the Danielson Trust company. The evening was given over to whist, dancing and other diversions and refreshments were served. Mr. Magoon was presented a pair of beautiful cuff-links.

Cooler weather Saturday and Sunday morning was attributed by observers of things weatherwise to the fact that there was a display of aurora borealis about 10 o'clock Friday evening. Early July is an unusual period for such phenomena.

Henry Gallup, student at the medical college of Harvard university, is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Gallup.

Rev. John Roux, M. S., and Rev. J. E. Shelley, M. S., of St. James' church will be in Hartford this week for their annual retreat. Visiting priests will assist in the administration of parish affairs.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Van Woodworth were visitors at Oakland Beach, R. I., over Sunday.

PUTNAM

The Manhassett Manufacturing Co. of this city is undergoing a number of changes. As announced, under its newly adopted policy of financial economy the offices maintained in Providence are to be closed and the financial and sales departments moved to Putnam. General Manager Harrison, who has made his headquarters at the company's yarn mill in Taunton, is to move to Putnam and will direct the two mills from his office here, also becoming superintendent of the Putnam mill. The mill at Warren, R. I., his already been closed and the premises have not again been leased by the Manhasset Company. Another important change is in the product manufactured. Heretofore the Manhasset company has manufactured notring but automobile tire fabric, but now it is to add the manufacture of cloth used in the upholstering of automobiles. This product is different from tire duck and comprises twills, herrinbones and the like, all in fancy colors. Mill No. 5 has been selected for this work and a number of looms have already been set up, and it is anticipated that in a very short time 20 to 25 looms will be in operation.

Miss Katherine Bryne of Worcester was the week end guest of Mrs. A. S. Macdonald of Oak Hill.

Papers were signed Friday whereby the property of Charles Seder, Grove street, occupied by the Seder family as a resident, became the property of Edna E. Walker, wife of Leon Walker. Mr. Seder is to move his family to Dorchester, Mass., but will spend much of his time in Putnam attending to his business interests. Mr. and Mrs. Walker are to move from Grosvenordale to Putnam this week.

Mrs. George M. Sampson, of North Woodstock, entertained nearly forty ladies of whist, Friday evening, for the benefit of the Nurses' home fund of the Day Kimball hospital. After cards had been played there was an auction of packages containing a variety of articles which had been contributed by Putnam merchants. A substantial sum was realized. Before the evening was over light refreshments were served.

Putnam Rotarians entertained State Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald at a diner at the Vernon Styles inn, Friday evening, in such a unique manner that at the conclusion of the affair His Excellency Governor Templeton, expresed his pleasure of the affair to one of the members, saying, "It takes the small towns to do things." While there were a number of songs and Rotarian stunts the real feature was the presentation of gifts to the honored guest. It was announced that it was intended to present some tokens of esteem but that as the articles had not arrived it would be necessary to collect from the members. From pockets of members were taken a pair of cuff links, a manifold card case with a silver pencil and from about the neck of a member a beautiful necktie in the Macdonald plaid. A child's set of garden tools was also presented and Representative Keith, of the appropriations committee, was requested not to deduct its value from the highway appropriation. The guests, aside from the highway commissioner and governor, included: Archibald Macdonald, postmaster of Putnam and father of the new commissioner, his brother, Archibald Macdonald, jr., State Bank Commissioner John E. Byrne, Representative Luther M. Keith of Putnam, Representative John Ash of Pomfret, Representative Hector Duvert of Putnam, State Senator Clarence H. Child of Woodstock, and State's Attorney Charles E. Searls of Thompson. Following the dinner the governor and party went to the Elks' fair.

The Elks' fair came to a close Saturday evening. A large gathering was present to see various articles given away. The attendance during the week has been large and the fair did not have to be postponed a single night on account of rain. While the event was successful in every way it is not believed that the financial receipts will reach the amount of a year ago as the lodge spent large sums in high class entertainments and the expenses were much greater than last year. The members of the lodge who have worked hard for months to stage the show and many of whom worked all night the nights of the fair, feel well satisfied that they gave the people of this section a week of amusement that the public appreciated and generously supported. The large number of automobiles here well handled and not an accident occurred. Over fifteen hundred cars were parked on the grounds on more than one night and all were handled without confusion by a large number of regular and special police.

John B. Daigle, last Saturday rounded out twenty years' employment with the Putnam Light & Power Company. Mr. Daigle was working in a dry goods store a score of years ago when he decided that he would like employment that kept him out of doors. He began work with the company and at that time only two men were employed at the works and two in the office. Today thirty-five people are in the company's employ. The company has extended its operations into the surrounding towns of Thompson, Woodstock and Pomfret since Mr. Daigle began his employment and the juice, in his early dways considered a luxury, has been installed in nearly every house in the section which the company serves.

Malcolm M. Willey of Putnam and his cousin, Richard M. Holmes, a student at Clark College summer school, left Friday evening for a hike that will take them beyond the borders of Maine. They expect to be back in Worcester this (Monday) morning.

More than 100 boys and girls from New York are at Camp Utopia on the shores of Roseland lake, Woodstock.

NEW LONDON POLICE DEPT. ARRESTS HARTFORD MOTOR TRUCK DRIVERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 8.—The city of New London, through its council of seven, passed a fireworks ordinance this year by which the privilege of selling fireworks during four working days prior to the Fourth of July was fixed at $25. That was a raise of 250 per cent. over the rate fixed for licenses in the past. As a result the city obtained $175 in license fees. Last year the sum collected from licenses was twice that amount, and in 1921 it was more than $600. Now there are persons who are suspicious enough to believe that the high license fee was the work of selfish persons who had in mind the driving out of the business of all but a very few dealers. Whether that was the intent or whether it was not the purpose of the council, it had that effect, for only seven dealers were licensed this month, whereas two years ago there must have been more than sixty such dealers licensed. The claim is made that the $25 scheme was the crafty work of a few dealers who desired to shut out the little fellows who could earn a few dollars with which to pay their taxes.

The wiping out of the town of Goldfield, Nev., the past week revives recollections of money lost there by a few New Londoners who bought stock in Goldfield Consolidated mines when that town was having its boom but a comparatively few years ago. The stock was sold to them by a smooth-tongued New London resident who promised tremendous profits from the venture. Those who bought have since been cursing the slick-tongued fellow who flim-flammed them. It also recalls something of a marital tragedy in which Goldfield figured for a New London woman. She was estranged from her husband and went to California through a ruse on the part of her life partner. She was to visit her relatives, but while she was away and without the means of returning, her husband brought proceedings for a divorce. When the wife realized the trap into which she had been led she got a chance to go to Goldfield and become pianist in a hotel. There she saw some of the wildest times she ever witnessed and such, she now says, as she never wants to witness again. Goldfield was a lawless place and as soon as the wife could get the money she left it, mighty glad to get away. Goldfield was the last of the boom towns of lower Nevada. It sprung up in a night, practically and grew from a few hundred residents, such as they were, to a place of 200,000. Its gold mines turned out to be only clay trails and it soon dropped out of sight as a mining town. Still there were some pretentious buildings which remained till fire swept them away. The boom was twenty years ago. An effort was made to bring the place into the limelight by staging the Gans-Nelson fight there, but failed. That was in 1906. Since then the New London wife has remarried, settled down in San Francisco, where she is happy and where she has forgotten much about the husband who tricked her into a divorce. That husband has since died.

Daniel Holloway, an old-timer, was "out" Friday night and wandered into a pool room on Atlantic street where negroes and whites resort. There Daniel figuratively got into the lion's den, for he started in to clean out the place. He didn't get far, however, for he was hustled out himself and when a policeman was notified of the disturbance Daniel was arrested. He was fined $10 in the police court Saturday morning. He wouldn't pay if he could, for he said he would not contribute a cent to a court. Now he is in jail, where he will be apt to change his mind as to paying in a few days.

Charlie Wardlaw, who at one time was the proprietor of the Eureka restaurant here, and endeavored, without success, to make people believe that chickens and waffles were food for the gods, and whose experience cost him all the cash he could get together, was in the court Saturday for giving his partner in the restaurant business a check that was not of any value. It turned out that the check was given two years ago and that at the time Wardlaw had the cash in the bank to meet it. Then, Charlie says, his partner endeavored to work a "nigger" trick on him and Charlie stopped payment of the check. It was apparent that the men were indebted to each other at the time the case was brought against Charlie Saturday and the court nolled the complaint.

John Brennan of Chicopee was held up by the police here some weeks ago for violation of the automobile law, but Saturday it developed that Brennan was not an offender in the eyes of the prosecutor and, the case was nolled.

Steamer Plymouth brought another crowd of excursionists to New London this afternoon, the 1,500 pleasure seekers coming from Fall River.

An automobile owned by C. D. Chipman of 232 Williams street was stolen at Pine Grove last night. Chipman went to the grove with a party of friends and while they enjoying the dancing at the grove pavilion the thief entered the machine and drove away.

Mrs. F. H. Norton of Middletown reported to the police late Saturday afternoon that she came to New London during the day, accompanied by her son and Dr. E. Morgan, aged 77, and that the retired physician was missing. She feared that he might become harmed, as his health is impaired, he being a sufferer from heart trouble. While she parked her car on State street the physician alighted and stated that he was going to visit a barber shop. That was the last she had seen of him. While the police were making a search of the city for the aged physician, the police station was communicated with by Mrs. Norton, who had returned to Middletown. She stated that the physician was home ahead of her, having met some friends in New London and he accompanied them back to Middletown.

William Van Keuren of Waterford was arrested late Saturday afternoon, charged with violation of the city parking ordinance by Traffic Officer John Courtney. Van Keuren, who parked his automobile on Bank street longer than 30 minutes, will be in the police court Monday morning.

Anthony Piscatelle of Hamilton street, a public service automobile operator, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Traffic Officer John Courtney, charged with violation of the automobile law in operating the machine without supplying himself with a license to do so.

After a lapse of about two years, a case of infantile paralysis appeared in New London Saturday. The patient is Thomas, the 15 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hamilton of 7 Fourth street.

Only one case of measles was reported to the health department last week.

The authorities are endeavoring to locate the vicious bulldog that attacked and severely bit Stephen Zosofsky, a 4 year old youth residing on Potter street.

The recent entertainments of the Chautauqua in New London were not well attended and as a result the New London guarantors will have to pay a good sum to the Chautauqua management.

An automobile owned and driven by Tony Orionchuk of 362 Main street struck Dorothy Coleman, aged 3, of 545 Main street, late Saturday afternoon at the corner of Main street and Crystal avenue, when the child ran into the street just as the automobile was about to pass. The child was knocked down but did not sustain serious injuries.

POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES.

A Boy to His Stomach.

What's the matter with you; ain't I always been your friend?
Ain't I been a pardner to you?
All my pennies don't I spend
In getting nice things for you?
Don't I give you lots of cake?
Say, stummick, what's the matter, that you had to go and ache?
Why I loaded you with good things yesterday; I gave you more
Potatoes, squash and turkey than you'd ever had before.
I gave you nuts and candy, pumpkin pie and chocolate cake—
And last night when I got to bed you had to go and ache!
Say, what's the matter with you?
Ain't you satisfied at all?
I gave you all you wanted; you was hard just like a ball;
And you couldn't hold another bit of puddin', yet last night
You ached most awful, stummick; that ain't treatin' me just right!
I've been a friend to you, I have; why ain't you a friend of mine?
They gave me castor oil last night because you made me whine.
I'm awful sick this mornin' and I'm feelin' mighty blue.
Becoz you don't appreciate the things I do for you!

—Hunter Missourian.

Truancies.

When Willie was a little boy
His mother washed his face,
His happiness it would destroy,
He deemed it a disgrace.
But sometimes he'd neglect the school
That held his lesson paper
And hurry to the swimming pool
And splash and whoop and caper!

He'd hold his nose and make a dive
While comrades hollered, "Looky!"
On bathing there he seemed to thrive
While comrades hollered, "Looky!"
He'd hit his toe upon a rock,
Midst poison oak undressing,
He didn't seem to find the shock
In any way distressing.

Now William goes to baseball games
Or sends a golf ball flying,
And keeps the score, though business claims
His care, there's no denying.
This world is pleasant here below
And life is full of beauty—
But its enjoyment seems to grow
Apart from simple duty!

UNCLE JOE'S TALK TO WIDE-AWAKES.

July is a month that is conspicuous for its heroic events and the birthday anniversary of many heroes. Many of the country's famous leaders and writers seem to have chosen July for their first appearance in the world. Among them are two of our naval heroes—John Paul Jones, who was born July 6, 1747, and David Glasgow Farragut, born July 5, 1801. Both are familiar names to those who have begun to study heroes, or those who have read about the country's great men.

John Paul Jones was the most famous naval commander of the Revolutionary war. His most noted exploit was the capture of the British frigate Serapis, in 1779, after a terrible fight—the most desperate ever recorded between single vessels. The American ship was the Bonhomme Richard, and the battle began an hour after sunset, in the North sea, within sight of England's coast. After an hour and a half of fighting, the two ships, side by side, so close that their rigging were tangled. The English captain called to the American: "Have you struck?" meaning, have you lowered your colors and given up? Jones answered: "I have not yet begun to fight," and the gunners went at it again. After more than three hours of fighting, the Serapis surrendered—a victory which won great admiration for the United States in Europe.

Admiral Farragut was the chief officer of the federal navy in the Civil war. It was he who planned and executed the destruction of the confederate fleet at the battle of Mobile bay in 1864.

The lives of both of these men make interesting reading for boys and girls who like to know about their country's heroes.

STORIES WRITTEN BY WIDEAWAKES

Tea.

Dear Uncle Jed: Tea comes from China and Japan.

The Japanese people like tea very much; they drink it every day. The tea plant is a kind of evergreen. It grows in big fields. After the tea is picked it is spread out in the sun to dry. Then it is looked over, the best leaves are picked out and put together. These make the finest tea. After the tea is sorted and rolled it is packed in boxes. Then the merchants send it far away to different parts of the world. This is my fifth story and I never won a book.

A Hard Task

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a summer day and George Miller was in high spirits. His father on coming home had announced that he would be away from home for some time. It was not this that made George go skipping along the path and through the gate at the end of the garden.

Mr. Miller had promised him a picnic on condition that he be a good boy for a whole week. Now that sounds easy, but it was really hard for George. He was full of mischief and more than once had been punished for some prank. Only two days before he had received punishment for painting a neighbor's dog with yellow paint.

However, the days went by quietly till Saturday. His father was expected home that very night.

As George strolled along, his friend, Joe Mitchel, appeared and asked him if he would go swimming. He said he would, and ran home to tell his mother. However, his mother refused to give her permission.

George secretly decided to go in spite of her refusal. Then the promised picnic flashed before his mind and he hurriedly put his bathing suit away.

That night his father arrived home. He asked Mrs. Miller if George had been agood boy, and on being informed that he had been, ordered the necessary things for the picnic.

George could not help thinking how close he had come to loosing it.

The Naughty Squirrel

Dear Uncle Jed: One morning while my sisters and mother were sitting on the porch, we heard a noise in the maple tree. We looked up in the tree and saw a squirrel taking a baby bird out of its nest. It was a chippy bird. The mother picked him and chased him, but he stole it just the same. We threw stones and my sister hit the squirrel and he dropped the bird and ran to his own nest.

Yours truly,
JANET LORING, Age 10.

The Robin's Nest

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide-Awakes. We have a robin's nest under the roof of our piazza. It took the robins about three weeks to build their nest, and we thought they would never finish. Nearly every morning we would find the piazza floor littered with hay. The mother robin worked harder than the father.

One day we found a little egg all broken. Every day the mother bird flies to her nest with worms. Now we can just see the little bills open when the mother brings their food. The robins scold and make a great fuss when they see us watching them.

The Storm

Dear Uncle Jed: The sky suddenly darkened and black clouds moved quickly about. The wind blew with great strength, scattered every thing around. Snake lightning lit up the earth, and peal after peal of thunder shook the houses. Then rain fell in torrents, forming big pools of water everywhere.

Darker grew the sky, harder fell the rain, and then as it began to cease, the sun shone and a rainbow appeared, and that was the end of the storm.

Afraid of a Bat

Dear Uncle Jed: One night while I was in bed, I heard a noise when I awoke. Looking up I saw a bat flew around the room and then fell in a corner. The window was open and that is the way it came in. It flew up to the window and looked for a place to get out. I don't know how it got out for I fell asleep.

When I awoke it was time to be up. I went down stairs and told my mother. She said it was a funny thing to be afraid of.

My Dog Gruff

A Thrilling Experience

Dear Uncle Jed: The most thrilling experience that Jane had was when she went fishing with her sisters, Babe and Bobby.

It was a beautiful May morning when Jane's mother came to her bed and said, "Wake up, Jane, it is a beautiful day to go fishing and you must remember you have no school today." Jane at once jumped out of bed and dressed. She was surprised to see it was only six o'clock.

After having her breakast she and her sisters, went to the garden to dig worms or bait. After filling their baskets with worms and taking a basket of lunch and their fishing poles, they started their trip to the pond. They reached it in a half hour.

They fished for a long time and had not caught anything when all of a sudden a large fish began to eat Jane's worm and the cork began to move up and down. The fish being not very hungry swam away, pulling the pole with him. Jane reached out for it but the stone she was standing on gave way and she fell into the water which was deep and cold. Jane couldn't swim. She grabbed another stone but she couldn't climb out, then she cried, Help! Her sisters ran to help her. She was badly frightened. She always remembered this thrilling experience and called it her pink middy bath, for she wore a pink middy when she fell in the water.

Losing My Chickens

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell you about my chickens. I have a hen and her name is Pidgie. She started to set and I put 13 eggs under her. She hatched out nine chickens. So I said that she would have her chickens until she ran away from them. The other night I locked her up and about one o'clock our dog started to bark and my sister said that the hen was cackling and the chickens squawking. In the morning I saw that Pidgie only had seven chickens. I looked in the coop and saw one of my chickens there. I went over and saw another chicken with her head sticking out through a crack. I took her out and saw her neck twisted around. I took her in the house and she died. My brother saw the other chicken's head bitten off and the chicken half eaten. That night I hung the chicken up and set a trap but I didn't catch anything. The next night our dog started to bark again. So my mother went out, but she couldn't see any thing. We think that it was a skunk. This is the first time I have written to you.

Sunshine.

Dear Uncle Jed: Edith was a little girl 12 years old. She was a sweet tempered child and made friends very quickly.

One day her mother sent her on an errand. As she was going past a tumbled down house, she heard a baby crying and a soft voice singing. She did not know what made her but she turned her steps in the direction of the house. All of a sudden she heard a scream. She quickened her steps.

When she stepped inside such a sight as met her eyes! On a broken-down couch lay a sick woman and a tiny baby not more than two months old. She was touched with pity at the sight, but as the scream had issued from the kitchen she ran out there and saw a crippled girl of about her own age trying to tie up the scalded hand of a little boy. Edith soon had it wrapped in a nice clean cloth.

The next thing she did was to fix the fire. She then made the baby and mother more comfortable. Fortunately Edith had food in her basket and a new five-dollar bill in her pocket with which she was going to buy skates. She went to a nearby grocery store and soon had a hearty repast ready for everybody.

All this time the two girls had not spoken. They now told each other their names.

"You have brought great joy indeed," sighed the mother, "how can we repay you?"

"We will call her Sunshine," cried Doris, for that was the crippled girl's name.

This conversation took place while Edith was getting ready to go home with the happy thought of having done somebody good. Being sure they were comfortable she went home.

She told her mother, and as she was a member of a charitable institution you can well imagine that the Elkasones were never again in need.

"Bless that child," murmured Mrs. Elkasone, as they moved into a new home. "If it hadn't been for her we wouldn't be here now."

Edith and Doris are the best of chums and to this day Doris calls Edith Sunshine.

A Grain of Sand.

Dear Uncle Jed: Once upon a time a little grain of sand was resting quietly in the bed at the bottom of a lake. After it had lain there for many years, a great storm arose on the lake, which stirred it to its very depths. The small grain was washed back and forth on the beach until a large wave carried it far up on the shore, where the water did not reach it.

After the storm abated, a wind carried the grain of sand up near the roots of a young tree. There it remained a hundred years or more while the young tree grew to be a great sheltering oak. Indians pulled their canoes up under the shady branches of this tree. Later the white men came and built homes along the shores of this great lake.

Time passed, and in our own day city people came and erected a little cottage by this tree. Children played along the beach and under the sheltering branches of the tree.

One day a big shiny plow came along and carried the grain of sand with many others to a neighboring cottage. The sand was being hauled to fill in behind a breakwater. Although the rain of sand could not go back to its lake bed, it was contented to remain behind the wall and do its best in helping to make a yard where the children played all summer.

Rover Helps Drive the Cows.

Dear Uncle Jed: We have a dog named Rover. He is some pup. When my father drives the cows to pasture Rover will run along the lawn. Then he will run up ahead of them and head them into the pasture.

If a cow runs towards him he'll run as fast as he can and jump over the nearest stone wall. Then he'll stick his head over the wall and see if they are far enough away. Then he'll come over the wall and run home. This is the first time I have written to you.

The World's Most Needed Food.

Dear Uncle Jed: At one time wheat was a wild grain. It was finally cultivated by the natives of Southern Europe. Then by accident it was brought from Spain to Mexico. It happened that some rice was brought over and in it were a few wheat seeds. These were planted with the rice and thus by this careless cultivation wheat has been plentiful.

Wheat thrives in every climate but the torrid lowlands. If planted there it will dry up. It thrives best in soil that contains vegetable mold. There are two kinds of wheat, spring or soft wheat and winter, or hard wheat. Hard wheat makes the best bread. Spring wheat is so-called because it is planted in the spring while winter wheat is planted in the fall. The United States raises spring wheat mostly. The process of preparing wheat for market is a very, very long one. First the ground is plowed with gang plows. Then it is harrowed. The seeds are then planted by a machine known as the "hoe drill." When the grain is ready to be harvested it is cut, bound, cleaned and then later put into sacks by the "combiner". Not earlier days the cradle was used. After the grain is threshed it is put in grain elevators. It is then cleaned. The United States raises more wheat than any other country.

It is said that if all the loaves of wheat bread that America bakes in one year were placed end to end, they would reach around the world.

"POSITIVELY DIFFERENT"

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

THE ESCAPE FROM HUNGRY HAWK.

Oh, the grasshopper sat in the Lucky-mobile
With his knees up under his chin,
So happy and gay as he rode on his way
By the light of the big diamond pin
That the old rabbit wore in his purple cravat
Under the brim of his old stove-pipe hat.

Now, let me see, if I remember right, the Grasshopper had promised to show Uncle Lucky a beautiful clover patch where the clover tops grew red, white and blue and were covered with dew, tra, la, loo!

"Turn to your right," said the Grasshopper and by and by, after a while, just as it grew dark, the Luckymobile stopped right alongside of a beautiful clover field

"Here we are," said the Grasshopper, hopping out to stretch his long legs which were dreadfully cramped from sitting so long in the Luckymobile.

As soon as Little Jack Rabbit had tied the Luckymobile he and Uncle Lucky hopped into the field. Just then the big round yellow moon came out of a cloud and shone right down on the clover tops. Oh, my! Weren't they red and white and blue. Well, I just guess yes and no! And while the little rabbits feasted the Grasshopper kept watch from the top rail of the old snake fence.

"Oh, the moon shines bright
On the pretty moonlit field,
All covered with clover tops so sweet,
But Oh dear and oh my!
There's a shadow on the sky—
Old hawk has hooks upon his feet!"

Well sir! If that grasshopper hadn't sung this beautiful song it would have been the end of these two dear little rabbits but when they heard the last two lines, they didn't stop to eat another clover top. No sireeman! They hopped as quickly as a ten-legged fly into an old hollow stump! And that's pretty quick if you've ever used a fly swatter.

When the grasshopper who had skipped into a hole in the fence rail peeked out he saw Hungry Hawk strutting around the hollow stump.

"Come out of that stump
Or I'll tear it in two.
Or I'll split it in half.
Don't care what I do."

"I won't," answered brave Uncle Lucky.

"Nor I!" replied Little Jack Rabbit, but the Grasshopper never said a word but commenced to play on his fiddle. You know how a Grasshopper fiddles, don't you? He scrapes his left hind leg up and down under his wing.

"Botheration," grumbled Hungry Hawk and he flew away, knowing it was useless to wait for those two little rabbits to hop out of that friendly hollow stump.

And in the story for tomorrow, if you'll promise to be kind to all little and big animals, I'll tell you about Little Jack Rabbit in the Ragged Bunny Giant's Forest.

(Copyright 1923, by David Cory.)

THE LITTLE JACK RABBIT PICTURE FOR COLORING

"Hello, boys and girls! Guess where I am! Maybe I'd better tell you before you grow tired thinking of a million different places. I'm up in Professor Crow's tall Pine Tree house. He has a radio outfit and has asked me to broadcast a Little Jack Rabbit story. Isn't that a compliment? Well, I just guess yes, three times and a half, but dear me! It was some job for me to climb that tall pine house. I'm not as young as I used to be, but now that I'm up at the top and have brushed off my trousers and straightened my tie, I'll tell you something nice and true, for it's pretty up here under the blue and sunny sky with Merry Sun winking his big gold eye.

"Goodness me! there we go again, my typewriter and I, making up poetry as we go along and then, forgetting to put it into a nice voice.

Well, here goes. Prof. Crow has just announced to his radio audience that "This is Station ABC, Old Crow Country, Tall Pine Tree. The next number on our program is David Cory, the Jack Rabbit Man, who will tell his famous Little Jack Rabbit stories to all the furry and feather-coated people of the Shady Forest and the Sunny Meadow. Tune in and let us know by telephone how the story is going over. Step into the Hollow Stump Telephone Booth and call us up: One, three, five, Sakes alive! Pine Tree Top, Lollypop!"

But, dear boys and girls, no sooner had I commenced than the telephone bell rang furiously and Squirrel Nutcracker's voice came loud and strong over the wire: "Ask Mr. Cory to put me in the story."

"All right," said Professor Crow, but before he finished instructing me the bell rang again.

"Busy Beaver talking," came over the wire. "Ask David Cory to say something about me."

"All rightie," answered the old crow, hanging up; but jingle, jingle, tinkle, tinkle went the bell before I could wink.

"This is the Big Brown Bear. Ask David Cory to put me in the story," were the words I heard as Prof. Crow answered "I'll see what I can do."

"Hurry up and commence," he said, turning to me, when tinkerly tink, jingerly, jink went the bell and Grandaddy Bullfrog begged Prof. Crow to have me mention him over the wire.

"All righto, Mr. Bullfrog," answered Prof. Crow, but even before he had hung up the receiver, Chippy Chipmunk was requesting that I say "Hello" to him.

"Goodness me!" said Prof. Crow, "if they keep this up, there'll be no story at all."

"Unscrew the bell," I said; "then we won't be interrupted and I'll go on with my story."

And, boys and girls, if I hadn't said that, I never would have been able to say a word to all the little people of the Shady Forest and the Sunny Meadow.

Now you can color the illustration to this story, and do your very best.

SATURDAY'S STOCK MARKET

New York, July 8.—Stock prices made further recovery in yesterday's quiet half-holiday session.

Opening quotations were irregular with a few of the leaders yielding fractionally to selling pressure. Renewal of attacks on Delaware & Hudson forced that stock down to 93 1-4, the lowest since 1921, but it failed to unsettle the rest of the list and the stock eventually snapped back to 96, its previous closing price.

The Belgian ultimatum to Germany threatening a breaking off of diplomatic relations unless public disavowal is made of acts of sabotage in the Ruhr imparted a reactionary trend to continental currencies. French francs dropped 4 points to 5.77 cents or within 1 1-3 points of the year's low, and German marks touched a new bottom at .0004 1-4 cents. Demand sterling continued to improve in reflection of the higher Bank of England discount rate, being quoted at 4.56 3-16, up 3-16.

Among the standard industrial stocks, Baldwin, American Locomotive, Studebaker, American Woolen and American Can all advanced a point or so. Central Railroad of New Jersey advanced 10 points on a small turnover and Schulte Stores climbed 5. Gains of 3 to 3 1-2 points were recorded by General Electric, Burns Bros. A. Stromberg Carburetor, U. S. Realty, Famous Players and a few others.

Gains of a point or more also were quite common in the Railroad group, the list including Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred, Rock Island 6 per cent. preferred, Canadian Pacific Lackawanna, Great Northern preferred, North Pacific, Norfolk & Western, and Union Pacific.

The weekly clearing house statement showed a decrease of $61,105,000 in loans, discounts and investments and a drop of $16,234,000 in the reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve Bank. Net demand deposits declined $73,862,000 but time deposits increased $9,278,000. Aggregate reserve totaled $605,590,000, leaving excess reserve of $5,794,230, a decrease of $6,600,890 under the previous year.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

INCREASING ORCHARD RETURNS BY DRYING LOW-GRADE FRUIT

The practice of evaporation of fruits when developed in any given territory serves to increase orchard returns by converting fruit excluded from market grades by superficial blemishes into salable products and to maintain fresh-fruit prices by absorbing a portion of the marketable grades in years of overproduction. The drying of fruits as practiced at the present time is largely a farm industry carried on by the fruit growers themselves as a part of the routine of harvesting and disposing of the crop. The plants in which the work is done are mainly small, their size being most frequently determined by the size of the owner's orchard, and there is great diversity in the drying apparatus, the accessory equipment, and the details of drying methods employed, with a consequent absence of definite standardization of the product. This would be expected in view of the fact that 252,289 farms reported the production of dried fruits in the census of 1919. The primary need of the industry is for such a standardization of equipment and application of labor-saving devices to the handling of the material as will enable the production of a better grade of product at lower costs.

Various types of artificially heated evaporators found by test of actual use to be best suited to specific purposes are described in detail in Department Bulletin 1141, just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture on Evaporation of Fruits. The bulletin includes a description of model installations of labor-saving machinery, as well as a somewhat full discussion of improved methods of handling the various fruits in preparation for drying as well as during the drying process. The drying installations are the most modern in character, but are of such moderate size and cost as to be suited to the means and needs of a particular case.

In many communities in which the growing of fruit is not a primary industry the aggregate quantity of unmarketable fruit may be such as to make advisable the construction of a community drying plant to which every grower in the vicinity may bring his surplus to be worked up. A number of considerations, which should be kept clearly in mind when the project of a community or cooperative evaporator is under discussion, are mentioned.

APPLE PRUNING TIME NOW AT HAND

Now is the time that orchardists and home fruit growers must start to thin the apples on heavily laden trees if the best quality fruit is to be secured. Apple thinning means the removal of part of the crop and this must be done while the apples are still small, that is, not over an inch in diameter. The thinning of the fruit on heavily laden trees has been repeatedly shown to increase the size, the color and the quality of the apples allowed to remain on the trees until the close of the season. While a small loss in the total number of bushels or barrels of apples produced may be suffered through removing part of the crop while small, this is more than made up for in the increased size, quality and salability of the apples that remain on the trees until the close of the season.

In trees which are thinned early each year there is a greater tendency toward annual bearing and there is less breakage of the limbs from the weight of the fruit. There is also less dropping of fruit in wind storms which may occur toward the close of the growing season before or at the time the fruit is maturing.

This is also the proper season to thin out peaches and Japanese plums.

MILLET PLANTING TIME JULY 1; HUNGARIAN BEST

Millet generally should be grown as a green forage crop, but it will make good hay if weather conditions are right for curing. Hungarian millet makes the best hay as it is not as rank a grower as the Siberian or Japanese varieties. Japanese millet makes the rankest growth of the three varieties. Millet does best on rich, mellow, well-drained, sandy soil. On heavy clay or wet soil it generally does not do well. Manure should be harrowed in thoroughly if available. If not, 300 to 500 pounds of 4-8-4 fertilizer should be applied to each acre.

Generally, millet should be planted by the first of July, but this year it can be planted later because of the lateness of the season.

CARE OF HORSES' TEETH IS IMPORTANT DURING SUMMER

Examine horses' teeth frequently during the summer season of heavy work. When a horse bolts its food often it is because the teeth toward the back of the jaw have by wear and decay, become jagged. They pierce the skin on the inside of the jaw, causing the animal pain with every bite it takes.

When bolting is caused simply by habit, it may be prevented by putting into the feed-trough smooth pebbles about the size of eggs. The horse, nosing around among the stones, will not take a large mouthful of grain, and will tend to chew it more cautiously.

CAREFUL BREAKING UP OF SETTING HENS IMPORTANT

The big reason for "breaking" up the hen is for her to be able to come back to work again; consequently, she should not be shut up for four or five days and starved. This, of course, will "break" her from setting, but it will also put her in a poor condition for laying. After such a treatment, she probably will not lay again for three or four weeks.

One of the best ways to "break" up a hen as soon as the first symptoms are seen, is to put her in a slattered crate. She should be given plenty of water and feed. Two or three days later she may be returned to the layer pen. She should have a band placed on her leg so that if found on the nest immediately after she has been returned, she can again be put back in the crate to continue the "breaking" process. If this method is followed, only a day or two should be lost in egg production.

SULPHUR, LEAD ARSENATE AND LIME FOR GRAPE VINES

At the recent agricultural conference at Amherst, Mass., Prof. Maurice Blake of the New Jersey Experiment Station, stated that rose bugs may be effectively controlled on grape vines by using the standard self-boiled lime-sulphur-lead-arsenate mixture.

"Ousted After More Than Forty Years' Service"

Arthur P. Davis, distinguished engineer and head of the Reclamation Service, who has been suddenly ousted, to make room, it is said, for a political appointee. Engineers and Western reclamationists are highly indignant over the change made by Secretary of the Interior Work, presumably at the instigation of private interests which have been battling for control of the country's water power projects. Having completed forty-one years of Government service, Mr. Davis turned over his office to ex-Gov. David W. Davis, of Idaho, who has been engaged in banking and politics most of his life and has none of the technical qualifications which have stamped Davis as one of the leaders in his profession.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SATURDAY'S STOCK MARKET

New York, July 8—Stock prices made further recovery in yesterday's dullest half-holiday session.

Opening quotations were irregular with a few of the leaders yielding fractionally to selling pressure. Renewal of attacks on Delaware & Hudson forced that stock down to 98 1-4, the lowest since 1921, but it failed to unsettle the rest of the list and the stock eventually snapped back to 99, its previous closing price.

The Belgian ultimatum to Germany threatening a breaking off of diplomatic relations unless public disavowal is made of acts of sabotage in the Ruhr imparted a reactionary trend to continental currencies. French francs dropped 4 points to 5.77 cents or within 1 1-2 points of the year's low, and German marks touched a new bottom at .0004 1-4 cents. Demand sterling continued to improve in reflection of the higher Bank of England discount rate, being quoted at $4.56 3-16, up 3-16.

Among the standard industrial stocks, Baldwin, American Locomotive, Studebaker, American Woolen and American Can all advanced a point or so. Central Railroad of New Jersey advanced 10 points on a small turnover and Schulte Stores climbed 5. Gains of 2 to 3 1-2 points were recorded by eneral Electric, Burns Bros. A, Stromberg Carburetor, U. S. Realty, Famous Players and a few others.

Gains of a point or more also were quite common in the Railroad group, the list including Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred, Rock Island 6 per cent. preferred, Canadian Pacific Lackawanna, Great Northern preferred, North Pacific, Norfolk & Western, and Union Pacific.

The weekly clearing house statement showed a decrease of $61,105,000 in loans, discounts and investments and a drop of $16,234,000 in the reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve Bank. Net demand deposits declined $73,892,000 but time deposits increased $4,873,000. Aggregate reserve totaled $568,590,000, leaving excess reserve of $5,794,230, a decrease of $6,900,890 under the previous year.

Bond Market.

New York, July 8—Early trading in bonds yesterday was quiet and irregular.

Except for gains of approximately one point each by Chinese 8s and Haitian 6s, changes in the foreign group were fractional. U. S. government bonds advanced slightly.

New Haven 6s rallied 2 1-8 above yesterday's close but the 7s and convertible 6 1-2s each slipped back another point. Denver & Rio Grande refunding 5s and Atchison adjustment 4s stamped each advanced a point.

The only important change in the industrial group was a point gain by Cerro de Pasco 8s.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

INCREASING ORCHARD RETURNS BY DRYING LOW-GRADE FRUIT

The practice of evaporation of fruits when developed in any given territory serves to increase orchard returns by converting fruit excluded from market grades by superficial blemishes into salable products and to maintain fresh-fruit prices by absorbing a portion of the marketable grades in years of overproduction. The drying of fruits as practiced at the present time is largely a farm industry carried on by the fruit growers themselves as a part of the routine of harvesting and disposing of the crop. The plants in which the work is done are mainly small, their size being most frequently determined by the size of the owner's orchard, and there is great diversity in the drying apparatus, the accessory equipment, and the details of drying methods employed, with a consequent absence of definite standardization of the product. This would be expected in view of the fact that 352,289 farms reported the production of dried fruits in the census of 1919. The primary need of the industry is for such a standardization of equipment and application of labor-saving devices to the handling of the material as will enable the production of a better grade of product at lower costs.

Various types of artificially heated evaporators found by test of actual use to be best suited to specific purposes are described in detail in Department Bulletin 1141, just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture on Evaporation of Fruits. The bulletin includes a description of model installations of labor-saving machinery, as well as a somewhat full discussion of improved methods of handling the various fruits in preparation for drying as well as during the drying process. The drying installations are the most modern in character, but are of such moderate size and cost as to be suited to the means and needs of a particular case.

In many communities in which the growing of fruit is not a primary industry the aggregate quantity of unmarketable fruit may be such as to make advisable the construction of a community drying plant to which every grower in the vicinity may bring his surplus to be worked up. A number of considerations, which should be kept clearly in mind when the project of a community or cooperative evaporator is under discussion, are mentioned.

APPLE PRUNING TIME NOW AT HAND

Now is the time that orchardists and home fruit growers must start to thin the apples on heavily laden trees if the best quality fruit is to be secured. Apple thinning means the removal of part of the crop and this must be done while the apples are still small, that is, not over an inch in diameter. The thinning of the fruit on heavily laden trees has been repeatedly shown to increase the size, the color and the quality of the apples allowed to remain on the trees until the close of the season. While a small loss in the total number of bushels or barrels of apples produced may be suffered through removing part of the crop while small, this is more than made up for in the increased size, quality and salability of the apples that remain on the trees until the close of the season.

In trees which are thinned early each year there is a greater tendency toward annual bearing and there is less breakage of the limbs from the weight of the fruit. There is also less dropping of fruit in wind storms which may occur toward the close of the growing season before or at the time the fruit is maturing.

This is also the proper season to thin out peaches and Japanese plums.

MILLET PLANTING TIME JULY 1; HUNGARIAN BEST

Millet generally should be grown as a green forage crop, but it will make good hay if weather conditions are right for curing. Hungarian millet makes the best hay, as it is not as rank a grower as the Siberian or Japanese varieties. Japanese millet makes the rankest growth of the three varieties. Millet does best on rich, mellow, well-drained, sandy soil. On heavy clay or wet soil it generally does not do well. Manure should be harrowed in thoroughly if available. If not, 300 to 500 pounds of 4-8-4 fertilizer should be applied to each acre.

Generally, millet should be planted by the first of July, but this year it can be planted later because of the lateness of the season.

CARE OF HORSES' TEETH IS IMPORTANT DURING SUMMER

Examine horses' teeth frequently during the summer season of heavy work. When a horse bolts its food often it is because the teeth toward the back of the jaw have by wear and decay, become jagged. They pierce the skin on the inside of the jaw, causing the animal pain with every bite it takes.

When bolting is caused simply by habit, it may be prevented by putting into the feed-trough smooth pebbles about the size of eggs. The horse, nosing around among the stones, will not take a large mouthful of grain, and will tend to chew it more cautiously.

CAREFUL BREAKING UP OF SETTING HENS IMPORTANT

The big reason for "breaking" up the hen is for her to be able to come back to work again; consequently, she should not be shut up for four or five days and starved. This, of course, will "break" her from setting, but it will also put her in a poor condition for laying. After such a treatment, she probably will not lay again for three or four weeks.

One of the best ways to "break" up a hen as soon as the first symptoms are seen, is to put her in a slattered crate. She should be given plenty of water and feed. Two or three days later she may be returned to the laying pen. She should have a band placed on her leg so that if found on the nest immediately after she has been returned, she can again be put back in the crate to continue the "breaking" process. If this method is followed, only a day or two should be lost in egg production.

SULPHUR, LEAD ARSENATE AND LIME FOR GRAPE VINES

At the recent agricultural conference at Amherst, Mass., Prof. Maurice Blake of the New Jersey Experiment Station, stated that rose bugs may be effectively controlled on grape vines by using the standard self-boiled lime-sulphur-lead-arsenate mixture.

STONINGTON

Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Atwood entertained a party at luncheon at Stonington Manor inn in honor of Mrs. Atwood's mother, Mrs. M. J. Cutler who celebrated her 91st birthday. A large basket of roses was in the center of the table and a handsomely decorated birthday cake bore the dates 1832-1923 and held one candle. The menu consisted of fruit punch, cream of asparagus soup, filet of sole, broiled chicken, green peas, pineapple salad, strawberry ice cream, cake and coffee. Others present at the luncheon were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dodge, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Cutler.

Ousted After More Than Forty Years' Service

Arthur P. Davis, distinguished engineer and head of the Reclamation Service, who has been suddenly ousted, to make room, it is said, for a political appointee. Engineers and Western reclamationists are highly indignant over the change made by Secretary of the Interior Work, presumably at the instigation of private interests which have been battling for control of the country's water power projects. Having completed forty-one years of Government service, Mr. Davis turned over his office to ex-Gov. David W. Davis, of Idaho, who has been engaged in banking and politics most of his life and has none of the technical qualifications which have stamped Davis as one of the leaders in his profession.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Cutler and Miss Cutler of Stonington and Miss Harriet Mason of Scarsdale, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Trotman of Westerly entertained Tuesday at Stonington Manor inn at luncheon and bridge whist.

Mrs. Frank Kessler and son are visiting in New York.

Friday evening a motor party was entertained at the Stonington Manor inn by Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Camp of Norwich. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Worth, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Baker and Grosvenor Ely of Norwich. The rooms were attractively decorated for the affair and a fine course dinner was enjoyed. Manor inn is under the direction of Mr. Robinson again this season. The Thursday and Saturday tea dances are proving most popular.

Misses Dorothy Stanton and Mary Kelley are enjoying a week at East Northfield, Mass., attending the Baptist home missionary meetings as delegates from the First Baptist church.

Quarantine is still on regarding the keeping of dogs chained and on their own premises; when taken out into the thoroughfare they are to have a rope or chain on and be led by the persons having them. This rule is not being lived up to by some of the residents especially as they take their dogs for a walk on the highway.

The liquor seized in Stonington in the raid in Pawcatuck and Stonington borough June 23 have been condemned as a nuisance by Judge William Wilcox and have been ordered destroyed.

Mrs. Raymond Robins of Stonington and Chicago left New York Saturday on the Homeric for Southampton. Mrs. Robins, who has been the guest of her sister, Miss Mary E. Dreier, of New York and Stonington, goes direct to Vienna, where she will preside at the biennial congress of the International Federation of Working Women to be held at Schonbrun castle Aug. 14 to 18. Mrs. Robins has been president of the federation since the first congress was called in Washington in 1919 and presided at the second congress in Switzerland in 1921. She is accompanied by Mr. Robins. In England they will be guests of Mr. Robins' sister, Miss Elizabeth Robins, the novelist. Miss Katherine Dreier, who is spending the summer in Stonington, was in New York to see her sister off. Mrs. Robins and her sister, Miss Mary Dreier, own the Mansion Shawondassee, north of Stonington borough, and have spent many summers here.

Same Johnson, the Locomotive Runner, passed through Stonington Friday morning at 10.30, having made his trip on foot from New York to Mystic on scheduled time, stopping at 9.30 a. m. at Bank square. He is basing his time on the old time, which would make him an hour earlier than reported here, daylight time. An automobile of touring car type with a large poster flowing from the rear of the car was ahead of him. Many local boys, some on bicycles, others on foot, followed him to Westerly.

Jack Taylor, the Lone Tranuper, and his dog, en route from Texas to Maine, stopped at Stonington Friday, had his breakfast and enjoyed the sea breezes here. Westerly was the next point visited.

Miss Nellie Ledwith was badly burned about the face and head Wednesday when she was celebrating with fireworks. A roman candle hit the young lady in the face, but she closed her eyes and saved her sight. Her hair was badly burned. A physician was called to attend her.

At the annual meeting of Pioneer Hook and Ladder company the reports of the officers were satisfactory. Robert L. Burtch showed that the membership was 48. There were five alarms of fire. Six new Babcock extinguishers had been placed on the apparatus. The company held a fair at which funds were collected for the purchase of new regulation uniforms. The treasurer's report read by William F. Broughton showed there was a working balance in the treasury. The auditing committee reported the finances in proper order. The election of officers resulted as follows: Secretary, Stanley H. Pierce; foreman, Charles Staplin, 2d; first assistant, Lorenzo Fairbrother; second assistant, Charles Palmer; treasurer, William F. Broughton; steward, Frank Staplin. The committees are: Auditing, James Weeks, Erastus Chesebro, Robert Cushman; inquiry, Allen Slade, Joseph F. Joseph, Raoul Delegrance; tillerman, Allen Slade; house committee, George Hallet, Stanley Pierce, William F. Broughton.

Miss Christina Reed left Friday evening and will attend a six weeks' course at Columbia university summer school, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson and son of South Manchester are guests of Mr. Robinson's parents at Grand View park. Mr. Robinson, who is with the Cheney Manufacturing company office force, is enjoying his vacation.

The foundry department of the Atwood Machine company, which has been shut down since Tuesday, will resume operations today (Monday).

Lawrence Brooks, who is having two weeks' vacation from his duties at the Atwood Machine company office, is spending it at Lantern Hill.

Charles Hillstead of Atlantic City, N. J., is a guest at Machipscar, the Willard summer home. Miss Maud E. Hayes, who has been visiting there, left New York Friday for a tour of Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pendleton of Brooklyn, N. Y., are guests at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Hyde.

Mrs. Amy Barber, who has been spending the winter in Providence, R. I., has arrived to spend the summer with her daughter, Mrs. Frank James.

CLOTHING STORE AND BARBER SHOP TOTAL LOSS IN COLCHESTER FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Colchester, July 8.—The one-story brick building, formerly known as the old Adams' block, located on Merchants row, in this place, and owned by Kadesh and Levy, was completely destroyed by fire with the exception of the brick foundation here Sunday morning. The loss was estimated at $8,000 or $9,000, building and contents.

The fire started, it is reported, at about 2 o'clock Sunday morning, the alarm being run in at 3.20. The Norwich department was called at 3.42 but was unable to leave the city. They referred the Colchester firemen to the Yantic Fire department which could not respond. The Colchester firemen finally got in touch with the Niagara company of the New London department which responded. While the New London fire department was on its way to Colchester the local fire company did everything possible to keep the fire in check. When the New London men arrived the fire had made such headway it was impossible to save anything, although the men worked with untiring efforts.

The building was occupied by Charles Lyman, who conducted a barbershop, and Kadesh and Levy, who ran a clothing store. The amount of the insurance could not be ascertained.

ASKS RULING ON LAW ON UNLICENSED OPERATORS

The Connecticut motor vehicle department has asked the attorney general for an opinion on that section of the motor vehicle law relating to the operation of motor vehicles by certain unlicensed persons, when accompanied by licensed operators.

The section of the law in question provides that "no person shall operate a motor vehicle upon any public highway of this state until he shall have obtained from the commissioner a license for such purpose, provided any person over 16 years of age who has not been refused and who has not had his motor vehicle operator's license suspended or revoked, may operate a motor vehicle while under the instruction of, and accompanied by, a licensed operator, who shall have full control of the motor vehicle as provided by law."

The question of the interpretation of this section was raised by several recent arrests, in various parts of the state, of persons who are able to drive carefully and who have been so driving for several years without ever having taken out operators' licenses, on their assumption that they did not need them, since they were invariably accompanied by licensed operators.

The prosecuting attorney of one city court, writing to the motor vehicle department for information on the point, is of opinion that if there is a licensed operator in the car, such licensed operator is responsible for the operation of the car, and that the driver, although himself unlicensed, is covered by the license of the person accompanying him. This he believes to be true, even though the person who is operating the car has ceased to be a novice under instruction. Another prosecuting attorney holds that being accompanied by a licensed operator is only a temporary protection to a person who is under the instruction of the licensed operator and that the word "instruction" is used literally and means that the person so operating must still be learning to drive.

The opinion of the attorney general has been sought for the purpose of determining, in connection with prosecutions for obvious intent to evade payment of operators' license fees, what limitation, if any, is permissible, in construing the language of the statute as regards the giving and receiving of instruction.

Y. M. C. A. MOVING PICTURES DEPICT LIFE OF CHRIST

The 4 o'clock service at the Norwich Young Men's Christian association Sunday afternoon was one of the most impressive held in many months. The musical part of the service reflected real credit on Hugh Kinder who rendered several religious solos and also furnished the music for the pictures.

After the opening hymns, the scripture reading and prayer, the second part of the impressive moving picture feature, "From the Manger to the Cross" was shown, much to the helpfulness of an audience which completely filled the parlors. The pictures included the raising of Lazarus, Jesus healing many impotent folk, Jesus walking on the water, and the last supper. The scenes were evidently set with real care, and the acting was very true to the scripture narrative, scripture passages frequently appearing on the screen.

Between the reels Secretary Hill made a brief talk and among other things said: I have chosen for the topic "Jesus, the Wonder Worker." How fully Jesus fulfilled that which is said of Him: "He went about, doing good." What must it have meant to the blind man when Jesus ave him sight, we do not value our eyesight as we should; suppose we were deprived of seeing the beauty of nature about us; let us ever be grateful for our sight, and let us have much pity for those who are blind. Jesus also worked a wonder when He stopped the deaf ears, and enabled the deaf man to hear once again; what a blessing to be able to hear the voices of our friends, to hear the birds sing and the sweet music of the instruments and the sweet vocal solos, like Mr. Kinder renders for us. You remember, Jesus made the lame man walk, a notable case was that of the man at the pool of Bethezda, whom no one would help, but Jesus commanded him to "rise up and walk," and it was so; how the man must have leaped for joy. Let us value the fact that we are not lame. Then Jesus raised men from the dead; in the picture you say the illustration of Him calling Lazarus from the tomb; what wonderful power Jesus had, and has today. We may have our physical sight, but far too many of us are blind, spiritually, and we fail to see the possibility of our lives; let us pray that He make our own spiritual eyes. Then we are too often spiritually deaf. Jesus speaks to us with His "still small voice" and we fail to hear him. He speaks to those who seem heedless of His call; He speaks to those of us who profess to follow Him, and too often we resist His call for service. A man may be physically alive, but at the same time he may be spiritually dead. How glad Jesus must have been to be able to call Lazarus from the grave, but how anxious He must be to awaken those who are "dead in tresspasses and sins" to life with God. You recall when he came forth from the tomb, Jesus said to those standing near, "loose him and let him go." So Jesus desires that we should be loosed from all the things that hinder our highest developments. He said, "I am come that they might have life, and have it more abundantly." Let us follow the leading of Jesus out into a life of service for others.

The service was most impressive. Emmett C. Fritz operated the moving picture machine. Next Sunday the final part of this feature picture will be shown and the public is invited.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS SHOW 26 PER CENT. DECREASE

The weekly toll of motor accidents in Connecticut shows quite a decrease in comparison with the figures of last week, according to the statistics compiled by the motor vehicle department of the state. The accidents in the seven largest cities during the week ending June 30 total but 152, in comparison with the total of 205 for the preceding week, a decrease of 26 per cent. However, when comparing the record of the corresponding week of 1922 with that of 1923, the result is not quite so encouraging, for the latter shows an increase of 6 per cent.

Of the 152 accidents of last week three were fatal and two involved very serious injuries. Motor mishaps in New Haven decreased almost one-half in comparison with the figures of the week of the 23d. Hartford and New London also had fewer accidents last week than they had the week before, Hartford dropping from 64 to 45 and New London from 16 to 9.

The number of accidents occurring in the seven cities in comparison with the totals of the same week of last year follows:

City.	1922	1923
Waterbury	15	20
Meriden	6	9
Bridgeport	27	21
New Britain	14	15
New Haven	33	32
Hartford	33	45

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE LETTER REPORTS RESULTS

The June membership letter of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce reports upon several valuable results achieved. The letter is as follows:

Colchester Bus Line—Norwich and Colchester are again in direct touch with each other by the regular operation of a bus line between the towns through the efforts of the chamber covering a period of years.

An effort sustained by the chamber for the past few years was the rebuilding of the connecting highway. This was of necessity a slow procedure because of the fact that the approval, and appropriation must come from the state legislature. In due time this project was accomplished.

The Connecticut Motor Transportation company is dependable, courteous and careful. It constantly strives to maintain a regular schedule and its past history of operating a similar line from New London to Hartford is remarkable for this achievement. The company maintains a regular daily schedule. Its station is on Union Square.

Norwich Club of New York—The homecoming Saturday, June 23, of this club for a brief visit and their annual banquet was indeed a happy event.

Arrangements for the program were made by the Rotary club and the chamber. Our former Norwich residents were highly elated at the reception accorded them. Due to the very limited time in which to make these arrangements many members of both local organizations were not given an opportunity to meet their former friends. This was unfortunate and let it be said right here that this was no fault of our local organizations.

It is possible that this event may become an annual affair. Certainly, indications point to a repetition of this affair next year. If so, every effort will be made to make it more successful. There is still a warm spot in the hearts of our New York friends for the city of their birth or former residence.

Train Schedules—The effort of the chamber to increase the passenger train service was not successful for the present.

At a conference held with the railroad officials here in Norwich on June 8th attended by one of the most representative groups of local citizens which ever met the officials in this city, the whole matter was thoroughly discussed.

While this conference did not produce a successful issue at this time, the proposition will again be discussed with the railroad men when they have fully investigated the effect of the proposed schedule on the communities to the north of Norwich. This is entirely within reason. Norwich proposes to keep at the task until we secure a better service for all important train connections.

At the request of residents of Allyns Point who desire another "Stop on Signal" privilege from Norwich, the question was taken with R. M. Smith of this division on June 26th. At present there are only two such stops at Allyn's Point, one in the forenoon going north, one late in the afternoon going south. Mr. Smith has given orders to have the "Stop on Signal" privilege placed on the 12.30 p. m. train from Norwich. This affects about fifty residents at Allyn's Point who trade in Norwich.

Unloading Freight Cars Promptly.—We ask our local shippers to cooperate as fully as possible in the movement extending all over the country to unload their shipments from cars as soon as possible after being placed. The regular movement of freight depends a great deal on the number of available "empties." The fact that railroads are confronted with this problem of available cars to reload should appeal to our local shippers to cooperate as fully as possible. No doubt a great deal of this problem is caused by labor shortage, both as to railroads and manufacturers, yet much more can be accomplished through complying with this reasonable request from the railroad officials. Shippers of Norwich! Do your bit in this respect. Help this nationwide effort.

Thames River—No doubt every member of the chamber rejoices in the victory gained by this organization for the greatest possible development of our river's channel. A special survey is ordered to determine the cost of the improvement. This improvement expense will undoubtedly be placed in the national budget for rivers and harbors with every hope of a successful issue. Senator Brandegee and Representative Freeman have given us their fullest support and cooperation. They will continue their activities in our behalf in congress.

While the chamber [illegible] particular success of this activity, a word of commendation and justifiable praise is due the members of our transportation committee and the special committee which went to Washington, at personal loss of valuable time, to bring about a successful issue. It is the manifest spirit of such members that accomplishes things worth while.

They are 100 per cent members of our organization.

Improved Street Lighting.—Norwich is to have an improved method of street lighting in her business section. Eventually it will embrace all the leading avenues of egress and ingress to our city. An important step has been accomplished which will put our city in the ranks of those progressive cities maintaining modern street lighting. This is justifiable. It is splendid.

Because of our municipally owned lighting plant our street lighting is furnished at cost. Very few cities have that advantage. Therefore it is justifiable.

Because our people voted for this modern improvement, thereby approving the action of the gas and electric commissioners, it is splendid. Let Norwich shine.

JUDGE BUSH RAKES WOMEN'S FARM MANAGEMENT

Judge A. J. Bush of Niantic writes: Every well meaning citizen of the state, and every taxpayer, should support Mrs. Anna K. Rogers of New Haven, one of the directors of the State Farm for Women, at Niantic, in her effort to dissipate the moral miasma which has settled over that institution in the beautiful valley of the Sunkepaug and to curb the riot-out squandering of the people's money.

The state has taken for this farm nearly 1,000 acres. It pays a head farmer $2,000 per year and furnishes him from 12 to 15 hands, exclusive of such help as is derived from the inmates. All modern farm machinery is also furnished. Such a marvel of efficiency and production results that it costs the taxpayers of the state only $200 per day to keep things going. A large tract of woodland was sequestrated for the purpose, it was claimed, of practicing and teaching forestry. Beyond a trysting place for the ungodly—if Dame Rumor speaks truly—the only visible result of this has been to establish a sanctuary for wild animals and vermin, from which the fox sallies forth to revel in ghoulish glee upon the poultry of the neighboring farm sides, the deer to lunch, unafraid, upon strawberries and green peas, and th e coon to teach her cubs the shortest cut from the state farm to old Uncle Loren's sweet-bedewed sweet corn patch.

The buildings on the state farm are equipped with all the conveniences and comforts possessed by people of wealth, that these fallen angels may have homes and surroundins for better that have the majority who pay for them. Waste, extravagance and impractibility mark the management of this institution. Nepotism reigns unabashed. One of the directors has loaded two of her relatives on the pay roll of high salaries.

During the last session of the legislature an effort was made to procure for the people of the eastern part of the state a public park, like Hammonasett, to the westward where the toil-worn worker and taxpayer could find recreation and rest by the sea, at a price within the means. For $20,000 200 acres of wooded hills for camp sites, with a half mile of white sand beach, could have been procured. No, so much money could not be spared for that purpose, it might take the taxpayer's nose from the grindstone, but over $200,000 could be appropriated that the riot of extravagance and waste and mismanagement be continued at the state farm for women.

All the officials of this plant sport good cars and seem to have plenty of time to use them. The taxpayer, often seen trudging along on foot through Indian Woods, meeting them, recalls to one the lines from Scott:

"They raised a wild and wondering cry,
As, with his guide, rode Marmion by."

In another part of the town of East Lyme, the town which is the state goat for tax-exempt stat institutions is the Seaside Sanatorium for tubercular children. With a thousand-acre state-run farm only two miles away, one would naturally expect this sanatorium to be furnished from this farm its dairy products, poultry, vegetables and fruits, and that these 75 or 80 nymphs du pave, would be required to work off some of the sanatorium, not so. All those expenses of the sanitarium are passed up to friend taxpayer. The butter and cream, chickens and fruit are for the officials and erring sisters and for "spreads." Let the kids eat out of a tin can and go unwashed, if need be, sooner than this. The entire sale value of the products of the farm would not pay one-half the cost of production. Those who know from experience can tell you that a New England farm makes most of its entries in red ink, the rich man's toy, the poor man's grind. Why then, hang a thousand-acre one on the taxpayer's neck?

The proper solution of this problem is to abandon the farming part of the plant and substitute industrial enterprises, that these women may be taught useful occupations by means of which they can earn an honest living after their release, if so inclined. South of Bride Lake, that heritage of the people, from whose shores and waters they have been driven with as little consideration as our ancestors kicked out the Indians, is ample room for industrial buildings. Here and thus, these derelicts, or such of them as are worth it, can be fitted to become assets rather than liabilities to society.

The case is now before the people for action. Will you sustain Mrs. Rogers in her efforts to clear up this mess, remove these wastrels and make the institution what it should be? Or are you going to sit by and allow yourselves to be chared $1,000 or $1,400 per head for these inmates.

MODERN "RAVENING WOLVES" ARE BAD BOOKS, SAYS PRIEST

From the gospel for the Sunday, the seventh after Pentecost, Matt. 7-15:21, Rev. M. H. May, preaching at St. Patrick's church at the 7.30 mass Sunday, declared that no worse false prophets can come in the clothing of sheep yet in reality be the ravening wolves that the Saviour condemned than are bad books.

While the seductions of man or woman must be limited in scope, the evil influence of immoral or heretical books is beyond computation. Under the guise of science or history, a book of evil intention can do incalculable harm.

For that reason, parents were admonished to look carefully to their children's reading, lest their souls be lost through the poison of immorality, heresy or falsehood, resulting from books which may fall into their hands. The errors of history in distorting facts, of science, in seeking to cause Catholics toaccept the teaching that man must choose between God and a gorilla in the theory of his origin, were presented as reasons for strict censorship of all reading matter. There is abundance of good books, accurate history, lives of the saintly servants of God, scientific facts correctly stated, good novels, so that there is no need of resorting to book of impure suggestions or of false teaching which would undermine faith.

During the summer season there is no indication of any diminution of fervor or lessening of attendance at this church. Over and over again Sunday at this early mass, the altar rail was crowded by communicants, the congregation being large enough to fill the great auditory.

CLOTHING STORE AND BARBER SHOP TOTAL LOSS IN COLCHESTER FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Colchester, July 8.—The one-story brick building, formerly known as the old Adams' block, located on Merchants row, in this place, and owned by Kadesh and Levy, was completely destroyed by fire with the exception of the brick foundation here Sunday morning. The loss was estimated at $8,000 or $9,000, building and contents.

The fire started, it is reported, at about 2 o'clock Sunday morning, the alarm being run in at 2.20. The Norwich department was called at 2.42 but was unable to leave the city. They referred the Colchester firemen to the Yantic Fire department which could not respond. The Colchester firemen finally got in touch with the Niagara company of the New London department which responded. While the New London fire department was on its way to Colchester the local fire company did everything possible to keep the fire in check. When the New London men arrived the fire had made such headway it was impossible to save anything, although the men worked with untiring efforts.

The building was occupied by Charles Lyman, who conducted a barbershop, and Kadesh and Levy, who ran a clothing store. The amount of the insurance could not be ascertained.

ASKS RULING ON LAW ON UNLICENSED OPERATORS

The Connecticut motor vehicle department has asked the attorney general for an opinion on that section of the motor vehicle law relating to the operation of motor vehicles by certain unlicensed persons, when accompanied by licensed operators.

The section of the law in question provides that "no person shall operate a motor vehicle upon any public highway of this state until he shall have obtained from the commissioner a license for such purpose, provided any person over 16 years of age who has not been refused and who has not had his motor vehicle operator's license suspended or revoked, may operate a motor vehicle while under the instruction of, and accompanied by, a licensed operator, who shall have full control of the motor vehicle as provided by law."

The question of the interpretation of this section was raised by several recent arrests, in various parts of the state, of persons who are able to drive carefully and who have been so driving for several years without ever having taken out operators' licenses, on their assumption that they did not need them, since they were invariably accompanied by licensed operators.

The prosecuting attorney of one city court, writing to the motor vehicle department for information on the point, is of opinion that if there is a licensed operator in the car, such licensed operator is responsible for the operation of the car, and that the driver, although himself unlicensed, is covered by the license of the person accompanying him. This he believes to be true, even though the person who is operating the car has ceased to be a novice under instruction. Another prosecuting attorney holds that being accompanied by a licensed operator is only a temporary protection to a person who is under the instruction of the licensed operator and that the word "instruction" is used literally and means that the person so operating must still be learning to drive.

The opinion of the attorney general has been sought for the purpose of determining, in connection with prosecutions for obvious intent to evade payment of operators' license fees, what limitation, if any, is permissible, in construing the language of the statute as regards the giving and receiving of instruction.

Y. M. C. A. MOVING PICTURES DEPICT LIFE OF CHRIST

The 4 o'clock service at the Norwich Young Men's Christian asaociation Sunday afternoon was one of the most impressive held in many months. The musical part of the service reflected real credit on Hugh Kinder who rendered several religious solos and also furnished the music for the pictures.

After the opening hymns, the scripture reading and prayer, the second part of the impressive moving picture feature, "From the Manger to the Cross" was shown, much to the helpfulness of an audience which completely filled the parlors. The pictures included the raising of Lazarus, Jesus healing many impotent folk, Jesus walking on the water, and the last supper. The scenes were evidently set with real care, and the acting was very true to the scripture narrative, scripture passages frequently appearing on the screen.

Between the reels Secretary Hill made a brief talk and among other things said: I have chosen for the topic "Jesus, the Wonder Worker." How fully Jesus fulfilled that which is said of Him. "He went about, doing good." What must it have meant to the blind man when Jesus ave him sight, we do not value our eyesight as we should; suppose we were deprived of seeing the beauty of nature about us; let us ever be grateful for our sight, and let us have much pity for those who are blind. Jesus also worked a wonder when He stopped the deaf ears, and enabled the deaf man to hear once again; what a blessing to be able to hear the voices of our friends, to hear the birds sing and the sweet music of the instruments and the sweet vocal solos, like Mr. Kinder renders for us. You remember, Jesus made the lame man walk, a notable case was that of the man at the pool of Bethzda, whom no one would help, but Jesus commanded him to "rise up and walk," and it was so; how the man must have leaped for joy. Let us value the fact that we are not lame. Then Jesus raised men from the dead; in the picture you say the illustration of Him calling Lazarus from the tomb; what wonderful power Jesus had, and has today. We may have our physical sight, but far too many of us are blind, spiritually, and we fail to see the possibility of our lives; let us pray that He make our own spiritual eyes. Then we are too often spiritually deaf. Jesus speaks to us with His "still small voice" and we fail to hear him. He speaks to those who seem heedless of His call; He speaks to those of us who profess to follow Him, and too often we resist His call for service.

A man may be physically alive, but at the same time he may be spiritually dead. How glad Jesus must have been to be able to call Lazarus from the grave, but how anxious He must be to awaken those who are "dead in tresspasses and sins" to life with God. You recall when he came forth from the tomb, Jesus said to those standing near, "loose him and let him go." So Jesus desires that we should be loosed from all the things that hinder our highest developments. He said, "I am come that they might have life, and have it more abundantly." Let us follow the leading of Jesus out into a life of service for others.

The service was most impressive. Emmett J. Fritz operated the moving picture machine. Next Sunday the final part of this feature picture will be shown and the public is invited.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS SHOW 26 PER CENT. DECREASE

The weekly toll of motor accidents in Connecticut shows quite a decrease in comparison with the figures of last week, according to the statistics compiled by the motor vehicle department of the state. The accidents in the seven largest cities during the week ending June 30 total but 152, in comparison with the total of 205 for the preceding week, a decrease of 26 per cent. However, when comparing the record of the corresponding week of 1922 with that of 1923, the result is not quite so encouraging, for the latter shows an increase of 6 per cent.

Of the 152 accidents of last week, three were fatal and two involved very serious injuries. Motor mishaps in New Haven decreased almost one-half in comparison with the figures of the week of the 23d. Hartford and New London also had fewer accidents last week than they had the week before, Hartford dropping from 64 to 45 and New London from 16 to 9.

The number of accidents occurring in the seven cities in comparison with the totals of the same week of last year follows:

City.	1922	1923
Waterbury	15	20
Meriden	5	8
Bridgeport	27	21
New Britain	14	15
New Haven	33	33
Hartford	33	45

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE LETTER REPORTS RESULTS

The June membership letter of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce reports upon several valuable results achieved. The letter is as follows:

Colchester Bus Line—Norwich and Colchester are again in direct touch with each other by the regular operation of a bus line between the towns through the efforts of the chamber covering a period of years.

An effort sustained by the chamber for the past few years was the rebuilding of the connecting highway. This was of necessity a slow procedure because of the fact that the approval, and appropriation must come from the state legislature. In due time this project was accomplished.

The Connecticut Motor Transportation company is dependable, courteous and careful. It constantly strives to maintain a regular schedule and its past history of operating a similar line from New London to Hartford is remarkable for this achievement. The company maintains a regular daily schedule. Its station is on Union Square.

Norwich Club of New York—The homecoming Saturday, June 23, of this club for a brief visit and their annual banquet was indeed a happy event.

Arrangements for the program were made by the Rotary club and the chamber. Our former Norwich residents were highly elated at the reception accorded them. Due to the very limited time in which to make these arrangements many members of both local organizations were not given an opportunity to meet their former friends. This was unfortunate and let it be said right here that this was no fault of our local organizations.

It is possible that this event may become an annual affair. Certainly, indications point to a repetition of this affair next year. If so, every effort will be made to make it more successful. There is still a warm spot in the hearts of our New York friends for the city of their birth or former residence.

Train Schedules—The effort of the chamber to increase the passenger train service was not successful for the present.

At a conference held with the railroad officials here in Norwich on June 8th attended by one of the most representative groups of local citizens which ever met the officials in this city, the whole matter was thoroughly discussed.

While this conference did not produce a successful issue at this time, the proposition will again be discussed with the railroad men when they have fully investigated the effect of the proposed schedule on the communities to the north of Norwich. This is entirely within reason. Norwich proposes to keep at the task until we secure a better service for all important train connections.

At the request of residents of Allyns Point who desire another "Stop on Signal" privilege from Norwich, the question was taken with R. M. Smith of this division on June 26th. At present there are only two such stops at Allyn's Point, one in the forenoon going north, one late in the afternoon going south. Mr. Smith has given orders to have the "Stop on Signal" privilege placed on the 12.30 p. m. train from Norwich. This affects about fifty residents at Allyn's Point who trade in Norwich.

Unloading Freight Cars Promptly.—We ask our local shippers to cooperate as fully as possible in the movement extending all over the country to unload their shipments from cars as soon as possible after being placed. The regular movement of freight depends a great deal on the number of available "empties." The fact that railroads are confronted with this problem of available cars to reload should appeal to our local shippers to cooperate as fully as possible. No doubt a great deal of this problem is caused by labor shortage, both as to railroads and manufacturers, yet much more can be accomplished through complying with this reasonable request from the railroad officials. Shippers of Norwich! Do your bit in this respect. Help this nationwide effort.

Thames River—No doubt every member of the chamber rejoices in the victory gained by this organization for the greatest possible development of our river's channel. A special survey is ordered to determine the cost of the improvement. This improvement expense will undoubtedly be placed in the national budget for rivers and harbors with every hope of a successful issue. Senator Brandegee and Representative Freeman have given us their fullest support and cooperation. They will continue their activities in our behalf in congress.

particular success of this activity, a word of commendation and justifiable praise is due the members of our transportation committee and the special committee which went to Washington, at personal loss of valuable time, to bring about a successful issue. It is the manifest spirit of such members that accomplishes things worth while.

They are 100 per cent members of our organization.

Improved Street Lighting.—Norwich is to have an improved method of street lighting in her business section. Eventually it will embrace all the leading avenues of egress and ingress to our city. An important step has been accomplished which will put our city in the ranks of those progressive cities maintaining modern street lighting. This is justifiable. It is splendid.

Because of our municipally owned lighting plant our street lighting is furnished at cost. Very few cities have that advantage. Therefore it is justifiable.

Because our people voted for this modern improvement, thereby approving the action of the gas and electric commissioners, it is splendid. Let Norwich shine.

JUDGE BUSH RAKES WOMEN'S FARM MANAGEMENT

Judge A. J. Bush of Niantic writes:

Every will meaning citizen of the state, and every taxpayer, should support Mrs. Anna K. Rogers of New Haven, one of the directors of the State Farm for Women, at Niantic, in her effort to dissipate the moral miasma which has settled over that institution in the beautiful valley of the Sunkapaug and to curb the riotous squandering of the people's money.

The state has taken for this farm nearly 1,000 acres. It pays a head farmer $3,000 per year and furnishes him from 12 to 15 hands, exclusive of such help as is derived from the inmates. All modern farm machinery is also furnished. Such a marvel of efficiency and production results that it costs the taxpayers of the state only $200 per day to keep things going. A large tract of woodland was sequestrated for the purpose, it was claimed, of practicing and teaching forestry. Beyond a trysting place for the ungodly—if Dame Rumor speaks truly—the only visible result of this has been to establish a sanctuary for wild animals and vermin, from which the fox sallies forth to revel in ghoulish glee upon the poultry of the neighboring farm sides, the deer to lunch, unafraid, upon strawberries and green peas, and the coon to teach her cubs the shortest cut from the state farm to old Uncle Loren's sweet-bedewed sweet corn patch.

The buildings on the state farm are equipped with all the conveniences and comforts possessed by people of wealth, that these fallen angels may have homes and surroundins for better that have the majority who pay for them. Waste, extravagance and impractibility mark the management of this institution. Nepotism reigns unabashed. One of the directors has loaded two of her relatives on the pay roll of high salaries.

During the last session of the legislature an effort was made to procure for the people of the eastern part of the state a public park, like Hammonasett, to the westward where the toil-worn worker and taxpayer could find recreation and rest by the sea at a price within the means. For $20,000 200 acres of wooded hills for camp sites, with a half mile of white sand beach, could have been procured. No, so much money could not be spared for that purpose, it might take the taxpayer's nose from the grindstone, but over $200,000 could be appropriated that the riot of extravagance and waste and mismanagement be continued at the state farm for women.

All the officials of this plant sport good cars and seem to have plenty of time to use them. The taxpayer, often seen trudging along on foot through Indian Woods, meeting them, recalls to one the lines from Scott:

"They raised a wild and wondering cry,
As, with his guide, rode Marmion by."

In another part of the town of East Lyme, the town which is the state goat for tax-exempt stat institutions is the Seaside Sanatorium for tubercular children. With a thousand-acre state-run farm only two miles away, one would naturally expect this sanatorium to be furnished from this farm its dairy products, poultry, vegetables, and fruits, and that these 75 or 80 nymphs du pave, would be required to work off some of the sanatorium, not so. All those expenses of the sanitarium are passed up to friend taxpayer. The butter and cream, chickens and fruit are for the officials and erring sisters and for "spreads." Let the kids eat out of a tin can and go unwashed, if need be, sooner than this. The entire sale value of the products of the farm would not pay one-half the cost of production. Those who know from experience can tell you that a New England farm makes most of its entries in red ink, the rich man's toy, the poor man's grind. Why then, hang a thousand-acre one on the taxpayer's neck?

The proper solution of this problem is to abandon the farming part of the plant and substitute industrial enterprises, that these women may be taught useful occupations by means of which they can earn an honest living after their release, if so inclined. South of Bride Lake, that heritage of the people, from whose shores and waters they have been driven with as little consideration as our ancestors kicked out the Indians, is ample room for industrial buildings. Here and thus, these derelicts, or such of them as are worth it, can be fitted to become assets rather than liabilities to society.

The case is now before the people for action. Will you sustain Mrs. Rogers in her efforts to clear up this mess, remove these wastrels and make the institution what it should be? Or are you going to sit by and allow yourselves to be chared $1,000 or $1,400 per head for these inmates.

MODERN "RAVENING WOLVES" ARE BAD BOOKS, SAYS PRIEST

From the gospel for the Sunday, the seventh after Pentecost, Matt. 7-15:21, Rev. M. H. May, preaching at St. Patrick's church at the 7.30 mass Sunday, declared that no worse false prophets can come in the clothing of sheep yet in reality be the ravening wolves that the Saviour condemned than are bad books.

While the seductions of man or woman must be limited in scope, the evil influence of immoral or heretical books is beyond computation. Under the guise of science or history, a book of evil intention can do incalculable harm.

For that reason, parents were admonished to look carefully to their children's reading, lest their souls be lost through the poison of immorality, heresy or falsehood, resulting from books which may fall into their hands. The errors of history in distorting facts, of science, in seeking to cause Catholics to accept the teaching that man must choose between God and a gorilla in the theory of his origin, were presented as reasons for strict censorship of all reading matter. There is abundance of good books, accurate in history, lives of the saintly servants of God, scientific facts correctly stated, good novels, so that there is no need of resorting to book of impure suggestions or of false teaching which would undermine faith.

During the summer season there is no indication of any diminution of fervor or lessening of attendance at this church. Over and over again, Sunday at this early mass, the altar rail was crowded by communicants, the congregation being large enough to fill the great auditory.

COAL MINE OPERATORS TO ABOLISH 12 HOUR DAY

Owners Will Make Every Effort to Shorten Working Day as Soon "as Practicable and as Far as Practicable"—Miners Refuse to Enter Into Agreement That Production Continue After August 31st in Event New Contract Shall Not Have Been Negotiated by That Time—Operators Declare Present Wage Paid Men is Commensurate With Service Rendered.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 9.—The anthracite mine workers of Pennsylvania today refused to enter into an immediate understanding with the coal operators that the production of coal shall continue uninterruptedly after August 31, in the event that a new contract shall not have been negotiated by that time with the understanding that the agreement subsequently arrived at shall be retroactive to September 1. The miners contended that there is ample time to work out an agreement if each side diligently applied itself to the task.

The coal operators paralleled the announcement of the United States Steel Corporation that they would make every effort to eliminate the twelve hour day "as soon as practicable and as far as practicable." This was one of the demands of the miners.

While the operators did not specifically refuse the demand of a wage increase for contract miners and men employed by the day, they declared that the present compensation of the men was commensurate with the value of the service rendered and that they were proud of the present wage because they were the highest paid men in the anthracite industry.

The coal companies granted without argument the demand that when the anthracite board of conciliation is deadlocked over a grievance and it has been submitted to the umpire, a decision must be rendered in thirty days.

All the demands at issue were referred by the full committee to a sub-committee of four on each side which will immediately set about working out a new wage contract to replace the present one. In the meantime the full committee will remain in recess until called together.

Another matter brought up at the joint meeting was the published statement that the report of the United States coal commision, made public today, was practically written by United States Attorney General Daugherty so as to make it in accord with the labor policy of the Harding administration. The statement was alleged to have been made by George H. Cushing publisher of a bulletin circulated in the coal trade.

The subject was officially brought before the meeting by the mine workers in a statement which recited the details of the Cushing assertions and which was offered in the form of a resolution by Thomas Kennedy, president of District No. 1 of the miners' union.

Samuel D. Warriner, Philadelphia, president of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company and chief spokesman for the operators, opposed the resolution on the ground that the joint conference was not concerned with the charges. He said that two members of the commission had denied the assertions and for the joint conference to ask an investigation would, by implication, impugn the integrity of the members of the commission.

President Kennedy said the statement was a serious matter and should be cleared up, while John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, who presided, felt that the Cushing report was of sufficient importance to warrant a statement from Cushing or from Attorney General Daugherty.

The operators asked for a recess so that they might caucus and at its conclusion Mr. Warriner repeated what he had previously said. When the vote was taken the miners voted for the resolution and the operators against it and it was not adopted, the practice of the joint meeting being that resolution can only be adopted by a unanimous vote of operators and miners.

DEATH OF FORMER CHIEF JUSTICE DAY

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 9.—(By the A. P.)—The body of former United States Supreme Court Justice William R. Day, 78, who died here at 5.30 this morning was taken late today to Canton, Ohio, William L. Day of Cleveland, Ohio, a son, accompanied the body.

The funeral party expect to arrive at Canton on Tuesday and burial will be there.

The former Justice had been ill for about ten days and several days ago physicians gave up hope for his recovery. According to Dr. James Brogan, death was due to lung complications following an attack of pneumonia in Washington about three years ago.

The name of William R. Day is indelibly linked with that of William McKinley. When the latter was elected president, Day was little known outside of Ohio, where he was born in 1849. He had been graduated from the University of Michigan, studied law in a law office, had taken a few lectures and began the practice of his profession. He had been elected judge of the common pleas court in Stark county, O., when 37 years of age and in 1885, President Harrison had offered him the position of judge of the northern district of Ohio, but ill health forbade his accepting.

He was secretary of state under President McKinley.

Besides William L. Day, three other sons, Luther, Rufus and Stephen, survive.

CLOTH EXAMINERS TO STRIKE NEXT WEEK

New York, July 9.—A thousand members of the Cloth Examiners' and Spongers' union, who pass upon 90 per cent. of the woolens used in men's and women's clothing manufacturing plants in the United States, have announced they will strike next Monday unless they are granted increases of 25 to 30 per cent. on piecework, Edward Fillmore, president of the Textile Finishers' association of employers, revealed tonight.

Mr. Fillmore declared the association had voted today not to grant the demands and predicted that, within 24 hours after a strike, all the clothing trade in New York city and in many other cities, extending to the Pacific coast, would be shut down and that 500,000 men and women would go out of work. The association had proposed, he said, to lower the piece rates when the union presented its demands for increases.

APPROVE FEDERAL AID HIGHWAY SYSTEM ROADS

Washington, July 9.—Definite designations of roads to comprise the federal aid highway system have been made in thirty-four states by the department of agriculture. These roads and estimated in the fourteen states where the roads have not yet been approved aggregate 187,406 miles, connecting nearly every city in the country having a population of 5,000 or more. Indications are that more than 90 per cent. of the nation's population will live within ten miles of a federal aid highway.

Mileage by states where designations have been made include: Connecticut 325, Maine 1,393, New Hampshire 988, New York 498, Rhode Island 168, Vermont 1,043.

Estimated mileage in Massachusetts, which is included in states where designations have not yet been approved, is 1,200.

MORSE CASE MUST GO TO THE JURY

Washington, July 9.—The case of Charles W. Morse, his three sons and four others who are charged with conspiracy to defraud the United States in connection with wartime ship construction and operation contracts, must go to the jury.

Justice Stafford so announced today in the District of Columbia supreme court in over-ruling motions of defense counsel for a direct verdict of acquittal and for dismissal of the indictments. The motions were made last week after the government had rested its case.

Immediately after the decision by the court the defense began the presentation of its case in reply to that which government counsel have put in during the more than two months that the case has been on trial. They plan to call as witnesses, William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury; Charles M. Schwab, former director general of the emergency fleet corporation and other men of national prominence, and hope to rest within a few weeks.

STATE POLICE CONFISCATE 996 GALLONS OF ALCOHOL

Meriden, July 9.—A cargo which the state police claim to consist of 996 gallons of alcohol, was confiscated after a New York truck was stopped on the highway about a mile and a half south of Berlin Center tonight.

After the driver had been arrested for coasting down a hill at the rate of 38 miles an hour, the state policeman thought that the truck contained more than its ostentatious load of furniture. Obtaining a search warrant the officer found the alleged alcohol in a number of kegs.

The driver and two men accompanying him are being held at the New Britain police headquarters.

UNITED MINE OFFICIALS FACE LONG SENTENCES

Halifax, N. S., July 9.—The crown intimated in court today that new criminal laws, enacted after the general strike in Winnipeg in 1919, might be brought to bear against Dan Livingstone and James B. MacLachlan, district leaders of the United Mine Workers, charged with circulating false tales.

The union leaders were arrested in connection with the walkout of coal miners called in sympathy with the strike of steel workers in Cape Breton. The crown stated, when the defendants were remanded without bail until next Thursday, that they faced twenty years' imprisonment if found guilty of all the charges lodged against them.

Great Falls, Mont., July 9.—The Stanton Bank and Trust company of Great Falls closed its doors today. George H. Stanton, president, was prominent in the financing of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight at Shelby, Mont., on July 4.

The bank closed its doors in voluntary liquidation. Failure to meet the morning's clearings and realize upon its assets was given as the reason. State Motor Vehicle Receipts $4,227,7[illegible]

Figures Show [illegible] of $818,719 Over [illegible]ceipts for Previous Fiscal Year—Gain of 28,848 Motor Vehicles Shown by Report.

Hartford, July 9.—Receipts of the state motor vehicle department for the year ending June 30, aggregated $4,227,767, according to figures announced today. The total represents an increase of $818,719 over the receipts for the previous fiscal year, and is practically double the amount of money received by the department two years ago.

An increase of 28,848 motor vehicles registered in the state, making a total of 182,273, was responsible for $624,749 of the gain in the department's income.

THIRTEEN MILLION MOTOR VEHICLES IN COUNTRY

New York, July 9.—Motor cars and trucks registered in the United States on July 1 totaled 13,048,128, according to a survey just completed by automobile industries. This was a gain of 2,440,000 over the July 1, 1922 total, an increase of about 23 per cent. Registrations have already passed the December, 1922, high mark by 683,751, thus indicating that the final 1923 figures will show another gain of 1,000,000 or more.

Every state had more vehicles registered than on July 1, a year ago, while 37 states have already gone over the final 1922 total.

There is now one motor vehicle for every 8.5 persons in the United States. High percentage of increases are shown in many of the southern states, particularly in West Virginia, Kentucky, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Florida. California shows the densest automobile population with one vehicle for every 4.09 persons.

Ohio had the greatest actual increase over last July with a gain of 215,000 while West Virginia had the greatest percentage gain with 40.6 per cent.

MRS. BUZZI'S COUNSEL APPEALS DEATH SENTENCE

New York, July 9.—Mrs. Anna Buzzi was taken to Auburn prison this afternoon to await execution in the electric chair at Sing Sing for the murder of her lover, Frederick Schneider, a wealthy Bronx contractor.

Sentenced this morning by Supreme Court Justice O'Malley, Mrs. Buzzi calmly made a statement to the court protesting her innocence, and as calmly walked out to prepare for her trip to Auburn.

Although Justice O'Malley set the date for her execution as the week of August 6, it is not expected that Mrs. Buzzi will pay the death penalty for a year, if she ever does. Her counsel says notice of an appeal, which acts as an automatic stay of execution, pending the long drawn out court proceedings. If the appeal fails, Mrs. Buzzi's friends are planning to appeal to Governor Smith for a commutation of sentence. If Mrs. Buzzi does eventually pay the penalty in the electric chair at Sing Sing, she will be the third woman to die there since the chair was installed in 1889.

Mrs. Martha Place, who killed her daughter, Ida, in Brooklyn, was the first, being executed the first year the chair did service. The second was Mary Farmer of Watertown, who was executed in 1909 for the murder of a woman neighbor.

Harriet Dixon, a negress, was under sentence to die in the chair in 1920, but her sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

FIVE HURT WHEN AUTO TURNED TURTLE

Norwalk, Conn., July 9.—Five persons were critically injured and removed to the Norwalk hospital as a result of injuries received about 11.30 o'clock tonight when the automobile in which they were riding turned turtle on the Darien turnpike.

The injured persons are Joseph Pagano, driver of the machine, his wife, Rosie and infant son, Patsy, Mrs. Josephine Bello and her four-year-old son Ernest, all of whom reside at 436 State street, Stamford.

According to State Policeman Leo Carroll, of Bridgeport and Constables Velie and Smith, of Darien, who discovered the overturned machine, fifteen gallons of alcohol were found in the fields a short distance from the scene of the accident.

DEATH PENALTY FOR HUSBAND AND WIFE

Chicago, July 9.—The death penalty was returned by a jury trying Mrs. Sabelle Nitti Crudelle and her present husband, who were charged with the murder of Frank Nitti, the woman's first husband here today.

The jury was out only a few hours and returned the verdict of guilty against both Mrs. Crudelle and her husband, Peter Crudelle, with a recommendation that the death penalty be inflicted.

Nitti, a truck farmer living near Stickney, disappeared from his farm last July, and his body was found in May in a catch basin near Stickney. In the meantime, his widow and Crudelle, who had been a farmhand on Nitti's farm, were married.

Georgetown, Mass., July 9.—In less than an hour tonight fire destroyed the chief business block of this town, wiping out three shoe factories and a number of business places, at a loss estimated at more than $200,000. About 300 persons were thrown out of employment.

The three shoe factories, occupying several floors of the four story block, comprised the chief industry of this town. The factories were owned by Beaucagé and Morris, the Robinson Shoe Company, and Harriman Brothers.

Apparatus from Lawrence, Haverhill, Ipswich, Amesbury, Newburyport and Danvers collaborated in preventing the spread of the flames.

N'TL BALLOON RACE COMES TO TRAGIC END

Indianapolis, Ind., July 9.—Finding of the body of Lieutenant T. J. Roth in Lake Erie today brought to a tragic close the national balloon race, so far as the contest itself is concerned. Search now is centered on Lieutenant T. B. Null, who accompanied Lieutenant Roth in the ill-fated navy air craft.

The ballon carrying Lieutenants Roth and Null was the ninth to take off here. It attracted unusual attention because of its rapid rise, as compared with the other bags which had preceded it. Lieutenant Roth was overheard to remark that on one other occasion when he bore No. 9 in a race, he encountered storms and much danger.

Hard rains and thunderstorms preceded the race and continued intermittently throughout the tim most of the balloons were in the air. Practically every pilot reported having drifted into or being overtaken by severe wind and rain storms.

ROTH'S BODY FOUND WITH BALLOON BASKET

Port Stanley, Ont., July 9 (By the A. P.).—Lake Erie today yielded the body of Lieutenant L. J. Roth, pilot of the ill-fated U. S. navy balloon A-6698. Strapped to the basket of the balloon, and clad only in his underwear, around which had been tied a life preserver, Roth's body was found in the basket this morning, fourteen miles off here, by Captain George Wilson, master of a fishing boat.

Apparently caught in the terrific storm of last Thursday night, Lieutenant Roth evidently took the precaution to strap himself to the side of the basket after divesting himself of his clothing, and then cut the basket loose from the big bag, trusting to the buoyancy devices with which the basket was equipped to keep it afloat.

How long the basket was buffeted about the lake after the bag was cut loose could not be conjectured, but the condition of Lieutenant Roth's body indicated that he died of exposure. His head and shoulders were hanging over the edge of the basket. Identification of the body as that of Roth was established by the stencilled initials "L. J. R." in the underwear.

Although airplanes from Selfridge field, flying boats from Cleveland and Detroit, a revenue cutter and various other swift moving craft had searched the lake for nearly three days without success, it remained for a small fishing craft to find the missing basket and its fated cargo. The swifter craft of the air and the sea had coursed about the lake for hours Saturday and Sunday and despite clear weather failed to find any trace of the basket. Then Captain Wilson took his small fishing boat out this morning to make his customary trip to his nets and sighted it swaying in the waves, fourteen miles out. He immediately put a line to the basket and towed it into port here.

The basket, together with the bag of the navy balloon, the latter recovered late Saturday, are being held here pending advices from the naval air service at Washington.

Reports received here that the body of Lieutenant T. B. Nulls, the other occupants of the A-6698, had been found in Lake Erie near Point Pelee today were found to be incorrect tonight when the body was identified as that of Albert A. Yost fo Akron, Ohio.

ADMIRAL MOFFETT DEPLORES DEATH OF AIRMAN

Washington, July 9.—Admiral Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, issued the following statement today:

"The death of Lieutenant Roth is one of the most unfortunate and tragic happenings in the history of naval aviation and is keenly felt by all of his brother officers. He died in line of duty in the service of his country and for the advancement of aeronautics. Those who had the good fortune to know him know of his many sterling and lovable qualities both as an officer and as a man.

"The fact that Lieutenant Null is still missing is ground for encouragement and hope. We will not relax in any detail our efforts to find him until every chance for his recovery has been exhausted."

PRESIDENT HARDING GREETS THOUSANDS AT WRANGELL

Wrangell, Alaska, July 9 (By the A. P.).—President Harding, landing here today, greeted thousands of people of Wrangell and Petersburg, and in an address delivered from the steps of the frame courthouse declared became to Alaska "as an apostle of understanding" and wanted his administration to go down in history as "a period of understanding."

"That is what the world and the nation most need," the president declared. The president was welcomed to Wrangell by Rev. Mr. Diven, pastor of the Presbyterian church, who introduced him to the cheering crowd. After the chief executive had concluded his address, Secretary of the Interior Work, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Hoover spoke briefly.

The party landed here this morning to find the town, once the chief trading station of the Hudson's Bay company, decorated with flags and flooded with the sunlight of a perfect summer day. Here the party saw its first totem poles. The president and Mrs. Harding were presented with a huge basket of strawberries, nearly twice the size of the berries they have been accustomed to in Washington, and a bouquet of mammoth peonies.

TURKS AUTHORIZE ISMET PASHA TO SIGN PEACE TREATY

Angora Government Confirms Settlement Reached at Lausanne Conference—Feeling of Satisfaction at Constantinople Over Outcome of Long Drawn Out Negotiations—Turkey Wants Great Britain to Remove Her Warships Simultaneously With Her Land Forces—Warships of France and Italy Must Also Go, Ismet Pasha Declares—Allied Representatives Have Referred Question to Home Governments.

Constantinople, July 9.—(By The A. P.)—The Angora government, after examination of the latest despatches from Lausanne, has authorized Ismet Pasha to sign the peace treaty. There had been some doubt as to what action the authorities at Angora would take, or how long it might be delayed, but the announcement made this evening apparently confirms the settlement which was reached at Lausanne yesterday by Ismet and the delegates representing the allies.

It is considered that the head of the Turkish delegation at the Near East conference has gained notable diplomatic victories and there is a feeling of satisfaction in Constantinople, and evidently at Angora, over the outcome of the long drawn out negotiations.

TURKEY WANTS BRITISH WARSHIPS TO WITHDRAW

Lausanne, July 9.—(By The A. P.)—Turkey wants Great Britain to remove her warships from Turkish waters simultaneously with her land forces that is, within six weeks after the ratification of the peace treaty by the Angora government. The warships of France and Italy must also go, Ismet Pasha declares, so that Ootoman subjects may be free of all this evidence of foreign dominion.

The allied representatives have referred the question to their home governments.

The protocol on concessions, which will be attached to the treaty, provides that in case the Chester Company abandons parts of its contracts and decides not to build the allotted railroads Turkey will give an option to the British and French companies enjoying pre-war rights.

MAY ISSUE REPARATIONS STATEMENT THIS WEEK

London, July 9 (By the A. P.).—Prime Minister Baldwin's announcement in the house of commons this afternoon that it might be possible for the government to make a statement on reparations Thursday eased British public opinion, which has been manifesting increased impatience and concern over the failure of the cabinet to commit itself to a definite policy.

It is anticipated that the premier's statement will furnish parliament and the public with a clear cut, comprehensive analysis of the whole subject. This may afford the opposition groups in the house opportunity for open debate, and it is considered likely that before the week is out the Ruhr controversy will have entered a new and broader phase.

The opinion prevails in official circles that France is playing for time, believing that Germany will capitulate before England can take independent action. France, according to those circles, is convinced that Germany is now on the verge of collapse economically and that with her commercial disintegration, the passave resistance, upon the cessation of which France has been so insistent, will automatically disappear.

Great Britain, however, feels that Germany, although sorely pressed by France, still has an abundant reserve of vitality and that she will ultimately weather the present storm.

Whatever turn the situation takes this week, it is considered likely that England will renew her suggestion for the appointment of an international commission of experts to examine into Germany's resources and determine her capacity to pay. It is regarded as not improbable that the committee of experts appointed last year, of which J. P. Morgan was a member, may be asked to serve again.

It would not surprise political observers here if Thursday's discussion in the house led ultimately to the formulation of a thesis of dealing with Germany alone and spreading it before the United States and other neutral countries, as well as France, Italy and Belgium, for their verdict.

SPECIAL GRAND JURY HEARS ANDERSON CASE

New York, July 9.—A special grand jury today heard the first of the "new evidence" on which Assistant District Attorney Pecora is seeking the indictment of William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, for larceny, forgery and extortion.

The second batch of evidence, including testimony of Rev. Dr. David James Burrell, president of the state league, will be presented later in the week, Mr. Pecora said. Dr. George Caleb Moor, treasurer of the league, asked Mr. Pecora today to permit Dr. Burrell, who has been in ill health for some time, to send a sworn statement to the grand jury, but this the prosecutor declined.

Today's witnesses included Dr. Moor, O. Bertsall Phillips, a former solicitor of funds for the league, Miss Maud M. O'Dell, Anderson's secretary, and Miss Mary Hill, chief bookkeeper for the league.

MAUGHAN FORCED DOWN— ENGINE "WENT DEAD"

St. Joseph, Mo., July 9.—Lieutenant R. L. Maughan, attempting a coast to coast flight, was forced down at 1.10 p. m., (Central time) 10 miles northeast of here today, when Maughan's engine "went dead."

The aviator was uninjured, but his plane was so badly damaged that Maughan said he would be unable to continue his flight. Maughan said he would make another start from New York in a week or 10 days.

Maughan covered approximately 1,130 miles of his proposed 2,640 mile flight.

Lieutenant Maughan also failed to keep up with his time schedule. At Dayton he was one hour, thirty-five and one-half minutes late. When he was forced down and broke his landing gear at Avenue City, Mo., he was 58 minutes further behind his schedule.

Motor trouble which made its appearance when he was within a five minutes spin of the St. Joseph air field, caused him to fight, Maughan said.

Maughan said the motor had been running in fine order when he saw St. Joseph in the distance. About the time he could see the municipal field the engine went wrong and he was forced to pick a pasture to alight.

In striking the ground the landing gear was crushed, making further flight impossible.

A welding machine was carried from St. Joseph and the machine will be repaired where it landed. Then it will be brought to St. Joseph to await orders from Mitchel field.

"I am not discouraged," Maughan declared. "I am quite satisfied with the results so far. I was going good except for getting lost in the fog over the Allegheny mountains. If I had had only five minutes more I could have landed in the air field and my mechanics could have fixed me up so I could have proceeded."

Bush andothree others in two motor boats were captured near the French schooner Gerberville off Rum Row. Five cases of champagne and two of whiskey were found in both boats.

The continued case of Mrs. Celia Chasen, charged with violation of the liquor law was taken up Monday morning in police court. The defendant appeared in court Saturday morning and asked that the case be continued to give her time in which to secure a lawyer, but Monday she explained that she had decided an attorney wanted too much money and that she would disscuss with one. After some hesitation she pleaded guilty.

During the course of the evidence the court was informed that Mrs. Chasen was a widow and the mother of three small children whom she was supporting by conducting a grocery store at No. 48 Union street. The place was raided and a quantity of moonshine and Jamaica ginger was found.

Judge F. H. Foss showed leniency toward the defendant and imposed a fine of $40 and costs amounting to $46.25 which was paid.

John Messenger of Hartford died Monday in the Memorial hospital, Manchester, as the result of a collision of motor vehicles on Bolton Hill Sunday night about 8.30 o'clock, in which the man sustained a broken leg and other injuries. A motorcycle driven by Messenger was badly damaged and an automobile owned by a dentist from Providence, R. I., was also wrecked.

Messenger was headed west on his motorcycle and speeded up in order to pass one of the Hartford-Willimantic Blue Line jitney cars. When about two-third of the way up the steep hill he cut in and was confronted by the Providence car which was parked at the right side of the hill and another machine coming from the west down the grade. This placed the motorcycle driver in a pocket and he crashed into the front of the Providence machine. The impact threw him into the state road fence, breaking his leg and causing internal injuries.

State Policeman Kelsey and Boucher who were patrolling the highway in that section, soon arrived and assisted in relieving the congestion of traffic caused by the affair. During the process of the investigation an intoxicated motorist came along and his actions were such that he was placed under arrest by one of the officers.

Two bicycles, believed to have been stolen were found Monday forenoon in the rear of the American Railway express shipping quarters, at the west end of the local railroad station, by Patrick Connors of the staff of employees and were turned over to the police. Tied to the handlebars was a cardboard box containing several packages of chewing gum, Camel cigarettes, sunshine crackers, plugs of chewing tobacco and a large butcher knife. The address, Manchester, Conn., Dairy Ice Cream Company, No. 113 Summit street, South Manchester, was written on the label of the box.

To the other bicycle was attached a man's bathing suit also containing several packages of Camel cigarettes, chewing tobacco, gum and biscuits. One of the bicycles was a Columbia make and the other a Yale, and although both appeared to have had some use they were equipped with nearly new tires. At the time they were found the bicycles were tied together. They are now at the police station.

Later in the forenoon the police were given a clue as to the identity of the parties who had abandoned the bicycles when two men, one white and the other colored, presented themselves at the express shipping station and asked what had become of their bicycles. When informed that they were in the possession of the police the men lost no time in departing and it was learned that they were given a ride to Norwich on one of the Max Pollock Thread company trucks.

Acting Chief MacArthur telephoned to Chief Gordon at Manchester and told him about the bicycles. Chief Gordon said that a gasoline service station there had been broken into and the articles described above had been stolen from the place, but he knew nothing about the bicycles. The Norwich and New London police were asked to arrest the men if seen in either city.

The animal penetrated to the heart of the city after becoming frightened by the noise of traffic on Windham road. The graceful beast was only successful in getting its head between the pickets when it became wedged although it made frantic efforts to escape. Traffic Officer Frank Lean was notified and assisted by several by standers tied the doe's four legs to prevent it from doing itself more injury and the animal was then given a free ride to the North Windham woods in one of Dexter's bread trucks. It was then released.

The blaze was discovered by Everett MacFarlane, a neighbor and Engine Company, No. 1, was called and upon arrival there found the machine enveloped in flames, which were extinguished with chemicals. The origin of the fire remains a mystery. Mr. Mowry left the machine about seven o'clock the previous evening and to all appearances everything was all right then. One of the neighbors, however, claimed to have smelled burning rubber a few hours after the car had been left and it is thought that the blaze resulted from a short circuit. The machine was fully covered by insurance.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week there has been a marked decrease in the number of building permits issued at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton only two having been granted during the week. However during the latter part of the week a number of applications were filed at the fire marshal's office which will be granted after investigation. The work on local building has gone on uninterrupted with the exception of the holiday and on some projects men were engaged on the Fourth. The buildings are well along and every effort is being made to finish up the work in short time.

At the American Woolen plant in Thamesville the new addition is well along, the cement work on the main structure being practically complete. The smaller building is also well along.

The work on the Palace theatre on Rose place is being rushed along and it is expected that the work will be completed around the last of August or the first of September.

The work of remodeling the Wilson building in the rear of 80 Franklin street is nearly completed. Two new entrances have been put in and the brick walls have been reinforced. The work on the Pasnik block is also well along and fast nearing the completion stage.

THE STATE SITUATION.

The statistics of building permits granted in the larger centers of the state, according to the Commercial Record, in the past week would seem to indicate an increased volume of building, although there are but few new contracts being given out at present. The determination to refrain from building is becoming more and more apparent every day, and few new plans are going out for estimates. In the past week there were 235 permits granted, for buildings costing $1,949,997, against 193 last year, for buildings costing $453,716 and 190 in 1921, for buildings the cost of which amounted to $598,935.

Formidable Weapon.

The bolo is the national weapon of the Filipinos. The blade is about 18 inches in length by nearly 3 inches in width at its broadest dimension. It tapers from the middle towards the shaft as well as toward the point, making it strongly resemble the ancient short sword. It is not double edged, however, but tapers from a thick back to an extremely keen edge. The scabbard of the bolo is made of native wood with rough outlined designs carved upon it. The whole weapon is much more beautiful in outline and more formidable than the Cuban machete.

Coming to the Breed

Of all the romantic figures in American commercial life there is none perhaps that stands out in such bold relief as the railroad man.

In the hands of one smoke blackened, begrimed figure sitting in an engine cab, with his hand on the throttle while his eyes peer up the tracks, lie the destinies of hundreds of passengers riding behind. A slight mistake in signals, the miscarriage of a train order, the loosening of a bolt in a train or a confusion of the right-of-way may be responsible for sending hundreds of persons to their death.

Each employee learns to have absolute confidence in his fellow worker. The conductor depends on his brakeman, the engineer on his fireman, the train master on his train crew. When a subordinate slips up in the smallest detail, a great wreck may take place. Wrecks are caused only by carelessness.

Emory Johnson has seized upon this great subject and filmed it with all its romance in filming his colossal drama of the rails, Westbound Limited, which will be shown at the Breed theatre, starting tomorrow. He has depicted railroad life as it really exists, from the humble switch-tender to the imposing president himself. Against the commercial background of railroad tracks, engines, trains, smoke, water tanks, and the perpetual dangers of the life is revealed one of the most beautiful romances that has ever graced the pages of literature.

The Exciters Shown With Success at Local Theatre

Bebe Daniels and Antonio Moreno are co-stars in the Paramount picture, The Exciters, which was shown with gratifying success at the Strand theatre last evening. Maurice Campbell directed the production, which is an adaptation by John Colton and Sonya Levien of a well known stage play by Martin Brown.

Miss Daniels, in the role of Ronnie Rand, a regular speed girl and the sensation of a fashionable winter colony at Miami, Fla., is compelled by the will of her aunt to marry before she becomes twenty-one, or suffer the loss of an immense fortune. An apathetic young man, Roger Paxton, is, according to the family, to be the lucky bridegroom, but she finds herself deeply in love with Pierre Martel, who, later develops, is apparently a crook, and member of a burglar band. Following an aeroplane crash, he cares for her, and the pair are married. Acting under orders of his confederates, Pierre demands a large sum for an annulment of the marriage. But it develops later that Pierre is wealthy and an officer of the Intelligence Service of the U. S., banded with crooks to frustrate their plans. He is an exciter, too. A unique climax brings this interesting picture to an interesting close, with two exciters vastly excited by dream of happiness as husband and wife.

The players of the supporting cast portray their respective roles excellently. There are Burr McIntosh, Diana Allen, Cyril Ring and others. George Webber was the photographer.

A mile of laughter and then some was in Day Dreams, one of Buster Keatons latest comedy and a new weekly was also shown.

Men Who Dare, Adopt "Safety Last" As Motto.

What are dare-devils? Men who fearlessly take hazardous chances in their different field of endeavor. Men who plunge themselves into perilous predicaments and come out smiling.

The world is full of those who flirt with danger. The fireman, the policeman, the arctic exporer, the African hunter, the soldier and sailor, the aviator, the inventor, the chemist, the human fly who scales the side of buildings, the missionary who fearlessly brings his religion to the savage and scores of others.

These different classes of "dare-devils" all risk their lives in their own particular lines of duty, fearless of the outcome and prepared for the next assignment. And they all believe in "Safety Last" and adopt it as their motto to inspire them and make them "carry on."

The thought of personal danger does not enter their minds. The love of adventure, the fascination of thrills and the gambling instinct to "beard the lion" of their professions makes them look forward eagerly to the next thrilling situation that they will face.

These "dare-devils" only deplore one fact, and that is that life insurance companies show great hesitancy about issuing them policies, some companies refusing it, absolutely. An amusing thing occurred in this regard when Harold Lloyd was performing his hazardous feats—that of climbing the side of a twelve-story building in his new Pathe comedy, Safety Last, which is being shown now at the Broadway theatre. The comedian was forced to promise his insurance agent that he would never risk his life in such a manner again. But just the same, the thrills are there—and some thrills!

Two very novel short subjects are also included in this great program, they being a Wilderness tale entitled And Women Must Weep and a Lyman Howe Hodge Podge story.

Notice, there is no strike at the above theatre.

Boston Jeweler Puts A High Value On It

"My first few doses of Tanlac started sharpening up my appetite, and in less than two weeks I was doing full justice to three meals a day," said Bernard Linsky, well-known jeweler, residing at 11 North Anderson St., Boston, Mass.

SARAZEN LEADS FIELD AT INWOOD IN QUALIFYING ROUND OF OPEN PLAY

Inwood, N. Y., July 9—(By the A. P.)—Gene Sarazen, black haired golf wizard of Briarcliff Lodge, present American open champion, turned the difficult Inwood Country Club course wise today in 148 strokes, the lowest card of any of the eighteen who led a field of ninety and qualified for the 1923 national open championship to be played Friday and Saturday. The field was the first of four that will attempt to qualify.

While many of the experts had predicted that the cards of 155 or under would be needed to qualify, those who negotiated the 36 holes in 160 today won places in the final 72-hole plan. Emil Loeffler, of Pittsburgh, Pa., open champion, set the first low mark for the others early in the forenoon, turning in a card of 152. This was equalled by Francis Gallett, the young Scotch professional of Fort Washington, N. Y., who, with Sarazen had led in the morning round with a 73, one over par.

Jock Hutchison of Chicago, undaunted by early bad luck, or bad form as he chose to call it, changed his knickers before the afternoon round started and got in with a 152. Jack declared that every time his eyes turned to the knickers he wore in the morning he became blind. They were blue and white checked.

Sarazen's low score came late in the afternoon, when Abe Espinosa, the bunty Californian, moved into second place with 151. He was two over par in the morning and had a 77 in the afternoon. William Melhorn, of St. Louis and William Creavy of Kansas City, had 154's. Leo Diegel of Washington, one of the most brilliant professionals in the tournament, gathered a 155 after it appeared that he would be among the also golfed.

Diegel took a 76 in the morning, then played poorly on the first nine in the afternoon for a total of 81, against the 40 of Sarazen, his companion for the day. Then at the turn he made a birdie three, due to a well-played pitch shot which left him scarcely 12 inches from the cup. On the eleventh he took 3 putts for a five. He followed this with 3 putts on the goldfish pond 12th hole, the green of which is reached with a mashie niblick shot. On top of this his drive on the 13th found the rough, his second shot bounced into a sand trap at the right of the green and another six was added to his score.

Then he braced. A birdie four at the long 14th gave him confidence. He placed his midiron shot on the fifteenth to within 3 feet of the pin and sank his putt for another birdie. The sixteenth he played in par but added another birdie on the 17th with an eight foot putt. He was forced to play safe after a hooked drive on the eighteenth but got in with one stroke over par for the hole, is brilliant work on the last nine placed him well within the qualifying limit.

Sarazen's long and accurate driving and pitch shots accounts for his 36, one under par on the first nine in the morning. His putting was not at best, however, and this probably prevented him from setting a course record. He rimmed the cup several times going out and coming in, but made the second nine in 37, two over par.

In the afternoon a stiff wind blew, making the course at least three strokes harder and Sarazen found trouble in keeping his shots straight down the fairway. On the third hole, 325 yards long, he took a seven including three putts after being in a trap to the left of the green. On the fourth another par five hole, Sarazen sank a putt of eight feet for a birdie four. At the fifth he had a chance to chip another stroke from par but missed a putt of three feet. The sixth hole gave the champion trouble all day. In both morning and afternoon rounds he was over the green on his tee shots, taking four on each occasion. On the last nine Sarazen was at his best, finishing with a par 35.

Of the three amateurs who took part in the tournament today Charles (Chick) Evans of Chicago, was the only survivor. The others Kenneth Reid, of Ardsley, and Larry Paton of Boston, fell by the wayside. Reid took two too many, while Paton used up so many precious strokes in the morning that he withdrew in the afternoon.

Evans was off form in the morning taking an eighty-two he started on the first with a birdie three but after that his golf slumped. With the possibility of elimination staring him in the face Evans perked up in the afternoon, negotiating the first nine in 38, one over par. On the incoming nine his play was steady, and he finished with another 38, making his total for the round 76. He was aided somewhat by a lucky break on the 17th when his mashie shot caromed off the edge of a trap to within three feet of the pin. He sank his putt for a birdie three. His 158 strokes for the 36 holes was two strokes a shin the limit required for the first eighteen.

The nineteen who qualified, and their scores were:

Gene Sarazen, New York 148.
Abe Espinosa, Oakland, Calif., 151.
Jock Hutchison, Chicago 152.
Emil Loeffler, Pittsburgh 152.
Francis Gallett, Fort Washington, N. Y., 152.
William Creavy, Kansas City, 154.
William Melhorn, St. Louis 154.
Leo Diegel, Washington, 155.
Jack Burke, St. Paul, 156.
Fred Baroni, Coronopolis, Pa., 156.
Eddie Williams, Peoria, Ills., 157.
Charles "Chick" Evans, Chicago, 158.
Rob McDonald, Chicago, 158.
Reh Parola, Linden, N. J., 159.
Fred Capanus, West Point, N. Y., 159
C. L. Booth, Putnam, Conn., 160.
J. Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., 160.
James West Rockaway, N. Y., 160.

Only eighteen qualified, as none of the stragglers could equal 160. M. J. O'Loughlin, the metropolitan open champion, with 161, was forced out, as was Alex Campbell, the Ohioan, whose card was 163.

ATTENDANCE AT MAJOR LEAGUE GAMES AHEAD OF 1922

New York, July 9—Paid attendance at all national league games for the first half of the season, ending last week, totalled 200,000 in excess of the same period for 1922, President John A. Heydler revealed today at the regular mid-season meeting of the league. Indications, he said, pointed to the greatest season on record in point of popular interest.

Erection of the National League's memorial to Adrian C. (Pop) Anson, one of the greatest players of all time, is nearly completed, it was announced and unveiling ceremonies are planned at Chicago early in September.

The league adopted a resolution deploring the untimely loss of Umpire Paul Sentell, who died recently after an operation for appendicitis. It was voted to defray all expenses connected with his illness and funeral and pay his year's salary in full to his widow.

Kenneth Sedgwick, a recruit pitcher from the Virginia League made his major league debut for the Senators. He pitched fine ball for five innings but weakened in the sixth. Hooper's home run with a man on and Leverette's triple, one of the longest hits ever made in Comiskey Park, which scored two runs were features. Eddie Collins, who has been out of the White Sox lineup because of an injured knee resumed his position today. Score:

BURKOSKI MEDALIST IN QUALIFYING ROUND IN STATE GOLF TOURNAMENT

Groton, Conn., July 9—William Burkoski, 20 year old player from the Naugatuck Golf club, was the medalist in the qualifying round of the Connecticut state golf championship on the Shenecossett Country club course today. With a card of 75 for the 18 holes in the morning and a 79 for the afternoon round, Burkoski led a field of more than 140 golfers, the largest that ever played in a Connecticut championship tournament.

Larry M. Lloyd and Henry J. Topping of the Greenwich Country club were tied for second, with cards of 155 each, one stroke behind Burkoski. When the players teed off, with a high wind blowing across the course, the favorites to win the qualifying medal were W. Parker Seeley of Brooklawn, the present state champion; Reginald M. Lewis of Greenwich, former champion, and H. J. Topping. Burkoski was in front all the way, however. The last players did not come in until after 8 o'clock. The Greenwich Country club won permanent possession of the cup for the state medal team play by taking the team championship today. Greenwich won the medal team trophy in 1921 and 1922.

Lloyd had 77 in the morning and 78 in the afternoon. Topping went around in 80 in the morning and 75 in the afternoon. Seeley did each round in 78, while Lewis had 79 in the morning and 78 in the afternoon.

SPANISH NET STARS WIN FROM HOLLANDERS

Eastbourne, England, July 9—(By the A. P.)—Spain today paved the way to its participation in the finals in the European zone of the Davis cup tournament by winning the first two singles matches of the semi-final contest with Holland.

The ease with which the Spanish players won presages an early termination of the contest. Since if they win in the doubles match tomorrow play would end and it would be unnecessary to hold the remaining singles. Holland won only one set of the two matches today. Van Lennep taking the first set from Edouardo Flaquer after the Spaniard had led 2-1. The final score was 5-7, 6-3, 8-6, 6-1.

Count de Gomar gave a brilliant display in bringing down the other Hollander, Vanderfeen, 6-3, 6-0, 7-5.

THE COAL BOARD'S REPORT.

The fact finding commission named by the president to look into the coal situation has not completed its work. Another report is presented at this time, however, which calls for careful attention and which indicates that it favors the taking of drastic action only if there is disclosed an unwillingness on the part of the operators and miners to display the proper attitude toward the public.

In recommending that the hard coal contract shall not expire at the same time with the bituminous contract it seeks to keep the two industries separate and to avoid the checking of the production of fuel.

When it is recommended that any failure to renew contracts must be reported to the president 60 days before a contract expires it is to give the public the protection that would come through the efforts of the government to adjust the matter and from that authority, which the commission would have congress confer upon the president, to declare an emergency, take charge of the mines, fix wages, compensation to owner and distribute the product.

Such action can be taken if congress acts in accord with the commission's recommendation, but it will not be in session in time to do anything having a bearing upon the contract that ends next month.

The commission has declared itself against the nationalization of the mines. It is a sound decision for government ownership of such property is not desired. Regulation, however, must proceed and become more drastic as the operators and miners force it by their action.

In calling attention to the fact that punative legislation is not recommended at this time the commission puts the operators and miners to a test. That test is already at hand. If their failure to consider the public interest fails in connection with the new contract the commission is ready to act and has served notice that it will act.

The recommendation concerning the action of the operators to insure burnable coal will if the operators are properly disposed, solve the difficulty, while the suggestion that is made to New England to protect itself in the way of prices and a sufficient supply by resorting to substitutes whenever possible may well be heeded, even though New England isn't the only section that should be expected to resort to substitution.

SAFETY AND SANITY AT CROSSINGS.

The safe and sane campaign relative to the celebration of the Fourth of July has received a widespread acceptance, if we are to judge by the greatly reduced numbers of those killed and injured in accidents on that day. But while the merits of that effort appear to be recognized and put into practice, the same does not appear to be the case regarding the danger at railroad crossings about which so much has been said in addition to the glaring examples and the appalling death lists at such points.

Special efforts have been made by the Pennsylvania railroad to insure greater safety at grade crossings. Publicity campaigns for the purpose of directing attention to the dangers have been conducted. Extensive study of the reasons for the accidents have been made, and yet in spite of the efforts that have been made to impress the peril upon the users of the crossings the report of the grade crossing accidents on that system for June shows an increase of 60 per cent over June of last year.

Such a condition is all the more lamentable because it is unnecessary. Examination of the accident reports of that system for June show that "defective automobile brakes, disregard of crossing watchmen's signals to stop, stopping on tracks, high speed and other forms of reckless driving are the chief causes of the increase in deaths.

Where crossing accidents should be on the decrease, regardless of the fact that there are more cars each year, the fact is that they are gaining at a surprising rate. Perhaps none of the drivers is willing to pay the penalty for his acts of poor judgment, yet he fails to observe the precautions that are necessary for the protection of himself and the other occupants of the cars. There can be no thought of forcing the train to stop and it is folly to take the great risk in trying to beat it out. When there is that same application of safety and sanity that there has been relative to the celebration of the Fourth different reports will be received.

HONESTY THE BEST POLICY.

It is impossible to regard the action of the peach growers as otherwise than a ratification of the old saying that honesty is the best policy.

New Jersey has had peach growers and peach growers. There are those who have felt that there were some of the buyers who could be fooled all the time and all of the buyers who could be fooled some of the time, but after having put that policy into effect for some time they have become convinced that it doesn't pay and that the best practice is to treat all the customers alike all the time. That at least is about what their new edict amounts to when they give publicity to the decision that in the future the top of the basket will not necessarily contain the pick of the fruit. They are going to depart from the practice of putting the small, unattractive, spotted and second fruit down in the bottom of the basket and reserving the large rosy cheeked fruit for the top layer.

The peach growers know that the fruit is not bought solely by looking at the top of the basket, that there is a disposition to dig down into the middle and see what is hidden, quite the same as the strawberry buyer does. This disposition has been made necessary because of unpleasant experiences and if the peach growers can overcome it and they will be happy. They indicate at least that the fault lies with the policy that has been pursued by them and that wisdom dictateth a change.

FRANCE MOVES.

Whether or not the plea by Japan that the three other powers proceed to put the naval agreement into effect without waiting for France to act had any effect, there is no getting away from the fact that the French chamber of deputies acted quickly thereafter and acted correctly.

It has been insisted from time to time that France was favorably inclined but there were matters which were considered of so much greater importance to itself that it had allowed the agreement to become sidetracked, and it is not improbable that France while favorably disposed to such an agreement was desirous of a bit more certainty regarding its own position, and affairs with Germany particularly in mind, before restricting itself.

There has been nothing to indicate that France had at any time been disposed to reject the pact. Certain features have been discussed in a manner which showed some favorable to reservations but it didn't appear to be the sentiment of France, and if we are to judge by the action of the chamber of deputies it did not represent French thought.

The action of the French chamber of deputies does not of course settle the matter, except so far as it can be expected to represent the attitude that will be taken by the French senate, for that body must now take action. With the lower chamber favorable by a vote of more than four to one and with the premier asking that the vote on the treaty be considered a vote of confidence in his administration there seems to be no ground for belief otherwise than that France will ratify and will do so at an early date.

This indication is certain to be pleasing to the other three countries. It means that the agreement will become effective, that the naval ratio will be actually fixed and that the construction and scrapping plans can be put into operation with that realization that others are doing the same.

JUSTICE DAY.

In view of the fact that he resigned the appointment as umpire of the German-American mixed claims commission within a few months after leaving the United States supreme court bench to accept it, it was apparent that Justice Day was actuated by good and sufficient reasons. He recommended that a younger man should be named to handle the job but it was apparent that his health was not what it should be and that he was aware of the need of eliminating the burden attached to the proper performance of those duties. His death coming within two months after that resignation discloses what must have been the state of his health at that time.

Justice Day has rendered highly valuable service to his country over a period of many years. His judicial career began nearly 40 years ago, but it was during the term of President McKinley that he was called as assistant secretary of state and was obliged to assume the responsibilities of the department to a great degree under Secretary Sherman. How well he did it is shown in McKinley's words when he said "Day absolutely never made a mistake."

Whether on the bench or in the diplomatic service of his country he always rendered that same high grade service without flourish but always conscientiously and with full regard for his responsibilities.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Speaking of imported prohibition, there is of course the Turkish variety.

There are some powerful lessons even this year in behalf of a safe and sane Fourth.

Knee deep in June has its charm, but it can hardly excel being knee deep in your vacation.

Camping days at Niantic may not be what they were once, but they furnish proof that summer is here.

A dirigible gypsy moth wouldn't be so bad if there was any certainty that the reverse gear would send it back whence it came.

Shelby might gain some publicity if all those babes who may develop pugilistic tendencies in the future are named after it.

The indications are that it will require a good sized ring to hold all hats of the aspirants for the democratic presidential nomination.

To expect to get unity out of such elements as were gathered at that gathering of minority bodies in Chicago was to anticipate the impossible.

There are already several entries in the Edward Bok contest. There is always more than the winner in every race. Each addition adds to the interest.

When not engaged in seeking the elusive sea serpent, those at the shore this summer can busy themselves watching for the blue meteors such as was reported off Savannah.

NEWS TO HIM

"You can't imagine!" cried the enthusiastic girl who had just come in. "I've been to the most wonderful new place to eat—it's absolutely different from anything—"

"There was a time," said the misanthropic man, "when at these words my eye would have sparkled and I would have risen to the bait. I don't know the address of this wonderful place, but I can tell you the process of arriving there. You took a street car over to the north side, or maybe it was the west—and getting off at a street which you had never before had any occasion to visit you hurried through its murky darkness, scared to death for fear you'd be murdered or held up. Never in the world would you have been able to find the place, as the old houses were unlighted and deserted except for the flickering gas jet that shone through the transom on which dimly visible, was the number you sought."

"Why, it was no such thing!" interrupted the enthusiastic girl protestingly.

"Well, well, you surprise me!" the misanthropic man exclaimed. "If this is so, then you must have turned down that alley off from State street next the drug store opposite the clothier's, a spot where nobody on earth would suspect a restaurant to exist, and after skinning the toes of your new patent leathers on the cobblestones you made a right-angled turn, and, lo, here was Pierre's Frenchy little two-story place made out of an old stable, with box trees in the window boxes and ruffled white curtains at the shining windows. It—"

"I don't know how you get this way," the enthusiastic girl said coldly. "There wasn't any alley about it, and—"

"To be sure!" the misanthropic man nodded at her. "How foolish of me! You went down toward South Water street and took a header into that cobwebby basement that looks from the outside like the haunt of the United Murderers' club. They keep it that way to lend atmosphere, and once when a new porter turned the hose on the exterior they nearly went bankrupt."

"Not at all," declared the enthusiastic girl, indignantly. "We—"

"A lot of new places must have started up since I quit trying remarkable and unique restaurants where they served amuyosia," admitted the misanthropic man. "Anyhow, if where you went is still a mystery, what you ate isn't! The owner whetted your appetite by walking around in a dress suit covered with medals and there was the picture of the king of Tureenia on the wall inscribed in appreciation of his bird's-nest soup.

"A waiter who resented you instantly slamed down a platter laden with one slice of red pimento, two limp anchovies, a pale blond slice of tomato, a pickled onion and a prune.

"Then you get a cream soup with no taste until you sprinkled it with the dried American cheese they had grated and called Parmesan. Never did you get soup like that at home, you vowed, and wondered why ordinary cooks could not be progressive and original. After that you received a slice from off the neck of something that had been strangled in a gravy containing a touch, just the touch that counts, mdear, of most everything on the shelf where they keep the spices—mace, curry, garlic, chutney, worcestershire and the bottle of toilet water that nobody liked and they hated to throw out.

"There were two little marbles of potatoes and three small, grimy brussels sprouts swimming in oleomargarine and a loaf of bread a yard long.

"The salad had been left standing on the back of the kitchen range since it was made and the lettuce would have been entirely cooked in another five minutes, but they took it off too soon. The oil in the dressing had been forgotten or evaporated, but there was plenty of pepper. What was on the lettuce was so chopped up that its identity was lost. You had an uneasy feeling that it was several things left over. No dessert—must be original."

"Listen!" cried the enthusiastic girl, desperately. "This new place is on the next corner in the old Smith mansion and it glitters with cleanliness and is just like your own home and every last thing you can get is chicken fricassee with millions of hot biscuits and coffee and real waffles and butter and sirup. That's all."

"Say it again," begged the misanthrope in a faint voice, clutching the table edge. "Just to hear those words is heaven. I didn't know there was anything left in the world like that—is it too late for me to get in there right now this minute."—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Farmers vs. Exploiters.

Mr. Editor: There has been for some time an agitation for equal wages for women for equal work with men. Why not apply the same principle in the case of farmers in comparison with others occupations? A farmer to make farming a success in these days must have as much intelligence and know his trade as well as the average, at least, in other occupations. But because farmers are not combined in a trust called a union, they are at the mercy of buyers of their products, whose profit is in buying low and selling high to gain a large margin. The swarms of middlemen add nothing to the value of the products, but take exorbitant toll both of the producer and the consumer, to both of which it is essential to reduce both the number and the profits of middlemen. If the profits are reduced sufficiently the number will be reduced automatically.

The labor unions also are taking advantage of the necessities of the public, to force high wages, direct transfer from the producer to the consumer through public markets, where both may come together, seems a feasible way to avoid the support and enrichment of the surplus of middlemen, who exploit both classes, and like parasites live upon the life and livelihood of their fellow-men.

The cities are over supplied with grocery stores, fruit stalls, dealers in clothing, and the like. To double the number of such stores, doubles the expense of their support. The United States department of agriculture estimates that 2,000,000 have left the farms for villages and cities, approximately, the past year. Farmers are unable to obtain help and have to curtail production, while the number of consumers is continually and enormously increased—a ruinous policy, which cannot fail to bring the general public to a dangerous pass ere long, and must be reversed, the sooner, the less disastrous. Let the state and national governments work to increase the producer class, of farmers (as well as of manufacturers whom it favors with a tariff). The farmer feeds all other occupations.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Twenty-five years ago the vital problems of international law arising from the war between the United States and Spain were being handled by John W. Griggs, who held the post of attorney-general in President McKinley's cabinet, and who today enters upon his seventy-fifth year. Mr. Griggs had resigned the governorship of New Jersey to go to Washington under McKinley. At that time he had already established his reputation as one of the ablest lawyers in America. This reputation was upheld by the masterly manner in which he disposed of the legal complications arising from the Spanish war and the problems that came with the acquisition by the United States of numerous islands and millions of people as the result of that conflict. Mr. Griggs was the son of a New Jersey farmer and was educated at Lafayette college. He began his public career as a member of the New Jersey assembly. In 1896 he became governor, being the first republican to hold that office in 20 years.

Stories That Recall Others

Hard Hit.

James R. is eight years old and the other day he came home with a box of new marbles, and after hunting up his new ones announced that he had 138.

The next day he came home and shook out the empty bag. His mother saw him and asked: "Where are your marbles?"

"I lost 'em, lost 'em to Gene; he won 'em."

"Why, Jimmie boy, how did you play?" she queried.

"Well, we played for keeps" and he described the way the game was played.

The astonished mother saw and at once proceeded to tell him how he ought to play, and after she had finished he said,

"Why, mother, if I played marbles like that I wouldn't ever find anybody in town to play with except you."

Reuben is "Some" Parrot.

The X family has a parrot that is interesting. Reuben easily fits into the family circle in the evening, injecting remarks occasionally and at times seeming to ponder. He had made life a burden to some of the neighborhood boys whose mothers call them from play to obnoxious tasks. So cleverly does he imitate the voices of the mothers that the little chaps are deceived.

The family noticed Reuben hanging by his feet from the top of his cage and going through other exercises soon after they bought him. "Look, Reuben's doing stunts," Mrs. X said.

"Stunts!" yelled the bird. Ever after that when he begins his performance he prefaces it with the word.

The family had been out one Sunday afternoon and had come back to the house with visitors to show the parrot. When they got ready to leave to escort the visitors out of town Reuben, noticing the preparations, exclaimed, "What, going away again?"

Every time a man makes a fool of himself by acting contrary to his own judgment he gets mad.

Wives of Famous Men

Dorothy Quincy, Wife of John Hancock.

In the year 1775 the famous signature of John Hancock, presiding officer of the congress that framed the Declaration of Independence, was affixed to a marriage license, and his partner in this bargain was Dorothy Quincy.

Dorothy was the youngest of Judge Quincy's large brood. She came from a New England family, and was carefully reared and trained in the arts that a girl of those time was expected to know. Her mother was a gentlewoman of fine family, and Miss Quincy's debut into society was more of an event than was usual at that time. Dorothy had a charming personality and the sort of beauty that made admirers for her among both sexes.

The Quincy home was often the rendezvous for the younger set of Boston's society, and among the more frequent callers was John Hancock, who soon became a suitor for Dorothy's hand. He was rich and cultured young man and had been educated at Harvard. Judge Quincy was willing that he should marry Dorothy.

The judge was a staunch patriot, and in her way Dorothy was just as enthusiastic. In her eyes young Hancock was very much of a hero, which did not tend to make her like him less.

In 1775 Judge Quincy was called away from home. Her mother being dead, Dorothy was left alone, and accepted the invitation to visit Hancock's Aunt Lydia, with whom he was living at Lexington. Through these circumstances Miss Quincy was present at the battle of Lexington. It was very shortly after this historic event that the young people were married. John Adams said of this union: "His choice was natural, a grand-

RESERVE OFFICERS BEGIN TRAINING AT DEVENS

Reserve officers from all over New England are starting their fifteen day intensive training period at Camp Devens this week. Lectures and demonstrations for all arms and branches of the service have been arranged and much of the heavy work falls on the regular army units which are to stage the demonstrations. Every weapon in use by the army as well as all auxiliary equipment will be used in the field under service conditions and it is expected that the officers will be able to acquire at least a working knowledge of the coordinated arms in the limited time allotted. The men are quartered in the spacious hospital area and will be fed at the C. M. T. C. mess hall being handled by Colonel F. W. Boles D. S. C., who is in command the citizens' military training camp for the month of August.

Colonel George H. Cameron, commander of the 76th Division Reserves, as senior officer is coordinating the instruction of the three divisions of reserve officers in camp that there may not be a duplication of effort and working with him are Lt. Colonel F. C. Doyle, commanding the 94th division, made up of Massachusetts officers and Colonel J. B. Kemper, commanding the 97th division reserves from Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. Colonel Cameron's command all hail from Rhode Island and Connecticut. From Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont are 155 officers, from Massachusetts 125, and Rhode Island and Connecticut have mustered 143 officers.

Those will be augmented from time to time by some of the 200 enrolled officers for whom there is no appropriation who have elected to spend part time at the school of instruction at their own expense.

FUNERALS.

Miss Sarah L. Huntington.

Funeral services for Miss Sarah Lanman Huntington were held Monday afternoon from her late home at 197 Broadway and many people were present to pay a final tribute to one whom they had admired during her life. The floral tributes were many and were beautiful. The service was in charge of Rev. Samuel H. Howe, pastor of the Park Congregational church, who in his tribute spoke in part as follows:

"Though not usual to utter our own words on occasions like this, I would claim the liberty of speaking a word in acknowledgment of a personal obligation as the pastor of this parishioner. Communities are given to forgetfulness of the services rendered by others in the older years. But the thoughts of those of us who know, travel back across the silent sea of protracted invalidism to the great years of life and strength and service which lie behind the recent decades. It is a distinct misfortune to be left to the partial verdict of those who have known our weakness and not our strength. A leading character in Dickens' David Copperfield asked of his friend that he would "remember him at his best." The contemporaries of our later age do not know the decades of life and power which have been left behind us. Those of us who know our friend in those long stretches of service and sustained activity—are thinking of her at her best today. It is one thing to hysterically grasp a bit of temporarily sustained Christian service but it is another thing to stay in the vineyard through decade after decade of interested activity. For scores of years Miss Huntington laid her inspiring spirit and her moulding hand on the little children of the parish. She taught generations of children for which work she had aptitude amounting to genius and left impressions for which very many have expressed their deep sense of obligation and their gratitude. In the name of pastor and church I would record our debt of obligation here today. Such work the community may forget but God does not, for such rollers a book of remembrances is kept and they shall be mine saith the Lord in the day when I wake up my jewels."

Burial was in the family plot in the City cemetery on Oak street where a committal service was read.

Arrangements were by Henry Allen & Son Co.

Mrs. Zoel Russell.

Funeral services for Mrs. Zoel Russell were held Monday morning from the late home at 45 Washington street with a large attendance of relatives and friends from New Bedford, Worcester, Willimantic and Natick. During the service Mrs. Frank L. Farrell rendered Abide With Me.

Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Galvin read a committal service at the grave.

The bearers were Roswell Russell, Henry Genereux, Amos Russell, William Genereux, Austin Monroe and George Lambert.

ICE HOUSE BURNED WITH $12,000 LOSS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, R. I., July 10.—The Chesbro ice house at the junction of the Stonington road and Hinckley hill road was totally destroyed by fire early this morning with a loss of about $12,000. The building was filled recently with about 2,000 tons of ice and Mr. Chesbro had spent about $1,200 fixing the house. He had no insurance.

The fire was discovered shortly after midnight by an automobile party which passed by the house. At that time they claim they saw some one disappearing into the dark and found kerosene and rags beside the house. The P. S. Barber Hose Company and the Westerly company responded to the call but could not save the building. The runway and property adjoining was saved, however.

REPORT OF EXPLOSION BEFORE COLCHESTER FIRE

It is reported that a heavy explosion was heard about the time the fire was discovered Sunday morning in the building at Colchester occupied by the Kadesh & Levy clothing store and Charles Lymann barber shop. The building and contents were partially insured. The building was formerly owned by J. N. Adams, who built it.

The poultry department is to be removed from underneath the old grandstand to a place underneath the new stand, where new benches will be put in and windows cut that will give better accommodations for the poultry than this department has ever had before.

REVOLVER AND KNIFE IN NEW LONDON FIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 9.—That murder was not committed here tonight was due more to good luck than anything else, for in a free-for-all fight in the Italian section of Fort Neck, one of the four fighters used a knife and a revolver. But one shot was fired, that bullet missing its mark, but a knife with a blade about seven inches in length was used with telling effect upon two of the combatants, inflicting numerous but not serious wounds. The wielder of the murderous weapons is Agosto Pellygrini, of No. 8 East street and his victims are Leo and Ettio Bartolucci, brothers, of No. 26 East street. Pellygrini is locked up at the police station, charged with assault with intent to kill. The Bartolucci brothers are at their home nursing knife wounds, but the injuries are not of such a serious nature as to prevent their being witnesses against Pellygrini in the police court tomorrow morning.

Leo Bartolucci received cuts about the legs. The former's cuts were such that he had to receive hospital treatment, several stitches being necessary to close the wound of the hand. Pellygrini did not escape injury, either, for in the fight to gain possession of the knife the Bartolucci brothers and Raymond Coleman of No. 92 Trumbull street, who entered the affray, caused the owner of the knife to be cut about the hands and arms.

Pellygrini, according to witnesses, was passing the home of the Bartolucci family when he saw a sister of the brothers and after exchanging a few heated words, Pellygrini is alleged to have called the woman a vile name. As soon as the brothers were informed of what had occurred they rushed to the street and attacked Pellygrini. The latter lost no time in bringing his knife into play and within a few minutes the Bartolucci brothers and Pellygrini were battling, Pellygrini endeavoring to fight his adversaries off and the brothers endeavoring to get possession of the knife. In the large the result of having figured in a crowd that collected was Coleman, who fearing a fatality, entered the battle. Pellygrini fled to his home, pursued by the Bartolucci brothers. Coming from his house, Pellygrini displayed a 32-calibre revolver and taking aim fired into the crowd, the bullet luckily missing the trio of fighters and a score of others that had assembled outside the Pellygrini house.

In the meantime a telephone message had been sent to the police station stating that a terrific battle was being waged and that undoubtedly murder would result. Patrolmen Augustus Ray, Howard Sloan and George Perkins were rushed to East street in an automobile and upon their arrival at the Pellygrini house, the user of the revolver and knife was found, the Bartolucci brothers having departed to secure medical attention. When arrested the revolver was found upon him, the chambers showing that one bullet had been discharged, but five others remained in it. The knife was not found for Pellygrini had thrown it away as he fled to his house.

WILLIMANTIC TO DISCUSS PARKING OF AUTOMOBILES

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, July 9.—The regular monthly meeting of the board of aldermen was held Monday evening, with Mayor Charles A. Gates presiding. The report of the chief of police showed 49 arrests for the month, and the street department showed a total expenditure of $1,544.20. Thirteen applications for sidewalks were read. Notice was given that the public utilities commission will hold a meeting on Friday, July 13, to consider the granting of a jitney route between Willimantic and Eastford. The report of the sewer assessment committee was read and accepted. The mayor and city clerk were authorized to purchase the proper equipment for the city clerk's office, the resolution being presented by Alderman M. E. Sullivan. The water committee recommended that Graystone street be brought to a reasonable grade and water be installed there. It was resolved that Walnut street be extended to Bolivia street and that necessary sewers be installed in those localities. The street committee further reported that Quarry street was in a fair condition considering the traffic over that street and that the streets at Riverside park were suitable as city streets.

The following appointments were unanimously made for supernumerary officers of the police department. Arthur M. Hurley, Frederick B. Laramee, ex-service man, Walter Scott Tripp and Hormisdas Caisse. The above appointees were listed as democrats.

It was announced that a public hearing will be held at 3 o'clock in the evening of July 16 to consider the matter of parking automobiles on the city streets. The police committee was authorized to procure a new motorcycle to be used in addition to those now owned by the city. The resolution was made by Alderman Jackson. Adjournment was at 9.45.

GIVEN $200 FINE ON LIQUOR VIOLATION CHARGE

Edward Bezefski, whose tenement at 70 Spring street, was raided by the police on Saturday night, finding a still and apparatus for moonshine, was before the police court Monday morning and was fined $200 and costs and given a jail sentence of 30 days. He took an appeal through his attorney, R. M. Douglass, and furnished a bond.

At the time of the arrest the man's wife claimed they were making the liquor for alcohol baths for her daughter, which the doctor had ordered.

CAUGHT IN WESTERLY FOR THEFT OF NORWICH TRUCK

Joseph B. McNulty, 21, white, and Lawrence Freeman, 18, colored, both claiming residence in Providence, were locked up at police headquarters here about midnight Monday, charged with theft of the motor truck of Allyn M. Brand, a Norwich painter.

They are also charged with a series of escapades that began with breaking into a store in Manchester, and ended with their arrest in Westerly after stealing the Norwich truck.

From Manchester they got to Willimantic on two bicycles, which they abandoned there, leaving them with a quantity of the loot from the Manchester store tied on the handlebars. They reached Norwich by getting a ride on a truck, according to their story, and here they are charged with stealing the Brand truck, which was parked on a street near the Academy.

Heading for Westerly they ran the truck into a wall on the North Stonington road, near the Mystic road, and from there got a ride into Westerly on an ice cream wagon driven by George Thomas.

The Westerly police were on the lookout for the men after receiving word from the Norwich police and Officer Fred T. Mitchell arrested them as they were coming out of the post office.

Capt. D. J. Twomey sent Officers P. Murphy and P. Driscoll to Westerly in the motor patrol wagon and the two men were brought back here. When searched at Westerly a number of articles such as a cheap watch, cigar and cigarette holders and penknives were found on them, supposed to be part of the loot from the Manchester burglary.

REVOLVER SHOTS AND STONES BETWEEN NEIGHBORS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, July 9.—Carl Skinaneki, a resident of the back road leading from Windham Center, Howard valley, spent Monday night in a cell room of the local police station and will be charged with breach of the peace as result of having figured in a shooting affair in his home. County Investigator William E. Jackson was notified of the affair shortly after 11 o'clock after the police had received a telephone call, saying that several shots had been fired in the vicinity of the Skinaneki home. The man told Investigator Jackson that his next door neighbor, Sylvester Pellechatz, had approached his home under cover of darkness and thrown several big stones at the corner of the house, causing Skinaneki to become frightened and rushed out with a loaded .32 calibre revolver. He said that he stood outside of his door and fired three shots through the air before he received an answer from his neighbor who then disclosed his identity and ran off toward his own home. Past records show that the two families had been at odds for a number of years. It is thought that the trouble had come to a head and the real truth has not been told concerning the shooting Monday night.

Accompanying Mrs. Kimball are Miss Martha Gaskin, superintendent of the Home Memorial hospital, New London, and Miss Frigelia Gaskin, sister of the bride.

BARBERS IN LINE FOR THURSDAY AFTERNOON CLOSING

Master barbers of the city met on Monday evening, with Samuel Therrien, chairman, and voted in favor of closing on Thursday afternoons through the summer while the Norwich stores are following that plan. The Thursday afternoon closing plan will begin this week.

About 20 master barbers attended the meeting and the sentiment was strongly for falling in line with the Thursday afternoon closing plan.

Houghton Does X-Ray Work in Moosup.

Dr. Houghton, the roentgenologist from Backus hospital was called to Moosup Monday by Dr. J. L. Gardner to take some pictures of the injuries of William Fleming, who was badly injured by falling 30 feet while at mason work on the high school building, in process of construction at Central Village. Mr. Houghton's portable X-ray apparatus made this possible where the electric current is available this work can be done. Mr. Fleming is reported as doing nicely notwithstanding his manifold injuries last Thursday.

Given Miscellaneous Shower.

A miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Pauline Culver at the home of her parents on Fowler avenue, Monday night in honor of her approaching marriage to L. E. Dix. About thirty-five of her friends gathered at the house and an enjoyable evening was spent. Miss Culver received many beautiful gifts of cut glass, china and silverware.

Games were played and there were vocal and instrumental numbers following which refreshments were served by Mrs. Charles Culver, assisted by Mrs. George H. Dolan and Mrs. John B. Fowler.

CRUTTENDEN'S $30,000 SUIT FOR MOOSE HILL TREES

A former Norwich resident, Tyler Cruttenden, is plaintiff in one of the most peculiar damage suits ever brought before the superior court of New Haven county. Mr. Cruttenden, now proprietor of Moose Hill inn at Guilford, is plaintiff against State Highway Commissioner Charles J. Bennett, former Deputy Commissioner Richard L. Saunders, both of Hartford, and Highway Superintendent Elmer C. Weldon of New Haven.

The action demands $30,000 damages for the destruction of 13 large trees which were cut down by the state highway department April 17 without the consent of Mr. Cruttenden, upon whose property they were located.

According to the papers on file, the highway department had been making some changes in Guilford in the immediate neighborhood of the inn and wanted the trees cut down. When Mr. Cruttenden refused to permit these old landmarks to be destroyed the highway department sent a crew of 40 men to the inn and they proceeded to raze the trees.

The action is directed against the highway officials personally because the state cannot be made the defendant in a damage suit.

The destruction of these 13 trees calls back memories of early New England when the Moose Hill inn played an important part in the life of the community. To tell the story of the inn and these trees which were so ruthlessly cut down less than three months ago involves the story of the Fowlers, so inextricably are the threads of human life woven into the land records of New England.

Moose Hill, the elevated land dividing Guilford from Branford, is an outdistrict, some three miles from the Guilford green. It was too far removed from the center to interest the early settlers of 1639 or their sons, but the third generation of Guilford men began to reach out in this direction for land for pasturage for their flocks.

Together the Nortons and Fowlers, pushing out from Guilford center, entered into possession of Moose Hill. Abraham Fowler, grandson of the settler, Deacon John Fowler, was the first of that name to have title to land on this elevation. At the death of Abraham, his son, Noah, came into the title of the property. In 1752 he was married to Deborah Pendleton, daughter of Joshua Pendleton, and settled down on Moose Hill, where he prospered quickly.

Col. Noah Fowler as he was known later in life, marched at the head of 43 men when he answered the call of Lexington with the Seventh regiment of the Connecticut line. Many of the souvenirs collected by the colonel during the struggle descended to his sons and are still in the possession of his kin.

There is a tradition that when the Marquis de Lafayette was passing through Guilford on one of his visits to the town, he was entertained by Noah Fowler, Jr., whose deceased father he had doubtless known.

Col. Fowler, patriarch of Moose Hill in 1815 was gathered to his fathers and his third son, Major Miner Fowler was married to Rachel Hall, the daughter of Capt. Stephen Hall of Revolutionary War fame. Six children were born to Major Miner Fowler, two of whom were found to have been deprived of speech and hearing.

Miner Fowler, Jr., a brilliant, dashing youth, one of the four children gifted with normal speech and hearing, brought home a bride to the homestead in 1827. The woman was the widow of Charry Ives Lindsley of Waterbury, young, beautiful, accomplished and with much social prestige. It was then that the Moose Hill homestead became known far and wide for its hospitality, as the new mistress was constantly entertaining weary travellers who passed her door in the stage.

In this way the old homestead has passed down through generation after generation until it was finally adapted to the purpose of a public inn. The old trees added to the prestige of the estate and attracted a number of travelers to put up for the night within its walls. It is for this reason that the damage action has been instituted.

The name of Norton and Fowler have vanished from Moose Hill and the school house of a century and more stands with closed doors and empty seats. The territory over which Col. Noah Fowler reigned supreme has been divided and sub-divided among people of other names. The Moose Hill Inn was the last piece of this large tract to retain the homestead name. As the old times have changed Moose Hill, like many another historic spot with which quaint New England abounds, has changed with them.

MANIAC FIRES SHOTS AT NEW LONDON POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 9.—The police late tonight had a battle with a maniac who attempted to kill Sergeant Hick when the sergeant and three patrolmen attempted to take the maniac into custody.

Shortly before 11 o'clock the police received information that Stanislaw Vernoski of 30 Front street was attempting to kill the occupants of the house. Sergeant Hick and Patrolmen Graham, Ray and Lyden were sent to the house, where the maniac was located in one of the upper rooms. As the officers entered the stairs to the room in which Vernoski was hidden themaniac opened fire with a .32 calibre revolver. One shot just missed Sergeant Hick, who was leading the men up the stairs, and another shot was attempted but the bullet did not explode. The entire upper part of the house was in darkness and the flashlights of the officers were not strong enough to locate the madman. A call was sent for the Konomoc company. With the arrival of that company their flashlights were played on the room of the upper story. By that time the maniac had climbed through the room to the roof through the skylight, where he sat upon the gable of the roof. Ladders were stretched to the roof and a fellow countryman talked to the madman in the Polish language. Finally he persuaded the maniac to descend to the ground, where he was seized and disarmed and made a prisoner at the police station. He will probably be committed to the insane hospital at Preston tomorrow.

NEW CEMENT ROAD AT MAPLEWOOD CEMETERY

One of the substantial and appreciated improvements which never fails to draw favorable comment from the visitors to Maplewood cemetery is the new concrete road that has been laid from the main entrance.

It is a fine stretch of road 16 feet in width, that leads from the main entrance on Salem turnpike straight around the two small circles and around the large circles. From there it extends around to the right past the receiving vault and back onto the main road. The whole was built at a cost of over $8,000. The work was done by Ambrose Sullivan from plans drawn by Engineers Chandler & Palmer.

The last burial at the cemetery made the number of bodies now interred there 1,592.

NORWICH TOWN

The Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church, was devoted chiefly to an inspiring address by Rev. Mr. Olcott of Hartford, a representative of the Anti-Saloon League.

The general theme was along the line of work being accomplished by this league. Rev. Mr. Olcott spoke in an interesting vein encouraging the people to support the work morally as well as financially. This, the speaker, said, is the work of the church and to derive benefits, the nature of the work is such that the necessary support will come from no other class of people.

The second in the series of moving pictures on The Life of Christ was shown at the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening. Miss Margaret Chapin was the leader.

At the church night service Thursday evening last the leader was Dwight W. Avery; this week Thursday evening, it is expected that Deacon Henry T. Frazier will have charge.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor, Rev. James R. Aldrich chose for his Sunday morning text, Matthew 17:1-2. "And after six dayes Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart and was transfigured before them: and His face did shine as the sun, and His raiment was white as the light."

Edward Howe was in charge of the Christian Endeavor service in the evening, considering the subject, What Does Christian Brotherhood Mean? 1 John 3:10-24.

Several improvements are planned for the First Congregational church property. At a recent meeting of the trustees it was voted to construct within a period of two years a cement sidewalk in front of the parsonage on Elm avenue; and at a still further date to have a cement sidewalk constructed in front of the church and the chapel adjoining, on East Town street. This is in support of the many activities being accomplished by the several committees representing the Norwich Rural association, in beautifying Norwich Town.

Other improvements around the church property this year, include a new lighting system installed in the church, and a barberry hedge bordering the land on the westerly and northerly side of the church as far as the old well. A part of this section of land was a recent gift of Miss Mabel Burke in memory of Harriet Park; a valued member of this parish. The trustees also contemplate having a new roadway leading to and past the old well, in order to complete the anticipated improvements. A huge maple on the westerly side of the church facing the street was cut down this spring. It is generally supposed that this tree which was of many years standing, was struck by lightning at the same time the church was, about three years ago, since which it has gradually died.

Miss Annie Smith and Miss Rose Smith have returned to their home in Colchester, after a visit at the home of their brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Peck of Otrobando avenue. They were accompanied by their nephew, Crosby Peck, who is passing several days with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Peck have as their guest for a few days, Mrs. Hattie Rudge, of New Britain, who arrived last Friday.

Miss Mabelle Scott of Town street leaves this (Tuesday) morning to pass a vacation of a few weeks at her former home in Plainville. Miss Scott will be the guest of friends and former neighbors during her absence, which will also include a visit in New Britain.

DIED

CHARLES—In this city, July 10, 1923, Joseph Charles of 5 North High street.

Notice of funeral hereafter.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Announcement was received here Monday that Louis A. Woisard has successfully passed the examinations to practice law in Connecticut and that he will be formally admitted to the Bar of Connecticut at New Haven today (Tuesday).

Mr. Woisard was graduated last month from Georgetown university, at Washington, D. C., where he has been employed while also pursuing his studies as head clerk in the chief inspector's bureau of the postoffice department.

Mr. Woisard is a native of Danielson and studied in its schools, taking up the study of law in the office of the late Judge Oliver E. Getty, after his graduation from Killingly High school. Later he entered the postal service and for several years was a clerk in the Danielson postoffice, before going into the army for service in the World war. Overseas his experience as a postal employe earned him a place in the American army overseas postoffice service. Upon his return to this country he resumed his duties in the Danielson office and later passed a civil service examination that won him a place in the postoffice department at Washington, where he continued his law studies, graduating with honors the past month.

Out of the frozen depths of Labrador, which passed through a terrific winter, there has come from B. Hayland, whose mother is a resident of Attawaugan, a communication that pictures the rigors of winter life in the tiny hamlet of Cartwright, a village of 60 souls, where he has been stationed the past five years at a fur trading post as agent of a New York firm of furiers. The post has been practically cut off from the world since cold weather set in early last fall, and during the winter the weather was of such severity that communication with neighboring settlements, the nearest 40 miles away, was cut off for months. Blizzard succeeded blizzard during the winter and eventually the snow reached a depth of 15 feet on the average and was piled in such greater depths where it had drifted, making travel impossible.

An epidemic attacked the people of the settlement during the winter. Without medical aid and with no nurse available, several died. On account of the impossibility of travel medical aid could not be secured.

Engineers and construction experts will be at Goodyear to go over the dam of the Goodyear Mills, Inc., with a view to determining just what will be required in carrying out the work of rebuilding a section of the dam that is to be replaced. This particular section is a few feet west of the center of the dam, toward the Pomfret side, spanning the Quinebaug river and impounding the water used to develop part of the power used in operating the big plant.

The prospect is that the section will be entirely taken out after a coffer dam has been built and the new foundations put down to bed rock. The dam has been built upwards of half a century and is in need of the attention that is to be given it during the summer. Water in the river was being drawn down Monday so as to permit of an extensive examination as may be possible by the experts who are to come to Goodyear today.

Among other things that motorists traveling through the eastern section of this country would like to see the state highway department do is to remove two narrow bridges on trunk lines running through the town of Plainfield. One of these bridges is on the state highway leading out of Central Village toward Plainfield, the other near Glee Falls, a section of Moosup, on the route to Providence. Neither of these bridges is sufficiently wide to allow two motor vehicles to pass and both are on routes that carry very heavy traffic. They are relics of a bygone day and have no place in the modern system of highway development. They are one-way bridges and as such a menace to traffic, especially to drivers who are not familiar with the territory. Motorists throughout eastern Connecticut would be appreciative of any action that Plainfield would take as a town in requesting the state highway department to replace or widen these bridges, before they are the cause of more accidents than already have occurred at them.

Three state police were added Monday to the personnel at the barracks on North Main street, making a total of six officers now on duty at this station. For months past only three officers have been regularly on duty at the local barracks and they have been kept exceedingly busy covering all this section of the state as well as going on special details to other parts of Connecticut.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram W. Burton, Henry Burton and Misses Margaret and Mildred Burton left Monday on a motor trip to Manchester, N. H., where they will spend a vacation with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Athey of Washington, D. C., have been guests of Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards.

Notices have been received here that Thursday will be Red Clover day at the Connecticut Agricultural college and that all who come to the institution will have an opportunity to get acquainted with the clover family. There will be discussions on clover culture by representatives of the staffs of the college and of the faculties of the agricultural departments of Cornell and Pennsylvania State college.

Herbert Lyon has been spending the past few days on a visit to Niagara Falls and points in New York state.

Mrs. A. E. Williamson will have the members of the Ladies Aid society of the Baptist church at her home for a meeting, Wednesday afternoon.

Today (Tuesday) offers another opportunity for those who wish to fish for bass in Alexanders lake, where sportsmen have taken out some fine fish since the season opened the past week.

District Deputy President, Mrs. H. H. Amburn of Norwich will come here Friday evening to pay an official visit to Dorcas Rebekah Lodge and witness the conferring of a degree upon candidates. This will be the last meeting of the organization until after the hot weather season.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Winslow and Everett O. Winslow of Carolina, R. I., were visitors here on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Winslow.

Killingly Womans club has made an announcement that it is to give a lawn party in the interest of the Nurses Home fund of the Day Kimball hospital at the residence of Timothy E. Hopkins.

State officers were at Moosup Monday afternoon to investigate relative to a collision between motor vehicles traveling along the state highway near the plant of the American Woolen company.

Sixty Killingly citizens make up a list liable for jury service in the superior court for one year from September 1.

This week Thursday brings the first of the summer half-holidays for store forces in Danielson. Stores will close at noon for the day.

At this evening's meeting of the Danielson chamber of commerce plans for the semi-annual half-holiday will be discussed.

Joseph Christini, who has been visiting relatives in Italy for several months, has returned to Danielson.

Mrs. Emma Warren spent Sunday at Oakland Beach, with a party of relatives who are there this month.

PUTNAM

Down at the Elks' fairgrounds a crew was engaged Monday in dismantling the booths and taking down the equipment that was used to such excellent advantage during the past week. The crew worked steadily during Monday and likely will be engaged for several days before the lot is entirely cleared and the material stored for another year. As on other days during the past week, a horde of youngsters was on hand to search the grounds for small pieces of money, lost in the thousands of money changing operations that went on during the fair. The boys have found sufficient money from day to day—sometimes as high as $2.50 in silver—to make their hunt interesting and well worth while.

No figures were available during Monday as to the net profits of the fair, but they are not expected to reach last year's total, for while the gross receipts may be even larger this year than in 1922, the expenses were very materially increased. The Elks hope to net from $6,000 to $8,000.

Up to early Monday afternoon no one had appeared to claim a touring car given away at the fair Saturday evening.

Five men charged with having been intoxicated at the week end made up the grist of business at Monday morning's session of the police court, Judge M. H. Geissler presiding. In one instance the accused also had to face the charge of operating an automobile while he was under the influence of an intoxicant.

Paul H. Hanson, of the town of Thompson, was fined $100 and costs, a total of $114.14, after being found guilty of operating a car while he was in an intoxicated condition. He was taken into custody late Saturday night when his actions drew the attention of the police to his condition. In court he denied having been intoxicated and evidence was introduced tending to establish that he had not been drinking and that his normal manner of walking is such that one might be induced to believe he was staggering a bit. Police officers testified that he had been drinking and that his breath smelled of liquor.

William Marquis, who has been employed in Dayville, was found guilty of having been intoxicated and was sentenced to jail for 30 days and to pay costs amounting to $11.14. Judge Geissler was interested in Marquis' appearance in court because of the fact that he was before that tribunal on December 5 last and was fined $20 and costs of $12.84, for having been intoxicated, and given time to pay and ordered to appear regularly before a probation officer here, something he failed to do. His failure to live up to his bargain with the court resulted in the jail sentence being imposed.

George Chaffee, who also was before the court in May to face an intoxication charge, was sent to jail for 30 days and to pay costs of prosecution when he came into court Monday to face a charge of being drunk again.

Joseph Lambert, a woodchopper whose home is in this city, was fined $20 and costs of $11.14, and Aleide Archambeault was assessed a similar fine and costs for having been intoxicated. They were arrested at the week-end.

Judge Edgar M. Warner and Charles H. Brown, both of this city, and Charles H. Hyde, jury commissioners for Windham county, were in session Monday at the offices of the clerk of the superior court to select jurors who will be liable for service at cases heard in the superior court of the county during the year beginning September 1. The commissioners' selections were made from lists of names submitted by the selectmen of the 15 towns of the county, these lists containing twice the number of names required to fill each towns quota of jurors and allowing of eliminations being made, as has been the custom for many years.

There are strange doings at South Woodstock this summer. A New York morning paper of recent date had printed a "news" story in which the tragic death of a fox, struck in the eye by a golf ball, is set forth in great detail. It appears from this story that wild animals stand about in numbers watching the golf games that New Yorkers are playing on the links up there this season and that on one occasion the past week a doe was so close to a man that flubbed a shot that she scampered for the woods with her fore feet, kangaroo-like, to her ears when she heard what the man said. This more or less interesting tale does not put Putnam so far in the shade, nevertheless, for passengers on a north-bound trolley car saw a pretty doe Monday morning standing at the southerly section of the Putnam Country club links, just south of the city. Possibly it was the same doe that paid the Woodstock course a visit last week and possibly it wants to hear some of the conversations that go on when a Putnam golfer misses a shot—for comparison's sake.

Vincent L. McAvoy and George La Fontaine both of this city were having many pleasant things said to them on Monday for the effort they put forth Saturday night in rescuing Mrs. Mary Wilcox a very stout woman from the third story of the frame structure at 10 Pomfret street, when a fire broke out in the building. With smoke and flames belching forth from the windows of the building these young men raised a ladder and brought Mrs. Wilcox down safely. Being without a home temporarily and suffering somewhat from the shock of her experience she was taken to the Day Kimball hospital.

The fire, which is said to have originated in the room of a boarder, who was absent when the fire broke out, damaged the building somewhat before it was overcome.

Announcement was received Monday morning at the office of Clerk Edgar M. Warner of the superior court, that Louis A. Woisard of Danielson has successfully passed the examinations for admission to the bar of Connecticut. Mr. Woisard will be in New Haven today to be formally admitted to the practice of law in Connecticut.

Members of the state Holstein association are coming into this territory this week to hold a meeting at the Sayles farm. Speakers who are scheduled to appear at the meeting are J. M. Whittlesey, commissioner of domestic animals in Connecticut; Myron L. Peabody, secretary of the United States Holstein-Friesian association; A. R. The flavor's great—

Monday afternoon an alarm of fire was rung in from box 75, corner of Dayton and Pierce street for a blaze in the barn of Fred R. Cottrell, 176 High street. All three pieces of fire apparatus responded, but the R. I. Ones' wagon passed through Dixon House square first as it was at the R. I. garage at the time of the alarm for a change of tire. One side of the barn was destroyed before the blaze could be extinguished by the firemen. The remainder of the structure was saved by the zinc lining of a large ice box which separated one side of the barn and the part of the building used as a meat market. Considerable delay was caused the hook and ladder truck by a traffic jam on High street. An electric car proceeded up the street and a way was made for the firemen. The fire loss was not great. The recall sounded at 4.30.

Henry L. Burdick urged Watch Hill residents to attend an open hearing about the middle of July to consider Westerly roads, to be held by the Westerly town council.

Sneak thieves entered the barber shop of Frank LaPier over the shoe repairing shop of Albert Sylvia on West Broad street late Friday night or early Saturday morning and made away with $13 in money. Entrance was effected from the rear where the thieves apparently piled up large packing cases which enabled them to gain the roof of the single story ell at the rear of the building. Crossing the roof a rear window was raised to gain entrance, as when Frank Cassi, a barber in Mr. LaPier's employ, opened the shop in the morning, two windows were found open where both had been closed the night before. The cash register which had been left open was rifled of $4 and from a punch board a $5 and two $2 bills were taken. It was not until Saturday night that the break was reported to Patrolman Charles Connors and so some time was lost for a follow-up. On these same premises a year ago $1,400 worth of shoes were taken from the rear of the store on the first floor.

From the garage of M. Thorpe, occupying the cottage of Mrs. Eugene Stillman at Pleasant View, Saturday night, there was reported the theft of a new Goodyear cord tire 33x5 valued at $90. The theft was reported to the Westerly police Sunday night. It is thought by some that the theft may be the work of gypsies who have been near Pleasant View.

Selveral complaints have been made Westerly police relative to sums of money taken by gypsies. One individual at the beach was the loser of a $20 bill, which was not missed until after the gypsy had gone. Some time later the gypsies were overtaken and the money was restored.

James King of John street, arrested at Weekapaug Sunday by Special Officer Hamilton, was found guilty before Judge Turano in the district court and fined $6.30.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

HELPING AN INJURED BUNNY.

One morning as Little Jack Rabbit tramped along through the Ragged Rabbit Giant's forest, he came across a wounded white bunny.

"Ah, me!" whispered the little white bunny, "I shall soon die so leave me here." But instead Little Jack Rabbit lifted him up and carried him to a tiny hut in the wood close by.

The little house was empty and after lighting a fire and making things comfortable, the little bunny boy went out to look for something to eat, for there was nothing in the cupboard, not even a crumb.

And while he stood there, a fairy dressed in green and white stepped out from behind a fern and asked:

"What do you seek?"

Little Jack Rabbit told her how he had carried the little white bunny into the hut and had made a fire, but could find nothing to eat. "And if I can find nothing for the weary bunney, he will surely starve," added little bunny boy with a tear in his eye.

"You are indeed a good little rabbit," said the fairy, waving her wand three times and a half. All of a sudden, a small table covered with a white cloth came in through the door and settled down in the middle of the room.

"Now you have plenty," laughed the fairy, "and when you have finished, wash the dishes and place them in the cupboard and mind you wash off the table and set it against the wall. When you are again hungry, place the table in the middle of the room, cover it with the white cloth and after you have set the dishes upon it, you must say:

"Hungry, hungry, here I stand,
Knife and fork in either hand.
Fill the empty plate I pray,
Else so hungry, I shall stay," and then the fairy disappeared.

"Oh dear me! Wasn't there a wonderful feast on the table. Why there were seven carrot candles for the little wounded bunny and Little Jack Rabbit marveled how the fairy knew that this was just the kind of food for little wounded bunnies.

After seven days, the little white bunny was well enough to hop off to his home but before he went he gave Little Jack Rabbit a magic flaming feather to wear in his little khaki cap. And in the next story I'll tell you some more about Little Jack Rabbit in the Ragged Bunny Giant's Forest.

Mrs. Page had been in ill health a long time. Besides her son, Harry J. Page, Mrs. Page is survived by another daughter. Mrs. Page was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Mr. Carr is survived by his widow, two sons and a sister, the last named being Mrs. Elisabeth Cruise, matron at the municipal building. Mr. Carr was a native of England, but had resided in New London many years.

Miss Julia Carey, 83 of No. 40 Montauk avenue, died at Lawrence hospital Sunday, death resulting from infirmities caused by age. Miss Carey is survived by three nieces, Mrs. Ellen Moriarty of Montauk avenue, Mrs. Patrick Maloney, and Mrs. Henry Walton, both of Westerly.

Miss Mabel Lyett of Hamilton street, Mrs. Henry McIntosh of Montauk avenue, Mrs. John Anderson and infant of Lincoln avenue, Mrs. Thomas F. Martin and infant daughter of Waterford, Mrs. Nino Longo of Bank street, Miss Ruby Wilkinson of Bradford, R. I.; Mrs. John McDonald of Bank street and Mrs. Victor Svenberg and infant daughter of Evergreen avenue, were patients discharged today at Lawrence hospital.

Bertha Hohowska has sold a house and lot on Ashcraft road to Wadyslaw Cepleniski.

Archibald S. McFarlane has sold several building lots on Lester street to Thomas T. Wetmore and Owen C. Wells.

The new pier at Ocean Beach will probably be ready soon for the use of pleasure seekers there, for it is rapidly nearing completion. All that remains to finish the structure is the T at the end of the pier where large and small boats can land, and it is probable that its completion will be made before the end of the week, after which the roof will be constructed. It is believed that the entire pier will be put into use before the end of the present month. Throughout yesterday a police officer was stationed on the pier and prevented pedestrians as well as operators of boats from using it.

Burglars gained entrance to the clothing store of William Kaplan, No. 379 Main street, obtaining a quantity of wearing apparel, but no cash, although a search for money was made. Entrance to the store was gained by smashing one of the side windows. Occupants of the building heard the crashing of glass and claimed that they observed two men running from the store about two o'clock, but the police were not notified of the break until this forenoon when Kaplan opened the place for business. The thief obtained twelve silk shirts and four pieces of men's underwear.

River thieves operated in the harbor again Sunday, for the sloop Jack o' Lantern, upon which two young men, G. J. Bradish of Edgartown, Mass., and Charles Heaton of Greenwich, Conn., are cruising about the New England shore, was boarded and ransacked. The plunder obtained comprised two suit cases in which were a tuxedo suit, blue suit, light gray suit, gray overcoat, tuxedo shirt, a dozen plain shirts, two pairs low shoes and a gold watch and chain. Bradish and Heaton left the sloop in the afternoon and visited acquaintances ashore. While they absented themselves from the craft the thieves boarded the sloop, forced an entrance to the cabin and made away with the plunder. The theft was reported to the police.

In an effort to bring the number of automobile accidents down to a minimum, state police officers were on duty throughout Sunday afternoon and evening on all trunk line roads leading into New London. Practically every automobile to pass over the four big avenues entering the city was stopped, the operator's license inspected, the registration examined and the number of occupants of the machine noted, as well as the owner of each car. Because of the numerous accidents occurring daily in practically every city of prominence in Connecticut, the state police officers have been instructed to adopt every possible precautionary measure so as to detect any violation of the operation of the cars that might bring about an accident.

Salvatore Silva, 19, was arrested by Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond this afternoon, charged with reckless driving of an automobile.

Miss Della Rademacher, bookkeeper in the employ of Dabell & Crandall, and residing at No. 9 Prospect street, this afternoon was ordered by Patrolman David Nagle to appear in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with violation of the city parking ordinance prohibiting the parking of automobiles on Green street, a one-way thoroughfare, longer than 45 minutes.

An automobile owned and operated by E. E. Chapman of No. 23 Latham street, Groton, was struck by a Connecticut company trolley car on Bank street this afternoon, sustaining the brunt of the damage.

Angelo Criscone of Bridgeport was fined $25 and costs, amounting to $37.52, by Judge Cornelius C. Costello in the Groton town court this morning for the reckless driving of an automobile between Mystic and New London Sunday. Criscone offered no defense other than to state that he was not guilty of the charge alleged. Criscone was arrested upon complaint of B. B. Fernald of Boston, who alleged that while the latter was driving his automobile from Watch Hill to the Hotel Griswold at Eastern Point, Criscone's car passed him, and in doing so cut across Fernald's machine so abruptly that Fernald's car left the side of the highway and was forced upon soft land. Fernald overtook Criscone a few miles from where the former had been crowded off the highway and Criscone again caused his machine to crowd Fernald so dangerously that Fernald was compelled a second time to guide his car off to one side of the road. When Groton was reached Fernald lodged complaint of Criscone and the latter's arrest followed. Criscone could not pay his fine and costs and was committed to the county jail here.

Earl M. Hayes of Bridgeport and H. B. Marmore, guests at the Hotel Griswold, were ordered to appear in the Groton court Monday morning by Chief of Police McCarthy and answer a charge of reckless driving Sunday. Each furnished a bond of $25 for court appearance and each forfeited it, as neither put in an appearance before court adjourned.

Abraham Zazlow of New London was fined $2 and costs for intoxication. Zazlow drove his horse to the borough a few days ago and the driver was so drunk that the animal could keep to the right side of the highway better without being guided by Zazlow. Zazlow was ordered to present himself for trial this forenoon. This he did and had to pay the borough treasury about $15.

Mrs. Augusta Eshenfelder is confined to her home on Montauk avenue as a result of slipping on the linoleum of her cottage at Groton Long Point Sunday. In falling, Mrs. Eshenfelder landed in such a manner as to produce torn ligaments of her ankle, with a possible fracture.

Harry Clement Brogan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Brogan of Groton, has been informed of his having been successful in his recent bar examination. Other successful candidates to practice law were Henry Harris and Russell Corcoran of New London.

Announcement is made of the marriage in New York June 27th of George W. Ryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Ryan of Blackhall street, and Miss Mary Frances Kane of New York. The nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Riley at St. Raphael's church. Mr. Ryan moved to New York about a year ago. He is a member of the Allen Hook and Ladder company and was its assistant foreman several years. Mr. and Mrs. Ryan will reside in Springfield, Mass.

Rev. Alfred Poole Grint, formerly rector of St. James' Episcopal church here, now located at Warwick Neck, R. I., occupied the pulpit at Pequot chapel Sunday morning. Rev. Mr. Grint and Mrs. Grint were the guests of Mrs. McCrosky Butt of New York at Mrs. Butt's summer home during their brief stay in New London.

Mrs. Robert McKim and daughter, Miss Caroline, of New York, have arrived at their summer residence at the Pequot.

Rev. Edward M. Chapman of Ocean avenue and his daughter, Miss Lucia Chapman, have returned home after several weeks' Hampden trip.

Miss Katherine Troland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Troland, has returned home, having been engaged several months as a teacher in the Hawaiian Islands. Miss Troland will return to the islands in the fall.

Miss Elizabeth Livingston of Sherman, Tex., has completed a several weeks' visit with Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Ganey and has gone to New York to remain several weeks before returning to Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Plant, who have been at their summer home at Eastern Point several weeks, will sail from New York tomorrow for Cowes, England, to remain the balance of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Sherman celebrated the 50th Anniversary of their wedding at their home Saturday. The event was enjoyed by about 30 relatives and intimate acquaintances, some of the relatives representing four generations of the family.

George P. Gessard of Hagerstown, Md., and Miss Mary Helen Connolly, daughter of Mrs. Susan Connolly of No. 23 Howard street, were married at Hagerstown June 26th by Rev. C. C. Kerr, rector of St. Mary's church. The best man was Eugene J. Connolly, brother of the groom, now located at Norfolk, Va., where he is attached to the U. S. marine hospital. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ethel E. Connolly. Mr. and Mrs. Gessard will take up their residence at Hagerstown.

Mrs. Walter Chappell and infant of Pequot avenue, Miss Sophie Pecarlic, Michael Pecarlic, sister and brother, of Montville, Joseph Sousa of Denison avenue and Reginald Tuthill of Greenport, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were able to return to their respective homes today.

An automobile owned by John Baratz of No. 26 Connecticut avenue and operated by Mrs. Baratz, struck and knocked down Dell Phillips of No. 12 Shaw street, on Bank street, late this afternoon. Phillips sustained numerous bruises. The accident occurred when Phillips attempted to cross the street and at a time when traffic was heavy.

The automobile owned by C. D. Chipman of 282 Williams street, which was stolen while Mr. Chipman attended a dance at Pine Grove Saturday night, was recovered Sunday morning when it was found abandoned near Black Point. It is believed that a young man who attended the Pine Grove dance took possession of the automobile as a means of getting back to his home.

L. Lester Watrous of the Savings Bank of New London, residing at 166 Ocean avenue, complained to the police this evening that two sons of Dr. Ernest Abernethy of 178 Ocean avenue were firing a .22 calibre rifle at his house, Patrolman James McKenna, who was assigned to the complaint, determined that the boys had not only shot at the house but two of the bullets had passed through windows and had lodged in the woodwork of the interior of one of the rooms. The mother of the youths caused the rifles to be taken from the boys and locked in a garage.

The city council held a meeting this evening of about 20 minutes' duration, during which time the contract for erecting a roof over the new pier constructed at Ocean Beach was awarded to Frank Lanphere at a cost of $1,693, the lowest bid. The Connecticut company, the same that is operating the street railway in New London, gave notice of its purpose to construct an additional track on lower Boulevard from Glenwood avenue to Pequot avenue. T rails are to be laid and ties of dimensions 6x8 inches, the rails to be of 80 feet length and to weigh 60 pounds to the yard. Engelbert J. Sauter protested against any violation of the anti-gambling laws and called attention to the proposed bazaar of Home Memorial hospital in particular. He said he regretted that institutions of the city were countenancing and abetting such violations. He appealed to the city manager, the council, the prosecutor and to everyone else he thought might be instrumental in the enforcement of the laws to prevent the violation. Councilor Scott moved to receive the protest for record, but Councilor Fox wanted it given a scantier reception than that. He said the proposed bazaar was for the purpose of raising money to relieve distress among the people and to assist those who could not afford to pay for the services they would receive at a hospital. He wanted the bazaar not to be interfered with even though there might be a technical violation of the law. The protest got no further.

Dr. John N. Dimon petitioned for a second time for repairs to the sidewalk in front of the Quinn house at 197 Montauk avenue. He said he wanted to sell the property and he desired that the sidewalk should be put in repair, calling attention to the fact that he put the walk in place some 20 years ago at his own expense and said that now that the city proposed to go 50-50 with the owners of real estate for sidewalk repairs he wanted to spend his part of the money necessary to put the walk in repair.

Relieved of Nervousness and Other Distressing Ailments by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brooklyn, N. Y. — "I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound four years ago, and am taking it now for the Change of Life and other troubles and I receive great benefit from it. I am willing to let you use my letter as a testimonial because it is the truth. I found your booklet in my letter box and read it carefully, and that is how I came to take the Vegetable Compound myself. It has given me quiet nerves so that I sleep all night, and a better appetite. I have recommended it already to all my friends and relatives." — Mrs. ENGELMANN, 2088 Pulpetto St., Ridgewood, Brooklyn, N. Y.

For the woman suffering from nervous troubles causing sleeplessness, headache, hysteria, she failed, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine. For the woman of middle age who is passing through the trials of that period, it can be depended upon to relieve the troubles common at that time.

You should give it a fair trial.

POETRY

Mia Loraine.

Here in a cove I stand
Where the water lies deep and green,
Heart of my heart, be still,
Soul of my soul, serene.

Here will I rest forever,
Lazing with dream fleet days
And countless suns may wither
Ere ever I cave to rest.

And all that I came through,
All that I once found true,
Shall drop away in the spread
To peace beyond despair.

My ears that have drunk the blare
Of strife and passion and pain,
Shall banish all sounds save only
The measured throb of the tide.

My eyes that have feasted, blinded
On many faces and eyes,
Shall quiet themselves with unsealed
Of melting waters and skies.

My soul that was torn with longing
Shall rest where the white foam gleaming
Far out on the krar rocks lying
My soul shall have rest in dreams.

But my love—oh, what of my love?
To him shall my eyes be blind
Though I lie for a million suns,
Wrapt close in the streaming wind.

To him shall my ears be deaf,
Though the thundering wash of the sea
Drown all from the world at last
Save only itself and me?

Oh, the wind may shift and the tide,
But I shall be I—still I—
A flame to the flame of my love
Between the sea and the sky!
—Winifred Lockhart Willis, in New York Herald.

THE CHINA CLIPPER.

A ghost ship drives on the shunted trails;
Sing Johnny-O and let her go!
She's a lady ship by the way she sails;
Sing Johnny off to China.

The trade wind strums on the weather shrouds,
The white seas race astern;
She'll make Foochow like a drift of clouds
When Winter's on the turn.

By the London docks from Java Head,
Full half the world away,
She'll back her yards when the dawn is red,
Two hundred miles a day.

The scent of heathen merchandise,
The breath of the new Spring tea,
Ivory and silk and jade and rice
Are a perfumed memory.

A dream ship drives through the misty seas;
Sing Johnny don't forget her!
She's a lady, sir, and, if you please,
Sing Johnny off to China,
Sing Johnny-O and let her go!
Sing Johnny back from China!
—Aaron Davis, in Adventure Magazine.

MONDAY'S STOCK MARKET.

New York, July 10.—The upward movement of stock prices, which has been in progress for three days, came to a halt late today when the market was unable to absorb, except at concessions, the profit-taking offerings of traders who had bought stocks for a turn. The selling was influenced to some extent by higher call money rates. Speculative uncertainty over the ultimate trend of the market was reflected in the comparatively light volume of trading.

Week-end developments, which included the announcement that an accord had been reached between allied and Turkish representatives at Lausanne, were regarded as favorable and probably accounted for the firm tone at the opening. Higher prices for copper and zinc also had a favorable effect on sentiment, as did the publication of the combined May income reports of class one railroads showing a return of 6.33 per cent. on tentative property valuation.

One of the most interesting features of the day was the sharp rally in Delaware & Hudson upon the announcement by Vice President Williams that no change in the $9 dividend rate was contemplated. The stock which had sold as low as 95 jumped to 100 1-2 and then fell back to 100 1-4, where it was up 4 1-4 on the day. One sale of Jersey Central was made 9 3-4 points above the previous transaction.

During the morning Wall Street was flooded with rumors that some highly favorable development was impending in the foreign situation. European cable dispatches are being eagerly scanned at present because it is generally recognized that an agreement on the reparations situation would give a tremendous impetus to American export business with resultantly higher commodity and security prices.

Standard industrial stocks showed few important changes on the day. United States Steel, Baldwin, Studebaker and American Woolen yielded fractionally while American Can, Anaconda and American Smelting registered nominal gains.

Call money opened at 5 per cent., advanced to 5 1-2 and hence to 6. The relatively high rate was attributed to the withdrawal of funds in connection with some Canadian financing. The time money market was dull with brokers bidding 5 per cent. and bankers asking 5 1-4.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was the establishment of a new low of .0003 5-8 cents by German marks, coincident with the announcement of a weekly increase of more than four trillion marks, or approximately one-third of the previous week's total circulation. Other exchanges held steady, demand sterling being quoted at $4.56 1-4 and French francs around 5.85 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, July 9.—Bond prices continued to point upward in today's quiet trading with speculative buying rather than investment demand furnishing the impetus for the advance. While there were heavy spots in all groups of bonds, gains largely exceeded the losses at the close.

Foreign issues moved in an erratic manner. Most of the French and Central European liens improved slightly while the Scandinavian issues lost ground. Dominion of Canada 5 1-2s of 1929 broke 1 1-4 points and Mexican 4s, 1 3-4. U. S. government bonds were either unchanged or slightly higher.

WHEAT.

Chicago, July 9.—Wheat averaged lower in price today chiefly as a result of the weather for the harvest and because of enlarged receipts from the new crop. The government report as to all grain was about as expected. Wheat closed unsettled at a range which from 1-2c net decline extended to 1-4c advance, with July and September 103 1-2 to 103 5-8 and December 1.06 1-8. Corn finished 1-2c to 3 3-8c up, oats at 1-8c to 5-8s gain, and provisions unchanged to 5c down.

LINDEN PARKWAY CELEBRATION HAD UNEXPECTED PEP

It has just leaked out that one of the families up in Linden Parkway, that exclusive residential location, one of the prettiest in the city of Norwich, had more of a celebration on the Fourth of July than planned.

In the afternoon, between showers, they had a display of Japanese daylight fireworks which caused great hilarity among the children. The bombs were fired from a small mortar and when they exploded about a hundred feet up in the air all sorts of curious things made of paper came out of them and sailed around in a very amusing way. There were dogs, cats, monkeys, fishes, witches, clowns and what not. As they gradually settled down to earth the children made a grand rush to get them. After this was over and the people retired to the front veranda where they were taking life easy, they heard a series of explosions which seemed to come from the cellar. They investigated and the sight which met their gaze was embarrassing. The cellar was damp with beer and the floor was covered in broken glass. This did not work at all, because the householder had put in his winter supply of coal and the cellar had received its usual clean-up.

The only explanation they could arrive at was that when the good wife put up her usual supply of hop beer she must have got in more than the required per cent., because the hops hopped and the yeast "rose." It is sup-

This Makes the Curl Stay in Your Hair

The silmerine method is unusually popular just now, according to the druggists. This is largely due to the warm weather and because women are now spending so much time out of doors. This simple method not only produces the loveliest, natural looking curls and waves, but keeps the hair in curl no matter how hot or how moist the day, nor how hard the wind blows. All one need do is to wet a clean tooth brush with liquid silmerine, draw this through the hair before doing it up, and the hair will dry in just the sweetest waves and crinkles. This also keeps the hair beautifully soft, silky, lustrous. A few ounces of liquid silmerine will last for months.

Embarrassing Hairs Can be Quickly Removed

(Beauty Culture)

Hairs can be easily banished from the under-arms, neck and face by this quick, painless method: Mix into a stiff paste some powdered delatone and water, spread on hairy surface and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be free from hair or blemish. Excepting in very stubborn growths, one application is sufficient. To avoid disappointment, buy the delatone in an original package and mix fresh.

NEW ADVERTISING MAN FOR PLAUT-CADDEN CO.

Jack C. Murray, a new, young face in Norwich and New London business circles, makes his debut as advertising man for the Plaut-Cadden company. Until recently he was connected with Danielson & Son, one of the most respected and successful advertising agencies of New England. Mr. Murray succeeds Mr. MacHale who left for the west coast where he is to enter business with a brother in southern California.

JACK C. MURRAY.

Although of modest appearance and conduct, Mr. Murray's war record is one which justifies admiration. After graduating from the university in 1917 Mr. Murray enlisted with a school pal as a buck private and served overseas. He returned, wearing the American Distinguished Service Cross and the honorable shoulder bars of a captain, but with a sad message for the mother of his friend who was killed at his side during the battle at Fismes, France.

In a statement by Mr. Murray he expressed himself as a decided disciple of straightforward, clean cut advertising and determined to add to the already enviable reputation of Plaut-Cadden for honest merchandising.

CAUGHT IN SPRINGFIELD WITH BORROWED AUTO PLATES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Springfield, July 9.—Frank Guancione, aged 25 years, who lives in Willimantic, Conn., came to grief on Saturday with a set of borrowed registration plates on his recently purchased automobile. While he was driving in Main street near Bridge, it was noticed by Patrolman Thomas O'Connor, who was the traffic officer at that point, that Guancione did not have good control over his car and that he barely avoided hitting another machine which was then passing the corner.

O'Connor stopped him and asked to see his registration and license. Guancione produced a license to operate motor vehicles, but was forced to admit that the registration plates had been borrowed from a friend in Boston. He told the police after he had been taken to headquarters that he had been intending to get plates of his own, but had not had the time or money. The police decided to let him go to appear in court Monday, but thought it best to keep the unregistered car.

ENDORSES FRESH VEGETABLES FOR THEIR FOOD VALUE

The Norwich Market Gardeners Association endorses a recent article appearing in a trade paper on the value of vegetable foods in the diet.

In part the article follows as written by Frank Shutt, Dominion of Canada chemist:

As city people we might keep in better health and live more cheaply if we were to eat less meat and concentrated foods and use more vegetables and fruits. And this advice might be especially emphasized for the summer diet, when there is not the same call from the system for stronger foods.

Fresh vegetables are wholesome, palatable and productive of good health. They are aids to digestion, and afford that bulk or volume to the food necessary for the distension of the alimentary tract. Many vegetables contain salts which are greatly laxative, relieving constipation, that scourge that is the forerunner of so many dangerous and not infrequently fatal diseases. And again, many vegetables especially those used in salads have a special value in cooling the blood and therefore are most wholesome, especially in the season.

Fresh vegetables are vastly superior to those that are wilted from keeping a day or two, in succulency, crispness and palatability. To be enjoyed at their best, vegetables must be eaten strictly fresh.

CAN'T CURB SHIP PASSENGERS DEFYING THE VOLSTEAD ACT

Shipping Board Has No Authority to Interfere With Consumption of Private Liquor Stocks by Passengers on Board Government Owned Ships—Indicated Steps Will be Taken to Obtain Positive Ruling on Question From the Department of Justice—As Situation Now Stands Ship Passenger is Entirely Within His Rights When He Serves Cocktails to His Companions in Dining Saloon While Ship is Outside Three Mile Limit.

Washington, July 10—Reports of consumption of private liquor stocks by passengers on board government-owned ships have been brought before the shipping board the question of its jurisdiction in the matter with the resulting decision that its authority, as exercised through the ship's captain, does not run to the extent which would permit any interference with the passengers' actions.

It was indicated, however, that this decision might only be temporary and that steps would be taken to obtain a positive ruling on the question, probably from the department of justice.

As the situation now stands the board is convinced that a passenger on the Leviathan, for instance, is entirely within his rights when he produces the makings of a cocktail at his table in the dining saloon and acts as bar tender to his companions. The wide police powers given the commander of a ship under common law and international customs, it was declared by officials of the board, were materially curtailed by the LaFollette act as they affected the crew, and almost obliterated so far as they concerned passengers beyond the point where the safety of ship and cargo is involved.

Regulations, promulgated by Chairman Lasker last October, requiring "dry operation" of government passenger and cargo ships, will be enforced as heretofore, it was announced officially, but spokesmen for the board were emphatic in their opinion that at present nothing could be done to curb the passengers defying the Volstead act.

Inquiry among experts in maritime law did not bring unanimous support of the board's position. Long established recognition of captain's responsibilities, according to some authorities, as given him practically limitless authority in suppression of what he may consider illegal acts by any persons on board his ship. In the navy department the common law rule of a skipper's authority has always held and the only modifications made since the beginning of the navy have been in the form of restriction of punishments which he may inflict.

The decision of the board was not called forth by any recent incident, it was declared today, attention being called to the action which had been taken on the Levinthan's trial trip. Cards were posted in each state room requesting the voluntary cooperation of passengers to prevent violation of the liquor statutes.

It was understood that a similar request was carried in each state room on the eastward trip which the Leviathan has just completed.

Under another decision dealing with ship liquor, announced today by Commissioner Blair of the internal revenue bureau, forfeiture proceedings will be undertaken by the department of justice against contraband liquor. Such suits, however, would not be directed at ships or commanders bringing liquors into American territorial waters.

Commissioner Blair's order will allow customs agents to continue their work of search and seizure but all legal questions will be handled by the attorney general.

Instructions were sent to federal prohibition directors and other enforcement officers by Commissioner Haynes of the prohibition unit today advising them that the liquors in their custody should be returned to the collector of customs at the port in which they were seized. The previous procedure had been to turn over seized liquors to state prohibition directors for disposition under the Volstead act, but the treasury decided use of the smuggling provisions in the tariff law would be more effective.

POSSIBLE ACTION AGAINST ALLEGED DESERTING SEAMEN

London, July 10.—Alluding to possible action by the British authorities against alleged deserting British seamen on the Leviathan, the Daily Mail points out that the Leviathan is technically American territory and warrants for arrest could not be served aboard, and the police therefore must wait until the men they want come ashore. Some of these men, however intend to remain aboard, but others have decided to land and risk what may happen.

The Mail ascribes the following to a member of the crew, who admitted that he was one of those whom the police want: "I do not care very much if they arrest me. This ship has been a great disappointment to us; our pay is only one pound a month above the British rates, while the British liners in which I have served had crew space which was like first class cabins as compared with what we get on this ship.

"About 90 per cent. of the crew are British, and I think pretty well all of them will leave the ship when she arrives again at New York."

She asserted she had slept there since Sunday night, refusing to change her story even when she was told search parties had crossed and recrossed the roof looking for her. The milk, she said, was her only food.

AMERICA HEAVILY LOADED WITH BOGUS ANTIQUES

Paris, July 10—(By the A. P.)—America is heavily loaded with bogus "antiques" and the Louvre in Paris and Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York have been buying spurious pieces for years, Jean Vigouroux told the court today at the opening of his trial on charges fo diverting funds and art treasures, filed by the Parisian antiquarian George Joseph Demotte, whose New York branch was former managed by Vigouroux.

The specific charges against Vigouroux are based on the alleged diversion of $7,000 of the branch's funds, and the disappearance of Persian manuscripts valued at 1,000,000 francs, later recovered by M. Demotte. Vigburoux was arrested when he returned to France, as he claimed to obtain justice.

Vigouroux denied any wrongdoing, offered explanations of the alleged irregularities, and turned the trial into a public denunciation of Demotte as "the world's greatest antique faker." His diatribes at times became so violent that the presiding judge in the twelfth correctional court, where the trial is being held, threatened to have him removed from the room if he did not restrain himself.

"For twenty years the Louvre Museum has been buying bogus antiques," Vigouroux testified. He declared that the director of the Metropolitan Museum in New York had bought 3,000,000 francs' worth of spurious art objects.

Vigouroux cited a Ceramic piece, reputed to be Lucca Della Robbia, famous Florentine, which he said to an official of the Metropolitan museum for $3,000, but which he declared in court was "not worth a single sou."

TWO GYPSIES HELD ON ABDUCTION CHARGES

Duxbury, Mass., July 10—Although Dr. Harry Tolman, Jr., had indicated earlier in the day that he did not care to prosecute gypsies alleged to have been concerned in the disappearance of his daughter Leslie from this town last Friday, two of their number were arrested today, Valentine Stanley, who said last night that he and Miss Tolman had intended to get married, surrendered to the police at Fitchburg and Thomas Young was taken into custody at Cohasse. Both at the instance of chief of police Pierce of Duxbury. They will be given a hearing in the district court at Plymouth tomorrow on charges of abduction.

Dr. Tolman said that his daughter had gone to stay with relatives at some distance from his home in Salem for a rest. He said he believed that she was in no way ill-treated while with the gypsy party in their journeyings from Duxbury to East Rindge, N. H., and that she went of her own accord.

PRESIDENTIAL PARTY LANDS AT JUNEAU

Juneau, Alaska, July 10.—(By the A. P.)—Greeted by the presidential salute of 21 guns from Chilkoot barracks, President Harding, Mrs. Harding and members of their party landed here today to spend the day as guests of Governor Scott C. Bone and territorial and city officials. The ideal weather which had attended the Alaskan trip gave way to rain and fog here, but the townspeople, paying no attention, gathered on the wharf in the business section to give the party a hearty welcome.

The party was driven through the town to the governor's mansion, escorted by troops from Chilkoot barracks, a company of marines from the Henderson and members of the veterans of the World war. A large crowd gathered about the mansion, and, despite the rain, cheered loudly when the president and Governor Bone appeared.

Governor Bone introduced the president who began his address by declaring "there must be a lot of Baptists in Juneau, at any rate people who turn out so generously like this on a rainy day ought to have some measures of return.

"We are greatly impressed by the scenery of Alaska during this first part of our trip. Sturdy, magnetic, stalwart and immovable are truly the only words which describe this wonderland of ours. I am proud of you citizens of the United States. It is good to know of Alaska and it is our purpose to know you better and have you know our government better."

The president then referred to the children who played a prominent part in the greeting extended him and said:

"Although children cannot choose where they are born, yet if they could choose, I think they would select the west."

He was greeted with applause when he declared that he knew the government would "help those who are now children more than it has helped their parents."

At the conclusion of the president's address, Secretaries Hoover, Wallace and Work, and Speaker Gillette of the house spoke briefly, and then the president and Mrs. Harding held a public reception, shaking hands with the hundreds who gathered about them. Children, miners and Indians formed a considerable part of the group.

HAS FILED SUIT TO RESTRAIN PROHIB. DIRECTOR

New York, July 10—Following the example set recently by physicians who contested government authority to say how much liquor they might prescribe for a patient, Alexander Savitch, a druggist, today filed to suit to restrain Palmer Canfield, state prohibition director, from interfering with a drug stock of alcohol kept for other than beverage use.

Savitch, who has a drug store in the East Side, contends that the 18th amendment does not give the government the right to interfere with alcohol intended for the manufacture of standard remedies, or for the compounding of doctors' prescriptions. He states that he has discharged all obligations to the federal government when he pays his liquor dealers' license fee of $25 annually and the narcotic dealers' fee of $8 annually.

All laws attempting to interfere with supplies of alcohol for other than beverage purposes are unconstitutional, Savitch asserts.

BECOMES DAUGHTER-IN-LAW OF FORMER HUSBAND

New York, July 10—A double wedding in which one woman married her former step-son and thus became the daughter-in-law of her former husband was performed at the marriage license bureau.

The principals were Wilhelm Van Beck, a painter, who married Hendrieka Stephania Hoving, and Wilhelm Van Beck, Jr., a sculptor, who wedded Leonara Wilhelmina Breidenbach.

Until last September, Mrs. Van Beck, Jr., was her present husband's stepmother and her present father-in-law's wife. The quartet applied at city hall a week ago for marriage licenses, but were told none would be granted until the divorce papers in the case were examined thoroughly.

All four arrived from Holland a week ago. The Van Becks have established homes within a block of each other at Corning, N. Y.

PUSH BUTTONS REVEAL GIN AND WHISKEY

New York, July 10—Inquisitive prohibition agents raided a saloon in Harlem today on a tip that liquor would be found in the safe, and observing the unusual number of push buttons in the place, tested them all and collected a large quantity of gin, whiskey and other liquids that appeared automatically.

First they found fifteen bottles of liquor in the safe, then they pushed two buttons which opened drawers behind the bar containing fifteen more bottles. Another button lifted a trap door in the ceiling which lead to another door and opening this they found 148 pints of gin, 68 quarts of whiskey and ten gallons of miscellaneous liquor in a hole in the wall. The proprietor was arrested.

France Plans to Reorganize Army

Total Land Forces Will Number 660,000 Men—Provisions Made for Thirty-Two Divisions of Infantry.

Paris, July 10 (By the A. P.)—The plan for the reorganization of France's army of 660,000 men was distributed among the members of parliament today by Colonel Jean Fabry, reporter for the chamber army commission. It contemplates a modernized force based on the lessons of the great war, with serious attention to new developments in aviation and war materials.

Aviation and gas, the report says, are menaces of the future. Germany, by force of circumstances, must seek her field of action in the air; therefore France must be strong there.

"We are preparing the army for war, which we are resolved to prevent," continues the report, "but must be ready to strike the first blow France is now superior to other nations in aviation, except perhaps bombing planes, but she cannot rest satisfied, and must not be content with machine guns in the air, for perhaps the time is near when aerial cannon will appear."

M. Fabry presents three conclusions:

"First—France, so long as she bases her existence and respect for her rights upon the prestige of her strength, must, because of her will for peace, maintain a strong army."

Second—"That the army, solidly constructed upon the lessons of the war, ought to be definitely guided toward the utilization of and search for more perfected armaments than those with which the enemy can be equipped, so that the army may retain that preponderance of force we are going to give it."

Third—"The time may come when those who must decide whether to refuse or accept, or even anticipate, war will have to bear a heavy responsibility and, because of the very brutality and efficacy of the first blows struck, is important to give them, instead of receiving them."

The plan, which is the third and final stage in the reorganization of national land and air defense, provides for thirty-two divisions of infantry, each with four regiments and detachments of cavalry, engineers and artillery, the cavalry being reduced to five divisions. Reserves would be formed by thirty regiments of cavalry and forty-eight regiments of artillery. The army would include also a great number of technical units.

The aviation force would be composed of 132 combat squadrons, 76 observation squadrons and 34 auxiliary service squadrons, with a personnel of about 33,000.

The plan is based on eighteen months' service, each class of conscripts furnishing about 250,000 men, with 100,000 professional soldiers constantly in the army.

The officers would be reduced about one-fifth from the period before the war, there remaining 107 generals of division and a total of about 30,000 officers.

A table, comparing the proposed organization with the army at the end of the war shows a slightly less percentage in the infantry, hospital service and administration, appliyes greater percentage of tanks, artillery and aviation. The cavalry numbers more than at the time of the armistice, but is reduced from what had been originally intended.

The total army will number 660,000 and will be composed of 451,000 French troops, 189,000 colonials and 10,000 foreign legionaries. It is proposed to have these colonial forces more closely interwoven with the French troops.

DIFFICULTIES IN WAY OF NEAR EAST PEACE

Lausanne, July 10—(By the A. P.)—Repeated Turkish diplomatic victories over the allies in the Lausanne discussions have reacted on the American negotiations for a revision of the old Turkish treaty, and things are not going so smoothly at present as had been expected: There is a sort of a deadlock on some of the clauses, although neither the Americans nor the Turks will explain the reasons for the hitch.

It is learned that Ismet Pasha, having finished with the allies, and "having finished them", as some have commented, told his experts to speed up the American negotiations, so that the American treaty would be ready for signature immediately after the general European peace document was signed. The Americans, however, are in no hurry and apparently do not intend to be stampeded into agreeing to provisions that do not adequately protect American interests.

LEVIATHAN AVERAGED 23 KNOTS PER HOUR

Southampton, July 10—(By the A. P.)—The American liner Leviathan completed her first trans-Atlantic voyage as a passenger ship under the American flag when she arrived here at ten o'clock tonight. The big liner brought 3,000 passengers and crew into the quiet waters of Southampton harbor and dropped anchor a few hundred yards from where the Pilgrim fathers set sail for America three centuries ago.

The voyage was a complete success both to the passengers and officials of the shipping board who expressed their delight to newspapermen Throughout the trip the giant ship was as steady as a rock, the reporters were told by Mr. Lasker who, of all aboard, appeared to be the most pleased with the Leviathan's performance.

New York, July 10.—Since the recent treasury department ruling on the seizure of liquor on ships coming here from foreign countries under seal $100,000 worth of drinkables has been seized, customs officials said today, commenting upon the decision at Washington to forfeit seized ship liquor.

Prohibition officials were inclined to place the estimate of existing seized liquor at a lower price, stating that the difference was accounted for in malt liquors destroyed by agreement with the shipping companies.

OPERATORS RENEW REQUEST FOR CONTINUED PRODUCTION

Possibility of Another Coal Strike Looms Up When Miners Refuse to Agree to Remain at Work After August 31st in Event No Agreement is Reached on New Wage Contract by That Time—Owners Claim Miners Have Presented 35 Demands for Changes in Wage and Working Conditions and Not Eleven as Would at First Glance Appear—Many Demands Involve Economic and Technical Details.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 10.—Anthracite operators meeting in sub-committee with the mine workers today to arrange a new wage contract, again proposed that the workers agree to remain at work after August 31 in the event no agreement is reached by that time, but the union leaders made the same reply they gave yesterday.

The operators wanted such an understanding so as to allay "public apprehension of a recurrence of the lamentable conditions of last winter." The miners said that if both sides applied themselves diligently to the task there was plenty of time to reach an agreement.

The committee also discussed the uestion of recognition of the union with especial reference to the checkoff. No action was taken, the committee adjourning until tomorrow afternoon.

The operators gave out the following statement as giving their position on the non-suspension uestion:

"Actually the miners have presented 35 demands for changes in wage and working conditions, and not eleven as would at first glance appear. Many of these demands involved the consideration of economic and technical details and will consume considerable time.

"Past experience has demonstrated that an anthracite wage contract cannot be negotiated in a hurry. While there is no disposition on the part of the operators unduly to prolong the negotiations—our action in appointing two alternate members of the subcommittee in order that there may be uninterrupted discussions is an indication of our anxiety to complete the work at the earliest possible moment—we realize that there is a possibility that a new contract may not be completed before the present one expires on August 31. It must be borne in mind that only about seven weeks intervene between now and the end of August.

"It was with all of these facts in mind that the operators, both in meeting of the full joint scale committee yesterday and in sub-committee today, sought to obtain from the miners an agreement that there should be no suspension of mining operators after August 31 in case the wage negotiations extended beyond that date. We proposed such an agreement for the main purpose of allaying public apprehension of a recurrence of the lamentable conditions of last winter.

"The miners, however, declined to agree notwithstanding the operators proposal to make the new contract retroactive to September 1.

Their declination holds over the anthracite consuming public and the operators the possibility of a strike in case an agreement regarding wages and working conditions cannot be reached before the present contract ends."

SPECULATION AS TO EFFECT OF RESERVATIONS

Washington, July 10.—The reservations proposed by the French senate naval commission to senate ratification of the Washington naval treaty, aroused some speculation here as to the effect they might have on plans of the government to put the treaty through before adjournment of the present session of parliament. Should the senate lay down the proposed reservations in its ratification measure, presumably concurrence of the chamber of deputies would have to be obtained before French ratification of the pact could be completed.

On the face of press accounts of the nature of the reservations, officials here were disinclined to attempt an assessment of their effect upon the treaty. The complete text of the reservations, either to the naval treaty or to the submarine warfare agreement, has not been received. Whether in either case the limitation in construction of the clauses of the treaty proposed by the French constitute an amendment of the Washington conference projects or merely set out the French understanding of these projects can be determined only when the complete text is available.

In the event the French proposals were viewed by the Washington government as amendatory, resubmission of the treaty for the approval of the senate would be necessary. The reservations to the naval pact, as described in press dispatches from Paris, however does not seem to be in such a category.

It is readily recognized here that France, in view of her present world position, would not care to subscribe to any treaty which, even by inference, appeared to relegate her permanently to the position of a third class naval power. The program, advanced by Secretary Hughes at the time of the Washington conference and accepted as the basis for the naval treaty, resulting in establishment of the five-five-three ratio, was extended to fix the French and Italian ratio at something less than two as compared to the Japanese three and the American and British five each. That ratio was based, it is pointed out, on the existing naval strength of the various naval powers. In accepting the estimate of her naval strength thus provided for, France very specifically did so at the conference only for a period of ten years.

The French delegation made it plain that after that time France might wish to improve her naval standing, but did not oppose Italy's demands for naval equality with France.

In view of this situation the French senate reservation declaring that France accepts the treaty ratio of capital ship strength only for the ten year period of the treaty's life does not seem to officials here to represent any departure from the agreement reached at Washington. In the same way the reservation declaring that the capital ship ratio shall not apply to auxiliary craft not included in the scope of the naval treaty seems to be merely a specific declaration of the French position and to accord with the accepted understanding of the scope of the treaty.

The original American plan called for application of the capital ship ratio straight down the line to all types of naval craft.

SMALL CHILD KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

New Haven, July 10.—Joseph Leary, four years old, of this city, was killed, and three others were slightly injured this afternoon when their automobile collided with a motor truck drivenby Henry Barnett, of Brooklyn. The truck was owned by the Arrow Haulage company, of Brooklyn and was passing through this city en route to Hartford with furniture and household goods.

The injured were Mrs. Dennis Leary, mother of the dead boy; her one year old daughter, and Mrs. Fred Korber of this city, driver of the automobile. The machine was thrown against a telephone pole when the truck struck it. The boy was tossed out, while the others were imprisoned in the machine for several minutes. The boy was rushed to a hospital, but was dead on arival there.

Bennett was arrested at the direction of Coroner Eli Mix and held in bonds of $1,000.

GOMPERS DISSATISFIED WITH COAL REPORT

Washington, July 10.—Labor organizations find substantial reasons for dissatisfaction with the report on the anthracite industry just completed by the coal commission, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared today in a statement. The commission's recommendations, he said, contain "real penalties for miners, but phantom penalties for the operators" particularly in that they are aimed at making strikes in the industry impossible, because they contemplate "compulsory labor."

"It is plain to see that of all of the 'bright minds' on the committee not one was a representative of the coal miners" the statement said. "If there had been a single representative of the men who actually produce anthracite coal, the commission would scarcely have recommended that the president be given full power to fix the wages to be paid the workers in the event of a suspension of mining operations.

"Any attempt to outlaw the right of stop work as a means of improving the conditions of the working people of the United States is doomed to fail in the fight against wrong and oppression.

"The very fact that the comission found that anthracite operators are receiving nearly three times as large a profit as before the war is a strong argument against any attempt to force the miners to remain at work, year and year out, regardless of the attitude of the mine owners.

"On the whole, the report cannot be considered as constructive, though the commission's recognition that coal is a public utility is a step in advance. So also are the recommendations that anthracite dealers be compelled by congress to make current reports to the federal government regarding costs, prices and profits in order to protect the public and that operators should combine to guarantee a standard quality of anthracite for the consumer."

NOT REQUIRED TO DISCLOSE TRADE SECRETS

Wilmington, Del., July 10.—Federal Judge Morris ruled today at the trial of the government's suit against the Chemical Foundation, Inc., for the recovery of seized German patents, that a witness would not be required to publicly disclose trade secrets. A written statement of these secrets might be made by the witness in the presence of the court and chief counsel on both sides, Judge Morris said, and sent under seal to the court of appeals, but there might not be any disclosure of them by counsel personally or in the briefs to be filed with the higher court.

The ruling came during the cross-examination of Dr. Ernest H. Volwiler, chief chemist of the Abbott laboratories of Chicago, who had been asked by Assistant Attorney General Anderson to state the difference in the methods used in producing certain drugs under the seized enemy patents and under processes worked out by his company. Dr. Volwiler said to testify would disclose certain important trade secrets; that he would tell the court what they were, but that he did not think they should go on the record.

NORWICH BULLETIN

Paul Shimanski 36, who was arrested late Monday by Investigator Wilson E. Jackson, after the man had fired several shots in the direction of his neighbor, Sylvester M. Pelechatz in the latter's home, was charged with breach of the peace and aggravated assault with a revolver as a weapon, Tuesday morning. Shimanski pleaded not guilty and waived the right of an attorney through Interpreter Isadore Heller. Shimanski said that someone threw stones at his house just as he was about to retire and grabbing up a revolver he ran out but could see no one. Then he fired into the air to frighten the transgressors away. After firing three shots a man whom he recognized as Pelechatz stepped out of the bushes and after Shimanski what he was trying to do, he left the place. At the session of police court Tuesday morning County Detective Jaakson gave the first to take the stand and in addition to relating the facts as told by him by Shimanski and Pelechatz he informed the court that the two families had been engaged in disagreement for some time as the result of a sum of money being stolen from the Shimanski home and for which Pelechatz is under suspicion.

Pelechatz, a Russian, said that as he was walking by the Shimanski home the latter's dog rushed at him. Then Shimanski himself came running out with the revolver and fired several shots at Pelechatz, meanwhile urging his dog after his neighbor. Pelechatz told of shouting for help and said that the affair happened about 8 o'clock. Upon being cross examined he admitted that there had been trouble over stolen money for which he was not guilty. He said that Shimanski often threatened him and his children.

Mrs. Lillian Higbee, a neighbor of both men, stated that while engaged in locking up her hen coops she heard Shimanski swearing. She saw Pelechatz in the road with a lantern and after hearing a shot Pelechatz cried "Murder, help, help." Two more pistol shots and more cursing by Shimanski followed along with appeals from Pelechatz, who was running as fast as he could.

Mrs. Higbee told the court that Shimanski was in the habit of coming out into his yard late at night and firing off his revolver. Easter he shot at a young man who was a guest at her home. She also said that the dog in question was very ferocious and dog feared by passersby. She said that some time ago Shimanski was away and neighbors fed and clothed his family, but the man remained a menace to the residents in that vicinity. "I want to say at this time that the affair Monday night was an attempt at murder" Mrs. Higbee concluded.

John Pelechatz, 17 year old son of Sylvester Pelechatz, gave testimony similar to that given by his father.

Shimanski then was given an opportunity to state his version of the affair. He said that poison had been spread to kill his stock and that fowl had been stolen from his home. Chickens had also been taken from their coops.

He repeated his story about the stones being thrown at the house and of his shooting a revolver into the air, but denied that he had caused Pelechatz. He said that he was a Russian and a resident of this country for ten years but not a citizen. He had a wife and three children and owned his own farm, including a house and 24 acres of land.

In reviewing the case, Judge F. H. Foss stated that it concerned a serious matter and although the shots did not take effect, the act was dangerous.

He severely reprimanded Shimanski and then imposed a fine of $50 and costs amounting to $62.85 and sentenced him to six months in jail, suspending the jail sentence for six months.

Mrs. Higbee caused a stir in the court proceedings at this point when she stepped up to the prosecuting attorney's table and inquired as to why the jail sentence had been suspended. She asked, "Must we live in constant danger from the man whom the whole neighborhood has just cause to fear?" Her query was disregarded, however, and Mrs. Higbee left the police station in a very much disturbed frame of mind.

Shimanski at first thought that he would appeal to the superior court but after consideration decided to settle.

The two bicycles, on which the men made the trip to this city from Manchester, however, await claimants, it being thought that they were stolen somewhere.

CASHIER SUPPRESSED NAMES OF 400 DEPOSITORS

New York, July 10—Sylvanus Bedell, former cashier of the Mariners' Harbor National bank, Staten Island, testified in Brooklyn today that he had suppressed the names of 400 depositors to conceal the misapplication of more than $610,000 of the bank's funds.

He was a witness for the state in the trial of Robert Magruder, former president and his son Donald, a former official of the Johnson Shipyards corporation of Staten Island, charged with defrauding depositors of the bank of $610,000.

Bedell, who was treasurer of the Johnson concern while serving as a cashier of the bank, was indicted with the Magruders charged with being implicated in the defalcation. He pleaded guilty, and consented to appear as witness for the state.

With a nuptial mass at the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. Thomas F. Doherty, brother of the groom, following the wedding ceremony by Rev. Daniel F. Sullivan, Miss Maria Rose Mainati was united in marriage with Dr. James L. Doherty of Pawtucket, Tuesday morning. Miss Margaret Mainati, a sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid and the groom's brother, Dr. Doherty, D. D. S., of Block Island, was best man. The wedding march was played by Miss Margaret Doherty of Fall River, Mass., a sister of the groom. Following the ceremony a breakfast was served at the cottage of the bride at Pleasant View. Dr. and Mrs. Doherty left on an automobile tour of the New England states and will make their home on their return in Pawtucket.

Considerable interest was manifest Tuesday afternoon in a young miss of four or five, who was discovered calmly playing with her paper dolls on the Broad street bridge. Questioning by Patrolman McMahon and Sergeant Ferguson failed to obtain a syllable in reply from the apparently lost, strayed or stolen one. As a precautionary measure she was taken to a near-by store to await a claimant. A package of candy caused her to lose interest in her dolls, but failed to bring out any confidences on the party of the the young miss and the presence of a crowd which assembled did not move the young lady to tears.

This (Wednesday) evening in the council chamber of the Westerly town hall on Union street at 7.30 the council fathers will assemble to wrestle with the weighty problems presented by the conditions as they exist in the highways and byways of the town. A solution will be sought and it is thought that in the discussion which will take place some concrete plan or scheme can be agreed upon. It is hoped that such a proposition may be formulated in a constructive way that when the open council hearing is held on the subject in the middle of July the plan may be more thoroughly gone into and adopted.

BURKOSKI COMES THROUGH FIRST TWO ROUNDS IN STATE GOLF; LOCAL MAN LOSES

Groton, Conn., July 10—William Burkoski, youthful iron worker from Naugatuck, continued to hold the spotlight in the Connecticut state golf championship at the Shenecossett Country Club today, winning both his first and second round matches with ease. He won the qualifying medal yesterday with 154 against a field of 140 players.

In the morning round of 18 holes, Burkoski won from A. Morrell, of Greenwich, 4 up and 3 to play. The Naugatuck boy had a card of 76, which was traveling too well for the Greenwich player. In the afternoon Burkoski was paired with H. D. Dewing, of Hartford and defeated him, 8 and 6. Burkoski went out in 38 and continued close to par figures until the match ended.

Henry J. Topping of Greenwich went through the first two rounds in fine style. In the morning he defeated H. S. Pinney, of Stafford, 2 and 1, and in the second round he outplayed B. F. Merriman of Waterbury, a former state champion, winning 4 and 2. Topping's exhibition in the afternoon marked him as the favorite for the title. On the inward trip he missed a second shot on the 12th hole. Going to the 13th two up, he won the long hole with a par five, and then halved the 14th. On the short 15th Topping appeared to have an easy win in three, but rimmed the hole and it was halved in four. He was on the next green in two, while Merriman was in a deep trap. Topping's approach was to the lip of the cup and his opponent conceded the match.

Reginald M. Lewis, of Greenwich, also took both his matches, disposing of Alexander Baldwin, of Brooklawn in the morning, 7 and 6, winning from Percy Rothwell of Hartford in the second round, 5 and 4.

W. Parker Seeley of Brooklawn, the present champion, won his morning match by default and this afternoon defeated Fred Jarvis, of Sequin, 6 and 4. Jarvis in the morning had eliminated H. Arnold Jackson, of Greenwich in 21 holes.

BAY STATE MEETING MAY BE HELD HERE

There is strong probability that during the early part of August there will be a meeting of the Bay State Short Ship circuit on the half mile oval at the fairgrounds. Negotiations are under way to get the Short Shippers here again this year as it is probable that the August meeting at Woonsocket will be cancelled owing to inconveniences experienced at the Rhode Island track. The Short Ship circuit held a meeting here last year but the attendance was so small and this year it was abandoned because no date in July could be secured, the local sponsors claiming that an August meeting would be too close to the fair time.

INDIANS TURN BACK ATHLETICS IN CLOSE GAME

Cleveland, July 10.—Cleveland took the first game of the series from Philadelphia, 4 to 3, for the possession of second place, Uhle out-pitching Heimach. Shortstop Sewell was the big factor in the victory, driving in three of Cleveland's four runs and starring in the field, twice saving Uhle by starting double plays. Umpire "Tommy" Connolly was called to his home in Natick, Mass., in the eighth inning, receiving a wire that his sister had died. The score:

YANKEES TAKE PITCHING DUEL FROM WHITE SOX

Chicago, July 10.—New York today defeated Chicago 3 to 2 in a pitching duel between Cvengros and Jones. Cvengros was largely responsible for his own defeat, as he intercepted a throw to the plate which permitted Ward to score from first on Smith's double, and after a 20 minute rain the little Chicago southpaw lost control, one of his passes in the seventh inning paving the way for the winning run. BROWNS WIN EASY CONTEST FROM SENATORS

St. Louis, July 10.—Urban Shocker held Washington to four hits today and St. Louis defeated the Senators 9 to 1. It was Shocker's 13th victory of the season. The Browns pounded Zahniser for 13 hits. RED SOX SALE TO BE DECIDED TODAY

Boston, July 10.—The negotiations for the purchase of the Boston American League baseball club will be either completed or abandoned tomorrow, Robert Quinn, recent business manager of the St. Louis National League team, who is here today to confer with Harry H. Frazee, owner of the Boston club, said tonight. Quinn represents a syndicate of Columbus, Ohio business men.

"We will finish up this deal one way or the other tomorrow," he said. "I am not too certain that we will buy the club. There is a hitch in the proceedings. It has nothing to do with the price of the franchise and property but something else of which I am not a liberty to speak now. If we come into control of the club, the chances are that we shall not make a single change in the personnel of the club for some time."

BRAVES PROTEST GAME PLAYED WITH BROOKLYN

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 10.—The Boston National League club has protested the second game of the doubleheader with Brooklyn at Ebbets Field on July 4, it was announced today, on the ground that Umpire Hart erred in allowing Fournier, Dodger first baseman, a home run when his drive hit a flagpole on the right field wall and bounded back into the field.

The Brooklyn club, however, claims that the flagpole is four inches beyond the limits of the field, a fact which it asserts sustains the arbiter's judgment. The score of the game was 9 to 8 in Brooklyn's favor.

Decision is in the hands of John A. Hedler, president of the National League.

KIRKWOOD TURNS IN LOW SCORE IN SECOND QUALIFYING ROUND AT INWOOD

Inwood, N. Y., July 10—(By the A. P.)—All last night, Joe Kirkwood, a droll sort of fellow from the antipodes, golfed in his sleep. He strolled across green fairways driving little white balls with deadly accuracy. On the greens he sank long putts. Sometimes he encountered traps, but pitched from them hard by the cups. Just before sleep left him this morning he walked across adjoining beds in the Inwood Club dormitory, dreaming he was pushing his way through a large, cheering gallery.

The dream come true today in the second qualifying round for the national open championship. With Jess Sweetser, amateur champion, for a partner Kirkwood played a perfect game on his two trips around the course, turning in a card of 144. He was around in the morning in 76, two under par and his afternoon card was 74, two above. He was ten strokes better than any other of the other eighteen, who finished within the limit of 159 to qualify.

Kirkwood played the first three holes in the morning in one under par. On the fourth he was trapped on his second shot but managed to make a par five. After being trapped again on the fifth he laid his mashie shot within seven feet of the pin and sank the putt for a birdie four. He encountered trouble on the last two holes on the eighth, his second was in the bunker and he took a five, one over par. His drive on the ninth was sliced, and his second hit the branch fo a tree and came to rest under the steel fence skirting the hole. Climbing over the fence he hit the ball scarcely 20 feet back into the fairway. His fourth, a beautiful mashie niblick shot was dead to the pin and he sank his putt. He scored a 37 for the first nine, even par. On the incoming nine he continued his marvelous play and was home in 38. On the eleventh, thirteenth and sixteenth he had birdies. Kirkwood's wonderful putting played a large part in his 70, for he had eight one-putt greens.

In the afternoon he carried on and finished the first nine in 36, one under par. He was aided by birdies on the third and sixth holes. On the long third he sank a putt of more than 20 feet and on the short sixth after laying his ironshot within six feet of the pin, he holed the putt for a two. He ended the perfect with a 38 for the last nine. The only slip he made on the greens was at the 13th hole where he took three putts.

Three of the ten amateurs who played today with the salaried brigade qualified. Jess Sweetser, national amateur champion, made the grade as did Francis Ouimet of Boston and Alex Armour, of Rye, N. Y. Those who found the Inwood links too tough a proposition were Rudolph Knepper, Sioux City, Iowa; James A. Kennedy, Tulsa, Okla.; Joseph Ford, public links star of New York; G. F. Lamprecht, Cleveland, Ohio; C. E. Van Vleck, Jr., New York; Gardiner White, former metropolitan amateur champion, and Guy M. Standifer, Washington, D. C. Five professionals failed, by one stroke, to qualify. These were Fred McLeod, the Columbia pro, of Washington, D. C., Clarence Hackney, of Atlantic City, Jess Snook, Bath Beach, N. Y.; Lindsay Campbell of New Canaan, Conn., and Pat Doyle, of Lake Champlain, N. Y. Campbell's score for 36 holes was 82-78—160. Sam

UNDESIRABLE CITIZENS.

Much has been said from time to time concerning the conscientious objectors, both those who are thus classified because they are entitled to be and those who used it as a means of dodging military service. The conscientious objector made the plea of being so opposed to war that he could not in justice to his views participate in any military activity. It of course meant that they were not bearing that same responsibility to the nation and its protection that others were. Needless to say there were those who were as eager to fight as there were those who desired to avoid it, but even in the case of the objectors it was perfectly apparent that they represented a type of citizenship that failed to evoke widespread commendation. They want the benefits of the country without being willing to do what is necessary to get or sustain them.

Thus when Judge Killits in the federal court at Toledo turns down applicants for citizenship because they were conscientious objectors his act will meet with general approval. Well does he say that "We are unable to see how any applicant who conscientiously objects to bearing arms in his country's defense can take the oath of citizenship without reservations, and we are unwilling to accept an oath that is subject to any reservations whatever."

Likewise the judge laid emphasis where it belonged when he further said "Without any intention to reflect upon the quality of the profession of conscientious objectors, we feel that it is enough that the country must endure the native born of that persuasion whose citizenship is a birthright without extending the number by the favor of the naturalization law."

Judge Killits is not an advocate of militarism, but when congress finds it necessary to act for the protection of the country and its people its citizens should be of a class that can be relied upon to support it even though that calls for carrying arms and using them.

COAL REGULATION.

However much there may be a clamor, as there has been at times, for the government ownership of the coal mines there is good reason to believe that such would stand no chance with congress. Government ownership has been tried with the railroads to as great a degree as the country wants, it got no further than government operation but that was enough. The country's experience under those conditions was sufficient to sour the country upon any effort to have the government dip into any such business.

It is through regulation rather than through ownership that the coal situation promises to be the most satisfactorily handled. That is the recommendation of the commission that has been at work upon the situation. There is government regulation of the railroads and a similar system of looking after the interests of the public through regulation of the coal business seems logical. It is a recommendation that has been forced by the conditions that have prevailed in the past several years, the injustice that has been imposed upon the public and the disposition to stop all transportation and industry, to intentionally create a shortage and cause suffering that such a stranglehold upon those who must pay may be successful.

The commission hasn't completed its work. It has set forth what it believes should be done. It is ready to give some consideration to the effect of its report upon deliberations now underway. Certain recommendations for legislative action should certainly be followed, but in case developments in the meantime show that still further recommendations are advisable for the guidance of congress they will be forthcoming.

By the time the commission completes its work it will be in full touch with the coal problem and the most desirable remedies. It was chosen to set in motion some needed protection to the coal consumers and there are good reasons to believe that its work will not go for naught.

THE LAUSANNE AGREEMENT.

There is nothing like keeping everlastingly at it if there is a real desire for accomplishment. That policy has accomplished much in many undertakings and it has won out in connection with the understanding between the allies and Turkey. It has taken a long time, and there is no telling how long it will be respected, but with an agreement the situation is manifestly improved, even though all may not have been gained on either side that the respective sides would have liked.

It is a significant fact, however, when the Turkish leader declares that there is a complete agreement. There has been a compromise but it is through such action that there is invariably more lasting results.

The approval of the treaty marks the recognition of the new Turkish government. It was the strength manifested by the followers of Kemal Pasha that broke down the treaty of Sevres. Subsequently the success against the Greeks gave the nationalists greater power and it must be recognized that they have used it to improve their position.

At the conferences at Lausanne it was hoped to adjust the discreditable situation in the near east. Previously it was possible to avoid another clash between the Turks and the Greeks and now a treaty has been arranged that will take the place of that written at Sevres, and as soon as it is ratified allied forces will be withdrawn from Turkey. The debt understanding, the question of concessions and the matter of returning warships and war material belonging to Turkey in the hands of the allies are all included in the accomplishment.

When the representatives gathered at Lausanne it was realized that much was possible if there was disclosed the right attitude to accomplish it. It has taken a long time, during which no small influence has been shed by the unofficial representation by this country, but there cannot fail to be satisfaction that it can be rated a success. Now it remains to be seen how much Turkey can do to insure peace in that much disturbed section of the world.

MOTOR VEHICLE RECEIPTS.

How motor vehicles have increased is not only shown by the survey made by the automobile industry, but by the figures whch have been presented by the motor vehicles department of this state, when it is shown that revenue of nearly four and a quarter million dollars was received during the past fiscal year by that department, or nearly a doubling of receipts in two years.

Adding nearly 29,000 motor vehicles to the state's registration for the year ending with June 30 means that the demands for highway work in this commonwealth are not likely to experience any letup. Rather does it point to the fact that more improved roads and more permanent highway construction will be sought. Roads will not only have to be built but a still greater degree of responsibility is being placed upon those whose efforts are directed to repairs and maintenance. It is of great importance that this feature of road work should get quite as much attention as the construction of new roads. Unless there is protection for the outlays that have been made for improved roads the wear and tear accomplishes a rapid waste, and it is being greatly increased when the 29,000 new cars within the state to say nothing of the greater numbers from other states, are added to the other 153,000 motor driven vehicles.

The increased revenue coming through the motor vehicles department means just that much more money for the work of repairs and maintenance but it is plainly evident that there is going to be plenty of opportunity for using it. The autoists are being taxed for what contributes to their pleasure and advantage.

THE ICE PATROL.

Notice to the effect that the ice patrol that has been maintained in the northern Atlantic ocean will be withdrawn tomorrow directs attention to the protective service that is thus rendered to the steamships traveling between this country and Europe.

Ice always was a menace. It has not become more so than in previous years except that seasons may vary, but the experience of the Titanic was sufficient to show the need of giving greater protection to the human cargoes. Ice is bad for shipping. Vessels would gladly go out of their course to avoid it if it were known that it was to be encountered, and it is for the purpose of warning the navigators of the presence of the floes that the patrol is maintained during the spring and into the summer. It is a long, lone vigil involving considerable expense, but that is far preferable to the destruction of costly vessels or the loss of lives.

No more impressive example of preventive work should be required to set forth its merits. No one can show how many collisions have been prevented, how many lives have been saved or how much property has been saved, but it is noteworthy that passenger ships that have given heed to the information provided by the patrol have not gone to the bottom because of ice. Vessels going to points which make it impossible to avoid the ice fields have had collisions, even though on guard against trouble of that character, but the prevention service has worked admirably and can be depended upon to continue until something better develops. It adds an element of safety to ocean travel that common sense cannot neglect.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: Now for the summer furs.

It is easier for those who have their coal supply in to keep cool.

Nothing to complain of in the way of excessive heat thus far in July.

There's a small army of people that knows what effect procrastination has upon the coal bin.

France gives indication that it will ratify the naval agreement, but no one can claim that it has been hurried.

President Harding never saw Alaska before, and Alaska never saw another president step foot within its limits.

It didn't require an automobile for the people around Mt. Etna to discover that nature is wonderful and merciless.

Already the $310,000,000 surplus has caused some to wonder why certain government expenditures were kept down so low.

While the hard coal miners and operators are discussing an understanding, are they listening to what the public is thinking?

Restricted immigration will still provide plenty of material for the melting pot but what is it going to do for the steel industries?

That Willimantic policeman who held up the governor's auto for going to the left of a silent policeman shows the Thread city plays no favorites.

TRIANGULAR

It was an unevenly matched three-cornered affair, however you looked at it. At one corner was Dolores just fluttering out upon the stage for a vaudeville turn between pictures in the movie house. Another corner revealed Mrs. Cassidy, the parent, strangely enough, of the Spanishly billed Dolores, seated nervously half-way down one side, twisting her cotton gloves. The third point of this triangle comprised the rest of the audience, and the audience was the only part of the triangle which never missed a heartbeat when the smart little boy changed the announcement card from "Ginger and Pepper, Jazz Duo," to "Dolores, Songs and Dances."

Mamie Cassidy had got the stage idea years before when she had sung a little song pertly before a family gathering, bobbing her short skirts airily, and had been rewarded by applause and laughter.

When she was 15 her beaus would chew gum vigorously, saying: "Gee, kid, you're good—d'yuh know it?"

It became more and more distasteful to report at the cheap underwear counter daily at 8:30.

This last year she had had a few lessons at the musical academy, where the pupils dashed through like corn through a hopper, had practiced gliding and toe work before the bedroom dresser mirror tipped slantwise to show the floor, and with Mrs. Cassidy's help had concocted a frock after one seen in a Spanish ballet. The skirt was huge and silkily voluminous and it swayed from her hips gracefully. And this was the night.

Back of the stage Mamie, fastening the voluminous skirt, was wondering why, when your throat felt paralyzed, you still could feel ice water trickling down it and following your spine religiously. Not that she was afraid—her dazed insistence to herself that here was her chance was too interesting to think about. But it was an awful minute when she quitted the shelter of the wings for the open space out there.

Like a swimmer struggling up after a sudden unexpected splash into deep water, she came to herself. The orchestra leader, waving his baton in a bored fashion, was watching her with a complete absence of interest, and the first violinist with head bent was listening amusedly to what the French horn was relating into his left ear. As she smiled and coquetted with the silent audience Mamie had an awful sensation that it wasn't fair—nobody was helping her when it was so necessary on this night of all nights. She began to sing.

"She looks grand!" Mrs. Cassidy muttered in something of awe, trying to realize that this personage up on the stage entertaining a thousand people was none other than her daughter. A little glow began to overspread her as she listened to the song rehearsed so many times at home. She did not hear the nervous man back of her.

He groaned when Mamie had sung five bars. "Why," he demanded pitiously, "why do they let 'em sing flat as well as through their noses?"

The girl with him giggled. "You do say the funniest things!" she said. "She's the limit!"

"Well, I guess we might as well go now, before things get any worse," a score or so couples in different localities told each other in various fashion and straggled down the aisles.

"Why do they hire people like that?" fretfully asked a regular patron of his wife as they went through a swing door in the shadow of which stood the manager, picking up crumbs like a sharp-beaked bird.

He did not need these special crumbs, however, to convince him that Dolores was a flivver. Funny how a girl as pretty as she had seemed could pan out so flatly. Her dancing seemed heavy and the voice was inadequate and altogether she lacked the mysterious something which makes for success with an audience. He retreated into his denlike office with a frown and gave an order to his stenographer. "Call off that Dolores turn at once," he said tartly.

Out on the stage Dolores was kissing her hand and retreating into the wings with a brilliant smile. She wondered why it was so hard to keep from bursting out crying. Only a patter of applause from some small boys in the front row followed her.

But Mrs. Cassidy sat placidly happy and relaxed now that the ordeal was over. It had been "wonderful—her Mamie!

"She's the best of all of em!" she said proudly. Sometimes it seems a pity that these three-sided affairs can't just be two-sided and let go at that—an audience is an impersonal sort of thing and who cares if it does suffer!—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The High Price of Boiled Sliced Ham.

Mr. Editor: In reading the weekly article by The Farmer in June 29 issue I was very much impressed by his writing. But would like to say to him that we are not the man, or men who are responsible for 78 cents per pound boiled sliced ham. Two Samuel, 12th chapter, 7th verse does not apply to the people in general at all. I will explain, and at the same time state that I am not starting any argument with "The Farmer." He could beat me any time—also that his weekly talks are one of my pleasures to read, and are enjoyed by more than one member in the family. But, we have kept pigs. In my childhood days my father was a breeder and raiser of the old fashioned Chester whites and some other kinds, too, and very likely made money by selling for $5 a pair. But now we pay $15 a pair for six weeks' old pigs. Feed and grain being high (we raise some field corn also keep a few cows so that a little milk, and corn help out) we have made no great profit in raising pigs. Of course we have cured our own hams, eaten our own spareribs, enjoyed to the fullest the home raised product, yet if we had bought from a market all that we needed for every need, I believe we would not have spent as much as the pigs cost us. First we pay for the pigs, then reckoning milk given, and grain fed, the man paid for butchering and taking all in all, I believe that all told we lost in the pig game. There is one satisfaction we had the finest, sweetest pork that ever was and we enjoyed it. We have not been in the position financially yet to indulge in sliced boiled ham from a market. But we do some times purchase a ham and boil it and hams are some high. What about the current price of sugar? Are we the man, or the goat in this matter? It is time the goat or goats began to "consider?" You all remember the nursery rhyme running thus:

There was a piper had a goat,
But had no grass to give her,
So on his pipe he played a note,
"Consider goat, consider."

Sometimes it looks as though the Supreme Giver of all good, has a race of being located especially in this United States of ours, who has not the mental ability to ponder, either their own welfare, or their neighbors. I actually know of a man selling a dressed hog to a market. After it was cut up he paid 40 cents a pound for the spare rib he had just sold for 13 cents before being cut up; twenty-seven cents a pound for cutting is a mighty good price. This goat did consider after a while.

Now, Mr. Farmer, kindly give us a little more light on this most interesting subject.

A READER.

Pheonixville, July 6, 1923.

Applying the Principle.

Mr. Editor: Mr. Eno—who by the way—always writes a sensible letter—began his latest with this suggestive sentence:

Mr. Editor. There has been for some time an agitation for equal wages for women for equal work with men. Why not apply the same principle in the case of farmers in comparison with other occupations?

Having thus started on a good and timely theme, he then diverged into a variety of topics such as labor unions and mariiemen, and the multiplicity of retail stores, so it occurred to this reader to make an attempt to apply the suggested principle, and say a few things about this farmer's wife and the home that she is entitled to in the domestic economy of our national and social life. We want to offer a plea in her behalf and to enforce, as far as words can go a consideration of her claim to the equality she, in her position worthily merits, as compared with those other occupations suggested by Mr. Eno.

While our telephone girls and saleslades are asking for shortened hours, and studying the magazines to be sure where the next month's fashion will set the waist-line, the farmer's wife is planning how much cream, butter and eggs can be sent to the market store the next day; and how "to set a hen with delicacy and precision," in order to keep the egg-producing-brood up to the maximum. It may be a nice sugestion, too, for your city lady to arrange for the next Wednesday's bridge party, just who to invite, and in the best form preserve the unity of her particular set, or the set she aspires to move in, but in the laboebeing the farmer's wife is contriving how she can get the week's washing and ironing done, and advise with her husband how the harvesting or the planting can be accomplished with present high costs, and short hours, enforced by the help and the scarcity, even at that.

Furthermore, the trade of farming is the most exacting of all. The mechanic can draw his week's pay at noon on Saturday and go to church, the ball game, and the movies, the rest of the time until Monday morning, but the farmer must attend to his produce and his stock and find his own recreation at intervals amidst real imperative duties.

The mechanic or professional man can take his 35 or 50 dollars a week and live quite comfortably in a hotel of boarding house, but the farmer must stay on his premises and must have a wife; consequently a family; and keep up the constant current expeinsces of a home establishment.

I have read of a tavern sign in the old country which represented a pyramid of men on each other's shoulders. The man on the top was a soldier, the next a clergyman, and the man on the ground was a farmer. The motto of the first read: "I fight for all," the second, "I pray for all," and the third being the farmer, his motto was, "I pay for all."

The artist—whoever he was—had caught the philosophy of the social situation, and represented the fact that the real stress of the community and the responsibility rests on the shoulders of the man next to the soil—and, we must say also, the woman—his helpmate and handmaid, who together with him dig and cultivate it, and produce the necessaries without which life is impossible.

This writer is not a farmer nor a farmer's son, but he married a farmer's daughter, and can vouch for her ability, as a tactician in the art of planning to make ends meet.

Stories That Recall Others

She Was Placed.

Although she was past 30, the stenographer often tried to be coy with the young salesman. Occasionally, to get some extra work done they took her out evenings, and she flirted with them in return. But the new youngsters did not court her as the others did. The climax came when she announced that she was going on a vacation.

"How long will you be gone?" one of them asked her.

Thinking that he had succumbed to her charms, she dimpled back at him. "Two weeks," she replied.

"Oh, he returned to the fellow next to him and said in a mournful tone, "What is home without a mother?"

Oh, That Funny Feeling.

A Sunday school class of five girls about the age of eight had gone for a "hike" with the teacher. A quarter of a mile failed to satisfy the youngsters and the "hike" lengthener to into one and one-half miles. Then a stop was made for lunch. Each of the hikers had enough "eats" for the party, but all was devoured regardless. The teacher was quaking with fear lest some one be unable to make the return journey, but it was accomplished at last although about midway of the trip one of the little girls piped:

"My stomach feels awful funny."

Anna Magdalena Wulken, Wife of Bach

To be the successful wife of a genius is considered quite an achievement. To be the mother of 11 children is also considered, and rightly, an achievement. To be the stepmother of nine children at the age of 23 is something more than an achievement. Anna Magdalena Wulken, the second wife of John Sebastian Bach, great musician, was not only all of the things above mentioned, but she also managed to be of valuable assistance in his actual work, serving as secretary, copyist and even collaborator at times. No small wonder, then, that Bach was known upon occasions to rise in public places with uncovered head and thank God for the blessings He had bestowed upon him in giving him such a wife.

When he was 33 years old, scarcely two years a widower, the German master met Anna Magdalena and decided that she would be an ideal wife and stepmother for his brood of nine. Young, strong, able, willing and in addition, comely, she did not seem averse, in spite of the responsibility.

Shortly after their marriage she began to write his music at his dictation. Many Bach compositions on exhibition today in Germany, are copied out in her fine and careful hand with interlineations by the composer. Dates on these works bear witness to the fact that this was no brief period in her early affection for him. She managed to take care of the nine stepchildren, bear and raise her own 13 and still continue her musical copying. Her life should be a source of comfort and inspiration to the constantly increasing number of women who feel the urge to do something more than their household duties.

KNIFE WIELDER'S CASE CONTINUED IN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 10.—Augusto Pellgrini of East street became involved in a bad row last night by what neighbors say was the free use of a vile tongue. He insulted a young girl who was on her own veranda to an extent that her brother interfered. Then Pellgrini pulled a knife and the girl's two brothers mixed up with him. He cut them, but not severely. Then it was found that Pellgrini also had a revolver on his person. The participants in the row were the Bartolucci brothers, Leo and Ettio. While they struggled, Raymond Coleman tipped into the fight to separate the warriors and Pellgrini ran. He appeared at his home and there fired shots at his adversaries. He did not hit them. The police were called and in short order Pellgrini was on the way to the police station. He had the revolver on his person when he was arrested. He too, had secured a lawyer to defend him when the police court assembled and that lawyer wanted time to study the case and see what sort of a defense Pellgrini could put up, so he was given till Saturday to do that. Pellgrini was ordered to furnish a bond of $2,000 and that he was able to do.

ANOTHER DECREASE IN UNFILLED STEEL ORDERS

New York, July 10—The United States Steel corporation today reported unfilled orders of 6,586,261 tons on its books on June 30 last, a decrease of 736,000 tons below those at the end of the preceding month. This was the third successive month decrease and the smallest unfilled tonnage since August 31, 1922, when the total was 5,950,105. The largest previous decrease was on February 28, 1921, when the total unfilled orders were 6,933,867, a drop of 639,297, below those of the preceding month.

Early estimates in the financial district had passed the decrease this month at 725,000 tons which was raised later to 800,000 tons so that the actual figure came as a surprise. Some selling of the steel shares took place after the announcement was made public but the reactions, as a rule, were small.

The meeting was attended by several architects who submitted plans for two new buildings. There is to be a new nurses' home with 50 rooms for the women nurses at the hospital, and the other buildings at the hospital are to be increased by adding another ward with a capacity of 100 patients, to be known as the sub-acute ward.

Under construction at the hospital at the present time are two new homes for staff physicians similar in design to the other homes at the institution.

Announcement was made at the meeting of the resignation of Dr. William Smith, pathologist physician, and the resignation was accepted. No successor was named at the meeting.

At the close of the business session the members of the board were entertained at dinner by Superintendent Wilcox after which the buildings were inspected by the trustees.

WERMAN SHOE FACTORY MAKES BONUS DISTRIBUTION

The fifty or more employes of A. Werman & Sons, Inc., manufacturers of Stitchdown Shoes, on Thames street, wore a pleasant smile Tuesday night as they left the plant for each and every one of them was richer by from $25 to $50 than when they started the week of the day.

The reason for the pleasant gift from the company was that Mr. Werman three months ago opened an account in the Bankers Trust company known as the bonus account and every week in the year five per cent of the payroll for that week is deposited in the savings account to be distributed every six months to the employes, every man and woman receiving an envelope containing money equal to five per cent of their wages for the six months previous.

In explaining the system he has installed at the Norwich plant Mr. Werman said Tuesday night, "When this plant came to Norwich a year ago we had in mind the employing of about 100 people within a year but in this we were wrong. Norwich is new to the shoe industry and it has taken time for us to teach the business to the employes of the local plant. Of necessity we must start our employes in at a wage lower than the average wage in other industries in the city, but it is a fact that within three or four weeks our employes climb to a wage that equals and in many ways is better than that in other industries not in the shoe manufacturing business."

Calling to several employes, Mr. Werman asked them what wage they started in at and one girl answered $16. Asked how her pay jumped up, she stated that on the second week it went to $21, then to $26 and in one month her wage had gone to $30 per week and she now averages higher. Other employes willingly stated similar wages, some going over the $40 mark.

In speaking of the shoe business Mr. Werman said that at present the Norwich plant was turning out 4800 pairs of shoes each week but that he had orders on hand that could keep his plant here producing over 10,000 pairs a week. The reason this work could not be done is because it takes time to teach the new help how to cut and make the shoes properly, the company taking a loss on the help for the first month.

Speaking of the plant of the company at 254 Williams avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., Mr. Werman said this plant employs 150 people and the product manufactured there represented a business of over $500,000 annually. It is the aim of the company, he said, to make the Norwich plant the larger of the two, and he hoped it would not be long before this could be accomplished. It will be done, he said, as soon as Norwich people—for I want to employ all Norwich help—learn my business and swell the products of the local plant. Already the weekly payroll is over $1000, but I would like to see it go up 300 per cent.

Coming back to the five per cent bonus, Mr. Werman said that his business was in part piece work and this bonus was to urge the employes to learn the business and in turn increase their earnings, the bonus to come to them in turn for their work. "Production means cutting down overhead and I believe my employes will work for the bonus which means at present from $30 to $60 extra for them every six months. The bonus is given them on July 1st and January 1st and it's up to them what they get, it's their money put aside every week, a bonus for staying on the job and learning the business."

835 MILES IN STATE FOR FEDERAL AID

Definite designation of roads to comprise the federal-aid highway system have been made in 34 states by the department of agriculture. These roads and estimates in the 14 states where the roads have not been approved aggregate 187,406 miles, connecting nearly every city in the country having a population of 5,000 or more. Indications are that more than 90 per cent. of the nation's population will live within 10 miles of a federal-aid highway.

Mileage by state where the designations have been made include: Connecticut, 835; Maine, 1,393; New Hampshire, 988; New York, 4,493; Rhode Island, 165; Vermont, 1,043.

Estimated mileage in Massachusetts which is included in states where designations have not yet been approved is 1,290.

Parked in Restricted Zone.

Two well known Norwich men, one the head of a large mill and the other a traveling man, were before the police court Tuesday morning on the charge of having parked their cars in a restricted zone on Main street. They had left their machines Monday evening along the curb in front of the Shannon building, where they narrowed the highway so much that other machines could scarcely make the swing around the silent policeman.

Both men readily admitted their fault in court and were given a stern admonition to become acquainted with parking regulations.

The more money a man has in the bank the more interest he takes in line.

WILLIMANTIC ROTARIANS IN LIVELY SOCIAL EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, July 10.—A lively gathering of the Willimantic Rotary club was held this evening when the losing team of the recent attendance contest tendered the winners a bountiful supper. President James Mustard was in charge.

The main feature of the evening was a most interesting discourse given by Secretary Charles W. Hill on the international convention of Rotary clubs held at St. Louis. About 22 local club members indicated their intentions of attending the fall conclave to be held at Rutland, Vt., by the clubs of this district. Many of them will be accompanied by their wives and lady friends.

Further reports were given by Prof. Richard Dodge on the big field day which will be held at Storrs college on Thursday, July 19. The regular meeting of Tuesday, July 17, will be held Thursday, due to the proximity of the two events. Harry W. Standish made a motion that the ticket receipts of the field day be utilized to purchase appropriate souvenirs for the ladies who attend the affair, and the proposition met with the approval of the members.

Jim Fullerton and Fred Jordan spoke on the boys' work budget and upon the motion made by Raymond A. Parker it was voted to discharge the present committee chosen to draw up a budget for boys' work and that a new one be appointed.

Sergeant-at-Arms Aime Margineau collected several penalties imposed on members who violated the rules when they addressed fellow members by the prefix Mister. On one occasion the sergeant became confused and had to impose a fine upon himself. Upon a motion by Gus Greene it was voted to stage another attendance contest beginning Oct. 1. Members of the losing team in the last one, namely, Raymond A. Parker, George Hickey and Pete Laramee, were of the opinion that hearing the expense for one night's supper was enough and they voted No. Upon a suggestion they were commanded to sing a song for the benefit of the majority. The trio rendered Yes, We Have No Bananas.

Charles W. Hill, a delegate to the St. Louis convention from the local club, was then called upon and he favored with an exact but brief summary of the events of the convention. The keynote of the convention was Rotarian as an Individual, began the delegate, who then commended the remarkable hospitality shown the 6,637 delegates who attended the convention by the St. Louis Rotary club and the public in general. Every phase was taken care of and in his opinion the city is a good one for the holding of conventions. He also spoke of the warm reception rendered the delegates at Chicago, Buffalo and Detroit. The speaker touched lightly but enthusiastically on the entertainment furnished for the visitors, including boat and motor trips, operas, speeches and sports. Secretary Hill said he was impressed by the international relations of Rotary, which are of the friendliest nature. He thought that they should set an example to political relations. He also made mention of the fine type of business men who attended the conference. Secretary Hill was rewarded for his talk by hearty applause and a rising vote of thanks, following which adjournment was taken in the usual manner.

UNCASVILLE CHILD DIES FROM BURNS WITH MATCHES

Alexander Malinowsky, 2 1-2 years old, whose parents live in Uncasville, died about 7.45 Tuesday morning at the hospital in New London from extensive burns on the body and face, received while playing with matches at his home on Monday.

The boy was in the kitchen of his home on Monday morning with a playmate while his father was at work in the hayfield and his mother at the mill. The children got hold of matches which they lighted as they sat on the floor until one finally ignited the Malinowsky boys clothing. His playmate ran screaming from the house bringing the father running from the field with his helper. They tore off the little boy's burning clothing and sent for Dr. John Donohue, who treated the boy while waiting for the ambulance.

The doctor entertained little hope for recovery because the child was about two-thirds burned. The little fellow was severely burned about the face, neck, back shoulders, arms and around the abdomen, the flesh was cooked by the flames.

Forty minutes later the child was at the hospital undergoing treatment. He was in great pain and was conscious until death ended his sufferings early Tuesday morning.

SAYS CITY NEVER MADE CLAIM TO OWN LANE A

That Lane A's use by the public years ago, in New London, was nothing more than any waterfront land owner then expected was the declaration of Albert C. Boardman, third witness called by the defense when the trial of the case of Barnett Gordon and Simon Sulman against the P. Schwartz Co., in which the city of New London is also a party plaintiff, involving ownership of Lane A, was resumed before Judge George E. Hinman in the superior court in New London Tuesday morning.

That the city of New London never claimed to own Lane A while he was owner of the abutting property on the east and that Lane A only extended as far as Bank street, were the declarations of Dr. Frederick W. Caulkins of Montauk avenue, another witness. Dr. Caulkins, who is a retired physician and 93 years old, gave his testimony clearly and emphatically.

This intricate case was partially tried at previous court sessions in this city and at Norwich and was adjourned until today.

Gordon and Sulman brought suit to restrain the defendant from erecting and maintaining a fence across Lane A, claiming that Lane A is a public highway and that it was the only means of ingress and egress to the spur track in the rear of their place of business in Bank street, without the use of which they were unable to conduct their business. The city became a party plaintiff after the suit was brought, claiming ownership of Lane A.

The defendant company claims that it owns Lane A and that it is not a public highway, the lane having been abandoned many years ago.

Attorney John C. Geary was called as the first witness for the defense and testified that in the fall of 1919 he represented the P. Schwartz Co., at a hearing before a committee of the court of common council involving a quarrel between property owners over a spur track of the New Haven road. He said that he stated to the committee at the time that the city had no authority in the matter and that the P. Schwartz Co. would not be bound by anything they did. The member of the committee were Alderman Morris B. Payne, Andrew Collins and J. J. Lyons.

Under cross examination the witness said that as he recalled it, the subject of the hearing was a question between competing merchants over the rental of the spur track; one merchant wanted an excessively large amount for the use of the track and the other wanted to pay a very low sum for its use.

John F. Higgins, owner of the Higgins property to the west of Lane A, who was a witness for the plaintiff, was called to the stand by the defense and produced a map of Lane A and vicinity which he found among the effects of his father after his death. He said that he had never seen the map while his father lived and he was not called upon to describe it.

Albert C. Boardman was the next witness and testified that he knew and was familiar with the Dr. Calkins property in Bank street adjoining what is known as Lane A. He said that he was in the boat building business a good many years and that he recalled the place where Jerome kept his boats just back of Dr. Calkins' barn.

Mr. Boardman said that he never kept boat in the vicinity of Lane A as testified to by Mr. Higgins at a previous hearing. The witness said that he recalled that it was the custom many years ago for fishermen and boat owner to land most any place along the shore irrespective of ownership without any charge for wharfage.

John J. Jerome of Talley and Washington streets testified that his brother, the late Captain Jerome, owned a float which was located in the rear of Dr. Calkins' barn and that he worked for him. He said that his brother also hired the Calkins' barn for his business. The witness said that the float was never located east of the driveway to the Calkins property but that it was west of the driveway and in the rear of the barn.

PROTEST PLAYGROUNDS ON PUBLIC SCHOOL YARDS

The July meeting of the school board was held Tuesday night in the board room with Walter F. Lester presiding. Those present were Mr. Lester, Robert McNeely, James C. Macpherson, Dr. E. J. Brophy and Thomas J. Kelly, secretary.

The usual bills were read and ordered paid, after which a petition was read from the residents of the Wauwecus district requesting that the school in that section of the town be reopened this coming fall. This school has been closed for several years, the children of the district being carried to the Town street school. The petition was referred to Superintendent of Schools E. J. Graham for investigation and report.

The resignation of Miss Leonora E. M. Rose as teacher of the Yantic school was read and accepted and Miss Constance Leathers was accepted as a regular teacher, her school assignment to be made later. It was voted to employ an instructor in physical education, the selection to be announced later. A letter of congratulation was received from Mary E. Gaige, president of the Colonial Daughters of America, complimenting the schools on the fine essay of Miss Rosalie A. Anderson.

The usual reports were read, after which a petition from 18 taxpayers and residents of Elizabeth street was read, protesting against the use of the Elizabeth street school grounds as a playgrounds for children. There was also a complaint from residents of Thamesville against the use of the Thames street school grounds for playgrounds, but no petition was received. Both matters were referred to Superintendent Graham, who is to take the matter up with the Playgrounds association.

Michael J. Kelly, who for several years has been a deputy factory inspector, has been appointed as supervisor of repairing and in the purchase of material for repairs, for all local schools.

Routine business was then transacted and was followed by adjournment.

LOUVAIN UNIVERSITY TO HEAR BISHOP SHAHAN

Right Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, rector of the Catholic University, Washington, who has Norwich relatives, sailed for Europe Wednesday, July 4. Bishop Shahan will visit Rome, where he will consult with His Eminence, Cardinal Cajetan Bisleti, Prefect of the Congregation of Seminaries and Universities, regarding the institution of which he is the head. The university will next fall institute a new and distinct school of canon law.

By unanimous vote of the faculty of theology of the University of Louvain, Belgium, it has been decided to present the doctorate honoris causa to the Bishop Shahan upon the occasion of his announced visit to Belgium this month. Among the very few American doctors honoris causa of the Louvain University, ex-President Woodrow Wilson and the president of Columbia University, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, are perhaps the best known. By the selection of Bishop Shahan, of the Catholic University, for the prized title, Louvain wishes to honor not only the scholar and rector magnificus of the sister institution of learning, but also the staunch friend of Belgium through all its years of woe and misery. It is as such that his candidacy was warmly endorsed by the Belgian ambassador to Washington. His Excellency Baron de Cartier de Merchienne.

LAWYERS IN WRANGLE AT G. I. W. HEARING

The first hearing in the matter of the foreclosing of a mortgage held by the United States Shipping board against the Groton Iron Works, in which Congressman John Q. Tilson, is acting in the capacity of a special master, was held Monday in the Federal court room at New Haven. Attorney Henry L. Parmalee of that city, who was appointed special U. S. attorney in this case, represented the government, and several lawyers from New York appeared for the defendants.

The hearing itself was productive of no results and will be continued Thursday morning. Attorneys for both sides indulged in many legal wrangles, and the debate waxed so furious at one time that Congressman Tilson was obliged to remind the lawyers that they were appearing before a court, and were not in their private offices.

Indications are that the case as it now stands will drag along for several months. The mortgage which the government holds on 921 pieces of property is being disputed by the Groton company, and if the attorneys intend to contest each item the case will take considerable time.

The financial difficulties of the company have occupied the attention of the courts for several months in January a receiver for the Grotor Iron Works signified his intention of selling the property, but the government stepped in and secured a restraining injunction, which is still in effect.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Crafty thieves broke into and cleaned whatever was of value from the stock of the wayside refreshment stand of Alexander Mazzarelli on the Danielson-Providence road, two miles east of here, during the early hours of Tuesday morning and stole a Hudson touring car from a shed on the property which has been known for years as the Vaughan place.

The break and loss of the car was not discovered until 4.30 Tuesday morning, when Mr. Mazarelli came out of the house to take up his daily farm tasks. He found that in raiding the wayside stand the robbers had taken three boxes of a well known brand of cigars, 10 dozen cartons of potato chips and other stock. This loss was comparatively immaterial when considered against the loss of the car, which was of the touring type and had been purchased by the Mazzarelli family only three weeks ago. State police were quickly notified of the raid and officers were promptly assigned to the case.

It would appear that the thieves have been getting a line on the place and making ready to plunder it for the past fortnight. About two weeks ago a fine watch dog disappeared from the Mazarelli place and it has since been taken for granted that the animal was stolen. The break and theft of the car now strengthens the belief that the dog's disappearance was part of the plot to enable the thieves to work undisturbed when they were ready to make the raid.

The last member of the Mazarelli household retired shortly after 10 o'clock Monday night and thereafter no disturbance was heard about the place and no inkling of the loss obtained until 4.30 Tuesday morning.

Sixty male citizens of the town of Killingly make up the list of jurors who will be liable for duty in the superior court of Windham county during the year beginning September 1 next. Troop B, 3rd United States cavalry, passed through Danielson Tuesday morning just before nine o'clock on the way to the Brooklyn fairgrounds, where the troop went into camp about an hour later, to remain until this (Wednesday) morning, when it will proceed to Norwich, camping near that city some time this afternoon. There are about 60 men and an equal number of horses in the command, which is making its way southward to Niantic from Camp Devens. Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., is the home station of the outfit. At Niantic the troopers will engage in cavalry instruction for the Connecticut National guard mounted troops. The horses in Troop B are chestnut in color and are hardened to their overland work by the long hikes from northern Vermont. After the stay at Niantic the troop will again take the overland trail for the home station.

Monday night another army unit traveling overland was encamped near Moosup pond.

Mrs. L. E. Kennedy will have members of the Catholic Welfare council at her home this evening to discuss plans for raising a sum of $50 for the nurses' home fund of the Day Kimball hospital.

A regular weekly drill of the Service battery was held Tuesday evening at the state armory. The battery will drill regularly during July in preparation for the southern trip the command is to take a few weeks hence, going to Camp Eustis, Va.

Attention of bass fishermen is being called to the fact that a part of Old Killingly pond, near east Killingly, is in Rhode Island and that a license to fish is required in the neighboring state. Unless one knows the waters of the lake well there is likelihood of arrest for fishing in Rhode Island waters, unless one has a license.

Special meetings of the stockholders of the People's Light and Power company and of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company are scheduled to be held here Thursday to take such action as is legally required in connection with the recent absorption of these companies by the Eastern Connecticut Power company.

Steps already taken in Brooklyn indicate the probability of a Community church being organized in that town. Committees representing the various interested churches have been appointed to confer over the matter.

John A. Williamson of Worcester was a visitor with friends in Danielson Tuesday.

There will be no more boxing exhibitions in Danielson until fall, it was stated Tuesday, as it is deemed inadvisable to attempt to stage open air shows during the hot weather.

The "farthest from home" automobile noted in Danielson Tuesday bore Kansas registration plates.

Members of Putnam Country club especially and other citizens generally read with interest Tuesday of the fact that C. L. Booth, professional golfer of the club here, was among those who qualified, with a card of 160, at the national open golf championship at Inwood on Long Island.

It was noted, too, that Mr. Booth did the first round of the Inwood course in 76, while the present national open champion, Gene Sarazen, made the opening round in 73.

Listed among the limited number that qualified are such stars of the links as Jock Hutchinson, Gene Sarazen and other players of national reputation. Mr. Booth is entered from Putnam and his fortunes in future rounds will be watched here with interest.

Some small boy about town may yet appear as the winner of a fine touring car that was to have been given away by the Elks last Saturday evening had anyone with the properly numbered ticket appeared. This possibility was forecasted Tuesday when youngsters who have been combing the fairgrounds as with a fine tooth comb since the close of the fair found two tickets—one with the next number under the one that stands to win, another with a number next above it. These two tickets came out of the same $1 block of ten that undoubtedly contained the lucky number, and the fact that they were found in the rubbish on the grounds has led to the impression gaining ground in some quarters that some careless holder threw the entire book away as worthless after the drawing and the winning ticket and that particular ticket can be found by some diligent searcher, though, on the other hand, this theory may be all wrong.

Today (Wednesday) what is still rated by those who are involved in it as the strike of workers of the Manhasset Manufacturing company enters its tenth week. The inception of this labor trouble is now so far in the background that the average citizen has practically forgotten about it. This is brought about chiefly by reason of the fact that the big plant has continued to operate and because the strikers have been commendably peaceable and have indulged in no action intended to stir up strife, if peaceful picketing be excluded from consideration.

In the meantime numbers of those who went out on strike have found employment elsewhere and such new workers as the company has required have found employment in the big textile plant, which is running every day.

The deadlocked situation that developed when the strikers made demands, which have not been receded from, relative to the wage scale, that were not granted by the company, endures and likely will continue to endure. There has been no material change in the situation during the past month. As many of the strikers as remain here are getting regular weekly benefits from the American Federation of Textile Operatives, with which they are affiliated. They are complacent and likely will not return to the mill out of which they walked, preferring when they again seek employment to find it elsewhere.

The company is adamant against the concessions that have been asked. So it would appear that the strike will die a natural death as weeks lengthen into months as the year rolls on.

This appears to be a remarkable week for human interest stories. Jacob Baker, who lives out in the Sawyer district of the town, came to Putnam Tuesday morning with a tale of the birth of 20 police dog puppies to one mother dog out on his farm place—10 males and 10 females—this being regarded as a record. Add to this the tale of a motorist easing his machine along a country highway in the town of Pomfret and coming upon a kitten playfully engaged in a rough and tumble game with a baby woodchuck. Kitten and woodchuck evidently were pals, for after the car had disturbed them at play as it passed they returned to their pastime of slapping at each other with their paws.

Troop B, Third United States cavalry, passed through this city early Tuesday morning en route from their encampment at Webster lake the night before to the fairgrounds at Brooklyn, where they were encamped during the greater part of Tuesday and Tuesday night. About 60 men and an equal number of horses are in the outfit. They are bound from Camp Devens to Niantic, this state. Their home station is at Fort Ethan Allen, Vt.

The July session of the common council was held Tuesday evening for the reception of the usual reports and the transaction of routine business requiring the attention of the body each month.

Considerable progress is being made in the resurfacing operations under way on the state highway between this city and Pomfret railroad station. Crushed stone is being laid over the old state high surface preparatory to applying bituminous macadam.

London, Eng., despatches of Tuesday carried announcements of the engagement of Miss Emily O'Neill Davies, daughter of the late Frederick and Mrs. Davies of New York, to William H. Vanderbilt of the same city. This engagement originally was announced from this city during the past month.

Many dates during the remainder of July are reserved in various communities in eastern Windham county for lawn parties and socials in the interest of the nurses' home fund of the Day Kimball hospital of this city.

Mayor Victor Chapdelaine will leave today to spend five or six weeks at his cottage at Oakland Beach, where he already has spent some time this summer.

Having pleaded guilty to an actual sale, Joseph Dumas of Providence street was fined $200 and costs, a total of $215.14, at a session of the city court, Judge M. H. Geissler presiding, Tuesday morning.

Attorney Charles L. Torrey was in Hartford Tuesday on a business trip.

Two men were somewhat injured when the motorcycle, with sidecar, with which they were traveling crashed into a bridge on the state highway at Phoenixville Monday evening.

Several more weeks will be required to complete the reconstruction of the First National bank building, although work on the interior is now far advanced.

Holstein cattle raisers from many parts of eastern Connecticut will be at the Sayles farm in Meeanicsville Thursday to attend the meeting of the State Holstein association.

Several parties from this city were at Alexander's lake Tuesday to enjoy the fishing and a number of fine fish were taken.

Dr. and Mrs. F. T. Baldwin and Attorney and Mrs. Arthur Macdonald have taken a cottage at Webster lake for July.

HOW TO KEEP FIT AT 72

Sprightly Old Man Reveals the Secret

"I am 72 years old, and much more vigorous and active than most men of my age. I know that my excellent condition is due to the fact that I take two or three doses of Wincarnis every day, because I never felt as well before I began taking it. I used to tire very quickly and suffer from wakefulness and had to bundle myself up whenever it was damp or drafty. But since I began taking Wincarnis I have had the energy and endurance of a middle-aged man, sleep soundly and withstand the severest of weather. I have noticed that Wincarnis keeps my appetite keen and that it strengthens my nerves and heart. If my fingers tremble and my heart flutters or I feel symptoms of depression or weakness, a dose of Wincarnis gives me relief within a few minutes."

NEW LONDON FISHERMAN FINDS BODY OF UNKNOWN MAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 10.—The body of an unknown man was found floating in the Thames river this forenoon, by Vito Trangitto, of No. 51 Smith street, operator of the fishing craft Pauline. The body had apparently been in the water but about two weeks, but the facial expression was greatly marred. The man was about 35 years of age, five feet ten inches in height and was attired in clothing of good material. The only contents of the clothing was money, less than $5. The only possible means of indentification lies in a belt which bears the monogram "F."

Trangitto was headed down the harbor about 8.30 o'clock and when passing the plant of the Ship & Engine Company, observed the body a short distance from the shore. The body was towed to the municipal pier where it was examined by Medical Examiner Beyer and then removed to an undertaking establishment to await a claimant.

Two New Londoners are missing. John Pensen, formerly of No. 30 Montauk avenue and a former employe of the Wentworth bakery and an old man named Butler, who disappeared from the Pequot section about six weeks ago. It is hardly possible that the body is that of either of the missing men.

Cronin ordered the removal of punchboards from all stores several months ago, but a few of the store proprietors still permit the playing of the chance game.

As a result of the reckless discharge of a rifle on Ocean avenue last night, and because of which L. Lincoln of Willetta avenue were ordered to appear in the police court Saturday forenoon and answer the charge of discharging firearms within the city limits. Motorcycle Officer John Cavanaugh ordered the youths into court this forenoon following Mr. Watrous' complaint with City Manager Barlow. Two of the bullets of the rifles used by the youths passed through a window and imbedded themselves in a wall of one of the rooms.

Albert Caracausa is not to be prosecuted for the embezzlement of a sum of money, represented by a bank book, it is understood, which was placed in his possession by Guiseppi Laerdieu, for Tuesday in the police court the complaint was nolled. The claim will be made good in a specified time, else the case will be renewed.

Policeman Gus Ray is thanking his good fortune that he is today carrying a bullet around in his pocket instead of in his body. Ray and other officers went to arrest Louis Wyoutzky, a Pole, at his home in Eastern avenue last night. The police found that he was seeking to escape them by taking refuge in a room in the upper part of the building in which he resided. As they approached they heard shots fired, and a window was raised so they surrounded the house. Ray went up the stairway and Sergeant Hicks went to the yard just below the window that was raised. He saw that Wyoutzky was leaning out of the window and when the Pole saw the sergeant he let go a bullet at him. Ray then opened the door leading to the room Wyoutzky occupied to make an entrance, but the officer had learned by experience that it was not good judgment to get directly in front of the open door. That knowledge stood him in good stead. Ray held his searchlight away from his body and stood by the side of the door. Then came a bullet that lodged in the door casing. It was meant for Ray and would have found its mark had the officer been directly in the doorway. The officers called on the Konomoc hose apparatus that a heavy searchlight might be employed and they found that Wyoutzky had got out on the roof. He was in a pocket then and had he not come down he would have been shot. He was arrested and then it was found that he had also shot himself in the foot for the bullet was found in his shoe and a wound was on his foot. He was in court Tuesday morning, but as he had no time to consult an attorney who will defend him the attorney was allowed an adjournment of the case till Saturday. Wyoutzky is in jail because he could not furnish a bond of $3000.

William Z. White, who was the city's director of finance when the city manager form of government went into operation here, and who was employed in the financial department of the Groton Iron Works during the time the Morses were constructing ships for the government during the German war, left for Washington today to appear as a witness—an expert on the books of the company. Mr. White has been anticipating a subpoena to appear for several weeks. He is a most capable accountant.

The City National bank is going right to work to erect an addition to the building the bank occupies at the corner of Bank and Golden streets as soon as the land adjoining on Golden street is cleared. That will be in a few days for everything is now off the site but the foundation that held up the old building that had stood there so many years. The addition is to be but one story in height as that is deemed sufficient to meet the present needs of the bank. There is to be no construction for show, but every foot of it will be for use. The new section of the bank will be ready for occupancy long before the snow flies.

The Red Men installed officers this evening. Two of the officers are chosen for a year but the others are chosen for six month terms.

Charles Harvey, who was employed for a long time in the engineer department of the New York boats from this city in the years long gone by, claims to have invented a searchlight that does not require any battery. If he has the real thing Charley will get the real mazuma for his ingenuity.

The Connecticut Motor Transportation company, which is operating buses from Hartford and New London, secured the right to do that transportation from the state of Connecticut through its accredited representatives and at a large expense provided several up-to-date vehicles to do the work that might come to them. Now it seems to the company there are interlopers and the motor company presumes to stand on its rights. Sunday a week ago and last Sunday a truck of the Mack type and with William Carroll as chauffeur brought parties to New London for hire. On Sunday, July 1st, the motor company did not make objection but when the trick came to be repeated on the 8th the motor company objected to the extent that the arrest of the operator of the bus was sought and accomplished. State Policeman Putnam and Patrolman John J. Cavanaugh of New London waited for the truck and its passengers to come along and then followed it to Ocean Beach. There a couple of the passengers on the truck were solicited by Carroll to collect the fares, half of what the bus company charges. He is said ot have represented to Israel Rubinovitch and Herman Sinai that he was occupied with other duties so he asked them to collect the fares and to take the names of those who paid so that they might be taken back to Hartford when the truck departed. This was done, the representation being made that the passengers were members of a club at Hartford, and for that reason the price was split in two. This is the information the fare collectors made to the police when the arrests were made. The case was to have come to trial in the police court today, but on the representation of the accused that they desired to obtain counsel the matter was continued until Saturday and the accused gave a bond each for appearance then. Several despatches were sent to the prosecutor asking for a postponement and he moved for that disposition of the case today and it was allowed.

The Connecticut Power company, which has had an office several years on Union street in the Crocker house building, will run its lease out in a couple of years and it seems now that the company proposes to have a building of its own to go into when that lease expires. To that end the company has secured an option on the land on the corner of State and Huntington streets and will purchase it probably from Frederick W. Mercer, who bought it from the Charles A. Williams estate recently. The site is one of the best in the city and faces the county courthouse. The cutting of that land into sites for commercial houses means the extension of business up State street and means the provision of several store sites that have not heretofore been available. It means the extension of the area within which stores will be established and the possible lowering of rents, too. Mr. Mercer, when he bought the land, said that he meant to open the plot up for erection of business places, and he has kept his word. It is understood that another corporation has made an offer for another site on the plot and that a bargain for that will probably be closed in a few days.

Palmer F. Tubbs, son of Deputy Sheriff Job H. Tubbs of New London, is to be a witness in the Ward-Peters case at White Plains, N. Y. Tubbs was an employe of the Ward Baking company at the time of the killing of Peters by Ward and is supposed to know something of the habits and the relations of Ward. Tubbs is now a police commissioner at New Rochelle.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

JACK RABBIT MEETS THE GIANT BUNNY.

Let me see where we left off in the last story. Oh, now I remember. Little Jack Rabbit had said goodbye to the little white bunny and was once more upon his journey through the Ragged Giant Bunny's forest. After a mile and maybe more he heard a voice say:

"Who dares to trespass on my land Shall feel the weight of my right hand."

And the Big Bunny Giant almost stepped on Little Jack Rabbit, who scarcely reached up to the big bunny giant's boot top.

"Fe, fi, fo, fum,
I smell a stranger,
He, hi, ho hum!"

And the giant bunny gave a terrible shout, making all the trees tremble and the nuts fall off the branches. Then the giant bunny looked all around again, but he was very near-sighted and as he didn't have on his glasses, he couldn't see the bunny boy way down at his feet.

"Ah, there you are!" he said.

Creeping behind a tree, Little Jack Rabbit shouted, for it was a long ways up to the giant bunny's ears, you must remember:

"Here I am, behind a tree,
But I'm so small, you can't see me."

"What's that?" exclaimed the giant bunny, taking out his spectacles and placing them on his nose. Goodness me! These spectacles were as big as the glass windows of a candy store!

But as soon as those tremendous strong glasses were on the giant bunny's nose, he could see anything, even the little ant-hole in the ground.

"Ah, there you are!" he laughted and reaching down he picked up Little Jack Rabbit but he didn't squeeze him hard. Oh, my no! He wasn't really a bad sort of a giant bunny, you know.

"What's your name, little bunny?" he asked, sitting down on a big fallen tree. Then he began to whistle and all the little birds in the forest came flying up and perched on the trees and pretty soon they began to sing the same tune the giant bunny was whistling. Well, you should have heard it. Our little bunny boy never heard such sweet music before and when he tried to follow the tune, it made the Giant bunny laugh so hard that he couldn't whistle, so all the little birds stopped.

"Some people call me Giant Whistle," he said and took out of his pocket a photograph of his little boy. But goodness me! It may have been the picture of a giant bunny boy but to Little Jack Rabbit it looked like a big man bunny.

"He's my baby," said the giant bunny, with a laugh and then he began to sing:

"Rock a bye baby, your father is big.
He's as tall as a tree and as wide as a house.
But you're not afraid of your daddy, I know,
He wouldn't harm even a poor little mouse!"

The next story will be all about our little bunny boy and Jack o'lantern.

WALL STREET MARKING TIME

New York, July 10.—Prices worked to lower levels in today's stock market in response to a series of unfavorable domestic developments while speculative uncertainty over the outcome of the Franco-British impasse on the reparations question was reflected in the unusually small volume of trading, the dullest of any full day session this year.

Wall street apparently is marking time pending the announcement of the British policy on reparations which is expected to be made in the house of commons by Premier Baldwin on Thursday. The governmental crop report indicating an increase of $1,000,000,000 in crop value this year was favorably received by the financial community as indicating an increase in the farmers' buying power. Special significance was attached to the fact that practically all of the estimated increase is represented by higher values for cotton and corn with resultant benefit to the southern and middle western sections of the country.

The favorable effect of the crop report was counter-acted however by a decrease of nearly 90,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation, further cuts in important commodity prices including wheat, rubber, lead, sugar and Pennsylvania crude oil and further indications of decreasing production in other important industries, notably the automobile field.

While the unfilled tonnage of the steel corporation was a disappointing surprise to Wall street it actually had little effect on the steel shares. U. S. Steel common lost about a point on the day and the leading independents yielded small fractions. Upward revision of the prices of bars and various sized shapes by the Carnegie Steel company attracted more than ordinary interest. Coppers yielded with the rest of the list but some encouragement was obtained from the fact that stocks of refined copper in the hands of American producers declined 7,000,000 pounds to 197,500,000 pounds in June bringing the total on hand to less than 200,000,000 pounds for the first time since the war. Oils offered good resistance to selling pressure despite the fact that another cut in Mid-Continent crude prices is regarded as an early possibility.

Delaware & Hudson was run up to 103 1-2, or 10 points above Saturday's law, in further reflection of official assurance that no change in the $9 dividend rate was under consideration. The stock loaned at a premium, which is unusual for a railroad issue western rails were heavy.

Call money opened at 5 1-2 per cent., but softened to 4 1-2 before the close. Time money was somewhat firmer with more loans arranged at 5 1-4 per cent.

Foreign exchanges showed marked improvement. Demand sterling advanced more than a cent to $4.57 5-16 and French francs jumped nearly 10 points to 5.95 cents. German marks were $4 a million as against $3.37, the low point yesterday.

BOND MARKET

New York, July 10.—Widespread uncertainty over the ultimate trend of securities and commodities prices was reflected in the irregular and listless trading in today's bond market. U. S. government issues held firm. Foreign bonds were mixed, the French governmental and municipal issues showing slight improvement in sympathy with the higher exchange rates while Mexican 5's and Jurgen 6's each dropped a point.

uFrther recovery of the New Haven issues was the feature of the railroad list, New Haven franc 7's and New York, Westchester & Boston 4 1-2's each gaining about a point and New Haven convertible 6's advancing 1-3. Liens of some of the western roads turned heavy on the announcement of a break in wheat prices.

Some good gains were recorded in the public utilities section, Interborough Rapid Transit 6's and refunding 5's each gaining 2 1-4 points with smaller gains by other local traction company bonds. Milwaukee Electric Railway 5's also advanced a point.

Indications of a price war in the sugar industry accounted for the heaviness of sugar company bonds, Punta Alegre 7's dropping a point. Marine 6's and American Agricultural 7 12's yielded large fractions.

Total sales (par value) were $3,503,000.

WHEAT TUMBLES IN PRICE

Chicago, July 10.—Wheat tumbled in price today to $1 a bushel—figures once considered ideal from a farmer's point of view but at present said to be well below the cost of production. Prospects that the domestic spring crop would be ready to harvest before being overtaken by black rust had much to do with today's break, as did the fact that the first car of new wheat to reach Chicago this season has arrived. The market closed weak, with all months at a new low price record for the season, including September $1.00 to 1.00 1-4 and December 103 to 103 1-8. Corn finished 1-2 to 1 3-8 cents down, oats a shade to 1 1-8 a 1 1-4 cent off, and provisions at a set back ranging from 5 cents to 40 cents.

Sergeant William Rapar, of Ft. Leavenworth, who weighs 380 pounds is known as the heaviest man in the United States army.

RESERVES.

When every gate of life is wide
For all to enter in,
I with myself must still abide,
Dividing sin from sin.

Evil and good are joint-acclaimed,
And yet my soul must choose,
Let those accept both unashamed
Who have no souls to lose.

Out of the murk of things that press
Urgent, on hand and brain,
Rejecting none, I sink to less
Than saddles born in vain.

I may be kin of moth and star,
Of slug and crocus bloom,
But at my will my door I bar,
Or give such kinships room.

Mine shall not be a palace built
To house the sins of pride,
Yet lightly shall I bear the guilt
Of keeping fools outside.

Not all the rhythmic dance of seas
Or protoplasmic ooze
Forbids my soul the course it runs,
Compels what I refuse.

Though hell may be the law of space
And death the law of time,
For my brief hour I hold my place
In earth's whirled pantomime.
—Lewis Worthington Smith, in Boston Transcript.

WILLIE LAKE.

He danced through life, through many a cabaret,
At Babylonian feasts he graced the floor,
While the loud orchestra its tunes would pour
Like crimson wine, until the area of day
His face was young and weak. We used to say,
"Here is one made for laughter—nothing more,
A lad whose pagan beauty we deplore—
An Ariel, or perhaps a Dorian Gray."

Yet high above the music of the Swiss,
Young Lamb had heard the bugles
Over There,
And while we sat and dreamed, in a strange trance,
He left the shallow Broadway glitter and glare
And gave his boyish heart to stricken France.
Ah! call him light and foolish—if you dare!

—Charles Hanson Towne.

40,807 MORE MOTOR DRIVERS THIS YEAR

Receipts of the state motor vehicle department for the fiscal year ended June 30 aggregated $4,227,767.23, according to figures announced Tuesday. The total represented an increase of $818,719.38 over the receipts for the previous fiscal year and is practically double the amount of money received by the department two years ago.

An increase of 28,848 motor vehicles registered in the state, making a total of 182,272, was responsible for $624,749.65 of the gain in the department's income. Forty thousand, eight hundred and seven more operators were licensed during the year than in the previous year, accounting for $140,472 of the gain. Licensed operators of all classes numbered 208,506 at the close of the period. Fees for 48,253 examinations given by the department added $86,506 to the receipts.

While less fines were imposed by the courts for violations of the motor vehicle law, the average fine was larger. On account of 4,074 fines, $97,776.16 was collected, as against $93,356.92 collected in 4,553 fines in the previous year.

Jackie Coogan Reveals Great Genius in "Daddy"

With his appearance in "Daddy," little Jackie Coogan about completes the cycle of human emotions, for in this newest picture, written by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Coogan, the youthful genius is called upon in one scene, to sound the deepest of tragic notes. It was the performance of this role and scene that evoked from Will H. Hays his tribute of tears and the remark that "the world needs more pictures like this."

While "Daddy" sounds depths of tragedy and pathos, it is mainly devoted to the surface of smiles and laughter. Jackie, after every discouragement, plods on, and after every misfortune finds comfort; in the end he achieves complete happiness—if complete happiness is ever found!

Nobody better than Jackie's parents could write the story for him, calculated to explore every angle of the boys versatile genius. In "Peck's Bad Boy" the impishness of the lad was specially revealed; in "Trouble" the note of pathos was injected with the merriment that is Jackie's birthright; in 'My Boy" humor abounded and in "Oliver Twist" the courage, tenderness and nobility of an upright youth were revealed. In "Daddy," the call the capacity of Jackie Coogan as a tragic emotionalist is so superbly disclosed that his work in this picture will forever stamp him as one of the greatest actors of all time, regardless of age!

"Daddy" is a First National picture and will start a three run at the Strand theatre tomorow.

Round 7 of the famous Fighting Blood stories and a news weekly will also be included.

Greatest of All Railroad Stories Coming to the Broadway

"The Ninety and Nine," which will be shown at Broadway theatre tomorrow is a real smashing special and oh, what a thriller! Given first a smashing plot, full of the big scenes that lead logically, and with the utmost suspense, up to the big climax Director Smith made the most of his material.

The big, record breaking thrill is the rescue of the entire countryside from the fury of the flames, as the forest fire races towards the surrounded town. It is destined to be received as one of the finest things of its kind ever seen on the screen. Great stretches of burning forest, whole towns in flames, hundreds of men, women and children running frantically to cover. The little telegraph office is besieged with shouting, cursing, praying men, demanding an engine to take the trapped inhabitants to safety. There is not an engine on the division. Beside himself, the dispatcher remembers that an officials' engine, with a private car, is on the siding at the nearest station. But the official declares it is a fool's chance, and will not permit the use of the engine. Then the one man appears—the young derelict, who chances to be on the scene. Without hesitation he rolls the steel monster out on the main track and heads into the furnace of roaring flames ahead.

And, somehow, you sense the immense amount of expense and time required to produce this prolonged thriller, which is not a few feet of flashed disaster, but a veritable panorama of destruction, appalling in its terible grandeur.

Warner Baxter is the volunteer engine driver in this great production, and beautiful Colleen Moore is the winsome Ruth Blake who is his inspiration. There are short subjects also scheduled for the showing.

AWARDS WORKMAN'S COMPENSATION FOR DEATH OF SERGEANT JOHN KANE

After a hearing upon the claim of Mrs. Sarah H. Kane against the city of Norwich for workmen's compensation for the death of her husband, Police Sergeant John H. Kane, Commissioner J. J. Donohue has made an award of $18 per week for 312 weeks under the terms of the compensation act. The city was represented at the hearing by Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., and the claimant by Attorney C. V. James.

Sergeant Kane met instant death on the night of April 6 when he touched a cable on an electric light pole on Crescent street, from which a young man named Herbert T. Spears had just before received a fatal shock. Sergeant Kane had been sent from police headquarters to investigate the death of the Spears youth and himself fell a victim to the electric current from the city plant, which later investigation showed found its way into the cable through a cracked insulation.

In his finding Commissioner Donohue says in part:

Both parties had accepted the provisions of Part B of the workmen's compensation act, as amended, said act specifically including as an employe any paid member of any police department of any municipal corporation in the state, the decedent above mentioned being a sergeant in the police department of the city of Norwich.

The average weekly wages were $37.50.

On the 6th day of April of the present year, John H. Kane while on duty was sent by his superior offices in the police department to investigate a sudden death which had occurred in Norwich, and while making the investigation, in the exercise of all due care on his part, came in contact with a cable on a pole used for the support of an electric street light which in some manner had become charged with electricity and from such contact received an electrical shock which resulted in his death immediately. Said fatal injury arose out of and in the course of his employment.

The facts in the case have all been agreed upon by both parties, the hearing being requested that an award for compensation might be filed.

In view of the evidence, it is found that the claimant is entitled to the maximum amount provided by the act for the period allowed for fatal injuries, also the payment of $100 toward the funeral expenses, and the payment of any reasonable medical bills incurred by reason of said fatal injury.

Whereupon, it is hereby awarded, adjudged and decreed that the respondent employer shall forthwith pay to the claimant through her attorney, Charles V. James, compensation at the rate of $18 a week from April 7, 1923, to July 6, 1923, inclusive, or a period of 13 weeks, amounting to $234; and that the same amount of $18 shall be paid weekly from July 7, 1923, by check, directly to the claimant, at whatever address she may from time to time furnish, for the remainder of the 312 week period, also that the respondent-employer shall pay any reasonable medical bill incurred because of the fatal injury sustained by said John H. Kane, and also the sum of $100 toward the payment of funeral expenses, this award being subject to modification in case of the re-marriage or death of the claimant within the 312 week period.

EASTERN POINT MAN'S DEATH RELEASES $1,000,000 TRUST FUND

An accounting suit filed in the supreme court in New York Monday, shows that several titled persons will share in the principal of a trust fund estimated at more than $1,000,000, provided by the will of Mrs. Anna J. Watson, who died in 1918. Her will set aside the residue in trust for her husband, George H. Watson, who died recently at Groton, Conn., and directed that upon his death the principal was to be divided among her children and her heirs at law.

The suit filed yesterday is brought by the estate of George H. Watson as trustee against all the heirs, and names among others the children of Mrs. Watson's niece, Fannie M. Garner, now deceased, who was the wife of C. Oliver Iselin, including the Countess Colloredo-Mannsfield of Vienna, who was Nora Iselin; C. Oliver Iselin Jr. and Adrian Iselin.

Other heirs of Mrs. Watson interested in the fund are Marcellita, the Marquise de Breteuil of Paris, a niece; Fanny, Lady Vernon, niece, who was adjudged incompetent some years ago and is now living at Pau, France; the Countess Edith de Moltke-Huitfeidt of Paris, a niece; the Princess Poniatowski, grandniece; Kitty L. Harriman, grandniece, and William Garner Lawrence, nephew, who is incompetent and lives at Pau.

The complaint asks that the accounts of the trustee be approved and that the court determine how much of a reserve fund established by Mr. Watson is to be drawn upon in settling the accounts. It is stated that Mr. Watson set aside the reserve fund for the purpose of meeting any losses due to the depreciation of securities held in the trust fund.

Because the majority of the defendants are abroad, Justice McCook signed an order to serve the papers on them by publication.

CONNECTICUT HEATH HENS AMONG SPECIES DISAPPEARING

As soon as the twenty-nine surviving male heath hens die, it appears highly probable that the species will be extinct, according to the announcement made this week by Dr. William T. Hornaday, trustee of the Permanent Wild Life Protection Fund and director of the New York Zoological park. Heath hens are second cousins to the prairie chickens.

"The fate of this bird tragedy forecasts a similar tragedy for the quail," Dr. Hornaday said. "Unless immediate steps are taken by state legislatures to reduce radically the present open seasons and bag limits, and to make bird preserves, the quail is absolutely certain to disappear in our time, and generations of future sportsmen will be deprived of the perfectly normal diversion of quail hunting."

It is reported that Professor A. O. Gross of Bowdoin college at Brunswick, Me., recently investigated the surviving stock of heath hens and found only twenty-nine birds, all of which were males.

About 1916 many if not all, the females of the species were destroyed on their nests when a ground fire swept over the 2,000-acre sanctuary at Tisbury on Martha's Vineyard, Mass. For years efforts have been made by several Eastern States to preserve the species and by State bods East and West to preserve the pinnated grouse of prairie chicken, familiar to millions of Americans, but which now also, according to Dr. Hornaday, is threatened with the same extinction as its near cousin.

The Heath hen originally inhabited the open plains of New York, especially Long Island and New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine. Being adverse to forest life, this grouse was easily hunted and killed in its open country haunts.

RECEPTION TO GREET SWEDISH LUTHERAN PASTOR

Members of the Swedish Lutheran Salem church on Hickory street held a reception Saturday evening at the church in honor of their new pastor, Rev. Henning L. Johnson and wife. The programme of the evening was in charge of Clarence Melin of Upsala College, Kenilworth, N. J., who delivered the address of welcome to Rev. and Mrs. Johnson. Mr. Melin also later in the evening presented Rev. Johnson a purse of gold, the gift of the congregation, and friends. Mrs. Johnson also received a present, a large bouquet of flowers. Rev. Mr. Johnson responded briefly, thanking the members of the church for their royal welcome and expressing a desire that his pastorate here might always be so cordial.

The programme besides the address and speeches consisted of two piano duets rendered by Miss Edna Hansen of Norwich and Miss Mabel Hjulstrom of Worcester, formerly a resident of Norwich.

Mrs. Hugo P. Piberg, formerly of Norwich, studying music in New York city, favored her audience with two groups of solos, also sang a duet with her father, Richard Pearson. The singing of Mrs. Piberg was greatly enjoyed by her audience and she rendered all her numbers in excellent voice. The accompanist was Mrs. Christman of New London.

After the entertainment the members of the congregation and their friends enjoyed refreshments in the lower parlors, after which a social hour was spent and Rev. and Mrs. Johnson met the church people.

The church was handsomely decorated in oak leaves and red ramblers with a mass of palms grouped at the front of the platform. The decorating was done by Carl O. Johnson, who also had charge of decorating the lower parlors which were charming in oak leaves and Dorothy Perkins' ramblers, the color scheme being of pink and white.

The general reception committee comprised Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Dahl, Mrs. George O. Benson, Mrs. Valentine Pierson, Walter Pierson, Charles Hansen and Victor Tongren. The decorating committee included the following: Miss Ida Peterson, Dorothy and Elsie Pearson, Miss Edna Hansen and Miss Viola Johnson.

The refreshment committee comprised: Mrs. George O. Benson, Mrs. Oscar Dahl, Mrs. John Lindroth and Mrs. O. T. Erickson.

The church council is made up of the following members of the church who took part in the welcoming service Saturday evening: Herman Nilson, Alfred Tongren, Oscar Anderson, Josef Peterson, Oscar Dahl, Charles W. Pearson, secretary; Victor Tongren, treasurer, Charles Ericson, Charles Hansen and Theodore Eliason.

UNIVERSALIST PICNIC HAS VARIED EXPERIENCES

The picnic of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, Tuesday, provided the members of the church with varied experiences aside from those scheduled for the annual outing. The members boarded the steamer Nelseco I and all went well until the boat had gone half way down the river when it suddenly grounded on a sandbar. The members took the stop in their trip calmly and waited patiently while the crew worked hard to get the boat off the bar. This being done, the trip was resumed to Crescent Beach where the picnic was to be held. Here another mishap, this time low tide prevented the carrying out of the original schedule for the Nelseco could not dock.

Not giving up, the boat again put out to sea and took the picnickers to Ocean Beach and alas, the dock was under construction and there was no landing here. Prevailing on the good graces of the men at work on the pier the Nelseco finally effected a landing and the church people stepped ashore to enjoy what was left of the day.

A most enjoyable outing was had despite the several mishaps, all of which went to make the trip more eventful.

WARREN LEE GOSS' NEWEST BOOK A PATRIOTIC TALE

The first copies of the latest book by Warren Lee Goss, "Jack Gregory," are reaching his Norwich friends, and those who have read the attractive volume are willing to agree with the critics who pronounce it the very best book which Mr. Goss has ever written. This fact has particular significance, since the industrious author is now in his 88th year.

Jack Gregory is a stirring, red-blooded tale, of a real boy's adventures, beginning at the period just before the Revolutionary war. It is elegantly illustrated in colors. In Mr. Goss' opinion, the American revolution was the most momentous event in history; its Declaration of Independence is the keynote of liberty; its national Constitution a successful experiment in making life, liberty and social advancement secure under the influence of laws made by those who are to obey them.

Much of the matter of the book is drawn from a study of the town and church records of Norwalk, Conn.'s patriotic town which Bancroft states furnished for defense during the Revolution, more men in proportion to its people than any other town of all the colonies.

But the action of the story is by no means confined to patriotic Norwalk, but moves briskly and absorbingly to New Haven, Norwich and other towns of the Connecticut colony, then up into Massachusetts, where there are adventurous experiences about Cambridge Green, Bunker Hill, Dorchester Heights and other historic spots, until Jack Gregory so well and so valiantly comports himself that he becomes an aide to General Washington—an honor to make a live boy's nerves tingle.

There are stirring times on Long Island, at Princeton and other points, and a vivid description of the burning of Norwalk, with side information regarding mutinies, thrilling rescues, finally the march to victory, the surrender of Cornwallis and the solemn though joyous homecoming, with a later climax of the pretty romance which runs through the interesting tale.

Although this book is just issued, busy Mr. Goss has recently put the finishing touches to another book for boys—and who knows—may go on writing tales of patriotism and adventure and entertainment until he rounds out a century. At any rate, his numerous friends in and about Norwich—for so many years his home town—will hope that his industrious pen may keep steadily and successfully at work for many years to come.

DEFIANT YOUTHS SAY "PROVE IT ON US."

Police Chief Gordon of Manchester and the merchant whose store had been burglarized Monday night arrived here Tuesday afternoon by automobile and went to the Norwich jail where they questioned Lawrence Freeman, 18, colored, and Joseph McNulty, 21, white, the two Providence youths accused of the theft.

Before going to the jail to see the two men, the Manchester merchant looked over at police headquarters and positively identified the fountain pens, cigar and cigarette holders, opera glass and watch that were found on the two when they were arrested in Westerly Monday night.

At the jail, the two burglars denied about everything with which they are charged, including the burglary, the ride to Willimantic by bicycles and the theft of the Norwich truck. After being caught in a dozen lies in their answers to questions, they took refuge in this answer: "We ain't going to tell nothing. If you've got anything on us, prove it."

HEALTH FOR WORKING WOMEN

Let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Help You to Become Well.

Thousands of girls have to work in homes, offices, stores, mills or factories who are physically unfit for work, with often an aged or invalid father or mother dependent upon them for support. Standing all day—week in and week out, or sitting in cramped positions a girl often contracts some deranged condition of her organic system which calls a halt to her progress and demands restoration to health before she can be of use to herself or anyone else.

For these distressing weaknesses and derangements these girls have found health to do their work in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"Like many girls, I had troubles every month," says Carolyne Mangels, "and they interfered with my work as I could never be sure of my time. My mother often suggested that I take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but I never did until lately. I have had very good results, and am now a private secretary and do my work without missing a day. I recommend your medicine to every girl who speaks of having troubles like I have had."—CAROLYNE MANGELS, 407 14th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Office Worker Helped

Milwaukee, Wis.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine for three and a half years, and they have improved my health wonderfully. My mother also has taken the Vegetable Compound and we recommend it to our friends. I am working in an office now and can always do my work as I do not have the troubles I had at first. I read of your Vegetable Compound in the newspaper and you may use my letter in that way if you wish to do so."—ELEANOR SHEBLAK, 537 36th St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Pains and Headache

Webster, Mass.—"I was all run-down, had a bad complexion, and suffered with pains and backache, and was dizzy at times and felt weak. I worked in a mill and my girl chum told me about your wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am feeling much better since taking it."—MARY PLAZA, 13 West Street, Webster, Mass.

FRENCH PARLIAMENT HAS RATIFIED NAVAL TREATY

Washington Naval Limitation Treaty and Four-Power Pacific Plan Are Ratified by Overwhelming Votes—France Financially Unable to Build Up to Limit of Capital Ship Program During Life of Washington Agreement—Poincare Reminds French Senate That Treaty Applies Exclusively to Capital Ships—Senator Lemery Claims Treaty Establishes France's Present Naval Inferiority as Permanent.

Paris, July 11—(By the A. P.)—The French parliament completed ratification of the Washington naval limitation treaty and the four-power Pacific accord by overwhelming votes, in the senate this evening. The naval limitation treaty was ratified with but three dissenting votes while the Pacific accord was approved immediately after, unanimously and without debate.

The vote was passed largely by proxy as the stifling heat kept most of the senators away. The French objections to any restriction were voiced, but the trend of the discussion was that France was financially unable to build even up to the limit of the capital ship program during the life of the Washington agreement and the opposition was mainly sentimental. Speakers insisted, however, that it must be definitely understood that the treaty did not restrict the building of lighter craft and submarines on which the French expect to spend most of their naval appropriations.

The report of the senate naval commission was the strongest feature of the opposition. Reporter Lemery objecting to what he termed the capitalization of France's after-war naval weakness with the control of the seas given to Great Britain, America and Japan.

The senate's approval has been accepted as little more than a formality, particularly as the government was able to hurry these principal treaties through the chamber of deputies with little pronounced opposition, but Premier Poincare, seconded by Albert Sarraut, one of the French delegates to Washington, was nevertheless on hand ready to enter the debate if necessary.

The premier made only one observation. He reminded the senate that the treaty applied exclusively to capital ships, as the French viewpoint had carried the day at Washington with Marine Halberti made a straightforward statement of the government's belief that the treaty permitted all the naval construction financially possible for France.

Dominique Delahye, royalist, speaking in opposition to the treaties, said: "Ratification won't put us back in the good graces of the United States, but will only make them think that we yield easily. We ought rather to make a show of resistance."

Senator Lemery, reporter for the naval commission, who complained that the treaty established France's present naval inferiority as permanent, said:

"England retains command of the seas in all parts of the world where she has naval bases. The United States has command in the new world waters and a great part of the Pacific. Japan shares with these two powers in the supremacy of the world's seas. France is put on equality with Italy, although she is not simply a Mediterranean power like our neighbor. It is forgotten that France is also an oceanic power and has a role to play in the North sea. At least there might have been added to the 175,000 tons accorded the equivalent of the 80,000 tons allowed Germany in the North sea. It is France who is asked to sacrifice the most."

WASHINGTON NOW WAITS DEPOSITS OF RATIFICATION

Washington, July 11—The French senate's ratification today of the Washington naval treaty and the four power pact completes the steps necessary to put the agreements into force except for the deposits of ratifications by all the signatories in Washington. It is not known nor is it certain how much time will be required for all of the other powers to send here all the papers necessary for the final act of putting the Washington conference agreements into effect.

The method of deposit and announcment of the effective date of the treaties is provided for in the documents themselves. Article XXIV of the naval treaty says:—

"The present treaty shall be ratified by the contracting powers in accordance with their respective constitutional methods and shall take effect on the date of the deposit of all the ratifications, which shall take place at Washington as soon as possible. The present treaty shall remain deposited in the archives of the government of the United States, and duly certified copies thereof shall be transmitted by that government to the other contracting powers."

Various provisions of the treaty take effect at prescribed periods of time calculated from the date of the deposit of ratifications. Vessels of war to be scrapped must be rendered incapable of further warlike service within six months and the "scrapping shall be finally effected" within 18 months. The replacement program for capital ships, however, is not dependant upon the date of ratification. But is set forth in a chart fixing the year in which replacement keels may be laid down for each such ship.

It is provided in the final article of the four power treaty that the agreement "shall be ratified as soon as possible and shall take effect on the deposit of ratifications, which shall take place at Washington." On the same day under the terms of the article, the Anglo-Japanese alliance, long looked upon with suspicion in the United States, will terminate.

Documentary credentials are required by custom in the case of all the plenipotentiaries who participate in the deposit of ratifications, so that it is thought unlikely that the ceremony can take place for two or three weeks at the earliest.

BOY KILLED WHEN TUBE TRAINS COLLIDE

Newark, N. J., July 11—Giovanni Parillo, fifteen year old messenger, was instantly killed and five other persons were injured shortly after noon today, when a west-bound Hudson and Manhattan tube train collided head on with an east-bound train 1,000 feet east of the Harrison station.

Railroad officials charged that the motorman of the west-bound train, ran past signals set against him to permit the east-bound train, which was empty, to switch over from the main track.

The Parillo boy, who was standing in the front vestibule of the first car of the west-bound train, was crushed to death in the wreckage. An emergency call was sent immediately to Newark hospitals and the train crew and passengers worked frantically to extricate the injured who were wedged in the wreckage.

Just how the accident occurred has not been explained. Both motormen blame each other, and each in turn blamed the towerman who is supposed to control the movement of all trains in and out of the Newark terminal.

The motorman of the east-bound train said his brakes refused to work.

INDIANS IN DISPUTE OVER MONEY DIVISION

Cass Lake, Minn., July 11—Throwing aside traditions and resorting to the more modern methods of settling disputes through the medium of a convention, more than a thousand Chippewa Indians, including the mixed bloods were prepared to fight out their differences here today.

The controversy over the rights of the mixed bloods dates far back into the history of Minnesota and centers for the most part over the division of money from the federal government obtained through the sale of timber and the right of the mixed bloods to sit in council with their full blooded brethren.

Many of the Indians brought their own tents and are camping on the outskirts of the city along the lake shore.

FIRE THROWS 15,000 EMPLOYES OUT OF WORK

Haverhill, Mass., July 11.—Fifteen thousand persons were thrown out of work temporarily by a fire here today which destroyed the Thom's hat factory building and cut off power transmission to five nearby factories. The fire loss was estimated at $30,000.

Clifton Hoyt, a member of the Haverhill fire department, was critically injured soon after returning to the station from the fire. In bringing down dry hose from a tower a pulley fell 80 feet, striking him on the head and fracturing his skull.

DENIES DOUGHERTY REWROTE COAL REPORT

Atlantic City, N. J., July 11.—Anthracite operators and miners who are trying to work out a new wage agreement to become effective September 1, today drifted into a discussion of the demand for the weighing of coal where it is now paid for by the car and for readjustment of the present dockage and penalty system which the miners declared is unjust. No conclusion was reached.

The miners asked whether the operators had any further argument to make on the question of recognition of the union, contained in demand No 1. It is understood the operators made no specific reply, but suggested that the miners give them a resume of their reasons for all the demands presented.

It was stated that the conferees had "agreed in principle" that there should be no unjust dockage but that no conclusion had been reached on what constituted just dockage.

The sub-committee which is negotiating on the new contract will meet again tomorrow an may adjourn on Friday, July 13. Adjournment over next week would be for the purpose of allowing scale committeemen of the United Mine Workers to attend the biennial conference of District 1 at Wilkesbarre beginning Monday.

The committee today placed in the minutes of the proceedings a letter from Charles N. Neill, a member of the United States coal commission denying the published report that Attorney General Daugherty had rewritten the report of the commission so as to conform with the labor policy of the Harding administration.

MINISTER RESIGNS AS FEDERATION EXECUTIVE

Boston, July 11—Rev. George L. Paine, who engaged in a scuffle with Lieutenant Wesley McLaren Hague, U. S. N., on Monday when the latter administered what he termed a thrashing because the clergyman had kissed his wife, tendered his resignation as executive of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches at a special meeting today of the board of directors of the federation. The sexteen directors present voted to defer action upon the resignation until a subsequent meeting when all the board's 32 members shall be present.

ANOTHER DRIVE TO MAKE NEW YORK DRY

Seize 300 Gallons Of Alleged Alcohol

Concealed Under Truck Load of Vegetables in Front of Berlin Town Hall—Driver and Companion Held on Liquor Law Violation Charges.

Meriden, Conn., July 11.—A cargo of 300 gallons of alleged alcohol in barrels, concealed under a truck load of vegetables was seized in front of the Berlin town hall tonight by the state police who arrested the driver and a companion on charges of illegal transportation of liquor.

Attention was drawn to the load by the fact that it seemed strange for fresh vegetables to be in transit by truck to New York as was indicated by the license plates. The driver said he started from Boston. A similar catch was made near the same place Monday night when 996 gallons were found under a truck load of furniture.

NO OFFICIAL WORD FROM PREMIER BALDWIN

Washington, July 11.—(By The A. P.)—If Premier Baldwin has decided to suggest American participation in a reparations settlement, as hinted in some despatches from abroad, neither American officials nor diplimatic circles here have been advised of the decision.

Heretofore, it was pointed out tonight, the allied statesmen have not cared to risk the chance of American refusal of an invitation to take part in a conference on the subject. In view of the attitude of the administration in the past, it has been expected here all along that the United States would merely be informed completely as to whatever the British project may be, with the door to American participation left open in case this government itself desires to take the initiative.

So far as revealed here, the American attitude remains just what it was when Secretary Hughes, in a speech at New Haven, some months ago, made the suggestion that a conference of economic authorities be organized to determine Germany's capacity to pay and the best methods of payment. Mr. Hughes made no commitment on the part of the United States government to official participation such a procedure but hinted that private American enterprise might find it possible to help.

At the state department rigid silence has been maintained by officials with respect to all the recent developments which led to Premier Baldwin's determination to set out an independent policy for his government in dealing with the German reparations situation. In the absence from London of Ambassador Harvey, there is little ground to assume that the Washington government has received any detailed advices as to the cabinet discussions there during the past few days.

Mr. Harvey has prolonged his stay in the United tates beyond the date he set originally for his return, but state department officials profess ignorance as to the reason for cancellation of his original sailing plans. The ambassador has conferred with Secretary Hughes within the last few days, and it is safe to say that their conversations have taken account of the latest developments in the reparations tangle. It has been said officially, however, that Mr. Harvey was not summoned to Washington for the conference, but came on his own volition to talk over various subjects preparatory to his return to London.

PRESIDENT HARDING ARRIVES AT SKAGWAY

Skagway, Alaska, July 11.—(By the A. P.)—This now small but once world-known town lying at the head of Lynn canal with the visit of President Harding and the members of his party today got its greatest thrill since the memorable days of '97 and '98 when hardy and adventurous men by the thousands came here bound for the Yukon and a fortune. The transport Henderson, bearing the president's Alaska party arrived here at noon after a short trip from Juneau.

Members of the president's party found Skagway a picturesque little town with a population of 500 nestling among the glacier-crowned mountain peaks, quiet, with only a few reminders of the time when it was known as one of the "wildest and gayest" places of the frontier. Here it was that those who had come under the "spell of the Yukon" outfitted for the toilsome climb over the summit of White Pass and thence to brave the dangers of miles canyon, White Horse rapids, Five Finger and Rink rapids and other perils met by those seeking the yellow metal.

The rain which marked yesterday's visit to Juneau had ceased and the sun often broke through the clouds revealing the beauties of the glaciers reaching down from the mountains along Lynn canal. While in Skagway the president went to the hotel kept by Mrs. H. S. Pullen, whose son Royal, now a colonel in the United States army, was a famous football captain a few years ago at West Point.

At the hotel the president made a brief address in which he spoke of the romance of Skagway's history. Mrs. Harding was presented with several bouquets of flowers, among them one of great dahlias with blooms nearly a foot in diameter.

The Henderson sailed this afternoon for Seward, on Resurrection bay.

LITTLE CHANGE IN TELEPHONE STRIKE

Boston, July 11.—Governor Cox today called President Matt D. Jones of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company into conference at the state house and discussed the present strike of telephone operators which was called on June 26 to enforce demands for a seven hour day and higher wages. The governor tonight stated that he did not contemplate any immediate action as the result of his conference but said he was merely keeping in touch with the strike situation.

To the public it appeared today that there was little change in the situation.

In Lawrence, Springfield, Worcester and in Rhode Island cities the centers hardest hit by the strike, conditions were represented as slightly better, but with service still a little below normal. In Greater Boston where a large number of unionized operators remained at work as the result of a split in their ranks, the public continued to feel little inconvenience.

Charge Use of Mails to Defraud

Indictments Returned Against Five New York Stock Brokers by Federal Grand Jury—Two Others Charged With Conspiracy to Obstruct Justice.

New York, July 11.—Acting Federal Attorney Clark today announced that sealed indictments were returned ten days ago by the federal grand jury, charging use of the mails to defraud against Edward M. Fuller, William F. McGee, Charles H. Clarkson, John C. Fegley, and James Mimnaugh, stock brokers. William J. Fallon, a lawyer, and Charles W. Rendigs, a juror, were indicted, charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice and with giving and taking a bribe.

The indictments, it was announced, were returned after an investigation of six weeks into the affairs of Charles H. Clarkson & Co., brokers. It was declared E. M. Fuller confessed buckeeteer, and his partner, William F. McGee had been instrumental in forming the Clarkson firm.

It was pointed out that Fuller, some weeks ago, promised to make a full statement in regard to the affairs of his own firm provided he was granted full immunity. This was refused by United States District Attorney Hayward because the broker's connection with Clarkson & Co. was already under investigation.

The indictments naming Fallon and Rendigs was said to be in connection with a trial in October, 1922, of Durrell-Gregory & Co. and others charged with using the mails to defraud in connection with the sale of stock of the American Tire corporation.

Mr. Clark said he as sure Rendigs and Fallon would surrender tomorrow morning. Fuller and McGee are in Ludlow street jail for contempt of court. As to the others named Mr. Clark said he had no doubt but that they would appear voluntarily.

James Mimnaugh, it is alleged, was a member of the firm of Hedberg & Co., another brokerage house, and that through him Bedberg & Co., assisted Clarkson & Co., in trading against customers' orders. Mimnaugh, it is charged, gave Clarkson & Co., confirmation slips and other data, indicating that Clarkson & Co., was conducting a legitimate business.

The bribe alleged to have been given by Fallon to Rendigs, the juror, amounted to $1,000 and, it is charged, was passed for a verdict of "not guilty" November 6, 1922. It is further charged that in offering and giving the bribe Fallon was acting in behalf of Alfred De W. Blum, one of the defendants. Blum is not named in the new indictments.

The eleven counts of the indictment naming the five brokers were found on the complaints of eleven victims. Among the victims were C. H. Campbell, of Logansport, Ind.; D. Flett, Elmira, N. Y.; F. H. Kubicek, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; J. W. Arnold, Northampton, Mass.; and G. H. Cummings of Geneva, N. Y. The rest were residents of New York.

Clarkson & Co., according to the indictments, sold stocks on partial payment plan.

They advertised, it is alleged, that they acted as commission brokers only and that they would purchase stocks ordered by their customers and carry it for them as long as sufficient margin was on deposit.

These statements, the indictment avers, were 'pretences, representations and promises" and were "false."

The money received from the victims was converted, it is charged, to the use of the corporation and of the defendants who took salaries, commissions "and got money in other ways" from the fund.

FLORIDA RUM RUNNING ARTICLES "FAIRY STORIES"

Miami, Fla., July 11.—Characterizing the feature articles on Florida rum running as "fairy stories," Fred W. Pine, county solicitor of Dade county, declared here today that liquor laws are beter enforced in Miami than in Chicago, where he spent three weeks recently and found liquor on sale openly in barrooms without any subterfuge. "In Miami," he said, "A man must be pretty well known to a bootlegger in order to buy liquor."

He said that the claim that a boat loaded with 40,000 cases of liquor from Nassau tied up nose-to-nose with a revenue cutter at the city docks was ridiculous on its face, because no vessel with a capacity of anything like that amount of liquor had ever come into this port from the Bahamas.

That it would be possible for liquor to be smuggled into the Miami port as charged by the Chicago Daily News writer, was admitted by David Tyre, chief collector of the United States customs of this port today. He said that no night inspectors are provided here and as many boats arrive at night from the Bahama and there is no quarantine station, they land and thereby have plenty of time to bring liquor ashore before customs inspectors arrive at the docks in the day. The only time the local revenue cutter was tied up to a liquor boat at the city docks, he said, was when the cutter was guarding the British ship Esther Grey with 350 cases on board.

ENGLAND NOT WILLING TO WITHDRAW ALL WARSHIPS

Turks Raise New Difficulties at Near East Peace Conference—British Insist on Right to Keep Two Cruisers in Straits Pending Ratification of Straits Convention—Ismet Pasha Strenuously Contests British Stand Declaring it is Against Spirit of Treaty—Night Session of Delegates Breaks Up Without Reaching Agreement—Impression Prevails That American Representatives Are Not Satisfied With Phrasing of Protocol on Concessions.

Lausanne, July 11 (By the A. P.)—The Turks have damped the rejoicings of the Near East conference by raising new difficulties; they want all the British warships withdrawn from the straits simultaneously with the troops but the British today insisted on their right to keep two cruisers pending ratification of the straits convention. The British say they are willing to move all warships when Angora ratifies the treaty, but desire the right to come back with "up to two cruisers."

Although exhausted by long months of negotiations, Ismet Pasha strenuously contested the British contention during a session which lasted well into the night, declaring that this was against the spirit, if not against the letter, of the treaty. The session broke up without agreement; all the delegates said afterwards that it was most unsatisfactory. Another attempt to come to terms will be made tomorrow.

The special protocol relating to evacuation was drafted and agreed to in principle at 2 o'clock Monday morning, but afterwards the Turkish experts discovered that they had forgotten to say anything about the naval forces, hence the new controversy. This oversight has made the Turks wary of other matters, and the experts will gather again tomorrow to go over the question on which an accord is supposed to have been reached.

Although no confirmation is obtainable, the impression prevails that the American representatives are not altogether satisfied with the phrasing of the protocol on concessions, more particularly the clause granting priority rights to any foreign company in any future contracts. The American delegates said tonight that the negotiations for the revision of the Turco-American treaties were proceeding normally and they hoped to be able to obtain definite results within a few days. Already there than thirty meetings have been held with the Turks.

SAYS ANDERSON "SPLIT" ON PHILLIPS' COMMISSIONS

New York, July 11—William M. Potter, of McAllen, Texas, former assistant treasurer of the State Anti-Saloon league, appeared as a witness today but "unwilling" witness before the grand jury today, and was reported to have added his corroboration to the story on which Assistant District Attorney Pecora is seeking the indictment of William H. Anderson, league superintendent, for extortion, forgery and grand larceny.

Testifying for more than an hour, Potter was reported to have gone exhaustively into the financial affairs of the league, confirming the testimony of O. Bertsall Phillips, formerly a solicitor for the league, that Anderson had collected a "fifty-fifty split" on Phillips' commissions and ordered the books of the league falsified to cover up the transaction. Referring to the books, it was understood, he pointed out the places where he had charged up to Phillips' expense account a payment of $2,500 made to Anderson.

It is on this alleged transaction that the charges of extortion and forgery are based. The grand larceny charge is based on collection by Anderson of $24,700 for "publicity," the nature of which he has refused to explain.

The only other witness heard by the grand jury today was the Rev. Dr. Caleb Moor, secretary of the league. Both Potter and Dr. Moor were directed to return for further examination tomorrow.

FACES CHARGE OF $15,000 EMBEZZLEMENT

Philadelphia, July 11.—A warrant charging embezzlement was sworn out today against William A. Rossiter, bookkeeper for the estate of the late Charlemagne Tower, former ambassador to Germany, Rossiter disappeared the evening of June 29. It was revealed that Charlemagne Tower, Jr., had sworn to a similar warrant on the days ago. The two warrants specify all charge embezzlements totaling $15,000.

Today's warrant issued on an affidavit by Julius A. Bailey, one of the trustees of the original embezzlement Tower estate, left by the father of the former ambassador, who died a few months ago. Rossiter, besides being bookkeeper for the estate, was secretary to the ambassador.

Such speculations as Rossiter is alleged to have made were not from the main Tower fortune, but from the current expense funds which he, as bookkeeper, handled. Rossiter had no access to the main fortune, it was said.

J., July 11.—A verdict of murder in the first degree was returned tonight by the jury in the trial of Manfredo Grasso and Anthony Bandowitz, both of Brooklyn, who were charged with the killing of William Bishop, Jr., a Camden taxicab driver. ONLY THREE DESERTERS FOUND ON LEVIATHAN

Southampton, July 11.—(By the A. P.)—Instead of hundreds of deserters from ships of the British mercantile marine, said among the chew of the Leviathan, as asserted by English ex-sailors, a twelve-hour search today by the immigration authorities revealed only three men upon whom summonses could be served. Cost of these is questionable.

Despite the failure of the police who boarded the Leviathan to serve nineteen of the summonses Cunard officials were undismayed in their efforts to stem desertion from British ships. Nineteen more summonses were served on Atlantic ocean people. Officers of the company say the police will attempt to serve tomorrow.

At the immigration office it was made known that officials of the White Star line tomorrow will ask the police to search the crew list of the Leviathan for discharges from the ships. Officials are most hopeful no rest for the crews of the two liners who were busy all day handling their supplies and span for the impending party tomorrow when leaders in the British shipping world and diplomatic and consular officials in London will be guests of the United States shipping board.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate the visitors who are expected to inspect the ship Saturday when the guests of honor will be entertained at a fee of 18 pence each. The total receipts, which the American officials anticipate will amount to about $700, will be donated to local charity.

WEALTHY PUBLISHER SUED FOR SEPARATION

New York, July 11—Courtland H. Young, wealthy head of the Young Publishing company, publishers of a group of magazines, was sued for separation today by his 21 year-old wife of three years.

Answering her allegations that his conduct and associates had caused mental suffering, which were admitted, Young laid the blame on a "mother-in-law," Mrs. S. A. Campbell, who, he declared, had converted his daughter to "the gospel of free love for women and their equal rights with men other than husband."

Mrs. Young charged her husband with "cruelty and that on one occasion he struck and choked her." She also charged that he had threatened to "beat me up" and that on one occasion she was expelled from a hotel in Southampton, Long Island, on account of her conduct. Young declared his income was over $100,000 a year and that but for his domestic difficulties he could make much more.

Supreme Court Justice Lydon, at a previous hearing, allowed her $725 a month alimony and $5,500 counsel fees pendente lite.

FIRPO-WILLARD BOUT EXPECTED TO RIVAL DEMPSEY-CARPENTIER GO

New York, July 11—(By the A. P.)—Fit and ready for their 12-round battle tomorrow night in the big pine bowl at Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City, Jess Willard, former champion of the world, and Luis Angel Firpo, the pride of the Argentine, will be the principals in what is expected to be one of the greatest ring dramas in years.

Popular interest in the match, the star attraction of a five-bout heavyweight card, has broken all records for a contest in which no championship is involved. But while no title hinges upon the outcome, the fact that Firpo and Willard, two of the most striking personalities the fistic game has ever known, will fight for the right to meet Jack Dempsey in a championship struggle has focused unusual attention on the bout.

Tex Rickard has signed Willard and Firpo to contracts containing the stipulation that the winner fights Dempsey and the promoter expects to come to terms with the champion's manager, Jack Kearns, within a few days.

Will Rival Dempsey-Carpentier Bout

From indications tonight, the fight will have a background rivalling in size and color the Dempsey-Carpentier spectacle two years ago in the same arena. The advance sale of tickets tonight approximated $5,000, it was announced, with the receipts close to $250,000. There remained, however, 27,000 reserved seats, ranging in price from $2.50 to $11, together with 30,000 tickets at $1 and $2 which will go on sale late tomorrow afternoon for the general admission sections. The reserved seat sale will be resumed tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at both Madison Square Garden and Boyle's Thirty acres.

Paid attendance for the Dempsey-Carpentier match amounted to 72,328, although the entire number of spectators, including employes, police and others, was about 90,000. Thus a sell-out for tomorrow night's bout would mean a new record, not only for boxing but for any athletic arena in the country.

Many Notables at Ringside

Prominent figures in national, state and municipal public life, together with a throng of society folk and other notables, will occupy ringside seats. Governor Silzer, of New Jersey, was among box holders. Past and present luminaries of the prize ring will include two former heavyweight titleholders, Jack Johnson and Jim Corbett. Delegation of Firpo's supporters from South and Central America will bring a new element to fistic fandom.

Rickard has perfected plans for handling a record crowd. He will have 500 ushers, 300 policemen in uniform and 300 plainclothes men in the arena to handle the throng. All available means of transportation, ferries, tubes and trolleys, will be augmented, while special trains from larger eastern cities, as well as several from the west, will carry fans close to the bowl.

Willard a Slight Favorite

Willard may enter the ring a slight favorite, experts conceded tonight, despite the fact that a few weeks ago his opponent was favored by a majority of boxing followers, in ring prowess, stamina and hitting power, they are closely matched. Willard's advantages in height, weight and reach offsetting Firpo's youth and aggressiveness.

Both fighters had light workouts today. Neither is required to make weight, but they will jump on the scales at the arena at 7.30 o'clock. Willard is expected to enter the ring around 240 and Firpo at about 214 pounds.

The Preliminaries

The two men vanquished by Willard and Firpo in the milk fund heavyweight carnival in May will box in the semi-final, also scheduled for 12 rounds. This pair of youngsters, Floyd Johnson, of Des Moines, Iowa, and Jack McAuliffe, 88, of Detroit, are closely matched.

The remainder of the card includes three eight-rounders, bringing together Cliff Kramer, of Seattle, and Tiny Jim Herman of Omaha, Neb.; Young Bob Fitzsimmons of Newark, N. J., and Tom Roper, of Chicago; and Charley Nashert and George West, two local gladiators. One of these contests will be staged after the main bout.

FIRPO-WILLARD BOUT WILL BE MEGAPHONED

The returns of the Firpo-Willard bout will be megaphoned from The Bulletin office this evening. The fight will be given to the public almost blow by blow, by Steve Coffey, who will officiate at the small end of the megaphone. The fight will start about 10 o'clock, D. S. T.

today show the former champion has a margin of 27 pounds on the scales, five inches in reach and nearly five inches in height. Firpo is 14 years younger.

The comparison follows:

Willard		Firpo
40	Age	26
241	Weight	214
84 inches	Reach	79 inches
6 ft. 7 in.	Height	6 ft. 2 1-2 in.
8 in.	Wrist	8 1-4 in.
16 in.	Biceps	14 1-2 in.
18 in.	Neck	17 in.
49 in.	Chest (normal)	44 in.
53 in.	Chest (expanded)	48 1-2 in.
36 in.	Waist	36 1-2 in.
26 in.	Thigh	23 3-4 in.
15 1-2 in.	Calf	15 in.
9 1-2 in.	Ankle	9 1-2 in.

Promoter Tex Rickard announced tonight that in event of rain tomorrow the Firpo-Willard match at Boyle's Thirty Acres will be held Friday night.

Weather predictions tonight contained a possibility of showers, though the general outlook for tomorrow was for fair skies.

BOSTON RED SOX ARE PURCHASED BY COLUMBUS, OHIO, SYNDICATE

Boston, July 11—The Boston American league baseball club today was sold to a syndicate of Columbus, Ohio, men by Harry H. Frazee, owner of the club since 1916. The completion of the sale and the signing of the contract, which has been periodically reported and denied for several months, was announced by Robert J. Quinn, former business manager of the St. Louis American league club, representing the Ohio syndicate.

Mr. Quinn announced that the sale contract had been signed after a long conference attended by President Ban Johnson, of the American league, Edward M. Schoenbern and Palmer K. Winslow of Columbus, members of the purchasing syndicate and others. It was also announced that legal steps in connection with the contract would not be completed until August 1. Mr. Quinn refused to make public the amount of money involved.

President Johnson said tonight that he considered the sale of the Boston club to the Ohio syndicate "a splendid thing."

"The club will now be in the hands of a group of upstanding men of character who have the highest ideals for the conduct of professional baseball," said Mr. Johnson. "They have at their head, Mr. Quinn, a man who has already proved his worth as a manager and I know he will succeed with the Red Sox."

The new owners will take formal possession of the Boston club about August 1, Mr. Johnson stated. He added, however, that he had been assured no changes in the club's personnel will be made by them this season.

Mr. Quinn said that there probably would not be any changes made at present either in management or playing strength as the purchasers would need plenty of time to study their material.

"One thing is certain," Pres. Johnson remarked, "these men from Ohio have plenty of money to spend, considerably more than the Red Sox former owners and I am sure that they will be able to and will procure the best possible players for the Red Sox organization."

President Johnson, in confirming the sale of the club, refused to make public the price but said it was "over $1,000,000." He said that Robert Quinn would be president and treasurer of the company to be formed as owners and that Palmer K. Winslow of Cincinnati, would be vice-president. It was said that a board of five directors would be formed, two of whom are expected to be Edward M. Schoenbron, and Dr. Robert Drury, of Columbus.

GIANTS SEND PIRATES BACK TO THIRD PLACE

New York, July 11.—New York made it two straight from Pittsburgh by winning today's game, 6 to 1. Watson, who came to the Giants recently from the Braves, was in excellent form. He did not allow a pirate to reach third base until the ninth, when Bigbee scored the visitors' only run. New York knocked Hamilton out of the box in the fifth with a three-run rally. Manager McKechnie and Center Fielder Carey of the Pirates were ordered off the field in the ninth after an argument that started when Carey was at bat in the eighth. Score:

BURKOSKI MEETS TOPPING IN FINALS TODAY

Groton, Conn., July 11—William Burkoski, 20 year old iron moulder of Naugatuck, will meet Henry J. Topping, veteran Greenwich player, in the finals of the Connecticut state golf championship tomorrow on the Shennecosset Country club course. In the semi-final round this afternoon Burkoski defeated R. A. Stranahan, of Brooklawn, 5 up and 4 to play, while Topping won from W. Parker Seeley, of Brooklawn, the present state champion, 3 up and 1 to play.

It was Burkoski's fourth straight victory in the tournament since he won the qualifying medal on Monday. He has played sterling golf from the start and is favored by many to win the state title tomorrow. In Topping, however, he meets an opponent who has played in many tournaments in this state and elsewhere. The match will be 36 holes.

Last year Seeley defeated Topping in the final round, but the Greenwich player reversed the result today in a match which was close throughout. There was not more than one hole difference between the pair until the 17th hole, when Seeley got a bad lie and picked up.

THE LOSS OF THE LIEUTENANTS.

That two lives were lost in the recent balloon race is now conceded, and there are those that are asking why there should be such a sacrifice of human life.

Not so many have given up their lives in connection with the operation of balloons as have been killed while driving airplanes although the number is large enough. Balloon races could easily be regarded as needless. That in fact might be said of any contest or any effort to test and promote development or to display skill. Ballooning isn't generally indulged in and yet it is of great importance under certain conditions. As a part of its defense this government has trained balloonists and there is no reason to believe but what Lieutenants Roth and Null were thoroughly qualified and experienced balloon men.

They were endeavoring to demonstrate what could be accomplished by the navy balloon as the result of their training and the buoyancy of the gas bag. That they would have landed safely but for the storm seems not unreasonable. Conditions over which they had no control and which they were not able to successfully fight resulted in the tragic end despite what appeared to be desperate efforts to escape.

Had the lieutenants not gone up in the balloon they would undoubtedly be alive today, but it is well understood that where nothing is attempted nothing is gained. Had no one ever displayed confidence in their ability to guide a balloon or to drive an airplane very little would be known today regarding the navigation of the air.

It is only proper that the death of the two lieutenants should be regarded as having resulted in the line of duty. Deplorable as their untimely ends are there is satisfaction in knowing that they did not come as the result of reckless demonstrations. They were not engaged as so many have been in the putting on of stunts for public entertainment. Theirs is a lesson which other balloonists will ponder well under similar conditions. Their sacrifice was in an endeavor to further their calling.

DIFFERENT SENTENCES NEEDED.

Some of the authorities in Massachusetts see the need of taking a drastic stand for the protection of the public.

Only a few days ago the commissioner of motor vehicles was urging the jailing of all those found guilty of driving automobiles while under the influence of liquor. Conditions have gotten to such a state that action of that kind is necessary if there is to be any safety at all in the highways. The practice of fining such violators gets nowhere. Under it there has been a steady increase in the number of such drivers.

Now the district attorney of Suffolk county is out with the announcement that he intends to ask for jail sentences as the means of giving the public the protection to which it is entitled in another direction.

Because of the number of persons found carrying loaded revolvers he has been moved to action. The past policy of dealing with such cases has only served to increase the number of violators. Different treatment is called for and he intends to have those found with loaded pistols and no permit sent to jail.

Those who go about with death dealing weapons of this kind without getting a permit, or without having a sufficient cause for seeking a permit, are a menace to the public. The idea of self protection doesn't enter into the matter for if such were the case the permit would be obtained. There is no telling what the gun toter may do. He is of course prepared for any situation. Unfortunately the carriers of weapons are likely to be involved in more or less trouble and not infrequently in acts of violence. It is not unreasonable to suppose that the gun prompts much of it and while there may be just as much trouble if no guns are carried the seriousness of it would without question be minimized.

The action of the district attorney of Suffolk county is by no means rash. Others might do as much with commendable results.

DESPATCHING EUROPEAN MAIL.

Such complaints as come from across the water about the transatlantic mails being delayed because they are held for American steamships to carry are not likely to make much of an impression in this country. The matter seems to have been revived because of the fact that mail was held for the Leviathan which might have been taken on the Aquitania, and because the former was a day later in sailing the mail did not get to England as quick as it otherwise might.

Postoffice authorities make the plain statement that all mail that is designated to go on certain ships is sent as indicated, but if there is an opportunity to favor American ships by delaying the mail 24 hours or even 48 hours in the case of vessels which sort the mail aboard ship it is and has long been done. Furthermore such action on the part of the United States is no different than the course pursued by other countries, and when mail is sorted aboard ship and ready for the various destinations as soon as it is unloaded the delay that may be occasioned by waiting for such an American ship is overcome by the fact that there is no delay in British postoffices for the sorting.

It would be a highly interesting situation were it so that the British mails were held for British ships in coming west and then mail from this country but aboard the British ships going east. If this country is going to engage in the shipping business, or rather if there is to be an American merchant marine, it is to be expected that support will be given to ships that fly the American flag when it is possible. That is natural. It is only what other countries do and what American steamship lines under the circumstances have a right to expect. Even then they fail to get the benefit of outright subsidies appropriated to foreign vessels and are obliged to enter into competition under laws which impose expensive handicaps. Even under the present arrangement concerning European mail there doesn't appear to be any unwarranted delay.

FRANCE RATIFIES.

France ought to be happy to dispose of the question of ratifying the agreements reached by the powers at the Washington conference. Certainly all the others will be and the more so because France has acted in the affirmative.

This removes the last obstacle to putting the provisions of the treaties into effect. Even though there has been an understanding to the effect that the several nations would be guided by the provisions as if ratification had taken place, there has been no scrapping of vessels as called for, because there was an unwillingness to dispose of those slated for the discard until there was certainty as to what the others were going to do.

France has been able to plead that it was occupied by matters of much greater importance to itself. It has likewise been disposed to delay until it could get a clearer vision of what others might do that would tax its army and navy equipment. It has been conscious of the fact that the rest of the nations have been watching it intently to see what it was going to do, and even urging it to hasten its decision.

Just what part the proposition of Japan, that the other three nations go ahead with the enforcement of the pact, had to do with what has since proved the rapid action by the French chamber of deputies and senate doesn't appear but it is action that is creditable to that country and likewise to its premier who has given it his unqualified backing. The good work started at the Washington conference can now be carried to important developments. France contributes to world peace.

A WRONG ATTITUDE.

The situation that has developed in Alabama at the hospital where the colored veterans of the war who were shellshocked, blinded, wounded or otherwise disabled are under treatment is that that puts a deplorable blot upon the community.

This is not an institution at which there are both white and colored disabled veterans, but where the disabled are all colored. It is not surprising that they should want the personnel of the institution to be colored. It is in fact less surprising that they should than that others should insist upon its being otherwise, provided there would be no weakening of the service given the veterans by such action.

For the community to set up an opposition to such a plan to the extent of driving citizens who are nationally known from another institution which is not only well known but doing a conspicuous service in behalf of the colored race is lamentable. It represents a wrong attitude.

There are colored veterans who probably gave their best and made great sacrifices for their country. They cannot be ignored because of the color of their skin. They are not asking that the hospital personnel of colored doctors and attendants be placed over white veterans. They are asking no more than white veterans under similar circumstances would ask and get. The plea that they make seems reasonable and if there is any good reason why it should not be complied with and due protection given them and others for asking for it, it remains to be disclosed through facts which haven't as yet been brought to light. This seems like only a small thing to do for those who narrowly escaped sacrificing their lives for their country and who have sacrificed their health.

BUSY ROBBERS

"Something," decided the fierce man, "ought to be done about these bandits! Why, it's got so that any woman coming home from an afternoon tea or gabfest of some sort and wearing an expensive fur coat automatically begins to unfasten it at the last corner before reaching home!

"I might as well get this ready to slip off,' says she. 'The anxious bandit waiting in the hallway of my luxurious apartment building no doubt is in a hurry to get home to supper and the glad cries of his little ones, so it is only a kindness not to detain him. Who am I, just because I have a little money left and there are still six silver teaspoons and my grandmother's silver coffeepot remaining among the few possessions in our constantly rifled flat—who am I, to act proud and haughty and make him waste time explaining in words of one syllable what he wants?

"'Besides,' she continues," the fierce man went on, "his gun might go off, all nervous as he must be waiting there so long with no afternoon tea or anything to brace him up, while I am filled with refreshments! Anyhow, if I don't get these trick fasteners undone he is apt to tear the coat in yanking it off, and that will put his wife or sister or sweetheart to an awful lot of trouble to mend it before she can wear it! No matter what my station in life I have always intended to be kind and thoughtful toward those otherwise situated!'

"And by this time she has entered the hall and peering about she sees the bandit under the stairs and has the coat all neatly folded ready to hand over to him.

"'I suppose if it keeps on things will reach a point where the bandit will not even wait. He'll leave a note in the letter box running after this fashion: 'Dear Madam: I waited for you three-quarters of an hour today and couldn't wait any longer on account of the meeting of the Bandits' Protective association, which I am the president of. I was almost late as it was and would call your attention to the fact that I'm not accustomed to wait that long and ain't going to. Kindly send the coat parcel post, insurde, to address below, and oblige, yours truly.'

"'I don't see what they do with all these fur coats they are stealing, anyway. Every woman on earth owns a fur coat as it is and so there can't be market for them. The only safe way for a woman to go to a party and return home unmolested is to rip some holes in her stockings, bark her shoes, tie a shawl over her head and wear a dress borrowed from the laundress, and then she has an even show!'

"'What's the good of owning diamonds?" demanded the peevish woman indignantly. "If they are very valuable like tiraras and half-yard platinum brooches, you keep them in the most secluded vault of the safety deposit place and then talk about them in public. You say you simply don't dare to bring them out into the light of day. If you are a long time rich, people believe you, but if you have bought them with war profits they just sniff and say maybe you've got them and maybe you haven't, who knows! Not so long ago, they say, you were wearing $10 pearl beads and a little topaz ring willed you by an aunt in the country and couldn't have told a diamond from a piece of broken table glass!

"Oh, lots of perfectly innocent, helpless women are made to suffer and writhe just that way because of the activities of the bandits' union! If they bring out their diamonds, the busy bandits get 'em, and if they leave them in safety nobody will believe they own any.

"You can't much blame that Mrs. Amarilla Pouch, who had to hand over her thousand-dollar little-finger ring, a string of real pearls and a mink coat worth several ordinary yearly jobs to the hurried gentleman who met her just as she was ascending the stairs to her apartment with six baths and all modern troubles.

"'Oh,' she gurgled triumphantly to the police and gaping populace that gathered, 'I am so thankful that at any rate he did not get the six other rings I keep hidden in the cutest place behind the gilt pitcher in the corner china cupboard in the dining room, and John's black pearl scarfpin I hide under the hollow lamp in the hall. My goodness! What if I had lost all that!' And she does lose it about three nights later. I guess I'm glad I haven't any!'

"Just explain that you were held up and nobody will know the difference," comforted the fierce man. "You might as well have some of the recreations of the rich and mighty!"—Chicago News.

Wives of Famous Men

Martha Wayles, Wife of Thomas Jefferson

One of the truly courageous women of Colonial days was Martha Wayles, beautiful and gentle wife of Thomas Jefferson. Reared in the great luxury, born of a high-bred family, this lively girl, always delicate and fragile, met the distressing conditions of Revolutionary times with smiling fortitude.

Twenty-three at the time she married young Jefferson, himself but three years her senior, she had already gone through gruelling experiences. She was a widow, her first husband having died four years earlier, just following the death of her only child.

In the nine years that the Jeffersons lived together at Monticello, Va., in absolute happiness, five children were born. Shortly after the birth of the youngest of these in November, 1779, a shadow fell upon the household, and the youthful wife and mother began to fail in health. Her husband declined an important mission to Europe in order that he might remain with her.

The Revolution was raging at this time, and two months after the fifth baby was born, Mrs. Jefferson was forced to flee with the infant in her arms, as Arnold drew near Richmond. Jefferson, at that time governor of Virginia, was wanted by the British, and anxiety over his safety added to the hardships of the flight, died the following April, striking the final blow at Mrs. Jefferson's already undermined strength. Her last child was born in May, 1872, and in September she died.

Jefferson, was inconsolable at her death, refusing to eat or sleep for many days, and according to a record of his eldest daughter, wandered disconsolately in the woods.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Time to Learn Value of Thrift

All industrial reports now being made indicate a negligible amount of unemployment in this country. In all the trades and industries there seems to be as near 100 per cent. employment at this time as is possible. Of course, certain seasonal or local conditions may furnish scattered instances of unemployment, but broadly speaking the nation is on a 100 per cent. employment basis.

In periods such as we are now passing through, the popular temptation to indulge in extravagance, speculation and various imprudent practices lead to inflation, disorganize the routine, the strongest. These indulgences of trade and eventually bring about business reaction. On the other hand money that is saved or spent constructively, acts as a stabilizing influence. It keeps general business on an even keel. It retards extravagance and reckless practices.

More men have been ruined by prosperity than by adversity.

It requires more personal character to withstand the temptations of plentiful days than it does to combat the evils of ill fortune.

Now is the time above all others for the people of this nation to learn by experience the value of thrift. For it is only in this way that business activities such as now exist can be sustained.

Every man who is favorably employed today should remember that indirectly, though none the less truly, the permanency of his employment depends on his own thrift. Let extravagance and speculation run rampant in the country, as often has been the case, and thousands of men now happily employed will be walking the streets looking for work.—American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

Cruel Words.

The wife had been away from home all the afternoon and when she returned husband was reading. She dropped wearily into a chair and closed her eyes for a rest when her husband began to ask questions.

"Oh, don't talk to me," she began, "I'm tired."

"I wanted to rest myself," he returned, but was kept from doing so by the noise you made."

"I was away," she said.

"But there were echoes," he returned.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Rt. Rev. Charles H. Brent, who advocates the elimination of the Ten Commandments from the Book of Prayer because they are too generally accepted as expressing a complete moral code, is one of the most widely known bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church. For some years past he has been at the head of the diocese of western New York, with Buffalo as his see city. Previously he had served as bishop in the Philippines, where he went in 1901 to supervise the work of his church. During his long residence in Manila he was popular alike with the natives and with Americans of all sects, and proved a constructive factor in shaping the process of adjustment of the island life to United States rule. During the late war Bishop Brent had charge of the Portestant chaplains of the army at the front. He is a Canadian by birth, and his first parish was in Buffalo. He went to Boston in 1888 and made a place for himself which led to his selection for the missionary post in the Philippines.

Effects Not Pleasant.

A young woman teaching her first term was not only impressed by the nobleness of her profession but had determined that all her friends should be impressed likewise.

"Oh, it is wonderful work," she said when at a friend's home, "this teaching the young to shoot."

The friend pointed to her kitchen window which had been broken earlier in the day by a shot from a slingshot.

"Yes," she agreed, "it is wonderful work, but you make it still more wonderful by teaching them how to take poorer aim."

Reader Takes Newer Form of Iron—Feels Years Younger

Three weeks ago I saw a special offer in the paper telling how thousands of people grow old in looks and energy long before they are really old in years, because, as examinations by physicians have shown, an enormous number of people do not have enough iron in their blood. I have been taking Nuxated Iron for two weeks; the results are simply astounding. The roses have come back in my lips and cheeks, and I can conscientiously say that I feel ten years younger."

The above is a typical hypothetical case showing the results that have been achieved by a great many people since we started this "satisfaction or money back" offer on Nuxated Iron. We will make you the same guarantee. If, after taking the two weeks' treatment of Nuxated Iron, you do not feel and look years younger, we will promptly refund your money.

Call at once for a bottle of Nuxated Iron at your local druggist.

Mr. Strom has been prominent in business circles in the city for many years and was president of the Blue Star Overalls company at the time of his death. He was one of the organizers of the Brothers of Joseph Synagogue on the West Side and took active interest in religious work among his people. He was also one of the organizers of the Hebrew School and recreation house situated in the rear of the synagogue and was instrumental in making the school a success.

Joseph Charles

(Contributed)

The life of Joseph Charles came to a peaceful close Monday night at 12.15 at his late residence, No. 8 High street. Mr. Charles was seriously ill for three weeks which he bore with great patience. Although he has been in failing health for the last three years, only a very few of his friends were aware of the fact as he lived such a quiet life and never complaining although always very cordial to everyone he chanced to meet.

Joseph Charles was a native of Virginia and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Charles.

He came to Norwich when a very young man and became engaged in his first work as a teamster, which he followed until failing health compelled him to give up.

Mr. charles was twice married, his first wife being Emily Hathaway, whose death occurred about 35 years ago. He later married Sarah Jane Bonds of Washington, D. C., with whom he severed relationship several years ago. He was a member of Rose of New England lodge No. 2364, Grand United Order of Odd Fellows, also a member of the Household of Ruth, No. 499, being one of the founders and was a member of Mount Calvary church and the Willing Workers society.

Mr. Charles has made his home of late years with Mr. and Mrs. John Brown of No. 8 North High street and will be missed in his home and the community in which he lived.

CAVALRY TROOP HERE FROM VERMONT ON WAY TO CAMP AT NIANTIC

Troop B, Third Cavalry, First squadron, of Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., arrived in Norwich shortly before noon Wednesday and went into camp in the enclosure at the fair grounds. The troop numbered about 72 men who were under command of Captain Neilson and Lieutenant Garity.

The first arrivals were the mounted men, some 60 strong, who came into the city over the back road and pitched camp about 11 o'clock, having done 25 or more miles, from the Brooklyn fair grounds, since 4.30 o'clock in the morning. About noon the "mess" wagons showed up and in the afternoon the other wagons arrived, passing through the center of the city. The outfit had 18 mules which were used to draw the wagons. The men were mounted on brown horses.

Since leaving Fort Ethan Allen they have had fine weather, striking rain but once several weeks ago in Massachusetts. They left the fort on June 14th and by successive rides made Camp Devens, Mass., on June 25 and remained there until the 7th. Since then they have averaged about 25 miles a day, riding from about 4.00 o'clock each morning until about noon, saving the horses from the heat as much as possible.

They are to leave this city this (Thursday) morning about 4.30 o'clock and expect to arrive at the camp at Niantic before noon where they will be greeted by the men at the camp headed by a band. The trip down has been a lengthy one, about 350 miles having been covered. They are to remain at Niantic about two weeks and then continue on into Rhode Island, swinging back through the New England states until they return to the fort in October or November having covered about 800 miles in the ride.

Last year the troop made Camp Devens and return, but this swing is one of the longest in several years.

Everything at the camp was regular army style and the men and the horses were in fine condition after their long trip. The men speak well of the treatment they have had in many places they have made camp.

WESTERLY COUNCIL SETS DATE FOR ROAD MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, July 11.—An open council meeting Tuesday, July 31, at 7.30 o'clock in the council chamber of the Westerly town hall is the date set by the president of the town council, Clifford W. Campbell, to consider road conditions in and about Westerly.

Through some misunderstanding an impression was gained that an open council meeting was to be held Wednesday night, July 11, but such was not the case, as it was decided at the last regular council meeting that this date was for the councilmen to formulate among themselves a constructive proposition to be presented at an open meeting to be held on the 31st.

Councilman Clifford W. Campbell, Thomas H. Morrison, George T. Utter, Louis Rossi, Carl F. Fowler, John D. Nichols and Farquhar Smith; Council Clerk Herbert E. Whipple, Town Solicitor John Ferguson Jr., and Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton were present when the council convened tonight.

Henry R. Lepper, 68 John street, appeared before the council stating that he felt that his property had been injured by a change made in the grade of John street. A wall has been built along the front of his lot and he could not run his automobile from his garage to the street. He was told that the council would look into the matter after stating when the grade was established, that he would hear from them in a month's time.

Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton said that he thought a town meeting should be held before November 1st, to act upon the matter of securing money to pay the towns debts. An act passed by the general assembly gives the council full authority to issue bonds but was not as explicit about the notes. Attorney Ferguson stated that the city of Pawtucket and Providence were acting under similar legislation.

Joe Cerio was granted a victualizing license which had previously been held up.

A state exposition, Jesse Carr, was granted a show license, fee $25, police $3 a day, for an exposition to be held here this month.

Merrill Post was granted a license to hold a show during July, license fee $1.

Charles J. Butler, chairman of the highway commission, stated in reference to complaints and criticisms regarding highway work, that ignorance of road construction costs was the cause, Solicitor Ferguson stating that the $10,000 appropriation for White Rock road was illegal, as when added to previous appropriations the town's income was exceeded. Mr. Butler said that the White Rock road was done with maintenance money. Councilman Rossi thought that the road troubles were caused by the department not holding closely to their budget figures.

Town Clerk Whipple thought that more publicity should be given to the cause which held up road construction and this would answer a great deal of the criticism. Chairman Butler of the highway commission said that his committee would hold meetings in the council chamber every Monday at 8 o'clock and that the highway commissioners would endeavor to cooperate with constructive criticism for a better highway. He said that delays were caused by lack of labor and the inability of the commission to get building material. Meeting adjourned at 10 o'clock.

SEIZED LIQUOR VALUED AT $51,324 IN 60 DAYS

Hartford, July 11—Liquor valued at $51,324 has been seized by the state police within the past sixty days, it was disclosed today by Superintendent Hurley. A quantity of it valued at $30,000, taken in Hartford county has been destroyed at the department barracks on Washington street in the last two weeks. Stills, bottles and cans of nearly 14,500 gallons capacity, from which the liquor was emptied, were piled up in the rear of the barracks today, preparatory to their sale.

Superintendent Hurley's war on the moonshine industry resulted in 89 arrests since the first of May, nearly double the arrests made by the department for violations of the liquor law during the corresponding period a year ago. Fines of almost $14,000 have been imposed upon the offenders, half of which amount goes to the state while the remaining half is retained by the town in which the convictions were secured.

Auto Struck Taftville Boy.

The boy, whose name was John Kaizol of 17 Terrace avenue, came out from behind a wagon into the path of the car, according to Mr. Thomas. The boy was attended by a doctor who found that he was not seriously hurt.

NORWICH MEN ENROLLING FOR CITIZENS' CAMP

About twenty men in this district have so far enrolled for the citizens' military training camp, which will be held from Aug. 1 to 31 at Camp Devens. There is still opportunity to enroll for the camp by handing in the names to Major F. Russell Smith of this city.

There is no expense attached to attendance at the camp as the government pays the fare there and back and supplies the whole outfit needed.

HIGBEE RESIDENCE BURNED WITH $10,000 LOSS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, July 11.—The two and one-half story wooden house on Fernbank Farm, on the Back Road district in Windham, owned by Mrs. Lillian M. Higbee, and occupied by herself and her husband, S. C. Higbee, was completely destroyed by fire, Wednesday afternoon, the flames also consuming all the contents of the house which was well euipped with costly furnishings. Mr. and Mrs. Higbee were away at the time and saved only the clothes which they were wearing. The blaze, which was of unknown origin, was discovered about 2 o'clock by Mrs. Herman Foehrebach, a neighbor, who telephoned to the Windham Center fire department and to Engine Company No. 1 of Willimantic. Members of both departments made the trip to the fire but could accomplish little as the structure was a mass of flames. Mrs. Higbee had left for this city and had been gone about twenty minutes when Mrs. Foehrebach looked toward the Higbee home and saw a dense cloud of smoke issuing from the rear of the house, where a shed containing wood and machinery adjoined the rear veranda. Mr. Higbee was at his work in the plant of L. M. Hartson & Co. in North Windham. The house was built about a century ago and was known as the Old Burnham Home, being owned at one time by R. W. Burnham, who died in Los Angeles, Cal., last Sunday morning.

In one part of the building Mrs. Higbee had installed several pieces of machinery for the manufacturer of tinsel cord and ribbonzens and $1200 worth of newly purchased stock was included in the loss, the total of which was estimated Wednesday at $10,000. Insurance to the amount of $1400 was carried on the house and a barn which was untouched by the fire. An insurance of $1000 was carried on the stock for the miniature manufacturing plant.

Suspicion was entertained by the parties concerned that the house had been set afire by an enemy and the bulk of the blame was placed on a neighboring family with whom Mrs. Higbee has had dealings in court recently. The state police were called and Officer Raymond Kelsey was directed to the home of Carl Shimanski, against whom Mrs. Higbee testified at the session of police court last Tuesday morning, when Shimanzki was charged with breach of the peace and aggravated assault for having shot at Sylvester M. Pelechatz, another neighbor. Shimanzki, who is employed in Willimantic, was away throughout the day, but an accusation was made upon his wife. Officer Kelsey gave the couple a severe grilling but did not in any way succeed in shaking Mrs. Shimanski's affirmation that she had nothing to do with the affair.

WILL SUE CITY FOR DEATH OF SERGT. KANE

Mrs. Sarah Kane of 3 Elmwood avenue, widow of Police Sergeant John H. Kane, declared Wednesday night that she had not agreed to the workmen's compensation award which had been made for the death of her husband in her claim against the city.

Mrs. Kane said that she is to sue the city for $10,000 damages on account of her husband's death through an electric shock on April 6, 1923 and that she considered the compensation award of $18 per week for 312 weeks much too small a sum to be paid for her husband's death.

Henry E. Yeomans, who had been a liveryman in Hartford for many years died at his home there Wednesday after a short illness. He leaves two sisters, Mrs. E. C. Snow of Colchester and Mrs. Walter L. Hartford of New York.

Quick Recovery.

One day my Sunday school teacher asked me to go to a missionary meeting at the home of one of my friends. I told her that "I would just love to come to the meeting, but have a terrible headache." She expressed her sympathy and left me. She no sooner left than I started to dress for the street. Meeting an old friend, we decided to go to a play. As we were at the window waiting for our tickets, my teacher walked up and asked me if I was feeling any better. She was on her way to the meeting.—Chicago Tribune.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Alexander Mazarelli, who had his car stolen some time during the early hours of Tuesday morning is again in possession of the machine, thanks to the efforts of the state police from the Danielson barracks. Officer Bigelow, assigned to duty here this week, found the machine, abandoned on the Windham road, just off the state highway leading from Brooklyn to Hampton. The big touring car was out of gas and this is taken as the reason for its being abandoned. The machine was uninjured and has been returned to its owner.

Officers here are very anxious to capture the men who are engaged in stealing cars in this territory. The depredations make automobile owners uneasy and broadcast among them the fear that anyone may wake up some morning and find his own machine missing. In addition to the theft of the Mazarelli car an attempt was made the same night to steal the car of Joseph Birch, but this effort was abandoned for some reason or other.

Practically no business was transacted at Tuesday evening's meeting of the chamber of commerce, which meeting, among other things, was to have considered arrangement for holding another Dollar day—the big midsummer event. Hot weather and vacation time are regarded as having been responsible for such a lack of interest in the meeting that not a business house was represented thereat the attendance being made up of men engaged in manufacturing and other lines not directly engaged in trade.

Early Wednesday the cavalrymen of Troop B, Third United States cavalry, got away from their camping ground at the Brooklyn fair grounds and proceeded southward on their way to Norwich, where they were scheduled to spend Wednesday night and with plans for proceeding to Niantic today. Many from Danielson and other territory hereabouts visited at the fairgrounds while the mounted soldiers were camping there.

This (Thursday) morning members of the Sunday school of the Westfield Congregational church will assemble at Wildwood park for the annual picnic. Some are to make the trip by trolley while others will go in the report in automobiles. It was originally intended to hold the picnic at Phillips' grove, on the north shore of the lake, but it was deemed advisable to make the change to Wildwood.

Wednesday members of the Baptist Sunday school held their annual outing.

State Officers Bigelow, Stremens and Stephens are the new men assigned for duty at the Danielson police barracks on North Main street. They were sent here from the barracks at Groton and increase the number of state officers now available for service in this territory to six. With the increased number of men the department will be able to relieve the pressure under which officers previously here have worked and give close attention to all matters brought to the attention of the station, which is a busy one.

Today (Thursday) at noon many of the stores in Danielson will close for the day, giving the business men and their employes the first of the summer half holidays, which will continue through July and August. Various outings have been planned for this afternoon, including visits to shore resorts, lakeside places and other diversions.

The development forecasted for the territory through which the new trunk line runs from Danielson to Providence is in full swing. Just across the border in the neighboring towns of Foster, R. I., tracts of land bordering the highway are being taken up. Many of these tracts are heavily wooded or covered with brush, but they are being cleared up to make sites for little bungalows and summer camps that will go up like mushrooms within the next few weeks. All of the places being developed are owned by Rhode Island people, the majority of them residents of Providence. These little summer places can be reached within a half hour's run from Providence.

As a matter of public interest, mention is made this morning that Danielson banks are not included in the list of places in the borough that will have Thursday afternoon holidays during July and August. The banks, for many reasons, find it necessary to remain open and to carry on their business as usual.

Indications at this time are that the Rhode Island project for building a new state highway over the old Hartford pike leading from North Scituate to East Killingly will not be undertaken this year, though it seems certain to be undertaken not later than next year. With the road built to the Connecticut line at East Killingly and carried on from that point by the state of Connecticut through to Dayville and from Goodyear to Pomfret, a famous old stage coach route will be restored. The route would also be an optional one to Providence for the people of the town of Killingly. Stages operated over the route up to 25 years ago.

About every section of the county was represented at South Killingly Wednesday when the new community house was formally dedicated. Former residents or those closely interested in South Killingly also came from more distant points and while the gathering should not be confused with Old Home day, held each year at South Killingly on Labor day, much of the same spirit was manifest. A chowder dinner was served at noon and the fine things made available were not only satisfying to those who ate, but also added about $75 to the funds. Formal addresses were made by Rev. William S. Beard of New York, formerly of South Killingly, by Rev. S. E. Cozad, Congregational pastor at Putnam, and by others during the day.

The new community house at South Killingly will fill a long felt want. It will be available for community gatherings, socials, entertainments and various other affairs in which the people of that territory have a general interest. It is located close to the Congregational church and is a sightly building.

The temperature again made a near approach to the 90 mark in this week of real July weather when a sweltering time was had by all Wednesday.

E. N. Herion of Fall River was a visitor with friends in Danielson Wednesday.

Among the former South Killingly people who came there to spend the day Wednesday was Edward Pike, brother of W. K. Pike of Danielson.

PUTNAM

There is interest in this territory in the death Monday at Bass Point, Gloucester, Mass., of Edward B. Chandler, 71, a native of the neighboring town of Woodstock and a resident there until after he was 20 years of age. Going into the south during the years of his vigorous manhood he eventually amassed a fortune through shrewd and helpful mortgage loan operations, a field in which he was very successful. Numbers of his friends in Woodstock profited by their investments with him in the operations in which he was engaged.

Mr. Chandler was a son of Deacon and Mrs. Amasa Chandler of a family long associated with the affairs of the town of Woodstock. He was a man of excellent character and is remembered as a fine citizen by his boyhood friends, this number including John Morse of this city.

He leaves a sister, Miss Nellie D. Chandler of Woodstock Hill.

The forthcoming semi-annual report of the Putnam Building and Loan association will show that the assets have now increased to $158,445.95, an increase of a little more than $24,000 since the last annual report was issued early in January and since that period, the report also will show, the association has loaned about $30,000, and at the present time has applications on hand for loans aggregating $35,000. These figures are indicative of the growth and volume of business now being transacted by the Building and Loan association, which was formed about seven years ago. The money represented in its assets is invested in property here in Putnam and is earning regular dividends and at the same time gradually piling up a material surplus account. It is anticipated that the assets of the association will reach $200,000 within the next two years.

There appears to have been more or less of an epidemic of losing winning tickets that figured in the awards at the Elks fair. The latest incident concerns Joseph Diggett, of Goodyear, who received a fine gold watch. Diggett appeared here Tuesday evening to claim the watch and presented the ticket with the proper number, but sadly mutilated. He explained to the chairman of the general fair committee of the Elks that he gave his tickets to his brother last Saturday evening, and he was unable to attend the fair and as the brother would be there as a member of the dance orchestra. The brother did not hear the number that he held called and at the end of the dancing tore up the tickets and threw them on the grass near the dance pavilion. Monday the Elks notified brother Joe by mail that he had been given a watch, and he naturally asked his brother about what had become of the ticket. He was told, hurried up to the fair ground, searched around and found the valuable bit of carboard and then came up to get the watch.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Catapultic, as the crack train itself, around which the plot is woven, "Westbound Limited" crashed through the screen at the Breed theatre yesterday and left capacity audiences, gasping, laughing, crying, cheering.

Setting a tremendous tempo for itself in its earliest scenes, the play did a surprising thing in not only keeping interest from flagging but actually working the audiences into a high pitch of excitement as it drew to a close.

A photographic effect never before witnessed on the screen, and which for sheer realism discounted anything yet devised by the ingenuity of director and cameraman, was the picturing of an express train running full tilt directly at the audience, neither swerving to left nor right, and then—just think—continuing right over the heads of the audience, seemingly as they looked on the screen agape to view the spectacle of a nether view of the sweeping, swaying flyer, with its rushing truck and whirling wheels.

Ralph Lewis rises to superior heights in his depiction of the role of Engneer Bill Buckley. He is remembered for his recent remarkable characterizations in 'In the Name of the Law" and "The Third Alarm," previous productions by Emory Johnson, who is responsible for "Westbound Limited." He is ably assisted by Ella Hall, Johnny Harron, Wedgewood Nowell, Claire McDowell and others.

The story, in brief, has to do with the evil machinations of a jealous private secretary of the railroad president, whose daughter reveals a fondness for a humble train dispatcher who saves her life when her horse falls on her in the path of an oncoming express train. Facing the dilemma of throwing the semaphore against the train piloted by his father with a prospect of wrecking the speeding mass of steel and humanity or leaving the pinioned girl, whose identity is unknown to him to her fate, the dispatcher comes to a quick decision. What this decision is and its result form one of the big "kicks" of the production.

An entire countryside, matted with woods and underbrush, is set ablaze in a concluding scene of the play to swerve as a beacon of warning as two express trains careen toward each other, with their hundreds of passengers ignorant of the fate seemingly in store for them. It is a weird and dramatically dynamic scene that ensues, literally bringing the play to an end in a blaze of glory.

To miss seeing "Westbound Limited" is to miss the truly mastadonic masterpiece of the year. As the monster locomotive that appears in it thundering down the shining rails, it is asuredly the mogul of melodrama.

"The Westbound Limited" will be shown at the Breed for the remainder of the week and other pictures on the bill include Movie Chats and an Educational comedy.

Power Drama in Jackie Coogan's Latest at the Strand Theatre

"Daddy," a First National picture starring Jackie Coogan, contains an episode that critics have declared to be the most powerful and gripping they have ever beheld on the screen. It gives Jackie an opportunity to register the deepest of grief with a sincerity and naturalness that are uncanny.

In this particular sequence appears Cesare Gravini, an Italian actor and musician, celebrated on the European stage. He plays the part of Galli, a broken-down musician, forced to earn his livelihood by playing for heedless pedestrians on street corners. The forlorn and wandering Jackie, without home or parents, comes under the notice of the old man, whose interest in the lad is increased by the fact that the boy himself is a violin genius.

He takes the boy to his humble home and out of his meagre store provides for his wants and gives him priceless lessons. But age, disappointment and poverty do their work only to well, nad the time of parting comes for Jackie and his benefactor. This is the scene wherein Jackie rises to dramatic heights and a poignant appeal not equaled on the American stage.

"Daddy" which was produced by Sol Lesser and directed by E. Mason Hopper, comes to the Strand theatre starting today.

Other subjects include a news weekly and round seven of the famous Fighting Blood stories.

"The Ninety and Nine" In Step For ward in Making Mammoth Spectacle and Drama at the Broadway.

There is a definite evolution going on in the methods use in the production of screen "thrillers". Until recently it was sufficient that a picture be sprinkled full of 'stunts of a more or less daring kind without too much regard for the plot or the continuity.

Such a picture Director David Smith of Vitagraph has produced in "The Ninety and Nine," which will be shown at Broadway theatre today, Friday and Saturday. Mr. Smith, with a powerful story to begin with which makes a strong appeal to basic human emotions and an all-star cast, has made it in strict continuity, climax unfolding upon climax, gathering power like an avalanch, when with the final several hundred feet it is not hard to imagine an audience half out of its seats at the finish.

Sustained and containtly fed interest leading logically to a crushing, all absorbing finale—that is Director Smiths theory.

It has not secured the industry for stunts; it is a tremendous story, told in a simple but faithful way, regardless of expense necessary to make it true. It is like living through a day of the most dramatic series of events that one has ever experienced. And the effect produced by such an experience is what is truly recognized as a thriller, the kind that leaves one limp and on edge, but thoroughly satisfied.

The latest Tweedy comedy will be shown in addition to this night act special.

WESTERLY

That a condition exists at Pleasant View which constitutes a fire hazard was brought to the attention of the taxpayers of the Pleasant View Fire district, in annual meeting assembled at the Wigwam, Tuesday night. Chief of the Westerly Fire district George E. Egger had been invited to attend the meeting and, when called on at the close stated that he had listened to suggestions and measures for the betterment of the fire district, such as improved sidewalks, garbage removal and road work, but what the district most needed was better fire protection. All these improvements would count for very little, if a fire similar to the recent Nantasket Beach fire should occur. The chief stated that the existing water mains with hydrants would provide but little protection in case of a big fire. A measure that would provide much for the protection of the beach properties would be the construction on the pond edge at the rear of the colony of intake basins with a sufficiently firm dock alongside that the heavy pumper could be safely placed alongside and streams could be pumped that would be serviceable and effective. The chief stated that he would not consider the placing of the town of Westerly pump on the soft or marshy sand as he had learned a lesson at the Wequetequock ice house fire, when the machine became mired and two hours work was required to free the pump.

To Frank W. Coy, the more general use of non-combustible shingles would be of assistance in stopping the spread of any fires which might occur. For the use of the Pleasant View fire district Samuel Bailey presented the district a large iron hoop, which had been placed in front of the post office to serve as a fire alarm.

Chairman Frank A. Sullivan called the fire district meeting to order in the dining room of the Wigwam hotel, there being nearly fifty present. Merton L. Stott was made clerk pro tem, in the absence of the regular clerk, Herbert P. Clark.

After the call had been read a nominating committee, Albert H. Spicer, Jr., George E. Broughton and Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, presented the following nominations and they were duly elected by the clerk casting one ballot: Moderator, Frank A. Sullivan; clerk, Herbert P. Clark; treasurer, Albert H. Spicer, Jr.; collector, Merton L. Stott; assessors of taxes, Albert F. Clark, William F. Saunders, James Collins; fire protection committee, Frank A. Sullivan, James Collins, C. B. Bliven, William F. Saunders, A. H. Spicer, Jr., and S. H. Davis; police protection, Howard C. Babcock, R. B. Meikle and Herbert P. Clark; sanitation, S. H. Davis, Lewiston Stanton and Ralph Briggs; public improvement, Frank A. Sullivan, A. H. Spicer, Jr., R. B. Meikle, Otis Chapman and H. A. Dunning; chief engineer, Charles Lamb; assistant engineer, Henry Stahle.

The following bills were voted paid and authority given the treasurer to pay bills hereafter when they were approved by the moderator and clerk: Utter company, bill for book, $4.36 and notices $3; the Steadman press, 400 notices and 400 constitutions, $8; envelopes and postage $7.85. The salary of the collector was voted $100 the same as last year; the contract entered into by Edwin D. Hawke, a committee for the district and Frank G. Cahoone for $550 to collect garbage during the season at least three times a week was approved. Mr. Hawke was appointed to a similar committee for 1924.

To carry out the measures of the sidewalk act passed at the last session of the Rhode Island state legislature, the following votes were passed:

Voted: That the improvement committee be and is hereby authorized to incur indebtedness not exceeding in the aggregate the sum of $6 for the purpose of constructing sidewalks within the Pleasant View Beach Fire district;

Voted: That the treasurer of the Pleasant View Beach Fire district be and is hereby authorized and empowered to hire a sum or sums of moneys not exceeding in the aggregate the indebtedness incurred by the improvement committee for the construction of sidewalks and to issue the note for notes of the fire district therefor.

The report of the fire chief, Charles Lamb, showed that four alarms had been answered, one of which in the laneway was cared for without a serious spread. Twenty-two hydrants had been tested and one which was found broken had been replaced. The chief recommended that a reel with 750 feet of hose kept in the garage of George A. Phillips, without charge be removed and placed on property acquired by the district.

The fire prevention committee has instructed to take care of the matter of a suitable housing of the district property and report at the next annual meeting.

A tax levy of 70c on each $100 valuation was voted.

The Dr. Stanton place on Main street is receiving a new coat of paint. This house is one of the oldest places here and was often visited by the artist, James Adams MacNeil Whistler, who spent a few years of his childhood and boyhood here. It is said that there are people living here today who well remember the slight figure, brown curly hair and alert face of the young man. Whistler's mother was Anna MacNeill, a sister of Mrs. George E. Palmer (mother of Mrs. George D. Stanton), and a southerner by birth. She married Major George Washington Whistler, a graduate fo West Point and a civil engineer.

Tuesday evening, before the Fourth, there was a well attended dance at Utley's hall on the Green. It is expected that dances will be held there weekly during the summer under the management of summer residents at the lake, the music to be furnished by the Victor orchestra of Manchester.

Independence day was celebrated rather quietly in town. There was no public display of fireworks on the Green, but there were some individual exhibitions at the lake. In the afternoon there was a ball game on the Green between the Hebron and Columbia teams. Jones was the pitcher for Hebron and Squier for Columbia. The game was interesting from start to finish, Squier pitching a fine game and in the last inning putting the batters out rapidly in one-two-three order. At one time, however, the bases were all full with Hebron batters who all scored. The fielding of the Hebron team was fine, enabling them to win the game, 5 to 4. George Cobb was umpire and Madison Woodward was scorer.

Rev. Harley Page of Boston had charge of the services at the church Sunday morning. He preached on Unexpected Responsibilities, taking for his text "They found a man of Cyrene, Simon by name, him they compelled to bear his cross." He referred to the fact that persons who are faithful in small things are often selected for great positions, illustrating his statement by references to Lincoln and Garfield, who were delegates to conventions to nominate others to the presidency, but were themselves nominated to that high office. He said that we should perform the work that we undertake so faithfully and well that we may be fitted for higher honors that we may be called upon to assume, sometimes suddenly.

Many big fortunes have come from small inventions. For instance a man made a can with a seam just below the top. When the can was to be opened it was only necessary to strike the top and it came off. A Chicago packing house ordered 10,000,000 as an experiment, and the idea worked so well that the inventor made a big fortune.

SUNBURN

If your skin is so tender that you expect sunburn, rub it well with Vicks before exposure.

After sunburn, apply Vicks gently—do not rub in. It soothes burn and often averts blisters.

For any outdoor vacation, Vicks is "standard equipment." It eases attacks of hay fever, asthma, catarrh and summer colds. Fine for sore feet, too.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

A Call on Jack o' Lantern.

Pretty soon, Little Jack Rabbit hopped away and by and by he came to a great Pumpkin in which lived Jack o' Lantern. Now Jack o' Lantern was a little fairy who loved to poke fun at everybody, especially after the sun had gone down and the tall shadows made the forest dark and gloomy.

He would come out of his Pumpkin house and make the most dreadful faces at travelers who were out late, sending them scurrying home with frightened tales of a little dwarf with eyes of fire and mouth of flame.

Ha, ha! he laughed, I am not afraid of a feathe

Just at dusk, as Jack o' Lantern's merry face lighted up the darkness, the bunny boy shouted:

"Don't come too near me or I will burn you up with my flaming gold feather," and taking off his khaki cap he pointed the magic plums at the naughty fairy.

"Ha, ha!" he laughed. "I am not afraid of a feather, even if it does look like a flame," and he walked up close to Little Jack Rabbit, but when he felt the heat of the feather he stepped back for his hair would have been singed if he hadn't.

"Let's be friends," he said. "You come back to my Pumpkin house and tell me a story of your adventures and I will give you a piece of pumpkin pie."

Little Jack Rabbit followed the tiny fellow into the Pumpkin House and sat down on a stool, when, all of a sudden, there came a loud knocking at the door.

"Who is that?" asked Jack o' Lantern, lifting the latch.

There on the doorstep stood a Black Swan with a necklace of gold around his neck.

"Who are you?" asked the Jack o' Lantern, for he had never seen a Black Swan before, for they are rare even in Fairy Land.

"I am in great trouble," said the little fowl. "I have lost the beautiful gold locket that hung on the end of my necklace and it is so dark that I cannot find it."

"Wait until the Twinkle, Twinkle Star comes out," replied Jack o' Lantern.

"I can't wait another minute," sighed the Black Swan, drooping his wings, for he was very unhappy over the loss of the beautiful locket and the reason he was so unhappy was because it held the picture of a beautiful white swan whom he was to marry on Easter Day.

"Oh, well," said Jack o' Lantern, "I'll come out and help you find it."

Taking a little pumpkin lantern off the mantelpiece and telling Little Jack Rabbit to follow, the three of them went out to look for the lost locket.

"We ought to find it easily," said Jack o' Lantern with a grin, "for my little lantern has two eyes!" And if he doesn't grin too much maybe he'll find the little locket by the time I write the next story.

MEMORIAL TABLET IN MOOSE HILL MIXUP

The suit of Tyler Cruttenden, proprietor of the Moose Hill Inn at Guilford and at one time, deputy dairy commissioner of the state, for $30,000 damages against former Highway Commissioner Charles J. Bennett, the former Deputy Commissioner Richard L. Saunders and Highway Superintendent Elmer C. Weldon, for the destruction of thirteen beautiful old trees on his property at Guilford last April when the highway department contemplated eliminating a curve on the Guilford road, involves the memorial tablet placed under the trees in 1917 by the American School for the Deaf as a tribute to Sophia Gallaudet Fowler, wife of the founder of the institution.

At the time the trees were razed Mr. Bennett arranged with Miss Katherine Gallaudet of No. 9 Gillette street to buy a plot of ground and move the boulder with the tablet into the plot, which was to be properly enclosed. As yet the road has not been cut through and the boulder remains in its original location. While the case is being settled in the courts the boulder cannot be moved, according to Mr. Cruttenden. He said Monday night that he is perfectly willing that the boulder remain where it is, but if it is moved he will not have it placed on his property again." It is for this reason that Mr. Bennett agreed to buy the plot and care for the removal of the memorial.

Mr. Cruttenden said it was totally unnecessary to destroy the trees and for that reason he refused to grant his permission for the action in April. He said the value of his investment at the inn has been enormously decreased, as the passing of the trees takes away much of the beauty of the site. He said that both himself and Mrs. Cruttenden have received scores of letters from guests of the inn expressing sympathy for their loss.

Frank R. Wheeler, superintendent of the American School for the Deaf, said that the arrangement made with Mr. Bennett is entirely satisfactory to those responsible for erecting the memorial.

Mr. Bennett said Monday night that he had received no papers notifying him of the suit, but that in his recollection the trees were not located on land belonging to the Moose Hill Inn. Attorney General Frank E. Healy will handle the case for the three men sued. Mr. Bennett said, declaring that he would be happy to know where there is $30,000 without an owner.

ORGANIZER FOR LIONS' CLUB IN NORWICH

If plans go forward Norwich will soon have a Lion's club, an organization similar to the Rotary club. An organizer for the Lion's club was in Norwich Wednesday interviewing business men and merchants with an idea of forming such a club in this city. In many cities where there is a Rotary club there is also a Lion's club and it has been found that both clubs work together harmoniously for the betterment of the community. It is expected that business men will meet with the organizer and hear his plans. The club, if formed, will hold weekly meetings.

Foreclosure Judgment Entered.

In the case of Gilbert S. Raymond of Norwich against John P. Huntington, administrator of the estate of J. A. Cloran of Boston, Judge George E. Hinman has entered a judgment for foreclosure of a mortgage of $900. The amount of the judgment with interest is $1477.90. The property involved is located in Norwich between Boswell avenue and Roath street.

Marked for Death By Bootleggers

The rum runners had offered an enforcement agent A BRIBE OF $300,000 A WEEK if he would shut his eyes while they flooded five States with forbidden liquor. The agent pretended to fall in with the scheme; he accepted some of the bribe money and turned it in to the United States Treasury; he learned all the secrets of the rum runners and then set a trap in which all the plotters were caught.

Weeks later, long after the agent had left the brewery city, a friend approached him.

"I'm sorry, old man," the friend said, "but that gang is after you." The agent whistled.

"Yes," said the friend, "they've put you on the Red List!"

The Red List contains the names of those whom the bootleggers have marked for death.

One of the startling stories of the war on the rum runners,

NEW LONDON ELKS' COMPLAINTS DISMISSED BY PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 11.—Mrs. Sarah C. Anderson, 61, wife of William G. Avery, died this morning at her home, No. 523 Vauxhall street, after a lingering illness. Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Leslie A. Avery, money order clerk at the post office and a daughter, Mrs. Ralph H. Dimock, also of New London.

Nathan Pumpranta, proprietor of a tailoring establishment on Green street, who leases lockers in the upper part of the building to sailors stationed at the submarine base, complained to the police this morning that during the night some of the fixtures of the locker room had been destroyed. It is believed that the damage was perpetrated by a few of the sailors who frequent the place.

The police were summoned late Tuesday night to No. 33 Shaw street, where it was stated, a peddler was beating his wife. Motorcycle Officer William Babcock and Patrolmen Howard Sloan and George Perkins were sent to investigate, but when they arrived there neither the husband or the wife could be found. It is stated that the husband had displayed signs of mental derangement of late.

Neither the police nor Medical Examiner Harold H. Meyer have obtained any information that might lead to the identification of the male body found floating in the Thames river Tuesday morning and if an identification is not established within a day or two the man will probably be buried in the city's plot in Jordan as an unknown.

Mrs. Mary Shea, residing at No. 115 Winthrop street, reported to the police early this morning that a man was attempting to gain entrance to her bennery. Patrolman George Perkins was sent to the street place, but when the officer reached there the intruder had made his escape.

Mrs. Clark residing at No. 127 Willetts avenue, informed the police early this morning that an attempt was being made to force an entrance to the garage located in the rear of of the drug store of Thomas Sisk, corner of Willetts and Montauk avenues. Patrolmen James McKenna and Ernest Opperman answered the call, but they obtained no evidence that the place had been visited by a thief. The officers reported that the owner of the garage makes a practice of leaving the entrance unfastened day and night.

Daniel Sheehan of Franklin street, who reported the theft of his automobile from Pine Grove, Niantic, Monday night, recovered his machine this morning when he went to Sound View, where the car had been abandoned, the police having been informed last night of the machine having been alongside the highway the greater part of the day. It is believed that the thieves were the same who stole the automobile of C. M. Chipman of Williams street at Pine Grove Saturday night and then abandoned it in about the same locality as that in which the Sheehan car was found.

About one o'clock James Curley of Franklin street discovered that while his car was parked in front of his home a thief had taken it and he reported the theft to the police. This morning the car was discovered parked on Huntington street, between Richards and Shapley street.

Hugh Bates of Somerset street, Boston, has requested the New London police to assist him in locating Miss Marie Nadsen, who he believes, is in this city.

An automobile, owned and driven by Edward C. Levinson of No. 32 Shapley street while being operated in a northerly direction on Bank street, near Howard, this forenoon, collided with an automobile, owned and operated by Dr. Harry M. Lee. The physician's machine was slightly damaged.

J. H. Bruesch, a seaman aboard the U. S. S. Savannah, lodged a complaint with the New London police this morning in a letter in which Bruesch declares that just before the Savannah left New London, a marine named Anderson Ford stole a blue serge suit, pair of shoes and a soft hat from Bruesch, at a rooming house.

John and Samuel Turello and Joseph and Santi Samataro have sold a house and lot at the corner of Jefferson avenue and MacDonald street to Giovanni and Rose Gigliotti.

Mrs. Barnett Greenblatt and infant daughter of Gorton street, John O'Neill of Winthrop street, Miss Isabelle Kaplan of Groton, Roger Logan of Shaw street and James Kaplan of Groton, were patients dismissed today at Lawrence hospital.

Richard Mansfield, 26 Coleman street, employed by the city health department, who was injured yesterday noon when the automobile used for the collection of animal garbage and occupied by Mansfield overturned at the submarine base, has not sustained internal injuries. This was revealed this morning when an X-ray picture was taken of the patient at Lawrence hospital. Mansfield's injuries comprise severe bruises and contusions of the head and upper part of the body.

Harry W. Platt, chief train dispatcher in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, is enjoying his vacation. He will resume duties at the union station next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Clust of Crystal avenue were tendered an agreeable surprise last evening, because of the early departure of Mr. and Mrs. Clust for Pittsburgh where they intend to reside. The affair was arranged by several of Mr. Clust's railroad acquaintances and was attended by about a dozen employes of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad and their wives. During the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Clust were presented a farewell gift. Mr. Clust was until recently in the employ of the railroad, being yard conductor.

It is understood that the complaints of Harold Eldridge, an employe of the Howard Street Coal company, and Thomas E. Donohue, superintendent of Hillside farm, each alleging assault, will be dismissed by Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin as the latter does not deem the prosecution of either party necessary. Messrs Cronin and Donohue are now in Atlanta, Ga., attending the annual convention of Elks. Donohue was engaged at the Howard Street Coal company's yard weighing coal that was to be delivered to the city and became engaged in an altercation with Eldridge, which terminated when Donohue is alleged to have administered a severe beating to Eldridge. Eldridge entered a complaint with the prosecuting attorney against Donohue and when this action was taken Donohue lodge a counter complaint.

The change that will come in the upper part of State street with the clearing of the Williams lot and the erection there of a modern building by the Connecticut Power company will transform that entire section. Old-time residents recall the splendid home that Charles Augustus Williams and his family had there and which his father, the late Major Thomas W. Williams, had before him, with its splendid stone barn on the corner of Church and Meridian streets. These have gone the way of all earthly things and in their place will come the power company's structure and a substantial modern commercial building on the corner of Church and Huntington street. When Frank A. Munsey bought the old Julian Marvin building at Meridian and State street and dislaced it by an eight story hotel, the first of the changes in that section began. That meant the moving of business places to the westward on State street. Then the late Morton F. Plant bought the Charles Stockman property, opposite the Mohican where he erected an office and store building without a peer in eastern Connecticut. Mr. Munsey has since acquired that property and it is rented so that it yields the owner a handsome return on the investment. The New London library, which occupies the south corner of State and Main streets, is an embellishment to the site and the library building wiped out an old and straggling brick structure hat occupied the corner. It was a dwelling and store for many years and unsightly at that. The remodelled court house on the opposite side of Huntington St., gives a touch of the substantial old style building to the whole picture. The upper part of State street is to be redressed and paved to Broad street, so that the highway will also be improved.

In the further line of improvement Meridian street, always a narrow highway, is to be widened. That will be an advantage to the handsome Y. M. C. A. building that occupies the corner of Church and Meridian streets. It is said if others do not build on the remaining portion of the Williams land that Mr. Mercer, the owner of it, will erect a structure for business purposes there. He conceived and erected the Manwaring building on State street for the Manwaring hospital association and every foot of that structure is rented and well rented. He has faith in the scheme to erect other buildings on State street. He has the biblical faith too that will move mountains, we are told.

The motion picture business seems to have received a set-back in New London, for the Empire theatre has now ceased to exhibit but three days a week. This was the original moving picture house in this city.

Home Memorial hospital is holding a bazaar to raise money at its premises on Pequot avenue, notwithstanding Elgelbert J. Sauter made an attack upon the enterprise at the meeting of the city council this week and accused the association of conducting gambling schemes of a petty nature, and called upon the authorities of the city to interfere to stop that way of getting money. The council gave but scanty recognizance to the appeal and the hospital association seems to have ignored it entirely.

Richard W. Avery, son of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Avery of Monument street, Groton, and student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been notified of his having been awarded the Colonial scholarship of $200. Mr. Avery is now at the home of his parents, but will resume his studies in mechanical engineering in the fall.

Among them will be Edward O'Connor, driver of the Allen Hook and Ladder truck and Wallace D. Fesler of the New London Ship & Engine Company clerical force.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Keefe have returned from their wedding tour and are now "at home" to their friends at 32 Bellevue Place.

An automobile, operated by Miss Aphaline Spier of Enfield, struck and felled an unidentified man on Broad street, near the corner of Bishop street, late this afternoon. Although the victim was sent sprawling to the highway, he picked himself up and went away without giving his name and apparently uninjured, other than having sustained a few minor bruises and scratches.

An automobile, owned by John W. Anderson, a sailor at the submarine base, and a car, owned by the Lyman Electric company of East Lyme, were in collision this evening on Main street at the corner of Richards street. The latter machine suffered the greater damage, a fender being ripped off and a tire damaged.

It is believed that the crook that has perpetrated the several daylight robberies here of late, made an attempt to gain entrance to the residence of Patrolman Howard Sloan of Broad street this afternoon. During the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Sloan from the house a neighbor observed a young man answering the description of the robber go to the veranda of the Sloan house and ring the bell, but he was not observed to try any of the windows or the rear entrance. Mrs. Sloan was informed of what had occurred upon her return home and she notified the police.

The house and a lot, 100x500 feet, was sold to Angus C. Davies for $5,550. There were four other bidders and the opening bid was $4,500.

Steam yacht Narada, owned by Henry Walters, which has been moored in Shaw's cove since last year, was towed from her winter quarters to the Thames Marine Railways this morning, where she will be given a thorough overhauling and painting.

The bazaar for the benefit of Home Memorial hospital and conducted under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the institution, this afternoon and evening on the former Hotel Pequot site, was a decided success. WINDHAM

The annual benefit for the library was held on the seventh in charge of a committee composed of Mrs. F. E. Guild, Mrs. Henry Hatch and Miss Gertrude Arnold. The reading room was attractive with roses and larkspur. The centerpiece on the long table carrying out the patriotic color scheme was a basket of red and white rambler roses and blue larkspur arranged by Mrs. Julia Arnold, who celebrated her 90th birthday on the 5th. Fruit punch, sandwiches, cake, and candies were sold by Misses Elizabeth Abbe, Dorothy Brown and Abigal Bates. Mrs. Charles Larrabee and Mrs. Charles C. Abbee had charge of the punch bowls. It was planned to serve the ice cream on the Green, but the rain necessitated placing the small tables on the piazza where Misses Clara and Sarah Johnson were in charge assisted by Mrs. W. E. Rayneld who sold the tickets. Miss Josephine Bingham was the cashier. The proceeds amounted to over $130.

About fifty friends called to extend congratulations to Mrs. Julia Arnold on her 90th birthday Thursday. Mrs. Arnold, although handicapped in some ways by the infirmities of age is keenly interested in the affairs of the day and thoroughly enjoyed seeing her friends. She received many post cards, flowers and gifts. Miss Gertrude Arnold was assisted in serving fruit punch and ice cream by Misses Alice and Sarah Johnson, Mrs. John Woods and Miss Marie Rizzo.

Mrs. George Cook is a patient in the Charter Oak hospital, Hartford.

Miss Julia Bingham, who has been at the inn for two years went to Hartford Saturday for a few days and left Wednesday for an indefinite stay in California, visiting Yellowstone park on the way.

Miss Harriet Guild, who is taking the medical course at Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore, arrived home Tuesday for the summer.

Rev. and Mrs. Brownell Gage of Chang Sha, China, who have been with Mrs. Gage's parents, Rev. and Mrs. S. H. Howe of Norwich, called on friends here Saturday.

A fine supper was served in cafeteria style by the C. E. society Friday night. The good things to eat included beans, tongue, beef loaf, salads, rolls, sandwiches, strawberries, cake, ice cream, tea and coffee. The supper was followed by a stereopicon lecture on Hawaii.

The delegates who go to Northfield on the 13th are Charlotte Lathrop, Annie Stuggie and Margaret Cook.

There will be morning prayer and sermon at 9 o'clock at St. Paul's next Sunday. The afternoon service will be omitted.

To Ward Off Summer Complexion Ills

To keep the face smooth, white and beautiful all summer, there's nothing quite so good as ordinary mercolized wax. Discolored or freckled skin, so common at this season, is gently, gradually absorbed by the wax and replaced by the newer, fresher skin beneath. The face exhibits no trace of the wax, which is applied at bedtime and washed off mornings. Greasy creams, powders and rouges, on the other hand, are apt to appear more conspicuous than usual these days of excessive perspiration. Just get an ounce of mercolized wax at any drug store and use it like cold cream. This will help any skin at once and in a week or so the complexion will look remarkably clear, young and healthy.

Reduce Your Fat Without Dieting

Years ago the formula for fat reduction was "diet"—"starve today if it is to take Marmola Prescription Tablets." Friends tell friends—these friends tell others. They eat substantial food, live as they like, and still reduce steadily and easily without going through long days of tiresome exercise, starvation diet and absurd greases and salves. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists the world over at one dollar for a case, or if you prefer you can order direct from the Marmola Co., 4613 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Coroner John J. Phelan, of Fairfield county will open his inquest into the killing of George Hultz, aged Topstone recluse, at the state police barracks at Ridgefield Friday morning, at 10 o'clock.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

STOCK PRICES LOSE MORE GROUND

New York, July 11.—With public interest still at low ebb, professional traders intermittent selling pressure against today's stock market and prices lost more ground. Trading was again relatively dull, large traders showing a disposition to await further development in the foreign political situation before extending their commitments.

Lower commodity prices undoubtedly were the most depressing influence on quoted values, but some selling also was inspired by the official announcement that a renewed attempt would be made to unionize the steel industry and by the decision of some of the "Big Four" brotherhoods to ask for an increase in wages above the war-time scale.

Wall Street was inclined to interpret the higher foreign exchange rates as an indication that foreign financial centers were still hopeful of a satisfactory solution of the reparations problem. Demand sterling advanced 1 cent to $4.58 5-16, but French francs cancelled their early gain and closed slightly lower. Italian lire and German marks showed moderate improvement.

United States Steel fluctuated within a radius of 1 point, coming within a small fraction of 89 1-4, the year's low, and closing at 89 7-8 for a net loss of 5-8 on the day. While yesterday's tonnage report was disappointing. Some observers interpreted it as showing that very large deliveries must have taken place in the quarter just closed so that the earning report should be impressive. Weekly steel trade reviews report lessened steel production and further reductions in pig iron and scrap prices.

Railroad shares failed to make any response to the report of record car lading. Hard coal carriers were adversely affected by the decision of the interstate commerce commission to investigate anthracite freight rate, Lehigh Valley dropping 2 3-8 Delaware & Hudson, 1 3-4 and Lackawanna 1.

Most of the standard industrials showed only fractional changes on the day. Commission houses reported that a sizeable increase was noted in the selling orders from western points, holders of stock in that territory apparently having become discouraged by wheat breaking below $1 a bushel. International Harvester dropped 2 points. Mail order shares also yielded, despite usually large current earnings.

Call money opened at 5 per cent. but fell to 4 1-2 before the close. Time money held firm with brokers paying 5 1-4 per cent. for the longer maturities. The commercial paper market was quiet with no change in rates.

BONDS

New York, July 11.—Except for a flurry of buying in the foreign group this morning, trading in today's bond market was dull and listless with price fluctuations narrow and irregular. New offerings were again small in volume. Investment bankers holding back several important issues pending more favorable market developments.

The higher opening foreign exchange rates brought some buying power into the French issues, French 8s and Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean 6's each moving up a point but the gains were reduced in the later trading. Seine 7's closed 3-4 lower.

U. S. government bonds held steady.

Except for a gain of 1 5-8 by Kansas City terminal 4's and a loss of 1 point in Denver & Rio Grande refunding 5's, changed in the railroad group were largely fractional and unimportant. The favorable effect of record car loadings was counterated by reports of early demands for higher wages by the higher paid employes and by the inquiry into anthracite rates by the interstate commerce commission.

In the industrial division, Pierce Arrow 8's and International Paper 5's, series B, each lost about a point while the sugar, copper and independent steel company liens yielded fractionally.

Total sales (par value) were $6,432,000.

WHEAT GOES BELOW DOLLAR A BUSHEL

Chicago, July 11.—Dollar marks were virtually discarded today in quoting the price of wheat. Both the July delivery and September fell below $1 a bushel, and all deliveries touched a new low record price for the present season as well as the lowest record in July since 1914. Momentum from yesterday's collapse of values had much to do with today's setback. The market closed unsettled at 1-4c to 7-8c net decline, with September 99 5-8c to 44 3-4c and December 1.02 1-2 to 1.02 5-8. Corn finished a shade lower to 3-4c advance, oats at 1-8c off, to 3-8c gain, and provisions 2c to 7c up.

Price declined carried the market down to 98 5-8c a bushel for the September the principal month in which trading at present is active. This minimum was reached about mid-session and was followed by a moderate upturn, due more or less to a somewhat enlarged export demand. Besides, country offerings had fallen off owing apparently to the fact that prices were below net cost of production.

Unlike yesterday, the wheat market today showed no trace of flurried dealings, the new declines having been generally expected as a consequence of increased calls for margins made necessary by the sudden fall of prices yesterday to $1.00 a bushel. Weakness of values was further emphasized in early dealings today by word from the northwest that blackrust danger for at least the time being had been halted by cool weather.

Corn and oats showed relative strength. The chief reason was that rural offerings of corn were next to nothing.

Provisions were firmer in line with hogs.

JEWETT CITY

Much interest is being shown in the coming grange fair. Meetings are being held every two weeks by the directors, who are planning to make the fair of 1923 the best ever. It is for everyone, not only for the Pachaug Grange Fair Association as the name implies. It is expected there will be a large number of entries this year. The new superintendent of the grounds, F. H. Gilbert, is planning to have everything in first class order, with plenty of room to accommodate all. More cattle sheds are to be erected and a kitchen added to the dining hall. The president, W. C. Terry, is considering the matter of a water supply.

The officers elected and committee appointed to serve are as follows: President, Willis C. Terry; vice presidents, Walter C. Tanner, Harold Geer and F. L. Kanahan; secretary, Alexander S. Tanner; treasurer, H. H. Tift; directors, F. H. Gilbert, Mrs. George Briggs, Elmer Miller, W. P. Holmes, Ransom Young, Bertha Gallup, Mrs. F. C. Whiting, C. T. Armstrong, Mrs. W. B. Montgomery, D. F. The Evening Mail Radio Review contains an instructive twelve-inch double column article headed Campbell's "Dope" on The Cockaday Receiver—Suggests Potentiometer for Facilitating Close Detector Adjustment. There is also a two-inch double column diagram illustrating the article. The author of the article is Howard R. Campbell of Bayonne, N. J., son of Fred S. Campbell of Jewett City.

He writes that a graphite compression rheostat for the detector is advisable, and is much better than a vernier. Any tubes may be used, U V-200-201 A tubes, the potentiometer being of the greatest volume when soft tubes such as the 200 are used in the detector. No phone condenser should be added, as this simply reduces the volume on the local stations and entirely prevents DX results. By all means high and low ratio transformers should be used in the first and second stages respectively. Only one of the condensers need be vernier type. An "off and on" switch in one of the A battery leads is very handy, especially if there are children around who like to see the lights go on. Don't try to squeeze the set in too small a cabinet. An extra couple of inches means a lot in wiring the set. During the past year the author said he had made practically all of the "popular" hook-ups, including the Flewelling, Reflex, D X-Flex, and, of course, the "standard" circuits, and it was his opinion that for selectivity, especially, the Cockaday has it on them all. He also has in operation a full grown Faulkner set from which he gets excellent results. In selectivity it does not come up to the Cockaday, but for ease of operation, volume, etc., it is very good indeed and compares favorably. Anyone who is contemplating building a set will make no mistake in tackling either of these two hook-ups, for they are far beyond the cumbersome variometer—vario-couplet set, with its many tuning controls that don't "tune."

At a regular session of Reliance lodge No. 29, I. O. O. F., held Monday evening, the first degree was worked on two candidates. The following elective officers will be installed Monday evening, July 16: William J. Robertson, Jr., noble grand; Abraham Zegeer, vice grand; David A. Bothwell, recording secretary; G. A. Haskell, financial secretary; William McCluggage, treasurer, by District Deputy Grand Master John F. Amburn and staff of Norwich. The installation will be public. Ruthie Rebekah, No. 28, has been invited to attend also all Odd Fellows and their families and friends.

Carl Benjamin of East Orange, N. J., is at home for a vacation.

Troop B, Third United States Cavalry, passed through Jewett City on Tuesday evening at 7.30 and spent the night on Palmer Bros.' farm in Griswold.

Mrs. Almina Bennett of Providence is visiting friends in Lisbon and Griswold, while she is a guest at L. D. Howe's.

POETRY

THE WAVE.

How have I watched for hours from my nook
Among the vast heaped ledges of the coast,
Where Maine's stern crags of granite front the deep,
The grace and power of the inrushing wave!
Above the retreating flood's hoarse fume and force
That silences seaward from the last assault,
Like roaring avalanche, down Alpine cliffs,
The approaching billow rears its rolling mass,
To even under ridge of surging strength
Its concave shoreward wall, clear emerald,
And burnished like the curve of some great lens,
Reflects the sunlight in long flare of gilt,
And yields a glimpse within its vitreous span
Of seaweed streamers caught up in its swirl
And darkening the beryl with their bronze;
While higher, with the onset of the wave,
Its foaming crest is flung in dazzling snow,
Until in maenad leap against the rocks
It bursts in rainbowed geysers of wild spray.
So may some billow from the outer deep
Of God's unfathomed truth and love assail
The crags of doubt and barren selfishness
That jut so harshly from our time's rough coast,
And flooding with its power all their gloom,
Fling faith's white splendor sunward where they drown!
—Eliot White, in New York Herald.

Salesman—Why, madam, the very first umbrella that is left in it may be worth more than that.—Boston Transcript.

Mamma—Jimmy, didn't I tell you the other day never to let me hear of you playing with those naughty boys again?

Jimmy—Yes, mamma; but you needn't blame me if you heard it, I didn't tell you.—Exchange.

Mrs. Crawford—It's nice to have a husband who remembers his wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Crabshaw—But he's so mean about it, dear. When I ask him he says he isn't likely to forget it.—New York Sun.

NORWICH CONGREGATION TO HEAR OF NEAR EAST

An eye-witness account of conditions in the Near East will be brought before a Norwich congregation Sunday morning at the United Congregational church when Rev. James L. Barton, D. D., addresses the union service there.

Dr. Barton acquired an intimate acquaintance with conditions in Turkey through his missionary experience and as secretary in charge of the Congregational missionary work in that part of the world. This was recognized when he was chosen as chairman of the Armenian and Syrian relief committee, which name was later changed to the Near East relief. He has been instrumental in extending the influence of this committee which has done so much to relieve suffering in the Near East and which has raised many millions of dollars for relief work. In 1919 he was chosen as the head of a commission of seven representative men to visit Turkey to determine the actual conditions demanding relief. He visited all parts of Asia Minor, Syria and the Caucasus.

Dr. Barton is a well known author and he has also lectured on missionary subjects at Hartford, Andover and other seminaries. Among his best known books are Daybreak in Turkey, The Missionary and His Critics and his latest work, The Christian Approach to Islam.

VANDALISM IN HEBREW CEMETERY AT GREENEVILLE

Tombstones upset and a building broken into at the Hebrew cemetery in Greeneville have been acts of vandalism that have been under investigation by the police this week and it is understood that the trail has led to a gang of boys, some of whom have confessed.

Seven or eight tombstones have been tipped over and damage besides that has been done in some cases by chipping the edges of the stones in their fall. An official of the cemetery, which is conducted by Independent Norwich lodge, No. 309, has estimated the cost of replacement of the stones at about $300.

XENS HELD ANNUAL PICNIC AT HAPPYLAND

Members of the Xens society enjoyed their annual picnic Wednesday, going to Happyland for the day. The trip was made by automobiles and the party left Norwich shortly before noon. An appetizing dinner was enjoyed and the afternoon was spent in social times and in boating and swimming. The party returned to the city in the evening, the annual picnic having been a great success.

NICHOLS CAPTAINS POLO TEAM AT CAMP DEVENS

One brigade of infantry consisting of the 104th and 181st Infantry of the 26th Division under command of Colonel Paul Norton of the 104th witnessed a spectacular demonstration at Camp Devens of a platoon of grenadors making an attack on a machine gun nest under cover of a smoke screen. Several hundred phosphorus grenades for hand and rifles were used and the explosions set fire to underbrush on the Warren Field for an area of a mile square. Soldiers assisted the fire department in extinguishing the blaze and no material damage was done.

A platoon from the service company of the 15th Infantry, under command of Captain Louis D. Hutson staged the demonstration under the direction of Major Paul Moulton, Chemical War Service, O. R. C., and as the brigade marched back to quarters they were subjected to a surprise gas attack which caused considerable uneasiness in the ranks. A harmless concentration of tar gas was used. Troops equiped with gas masks acquitted themselves easily but among the observers there was more difficulty. One automobile containing newspaper men was stalled in the midst of the gas and there was a wild scramble to get in the clear air. An officer equiped with a gas mask went to the rescue and moved the car out of the zone.

On July 12th Major Moulton will stage a monster demonstration showing everything the Chemical War Service has to offer. The demonstration will be given on Warren Field by a company from the 13th Infantry and 181st troops including the R. O. T. C., Officers' Reserve Corps and remaining units of National Guards, staffs of all units and general headquarters. The public is invited to attend this demonstration which will start promptly at 2 o'clock.

Reserve officers from the 97th, 94th and 76th Divisions had a monster demonstration of their own today. One entire company from the 13th Infantry, made an attack over a large area supported by all auxiliary arms, including tanks, one powder cannon, machine guns and air plane. Two platoons made the assault with another acting in reserve. The tanks firing machine-guns and one pounders supported each flank of the attacking force and the whole operation occupied nearly two hours. Student officers are frank in the praise of the officers planning demonstrations of this sort for the minimum amount of physical effort is required and after return to quarters they are able to devote time to studies of problems and tactical situations in class.

Horsemen from the R. O. T. C. have organized a polo team with Student Nichols of Norwich as team captain. Captain Frank A. Allen, Jr., U. S. A., is instructor and it is expected that these students will develop a strong team. It is planned to have matched games with other units in camp on Sunday mornings.

ROTARIANS WILL ATTEND STORRS FIELD DAY

The fellowship committee, Alfred G. Bliven, chairman, conducted the program for the noonday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel. There was a fairly large attendance and the talks by Chairman Bliven and Herbert B. Cary on the duties of the fellowship committee were very interesting to the club members. Both Mr. Bliven and Cary touched on matters of vital interest to the members of the club such as keeping up attendance, greeting the guests and making them feel at home among the members, keeping in touch with members of the club and visiting them in their places of business, remembering the sick and doing many other things that stimulate the feeling of brotherhood among the members.

Both speakers were warmly applauded for their very entertaining remarks. At the business session President Charles A. Saxton presided and Charles E. Taylor was the song leader for the luncheon. A number of pleasing vocal selections were rendered by Lou Wheeler's silvertone quartette, with Henry J. LaFontaine as soloist. There was a very harmonious selection by T. C. Murphy and his Thermos Bottle sextette. President O. A. Glazebrook and Vice President C. R. H. Visscher, featuring in the solo parts. Bert Gager, George Ingalls and 'Doc" Spear sang a clever parody on Yes, We Have No Bananas, written by "Nate" Gibbs.

Attention was called to the Rotary field day at Storrs on Thursday, July 19th and tickets were distributed to the members who will attend. About 30 of the members with their wives will attend this mid-summer outing. Also the president called attention to the fall conclave which will be held at Rutland, Vt., Sept. 11-14, and a number of the local members signified their intention of attending the convention.

Rotarian Bill Oat, who has been host to the Rotary club every summer at his Ludlow farm in North Stonington, again extended an invitation for the members of the club to be his guests on Wednesday, July 25. Mr. Oat's invitation was received with a hearty demonstration and immediately all other engagements, business or otherwise, were cancelled and the club will turn out on that day 100 per cent strong. Everyone is expected to come and make a real day's outing. "Come Early and Stay Late" will be the slogan for this event.

It was announced that on Friday afternoon the Rotary club baseball team would clash with Charlie Butts' Bankers' team at the fairgrounds at 4.30 o'clock. This game will suffice as a workout for the Rotarians for their game at Storrs on July 19th against the New London Rotarians.

THREE MORE MAD DOG CASES IN CONNECTICUT

The warning issued by the Connecticut commissioner of domestic animals in regard to the increase in the prevalence of animal rabies in the state and his careful and opportune advice which prompted the weekly news letter of June 23rd on "Rabbies" has been followed by three additional cases of animal rabies which have appeared in cities and towns in the state which had hitherto been free of animal rabies this year. These places are New Haven, Thomaston and Barkhamsted, widely separated, all west of the Connecticut river, half way between the river and the New York state line, and running from the Massachusetts border to the sound. These three "mad" dogs ill with rabies (hydrophobia) bit horses, dogs and humans.

It serves to indicate that health officers must be always prepared to tackle new problems at a moment's notice, and all health officers in the state should know where to send for the Pasteur treatment for anti-rabic virus), these directions having been sent out by this department to them a short while ago.

We are very fortunate up to the present time, in not having a human case, all persons bitten having taken the anti-rabic treatment. The record of animal rabies in the state up to the present time this year is as follows:

Stratford 2 in March. Orange 1 in May. Cromwell 1 in January, 1 in February, 1 in March, 1 in April. East Hartford 1 in March, 1 in April. Lisbon 1 in June. Ellington 1 in May. Granby 1 in June. Stonington 2 in June. Preston 1 in June. East Windsor 1 in June. Newington 1 in May. Tolland 1 in June. Vernon 1 in June. New Haven 1 in July. Barkhamsted 1 in July. Thomaston 1 in July.

FERTILIZER DEALERS IN CONFERENCE AT STORRS

Fertilizer dealers in Connecticut are holding their second annual conference at Storrs, July 11 and 12. Among the speakers on the two-day programme are directors of agricultural experiment stations in three states: Dr. E. H. Jenkins of Connecticut, Dr. J. G. Lippman of New Jersey, and Dr. S. B. Haskell of Massachusetts.

The fertilizer situation in Connecticut will be discussed from a viewpoint of farmers, soil experts and the fertilizer dealers. The proposed soil survey of Connecticut and its relation to fertilizer problems will be discussed by W. L. Slate, Jr., of New Haven.

Gasoline Cut Expected

A reduction of at least two cents a gallon in the tank wagon price of gasoline on the Atlantic coast is expected within a week. It is considered likely that the cut will be three cents. A three cent cut would mean a tank wagon price of 18 1-2 cents and a station service price of 22 cents, the lowest price to motor users since the war.

Large overproduction of crude oil in California is said to be responsible for the impending reduction.

GERMANY IS FAST MOVING TOWARDS ECONOMIC CHAOS

Baldwin Sees Social and Industrial Ruin Ahead for Berlin Government—Europe Alarmed at Condition of Affairs—British Prime Minister Says England is Ready to Use Every Measure to Compel Germany to Pay Up to the Amount of Her Capacity—Peace Depends on Payment of Reparations, Settlement of Inter-Allied Debts and Security of a Pacified Europe.

London, July 12 (By the A. P.)—Prime Minister Baldwin in his statement on foreign policy in the house of commons today, laid stress at the outset upon the thought that there was but one ground of divergence among the powers concerned with reparations, and that this was as to the best means to attain the ends vital to all—the payment of reparations and the re-establishment of the security of Europe. The allies had grudged nothing in the past nor would they grudge anything in the future to ensure those ends, he said.

"This responsibility," continued the prime minister, "is acknowledged and shared in equal measure by France, Italy, Belgium and ourselves. Perhaps it may be held to devolve in more special measure upon the French and British nations by virtue of the great sacrifices they made side by side in the years of trial, by the intimacy of fact and memory which unites them today and, not the least, by the experience these two ancient civilizations have shared throughout the centuries.

"We are as determined as any of our allies that Germany shall make reparation for the damages done in the great war to the fullest extent of her capacity. We have never wavered on this point; I do not believe our people ever will. Indeed, we go further, and we are ready, as we have said on many occasions (as was reported in Paris in January last), to use every measure to compel Germany to pay up to the amount of her capacity.

"We see conditions, however, as a business nation that if we ask Germany to pay in excess of her capacity we shall not get it, and that our allies will be the main sufferers and we are firmly convinced that methods which can only result in the ruin of Germany would be fatal to this country, to our allies and to the whole of Europe.

"The French and Belgian governments assure us that the whole object in occupying the Ruhr is to secure the payment of reparations. If that be so, the issue between us is one of method rather than of aim, but we are convinced that the indefinite continuance of the state of affairs is calculated to increase peril.

"Germany itself appears to be moving fast toward economic chaos which must be preceded by social and industrial ruin. Local populations are in many cases suffering severely, and there are genuine apprehensions of a shortage of food.

"Nor is this a situation that concerns Germany alone. In proportion as the prostrate power of that country is exhausted so does the recovery of her credit and the payment of her debts recede into the distance.

"Every country in Europe is paying the price for the continuation of affairs. Germany pays in constantly falling exchange, another in diminished trade, a third in increasing unemployment.

"Peril and depression throughout Europe, and not least in the East and Great Britain, is becoming more and more sensitive to these conditions and alarmed at their continuance. It is not too much to say that the recovery of the world is in danger and that the peace for which so many sacrifices were borne is at stake. It is in these circumstances that the necessity for action has been increasingly impressed upon the majesty's government.

"If the situation has been at all correctly described in the preceding paragraphs it cannot be left to right itself. There will, I believe, be a general agreement to these propositions:

"That the period of conflict should as soon as possible be terminated:

"That the indefinite occupation by one country of the territory of another in time of peace is a phenomenon, rare and regrettable in itself, to which an honorable end should as soon as possible be found;

"That the debtor should not merely be called upon to pay his debt but should be placed in a position where he can do so;

"That his capacity, where it is in doubt, should be tested and determined and that united efforts should be made to accomplish these ends.

"Peace will not be finally obtained and recovery will not be ensured until a solution has been found to these three great questions. They are;

"1. Payment of reparations;

"2. Settlement of inter-allied debts;

"3. Security of a pacified Europe;

"To these questions the attention of the world should be turned.

"In pursuit of these aims his majesty's government are so far from desiring to deprive France and Belgium of their legal claim that they wish to assist them in their realization. Our desire is for advance, if it can be made, and for finality if it can be attained. And in these aspirations, as well as in our view of the general situation, we are hopeful of obtaining the concurrence of France and Belgium no less than that of Italy."

ISSUING TREASURY BILLS TO MEET DEFICITS

Berlin, July 12.—(By The A. P.)—Germany has met a daily deficit of $5,000,000 during the last ten days of June by issuing treasury bills, it was revealed in a statement published today by the finance ministry.

Only one-fiftieth of the government's expenditures could be met by ordinary receipts such as taxes.

ENGLAND WILL SOON SUBMIT REPLY TO ALLIES

London, July 12.—(By the A. P.)—The government's draft of its reply to Germany on reparations, it was stated late tonight, will be submitted to the allies early next week, probably Monday, and it is likely to give the British view favoring submission of the question of Germany's capacity to pay to an impartial tribunal, provided such tribunal can be formed of a sufficiently high standing to command confidence.

A canvas of political quarters tonight showed that while Premier Baldwin's statement did not excite enthusiasm it was generally well received, and markedly so among business men. The most active criticism is likely to come from the pronounced pro-French section of the conservative party and from the Lloyd George party. The latter party held a meeting this afternoon and condemned the statement as inadequate, and surprise was expressed that after so many weeks' delay the government had failed to come to more definite conclusions.

FRENCH PLEASED WITH PREMIER BALDWIN'S SPEECH

Paris, July 12.—(By The A. P.)—Although the text of Premier Baldwin's speech in the British house of commons arrived here too late to allow of official examination tonight, it was indicated among authoritative Frenchmen that the first impression in general was distinctly pleasing, particularly since the statement was apparently less severe than the French had been led to expect.

None of the official text had arrived before Premier Poincare left his office for the day, but sufficient of the press summary came to allow a number of high authorities to examine the general principles of the address. What seems to please these circles most is that they see no hint of separate action by Great Britain in dealing with Germany.

The French take as a distinctly good sign Mr. Baldwin's gentle but firm warning to Germany not to over-emphasize the importance of minor difficulties among the allies. They commented, however, with more reserve on the British premier's assertions concerning the inseparability of reparations and the allied debts although until the official text is received they are unwilling to criticise even this part of his address adversely.

SLIGHT DECREASE IN EMPLOYMENT IN COUNTRY

Washington, July 12.—Slight decrease in employment throughout the country during June, compared with May was shown in a survey made public today by the department of labor. The paper and printing industry showed the largest decline with a decrease of 4.4 per cent. Other industries reporting declines include: Vehicles 2.5 per cent; stone, clay and glass products, 1.6 per cent; textiles 1.2 per cent; metal and metal products other than iron and steel, .67 per cent; lumber, .34 per cent; iron and steel .16 per cent.

Increases were noted in the following industries:

Leather, 4.9 per cent; beverages, 4.8 per cent; food, 2.8 per cent; miscellaneous .94 per cent; railroad repair shops, .86 per cent; tobacco manufacturing, .68 per cent, and chemicals and allied products .24 per cent.

The figures were based on reports from 1,428 concerns employing 500 or more persons each and in sixty-five industrial centers.

ISSUES MURDER VERDICT AGAINST EGYPTIAN'S WIFE

London, July 12 (By the A. P.)—The coroner today issued a verdict of murder against the French wife of Ali Kamel Fahmy Bey, an Egyptian, who died in a hospital Tuesday shortly after he was found mortally wounded in the corridor of the hotel where he and his wife were staying.

Testimony taken at the inquest showed that Fahmy was not an Egyptian prince but the son of a wealthy cotton merchant. He and his wife led the life of the gay set in London and Paris, and both being jealous, they constantly quarreled.

New York, July 12.—An initial dividend of 2 1-2 per cent. on the preferred stock was declared today by directors of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad company which operates a double tube tunnel system under the Hudson river connecting New York and New Jersey.

The directors voted also the regular 2 1-2 per cent. interest on the company's 5 per cent. adjustment income bonds.

The preferred dividend, announced as a semi-annual payment is at the rate of 5 per cent. a year.

FRANCE HAS 80,000 TROOPS IN RUHR

Berlin, July 12 (By the A. P.)—According to figures described as coming from a well-informed German source, there are now 80,000 French and 70,000 Belgian troops in the Ruhr, and 97,000 French and 17,000 Belgian troops in the old occupied territory. In addition 10,000 French and 1,000 Belgian railwaymen have been sent into the Ruhr.

During the six months of occupation, 92 persons are stated to have lost their lives, while 71,145 were expelled.

New York, July 11.—The Greek government has arranged for the reception of 60,000 more refugees from the Constantinople, Syrian and Black Sea districts according to a report received from Athens today by the Near East relief. MAN'S BODY FOUND WITH BULLET IN HEAD

Voices Opposition To Rail Legislation

Owners of Rail Securities Against Enforced Consolidation of Nation's Roads Into a Few Large Systems.

New York, July 12.—Opposition to legislation enforcing consolidation into a few large systems of the nation's railroads, which President Harding in his Kansas City address declared he expected to be enacted by congress, was expressed today by S. Davies Warfield, president of the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities.

Mr. Warfield's opposition was set forth in letters to the Security Owners' association and to the National Association of Mutual Savings banks. His views were unanimously approved at a joint meeting of committees of the two organizations today.

"We have," Mr. Warfield declared, "opposed enforcement; we believe in the encouragement of consolidations meeting legitimate traffic and public necessities but not to bolster up weak railroads by imposing them upon the owners of the strong."

Mr. Warfield asserted 'the benefits from joint facility uses which the president hopes to secure by enforcing the consolidations of the railroad corporations, would be largely attained' by a central railroad agency. The National Railway Service, Incorporated—first was suggested to congress in 1919, he declared.

Adoption of the central agency plan, Mr. Warfield declared, should be the forerunner of consolidations, whether compulsory or permissive. It would permit, as no other plan would, he said, the granting of a voice in railroad affairs to owners of securities not directly represented by the roads' directorates.

U. S. NOT CONSULTED BY BRITISH OFFICIALS

Washington, July 12.—An authoritative statement here today made it clear that the Washington government had not been consulted by British officials regarding the forthcoming British reply to the German note on the reparations situation. It was added also that Washington had volunteered no suggestions and that press reports that there should be interchanges of views through the London embassy were without foundation in fact.

Mr. Baldwin's phraseology at several points was generally regarded in Washington as implying that some attempt was in process to find a remedy for the reparations tangle through joint international action to determine Germany's capacity to pay as an economic fact. If this should prove to be the substance of the British cabinet proposals when they are announced, undoubtedly the plan would have much in common with the suggestions made by Secretary Hughes to the French government last October.

Officials here still take the position that there has been no change in the European tangle that makes the matter one in which the American government could intervene in any diplomatic way further than the steps taken last fall and winter in seeking to avert drastic action by the French, Belgian and Italian governments. It is also felt strongly that discussion of the question in Washington at this stage would be untimely and filled with possibilities of misunderstandings and additional complications.

ROCKEFELLER VISITS SCENES OF BOYHOOD

Moravia, July 12.—John D. Rockefeller, who passed his eighty-fourth milestone Sunday, today visited the scenes of his boyhood and passed out several hundred hundred new dimes to old friends and acquaintances.

Mr. Rockefeller arrived about noon, registered at the village tavern, told the clerk he would be back for dinner and then motored to the old Rockefeller home between this village and Auburn. He walked about the old place, chatted about the days of his youth and recalled, friends said, that while living in the ancient wooden house he earned his first dollar.

Mr. Rockefeller talked with farmers about their crops and the outlook and on returning to this village resumed handshaking and passed out dimes. He was the center of a throng on the steps of the old Moravia house. He appeared in excellent spirits.

MAN SLASHED BY BURGLAR IS DEAD

Thompsonville, Conn., July 12.—Lawrence Cisek, 40, who was slashed with a razor by a burglar in his room here on June 30, died today in a hospital in Springfield, Mass. Anthony Salwa, alleged assailant of Cisek, is being held in the Hartford county jail on a charge of burglary with violence. State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn said tonight that the charge would be changed to murder. When Salwa was arrested here more than $1,000 was found in his room. The burglar who slashed Cisek escaped with $1,250.

TWO REQUESTS FOR WITHDRAWAL OF TROOPS

Ottawa, July 12.—Premier King today received two requests for withdrawal of the troops from the Cape Breton strike area.

One, from Mayor Morrison of Glace Bay, which stated that the city would not be responsible for their maintenance, was referred to the department of national defense. This department disclaimed jurisdiction and Mayor Morrison was told to address his demand to Judge Finlayson at whose request the troops were called out. The telegram stated that the troops would be removed if Judge Finlayson so recommends.

The second request came from the trade and labor congress. It asked the appointment of a royal commission to investigate the calling out of the troops.

NEW HAVEN MAN SUICIDES BY GAS

New Haven, July 12.—Franklin Cavanaugh, 21, committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas in a rooming house in Meadow street this afternoon. No reason for his act was known. He was recently honorably discharged from the marine corps, according to papers found in his room.

Tiredness is the principal source of fatigue among workers, according to [illegible] have made a survey of mechanical processes in industry.

Near East Peace Hangs in Balance

Lausanne Conference Temporarily Suspended After a Fruitless Struggle Over Concessions.

Lausanne, July 12.—(By the A. P.)—The Near East peace conference is temporarily suspended over the fight on concessions, in which the United States is playing an important role through her desire to protect the principle of the open door and her protest against concession rights which are alleged to be monopolistic.

Nobody knows when the conference will be resumed, because the allies, who declare that the situation is serious, must again refer to their governments for instructions.

The allied delegates, after today's fruitless struggle with Ismet Pasha, said that the Turks had gone back on the agreement reached in the early hours of Monday on three different points, and they estimated that the Turks were banking too much on the weakness of the allies.

Ismet Pasha today refused to permit the great powers to keep two cruisers each at Constantinople and demanded the immediate application of the straits convention. He was informed that this was impossible until the convention was ratified.

PRACTICALLY ALL CONN. PLANTS ON FULL TIME

Boston, July 12.—Generally satisfactory industrial conditions in New England, with a shortage of skilled workers in some lines, were reported tonight by the office of the New England district of the employment service of the federal department of labor. The scarcity of farm help continues. Building operations are active but there is still housing shortage in many cities. The summary by states for Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut follows:

"Massachusetts. Practically all the plants are on full time with a few in certain sections on part time basis. Increased activities in the building trades are apparent all over the state with a shortage of workers noted. While there has been some curtailment in the textile centers during the past month it is the consensus of opinion that it is only of a temporary nature. Marked shortage of skilled machinists, farm help and factory workers. Metal trades have shown decided improvement during the past month. Shortage of moderate priced houses exists throughout the state.

"Rhode Island: While there has been a curtailment in labor and hours in the textile industry there are no plants entirely closed and industrial employment conditions are considered good throughout the state. There is still a shortage of skilled workers in certain branches of the textile industry. Jewelry plants are on part time basis due to seasonal slackening. The building trades are very active and a shortage of workers in this line is noted in certain sections of the state.

"Connecticut: Industrial activities continue to improve and practically all plants are running full time with some on overtime basis. Shortage of workers noted in nearly all lines particularly in the rubber, metal, silk and building trades. Great shortage of farm help throughout the state. Building trades very active with a shortage of certain mechanics and common laborers. Housing conditions as a whole are satisfactory."

RESTORE NORMAL CONDITIONS ALONG CHINESE SEACOAST

Washington, July 12 (By the A. P.)—Joint action by the powers is understood to have been suggested by Great Britain as a means of restoring normal conditions along the Chinese seacoast and up the great rivers upon which the export cities are located.

The British suggestion, as understood here, would contemplate the use, of a limited extent of naval resources but would not necessarily involve the military forces.

The British suggestion is understood to have been a result of conferences in Peking following the recent activities in China.

It apparently has been the hope of the conferees to clear up to a large extent the entire Chinese problem, which recently has been complicated by a disagreement between China and France over payment of remaining installments of the Boxer indemnity. This dispute is held responsible in diplomatic quarters here for France's failure to take up the two Chinese treaties negotiated at the Washington conference.

MORSE DEFENSE INTRODUCES TESTIMONY AT TRIAL

Washington, July 12.—A letter written by Charles M. Schwab, while director-general of the Emergency Fleet corporation in which he declared he was "delighted" with the progress made by the Virginia Shipbuilding corporation in April, 1918, was introduced as evidence by the defense today at the Morse trial.

The letter written after Mr. Schwab had inspected the Virginia company's plant at Alexandria, Va., was addressed to Benjamin W. Morse, vice president and general manager of the corporation, and one of the eight men charged with conspiracy to defraud the government of shipping contracts.

Another defendant, Rupert M. Much, former assistant treasurer of the corporation, testified that on one of his visits to Chief Auditor Overend of the shipping board to get the weekly payroll for Morse shipyard workers, Overend remarked that it would make no difference to him if the company were forced into bankruptcy. At that time Much asserted, the Emergency Fleet corporation was indebted to the shipbuilding company to the extent of one million dollars on vessels contracted for.

GRAFT CHARGES AGAINST BUFFALO POLICE OFFICERS

Buaffol, N. Y., July 12.—Charges that nine police officers, including a captain, levied graft for "protection" were made today by Miss Helen O'Neil at Mayor Schwab's inuiry into illegal narcotic traffic and vice conditions.

Miss O'Neil, who says she formerly was in burlesque in New York city, admitted that she was the owner of a resort in the Tenderloin district. She declared that she paid tribute personally to a "fixer" who claimed to be the collector for Police Captain John J. Creahan.

Captain Creahan was not called, but subsequently denied emphatically that he had ever received a dollar of graft or that he knew the alleged "fixer."

DAUGHERTY PREDICTS NO MORE RAILROAD TIEUPS

Attorney General Says Chicago Federal Court Order Making Rail Injunction Permanent Insures Public Against Repetition of Transportation Paralysis—Declares No Extensive Strike Tying Up Interstate Commerce Will Ever Take Place Again—Provisions of Final Decree Are Practically Identical With Provisions of Preliminary Injucntion Issued Last September.

Washington, July 12.—Attorney General Daugherty, in a statement issued today, declared the Chicago federal court order making permanent the injunction asked by the government in the 1922 railroad shopmen's strike, "forever settled" the law, insuring the public against repetition of transportation paralysis.

"No extensive strike tying up interstate commerce will ever take place again," was a prediction reiterated by the attorney general who is at his home in Columbus, Ohio, in the statement issued from the department of justice. 'This is a comfort to which the public in entitled."

The attorney general's statement follows:

"The entry in Chicago today of the final decree brings to a close the case wherein, as attorney general, I filed suit asking for a restraining order against the shopmen participating in a strike against the railroads and those interfering with interstate commerce and the carriage of the United States mails.

The provisions of the final decree are practically, in all respects, identical with the provisions of the preliminary injunction issued last September.

"National wide in its scope, the case was commenced in the name of the United States against the railway employes department of the American Federation of Labor and approximately 400,000 other defendants located at 5,000 points. During ten days covering the hearing before Judge Wilkerson for the preliminary injunction there were over two million words taken in the record. For the final hearing the full reports were taken and over 757 witnesses were sworn in and examined. The case was commenced and closed in approximately ten months.

"For its far reaching consequences in peacefully maintaining law and order, and for its expeditious handling, the case is without a parallel in legal annals. The champion case of the Pennsylvania railroad against the railroad labor board, conducted at the same time, passed through the United States district court, the circuit court of appeals, and the supreme court of the United States, also in ten months after the hearings commenced. Such expedition is extraordinary for cases of such magnitude and speaks well for the judges of the northern district of Illinois in discharging the public business.

"As this case is concluded, considering the importance of the final decision of the court, I feel it perfectly proper to say again what I said when I personally argued the case before the court for the temporary restraining order, that no extensive strike tying up interstate commerce will ever again take place in this country. This is a comfort to which the public is entitled. No strike involving interstate commerce can be conducted in this country with violence and vandalism without severe punishment to those who thus participate. The law in this regard is now forever settled by this decision."

STOCK BROKERS GO INTO BANKRUPTCY

New York, July 12.—The campaign to purge Wall street today brought the bankruptcy of the stock brokerage house of Harvey A. Willis & Co., close on the heels of an injunction restraining the concern from further trading until it had been cleared of charges of fraudulent practices.

Meanwhile there was every indication that the crusade on bucketshops and swindling brokers would be pressed even more energetically by officials of county, state and nation.

District Attorney Banton received a call from Laurence Tweedy, newly elected president of the Consolidated Stock Exchange after which it was announced the exchange would cooperate with the county in cleaning up the street.

The state took a hand in the situation by obtaining the temporary trading injunction against the Willis concern, which recently was expelled from the Consolidated for practices which were declared to be shady.

The nation kept up its attack by arraigning five brokers connected with the stock brokerage concern of Charles H. Clarkson & Co., along with the prominent criminal lawyer, William J. Fallon and a juror he was alleged to have bribed in connection with another bucketing case trial.

Three creditors petitioned to have Willis declared bankrupt. Their claims totalled only $524. The only hint as to the liabilities and assets of the Willis concern was an allegation in the bankruptcy petition that the securities have been pledged with the alleged bankrupt in excess of $1,000,000 in value, to secure indebtedness of 700 customers and that said alleged bankrupt will not be able to deliver said securities on payment of debit balances of the said customers."

Scores of the customers made their appearance on the 12th floor of the Broadway office building occupied by the Willis concern soon after a notice had been posted that its doors had been closed. Employes refused to admit anyone, but it was understood that Mr. Willis was in his private office awaiting the arrival of the receiver, Henry H. Kaufman, and preparing a statement.

MINERS AND OPERATORS DISCUSS WAGE DEMANDS

Atlantic City, July 12.—The check-off, equalization of wages, differentials and other demands made by anthracite mine workers were discussed today by the sub-committee representing the employers and the workers who are trying to frame a new wage contract. The committee sat until after seven o'clock tonight and also held a night session.

The operators asked many questions about the working of the check-off in the bituminous regions and what the miners' plan was for introducing it in the anthracite fields.

No conclusion was reached on any point, it was stated, the operators simply exploring into the demands and the miners explaining them.

FIRE DAMAGES HOMESTEAD OF ADMIRAL FARRAGUT

Mastings-on-Hudson, July 12.—Fire almost caused the destruction by fire today of the old homestead where Admiral David Glasgow Farragut, of Civil war fame, once lived. Painters, in an attempt to smoke out bees in the gables, lighted a fire and ignited the roof. The fire department put out the flames quickly.

FALLON PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO BRIBERY

New York, July 12.—William J. Fallon—prominent criminal lawyer who has appeared as counsel in the Arnstein, Fuller, Ward and other famous cases today strode into Federal Judge FitzHenry's chambers in the Woolworth building and pleaded not guilty to charges of having bribed a juror and conspired to obstruct justice.

He was held in $5,000 bail and given until a week from Monday to enter a demurrer or change his plea. Then from the office of his counsel he issued a statement, declaring that he had been the victim of a vindictive newspaper campaign and that his indictment with the juror alleged to have been bribed and five stock brokers was the result of a frame-up and "a dirty trick" involving an employe he had discharged.

The seven indictments, returned by a federal grand jury ten days ago, were made public last night. This afternoon all the defendants have been accounted for except Charles H. Clarkson, charged with use of the mails to defraud in connection with the affairs of the stock brokerage concern of Charles H. Clarkson & Co.

Assistant United States Attorney House informed Judge FitzHenry that detectives could not locate Clarkson and that he was a fugitive from justice.

James Mimnaugh, another broker indicted on the same charge as Clarkson, entered a plea of not guilty and was held in $2,500 bail. John C. Feeley, indicted with Clarkson and Mimnaught, would appear for pleading tomorrow, the court was informed.

Charles W. Rendiga, a cloak and suit manufacturer and the juror Fallon was alleged to have bribed in the Durrell-Gregory stock brokerage trial, entered a tentative plea of not guilty and was held in $5,000. Rendiga, it was learned, also was a juror in the trial of Edward M. Fuller and William F. McGee, bucketeers defended by Fallon, but the indictment against him does not involve that case, which resulted in a disagreement.

Fuller and McGee, who pleaded guilty to bucketing on the eve of their fourth trial and who were indicted with the five others named by the federal grand jury, were brought today from jail but were not called to plead, as they said they first desired to consult their counsel.

Hundreds of spectators had gathered at the Federal building, expecting that Fallon would appear there to plead. They were keenly disappointed when they learned he had been arraigned in chambers—a proceeding which lawyers said was by no means uncommon in cases where it was desired to avoid publicity.

TELE. STRIKE CONFERENCE IN PROVIDENCE TODAY

Boston, July 12.—President Matt B. Jones of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company tonight stated that he would attend the conference called by Major Joseph H. Gainer of Providence to meet in Providence on Friday to discuss with representatives of the telephone operators now on strike in five New England states and with mayors of several New England cities the present situation arising out of the strike. Mr. Jones made it plain, however, that he would refuse to discuss the question of arbitration.

The proposed conference was decided upon in a meeting yesterday in Worcester which was called by Mayor Peter F. Sullivan of that city and which was attended by the mayors of Providence, Lawrence, Salem, Pawtucket, Newport, Central Falls and Woonsocket.

HOLDS AUTO DRIVER CRIMINALLY RESPONSIBLE

New Haven, July 12.—Coroner Eli Mix, in a finding given out tonight, holds Henry Barnett, of Brooklyn, N. Y., criminally responsible for the death of Joseph Leary, aged 4, who was killed Tuesday when the automobile in which he was riding was struck by a motor truck driven by Barnett. The automobile was smashed against a telephone pole. The boy was thrown out and killed and his mother and two others were injured.

The parents of the dead boy and others in the machine have brought damage suits aggregating $20,000 against the Arrow Haulage company, of Brooklyn, owners of the truck.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN

Police officials from the town of Windham, figured in a three-hour chase between midnight Wednesday night and the early hours of Thursday morning, while trailing Eugene J. Bellerose of 15 Water street, Putnam and David Cote of 24 Harrison street, Putnam. The run, covering over 65 miles was made in automobiles and pursuing the two men were Judge Frank H. Foss, County Sheriff Charles A. Gates, County Detective William E. Jackson, Chief of Police Allan MacArthur, Constable Harry W. Avery and a newspaperman. The two Putnam men, whom the officials believed were automobile thieves were finally captured at the point of a gun by Constable Harry Avery and Judge Foss, who occupied one of the pursuing machines. The arrests were made on the Woodstock-Jutnam town boundary line. Bellerose and Cote were taken to Putnam and locked up at the police station. The chase extended through six towns of Windham and over twenty villages, the Putnam car making the entire run without any tires on the rear wheels.

An automobile coming along the road between North Windham and Windham Center Wednesday night about 8 o'clock had to turn out for a big gray touring car which was parked along one side of the road and was without tires on the rear wheels. Two men then came to the machine with a can of gasoline and were questioned by the passerby, but the latter received no satisfaction The driver of the first automobile bore in mind that a stolen machine from Danielson was being sought, and thinking that the crippled car might be the one, he came to this city and notified the police officers later on during the evening, and he chasers started out about eleven o'clock The machine had left the roadside but neighbors said that it had left in the direction of North Windham The deep wheel marks in the road afforded the officers a plain trail to follow. They were led in the direction of North Windham and Chaplin, where motorists were stopped and questioned. One man said that an attempt had been made to hold him up, by two men standing beside a big car which he noticed had no tires on the rear wheels. The autoist said that he did not stop but stepped on the gass and hurried away.

The chase was then resumed in earnest through Phoenixville, Pomfret Center, Harrisville, South Woodstock and Woodstock. At the last named place the Foss-Avery automobile, turned toward Putnam and the other party, with County Detective Jackson at the wheel, sped on to New Boston and Quinebaug, in the town of Thompson. The wheel marks showed that the bandit car had crossed the state line into Massachusetts where all the marks vanished at West Dudley. The party then came back into Connecticut.

Meanwhile, the other posse struck upon the trail at Harrisville and overtook the crippled machine where it had stalled in the middle of the road, headed toward Putnam. The bandits gave no resistance. The Jackson car apparently was outwitted by the Putnam men when they ran their car into the Woodstock fair grounds.

Bellerose and Cote told various stories at the Putnam police station. Cote was the owner of the car which was a 1912 Cole model. He had planned to sell the machine in Willimantic, but not having a 1923 registration he induced his chum, Bellerose to break into the garage of John Wolfe, Cote's former employer and to steal a set of markers from Wolfe's machine. The numbers were then attached to Cote's machine and the men left for Willimantic about 4 p. m. According to their story they had four blowouts enroute and finally had to abandon the damaged tires. They told of obtaining gasoline at North Windham.

A fine of $200 and costs was imposed on William H. Norton, Thursday morning, when he was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Tuesday of this week Judge Frank H. Foss stated that he had been in doubt and lenient with the accused on two former appearances in the police court but that his mind was settled concerning the man's guilt in the last charge. Horton had entered a demurrer to the charge of driving his automobile while intoxicated. Traffic Officer Frank McLean testified that he received a complaint that Horton was driving while intoxicated, that he followed the man in another machine and saw the dangerous manner in which the accused was driving. The officer stated that Horton was intoxicated when arrested.

Horton appealed from the decision of the court and he was released on a bond of $300 furnished by Arthur J. Dubreuil for his appearance before the next criminal term of the Windham County superior court. Horton faced charges for reckless driving on March 18 and April 14, this year.

P. S. Hills has received a letter from the headquarters of a large loan company in Kansas stating that there is nothing attractive about the farmer's life in that state as regards the winter wheat crop. Last year, the United States government estimated the Kansas crop to be 100,000,000 bushels, a reduction from previous crops. The farmers receive 79 cents per bushel for the wheat and they have to pay 23 cents a bushel for thrashing and it was also necessary to contend with high labor conditions. The expenses of seed, planting and harvesting were also deducted from the profit.

Engine Company No. 1 was called out by a still alarm Thursday morning for a fire at Thread Mill Square. The awning over the Atlantic and Pacific store in the Casey lock was ablaze and the fire was extinguished with a pail of water. But slight damage was done although a large hole was burned in the awning. It is thought that a tenant on one of the upper floors threw a cigarette butt on the awning starting the fire.

A terrific hand to hand fight in an engine cab with the train thundering along at express rate speed is one of the many spectacular features in "Westbound Limited." Emory Johnson's colossal drama of railroad life, which is now showing at the Breed theatre.

The terrific struggle showing the attack by a fireman on the faithful and unsuspecting engineer and the latter's splendid defense to save the hundreds of passengers riding in the sleeping cars behind from death, as the train approaches a yawning culvert, forms one of the most vitally thrilling episodes that has ever been shown on the screen.

The staging of the engine cab fight required a special train, and Director Emory Johnson rehearsed Ralph Lewis, who plays the engineer and David Kirby, who enacts the role of the fireman, for five hours, with the train roaring along at full speed before he turned a camera on the struggle. The struggle was photographed thirty-six times before Johnson announced himself satisfied with the realism the scenes contained.

Ralph Lewis plays the featured role in "Westbound Limited."

Other pictures on the bill include Pearl White in Plunder, the Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy.

Horsemen have long known that a daily ration of Carrots gave a horse more "pep," helped his digestion, made his coat glossy and acted as a general tonic.

Their effect on the human system is much the same, clearing the skin and improving the complexion.

Locally grown Carrots are plentiful and cheap.

Beets, rich in iron and lime, Cabbage and String Beans with abundant vitamine, Lettuce in limited quantity are also offered.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Today, Friday, the thirteenth, is regarded by many as an unlucky day.

But, on the theory that "two negatives make an affirmative," it should be a day of extreme good luck.

Old New Yorkers will recall today as the sixtieth anniversary of the draft riots, which formed one of the bloodiest chapters in the history of the city.

After a two-day trip across the Gulf of Alaska, President Harding and his party on board the army transport Henderson are scheduled to arrive at Seward today.

The annual summer conference for Women's Foreign Missionary societies will be opened at East Northfield, Mass., today and continued until July 21.

With Gen. Gouraud, the famous French commander, as its guest, the Rainbow Division Veterans' Association will open its annual reunion today at Indianapolis.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Announcement

The announcement that the Vacuum Oil company is to bring out a quart can to use in the sale of Gargoyle Mobiloil recalls to mind that the sale of automobile lubricating oil has been handled for many years in the old fashioned measure-out-each order manner.

It is funny, too, because of all places where speed is essential and where the customer gets impatient, the garage and filling station is probably the best example and while it is four years since motoring became popular the garageman and the motorist have both put up with selling methods that would be laughed at in the modern grocery store.

Who, today, ever sees the grocer measure out a quart of milk, or a pound of saltine crackers, or, in fact, practically all of the foodstuffs that he has for sale? Most of them are all packaged waiting for the customer to come in. The housewife can buy twenty or thirty household necessities while her husband is buying one quart of oil from the garage.

This new quart can may go a long way toward revolutionizing the sale of oil among garages. Certainly it would seem to have all the advantages that other package goods have had in other lines of business. Of course from the motorists's standpoint it is going to be a very convenient way for him to carry oil on a trip for he may be sure to have just the grade of oil with him that he is supposed to use. Tourists will, no doubt, find this an excellent way to make sure that they are always obtaining the right grade of Mobiloil.

New Jackie Coogan Production Gives Star Greatest Opportunity to Reveal His Genius.

Little Jackie Coogan is with us again; this time in a story as different from "Oliver Twist" as that masterpiece was different from "Peck' Bad Boy." It bears the title of "Daddy," and yesterday's large audiences at the Strand theatre gave this First National picture hearty approbation in the form of tears, laughs and loud applause.

"Daddy" is richer in acting opportunities than any previous Jackie Coogan vehicle. It was written for their boy by Mr. and Mrs. Coogan, who, better than any others, know their son's precocious genius and its almost limitless versatility. Never before has this little star possessed such a chance to reveal his powers of pathetic appeal and tragic fervor.

The spectators at yesterday's performances were thrilled to hushed silence when little Jackie moved through the scene in which his guardian passes away and Jackie finds his real daddy. Dry eyes were in the minority and tears were unabashed and abundant. But they were quickly chased away by the are of this little necromancer, who juggles emotions and beguiles hearts.

"Daddy" is a picture that will live in our memory forever, and we echo the cry of the New York publisher who wrote: "Please, dear God, don't let Jackie Coogan grow up."

In its cast "Daddy" is rendered particularly notable by the presence of Arthur Carewe, Cesare Gravini, Bert Woodruff and Anna Townsend. Their selection by Director E. Mason Hooper can be classed as a stroke of genius, for there is no false note in their characterizations. And then there is Mildred. But you must see Mildred yourself, for to tell you of this friend of little Jackie would be to rob you of the joy of a big comedy surprise with which this charming story closes.

Round seven of the Fighting Blood series was very entertaining and a news weekly closed the program.

Their Scene is "The Ninety and Nine" Dangerous to Take.

It is obvious to the spectator in the cosy theatre what the actor must endure in the thrill scenes of big pictures, but the camera man is "off stage" and when the film is running and the mind of the auditor is absorbed with the action in front of him, he forgets that it is a picture and that a camera man has had to face whatever perils appear on the screen.

Steve Smith, Jr., photographed the fire scenes in Vitagraph's great special, "The Ninety and Nine," which is at the Bradley today.

In taking the scenes in which the train speeds toward the camera, Smith was standing unguarded from the flying debris and smoke and flame on a platform built on another locomotive. Sparks from the burning trees along the road bed burned his clothing and he was in constant danger of the film in the magazine of his camera exploding from the terrific heat. He had absolutely no protection from falling limbs and a retake of one scene was compelled because a broken branch struck the camera from its tripod. Smith's nervy catch of the heavy camera and the agility with which he balanced himself and prevented a fall which might have meant his death, was highly complimented by David Smith the director upon their return to the studios at Hollywood.

"The camera man," David Smith said, "is frequently the real hero of motion pictures." And young Smith added:

"But not different than the director, because the director stands at the photographer's elbow every time he shoots."

The new Tweedy comedy, Friday the 13th, caused considerable laughter.

FIRPO DROPS GIANT KANSAN FOR COUNT IN 8th; JOHNSON KAYOES M'AULIFFE

Ringside, Jersey City, July 12—(By the A. P.)—Knocking out Jess Willard, the 242 pound Kansas giant and former titleholder in the eighth round of a gruelling, slashing battle of ring mastodons tonight in Boyle's Thirty Acres, Luis Angel Firpo, silent, grim fighting man from the Argentine, cleared the last obstacle from his path to a match for the championship with Jack Dempsey.

Firpo's victory came with sensational suddenness, and at a moment when it seemed that Willard's great bulk and defensive tactics might enable him to stave off his opponent's bull-like attack, but it left no doubt of the decisiveness of the South American's superiority.

More than 100,000 fight fans, the largest and most picturesque throng that ever witnessed a ring battle, saw the mauling Firpo ascend to the greatest heights of his career. That was the unofficial estimate of Wex Rickard, who announced that it exceeded by approximately 10,000 the previuos record of some 90,000 who saw the Dempsey-Carpentier spectacle two years ago, in the same arena.

Except for a few sporadic flashes of form Willard fought a losing battle. Ringside critics gave him a margin in but one round, the fifth. Of the other six before the final round, three were accorded to Firpo and three classed as even.

There was no question of the superiority of the brilliant Argentine battler tonight. Willard's superior weight, height and reach enabled the big Kansan to check Firpo's rushing attacks in most of the early rounds, but, despite the American's gameness under fire, the tide of battle swung inevitably in favor of the younger, more rugged fighter.

The final round opened slowly. They sparred at long range and there was little hint that the end was near. But suddenly Firpo unleashed a savage drive to Willard's head and body. The fury of that attack had never before failed to bring down the South American's quarry and Big Jess, despite his towering size and stamina, wilted. Step by step Willard gave ground, trying almost blindly to ward off the volley of jolts to his head and body. Backed up against the ropes his head sank, then a right shot to the head sent him to his knees. He kneeled as Referee Harry Lewis started counting, shaking his head and trying to lift himself up. But the waning strength in that great hulk was unequal to the task and he sank into the arms of his handlers at the final count.

Four years ago Willard came up after being knocked down seven times in the first round of the fight in which he lost his title to Jack Dempsey. But while the same courage remained today he could not muster the strength to arise after that devastating attack of Firpo's.

Firpo's greater speed and ability to attack his big target at more angles gave him an early advantage. But the South American often displayed bad judgment of distance and this, coupled with Willard's ability to block his opponent's rushes, resulted in little effective battling.

Willard, except for an occasional jab with his left, stayed on the defensive waiting for a chance to shoot in an uppercut. But Firpo, a shifty object, gave him few opportunities.

In the first Firpo cut Willard's ear and in the fourth he pummeled the big Kansan about the ring with a drive to the head. Jess absorbed heavy punishment but came back in the next round with his only real offensive.

Firpo backed to the ropes under a barrage of blows to the head but Willard failed to follow up his advantage, brief as it was. He seemed lethargic and hesitant to carry the fight to his opponent.

After that one flicker of fistic fire, Willard subsided. Firpo paved the way for the end with a slashing attack in the sixth weakening the big Kansan with rights to the body. Willard showed a few flashes of form in the seventh but the end came in the eighth after one minute and fifty-five seconds of fighting.

Thus ended a fight that has no parallel in ring history for a bout in which no championship was at stake. But the fact that two of the most picturesque figures the game has ever known—one a veteran trying to scale the heights again and the other a rugged, brilliant youngster—were to fight for a chance at the throne now occupied by Dempsey proved the greatest magnet of any match in history.

The main bout of the evening was followed by a flash of the dramatic which on another occasion would have attracted meagre attention.

Johnson Knocks Out McAuliffe

Jack McAuliffe, of Detroit, matched to meet Floyd Johnson, the flashing heavyweight from Des Moines, was knocked out in the first round of their bout after a minute and four seconds of fighting.

Johnson flew from his corner at his opponent. There were a few slashing blows, nearly all of them delivered by Johnson. McAuliffe retreated but Johnson caught his quarry and in an instant McAuliffe was flat on his back. He arose, only to be knocked half through the ropes in a sitting posture by a right to the jaw. Crawling back into the ring he crouched by the ropes and was unable to arise until Joe Jeanette, negro referee, had counted him out.

While he was crouching, his handlers showered him with water and when the bout ended hardly before it began, numbers at the ringside thought he had been disqualified.

Jess Willard will receive about $130,000 and Luis Firpo around $80,000 as their share of the gate receipts for their battle tonight. These figures were based on estimated total receipts of $400,000. Willard receiving thirty per cent. and Firpo twenty two per cent of the gross amount.

The Preliminaries

A six round bout, the third preliminary, between George West of London, and Charles Nashert, of Jersey City, was stopped in the fourth round to save West from further punishment. Both weighed 160.

Cliff Kramer, of San Francisco, outboxed and outslugged Tiny Jim Herman of Omaha, in a slashing eight-rounder, the second preliminary, he earned the victory, critics agreed, as the result of a sensational rally in the closing rounds, having Herman close to a knockout in the sixth.

Al Bright, English heavyweight, a member of Firpo's training camp, and Tom Roper, of Chicago, struggled to a draw, in the opinion of most critics, in an eight-round bout, the first preliminary. Bright opened a cut over Roper's eye in the third round but he was wild and an easy target for Roper's jabs. Bright weighed 206 and Roper 180.

The Fight in Detail

Round One

Firpo came from his corner with a characteristic rush. Willard blocked his right and jabbed with a left. Firpo landed a light blow to the body. He drove his right again to Willard's ribs. Firpo forced Jess to the ropes and cuffed the big fellow about the head at close quarters. Blood trickled from a cut on Willard's left ear. Jess drove home a right to the side of the head as the bell sounded.

Round Two

Jess carried the fight to Firpo but missed a right uppercut. Firpo landed one in the ribs but was short with a right. The big Kansan blocked Firpo's attempts to attack his body. Willard's left side showed splotches of red from his opponent's punches. Firpo shot a hard right to the jaw, but Willard stepped out of the way of another wallop aimed at the same spot as the gong sounded.

Round Three

Willard jabbed Firpo about the head at close quarters. The Argentinian forced Willard back into a corner with a body attack. Willard's long left stopped Firpo short as he tried to bore in. Willard seemed content to employ defensive tactics, blocking Firpo's powerful rights. They were sparring as the round ended.

Round Four.

Willard jarred Firpo with a left to the head. Firpo swung both fists as they went into a clinch but inflicted no damage. Willard caught Firpo with an uppercut coming in. Firpo bounded from the ropes, landing a right to the stomach. He pummeled Willard about the head at close quarters but Jess only smiled. Willard was wild with a right and absorbed further puhishment about the head. Firpo rushed in with both fists landing heavily. Jess rallied and drove Firpo to a corner as the bell rang.

Round Five

Willard sent Firpo's head back with a straight left. He took a hard right to the jaw as they clinched. Firpo was short with his right. They clinched repeatedly as Firpo was blocked in his attempts to reach Willard's body. The crowd, whose sympathies obviously were with the big American, chorused "hurrah Jess" as the bell rang.

Round Six

Firpo shot in his right to the neck. Willard covered up as he was short with his left. They jabbed at long range as Firpo circled his opponent in search for an opening. Firpo drove rights and lefts to the jaw but failed to shake big Jess. Willard's left stopped Firpo short. The Argentinian's aim was bad with his left but he shot in a right to the body as the gong ended the round.

Round Seven

Willard shot in a hard right that sent Firpo to the ropes. He employed the rabbit punch to the back of Firpo's head in a clinch. Willard's left shot home twice to the jaw. Firpo showed a slight cut under his right eye. Willard took several blows to the head as the round ended.

Eighth Round

Willard came out of his corner to take the aggressive. He landed two left jabs to Firpo's jaw. The latter clinched twice, apparently tiring, under the relentless pace he had set. But as he drew away from Willard, he suddenly launched a whirlwind drive to both head and body. Sensing his advantage, as Willard's guard dropped from a jolting right, Firpo rained a volley of rights and lefts to the giant former champion's head. Willard tried to ward off Firpo's drive but his defensive tactics were ineffective. A powerful right straight to the chin sent big Jess reeling back to the ropes. Dazed and groggy he dropped slowly to one knee. He shook his head, much as a big mastiff, as the referee tolled the count. He tried to rise at eight but could not left his big bulk to his feet. He was lifted to his corner in a daze.

BARNES LEADS FIELD ON FOURTH DAY

P.)—Twenty golfers of a field of ninety, led by Long Jim Barnes of Pelham, champion in 1921 and John Farrell, the youthful Quaker Ridge Club professional of Mamaroneck, N. Y., with cards of 150, qualified today in the final preliminary round to the national open championship, to be played in 72 holes beginning tomorrow out of the 360 linksmen entered, seventy-seven will play for the title.

Eighteen, whose scores were 160 or better qualified Monday. Gene Sarazen, title winner last year, led the first day field with a card of 148. Joe Kirkwood of New York, with a card of 144, led the nineteen qualifiers on Tuesday and MacDonald Smith of San Francisco, with 150, was at the head of the field of 20 that made the grade yesterday.

Today's golf, on an average, was the poorest of the four qualifying days. Jim Barnes, Farrell, Robert T. Jones, the Atlanta amateur, Bob Cruikshank the New Jersey pro., and William Reekie, of Upper Montclair, N. J., played, excellently, but the others were only fair.

The qualifiers for the four days and the order and pairings for the championship play follow:

TOPPING BEATS BURKOSKI ONE UP FOR CONNECTICUT STATE GOLF TITLE

Groton, Conn., July 12.—Henry J. Topping of Greenwich won the Connecticut state golf championship on the Shenecossett Country club course here this afternoon when he defeated William Burkowski, the 20 year old golfer of Naugatuck, by 1 up in the 36 hole final.

Burkowski was the favorite of the gallery, especially after he staged a comeback which carried the match to the 18th hole this afternoon. At the 12th tee Topping had the Naugatuck iron moulder five up but Burkowski won four of the next five holes.

At the end of the 18 holes this morning Topping and Burkowski were all even. The Greenwich veteran started off the afternoon round by taking the first two holes, but Burkowski got a half on the third by sinking a long putt for a three. Topping shot another three on the fourth hole and made it three up. They halved the next two holes. Burkowski took the seventh with a birdie four, but failed to win the eighth when he missed a short putt. The Naugatuck youth was in a bad lie on the ninth, taking a six and losing the hole, making Topping three up. Burkowski's card was 39 for the nine holes against 35 for Topping.

They halved the 10th and on the 11th Burkowski's drive hit a tree, giving Topping another hole. Burkowski went into the rough on the 12th and lost that hole. On the 13th, 14th and 15th Burkowski shot par figures, taking the three holes from Topping. They halved the 16th after Burkowski got into the rough, but putted out with a pretty shot. Topping was dormie two going to the 17th. The gallery became enthusiastic when Burkowski took the 17th with a perfect four, against Topping's five. On the 18th both were on the green in two. Topping half stymied Burkowski, who then made an heroic attempt to sink his long approach shot but failed. They halved the hole in four, giving the match to Topping, one up.

YANKS TAKE EASY GAME FROM CHISOX

Chicoga, July 12.—Inability to hit Bob Shawkey in the early innings, coupled with a heavy bombardment by the Yankees which drove Ted Blankenship off the mound, enabled New York to make it three straight from Chicago today, 10 to 6. Shawkey started the rally when he opened the third inning with a triple and finished the job by cracking out a double on his second time up in the inning, clearing the bases, which were filled. Ruth cracked out his twentieth homer of the season with a man on. Score:

CANAL BUSINESS.

After a heavy outlay there is always interest in noting the returns that come therefrom, and more than those who have direct concern in the Panama canal have been watching the increased use to which that waterway has been put and the consequent gain in receipts.

The United States did not construct the canal at a huge outlay with the idea that it would be a big dividend payer. It was content with the view that it would be of great value to the coast to coast shipping of this country, to commerce with Pacific ports and a short cut that would be of vast benefit to the ships of other countries. As a means of making available our navy either in the Atlantic or Pacific it serves as one of our means of self defense.

Governor Morrow of the Canal Zone shows how the business of the canal is increasing when he reports that it is now taking in tolls to the extent of $24,000,000 a year and that there will be available next year to meet interest charges the sum of $18,000,000 provided the same volume of business is maintained. That means a sum in excess of the expenses of operation.

What the canal returns depends upon the business done. Just at the present it is profiting from the increased volume of Californian oil that is being transported through it. That may continue and it may not, but there is also an increase of other business to the extent of ten per cent., showing that whether for special or regular business the advantages of the canal are being recognized and utilized.

There has been talk about another canal. Perhaps it is not premature for talk on such a matter, but the canal is not as yet handling business to its capacity. Congestion is not resulting and ships are not turning elsewhere and going around South America because they cannot be accommodated. The canal as a dividend payer was not expected. It may yet prove to be as profitable as the Suez canal where rates have to be cut to avoid excessive profits.

THE BOY SCOUTS.

Because of the annual meeting of the national council of Boy Scouts new emphasis is being given to the work that is being accomplished by that organization and the vast amount of interest that is taken in it.

Boy Scouts have been numerous but the number is steadily increasing. That indicates that the organization is serving a purpose, that it appeals to those eligible to membership and that it gets the approval of those who recognize the merits as demonstrated. Just how strong the appeal is is indicated by the addition of 81,000 new members during the year and the increase in the number of officials by 30,000. Another such a year will put the Boy Scouts well over the half million mark while the roll of members and officials will pass two-thirds of a million.

The organization has gotten to the point where it has been found advisable to establish a dozen regional headquarters, with each district devoting its efforts to that particular section of the country. This was a means of relieving the large amount of work that was devolving upon the national headquarters. It shows development and the spread of interest.

There seems to be no limit to the number who may be included in the membership of the organization. Devoted as it is to better citizenship it can have none too many members. With a high aim and excellent accomplishments it is destined to render the nation a high service.

Almost from the beginning the one great need has been to get a sufficient number of scoutmasters, those who direct the various troops. This responsibility must fall upon the shoulders of the elders, those interested in the boys and the work of the organization. Inadequate numbers for such positions simply handicaps the work and restricts the number of boys who can get the benefit of the Scout training. The opportunity for the rendition of conspicuous service in this direction should not be disregarded.

GOVERNMENT LIQUOR CONTROL.

In connection with the question of prohibition reference is frequently made to the grave mistake made by this country in undertaking such a thing, and at the same time admitting the desirability of doing away with the saloon reference is made to the government control of the sale of liquor as practiced in certain sections of Canada. That is advocated for the purpose of putting the liquor business on a better basis of respectability and places the sale directly under government direction.

British Columbia is one of the sections of Canada that has such control but if we are to judge by the reports that are coming from Canada the idea do not working out as expected in that province. Government monopoly instead puts a premium to the illicit trade. It continued according to reports quite as prolific as in any province where prohibition prevails. According to the tales received by the Ottawa Citizen "bootlegging is worse under government control than it is under prohibition."

In the city of Vancouver there are 76 licensed beer clubs, which are not supposed to sell spirituous liquors, but the proprietor of one club declares that he is forced to stock up on hard liquors in order to compete with the other clubs. Liquor without government seal is being freely sold and the loss of duty thereon is mounting up. Liquor warehouses supply the beer clubs with strong drink even after the control board has acted and cut off such a supply.

Such a situation makes it necessary to give serious thought to the suggestions as they are made in behalf of the government control idea. If the blind and illicit bar exists in place of what used to be the open bar it doesn't reflect any improvement in conditions. Rather does it mean that liquors of any character are being dispensed regardless of quality. There is neither prohibition nor control. The experiment appears to be breaking down all the favorable things that have been said of the method.

BRITISH REPARATION VIEWS.

More than the British house of commons was interested in the statement by Premier Baldwin on the British reparation policy. All of the allied nations were eagerly awaiting it and especially France and Belgium.

There has been a difference of opinion between the British and those across the channel relative to the policy pursued in regard to the Ruhr. Premier Baldwin makes the most of the opportunity to state that Great Britain still believes that Germany should pay the reparation demands to the limit of its ability. There may be a difference of opinion as to what that limit is, but the premier declares that all are concerned in it and efforts should be made for the pacification of Europe.

Referring to the fact that France and Great Britain have differed only as to the method of obtaining reparations, Premier Baldwin directs attention to the need of endeavoring to reach a basis of common understanding that greater progress may be made and that Germany may pay without further disturbance of the peace of Europe or bringing the country to an economic collapse.

His plea may be regarded as an endeavor to get the allied nations together and to accomplish their purpose by united action, based upon a fair judgment under existing conditions. He does not accept the recent German proposition. He terms it inadequate He doesn't want to be regarded as favoring Germany but he urges the importance of avoiding anything that would break Germany and also fail to accomplish the desires of the allied nations. He urges getting together for the allies that they may obtain all they can hope to get the quicker and at the same time avoid worse conditions and insure peace.

GOOD WORDS FROM ABROAD.

Much has been said concerning the conditions prevailing at Ellis island. Those in charge have been cognizant of the handicaps prevailing, but a situation far different from what exists has been intimated by reports coming from abroad about methods and conditions at the immigrant station.

Because of such stories it is interesting to note that from another British source there come reports which are decidedly different. Two British school teachers came to this country and school teachers are observant. They traveled third class so they were entitled to no special privileges, but on their return, for the purpose of disputing claims to the contrary, one of them wrote to a London paper deprecating the wrong impression they had had forced upon them concerning Ellis island.

This teacher believed that common justice required her to state that they were treated fair and kind, were given courteous and helpful treatment, asked legitimate questions and speedily passed through the immigrant station and have nothing but pleasant recollections of the hour and a half's stay at a point which had been much dreaded.

This does not mean that Ellis island is adequate in every respect. Its shortcomings are understood and will in time be remedied, but it goes far in showing the injustice of certain British claims and emphasizes the fact that too much credence should not be given to careless and random statements.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sunday may be a day of rest but not on the highways.

Possibly you have noticed that less fly swatting is needed from year to year.

You might as well be pleased at the weather, since it will do no good to be otherwise.

THEIR LITTLE WAYS

"There goes Nectarina Silver down the street," mused the sweet little woman sitting by the window. "How nice her brown wrap does look, to be sure, since it has been dyed black and made over."

"Say!" cried the cantankerous husband, dropping his newspaper and taking off his glasses, "you women beat all get out. If the rest of your brain, the part that doesn't have anything to do with clothes, was built on the same lines as the clothes part there wouldn't be a chance on earth for us men. You'd own everything and boss everything and all we could do would be to jump through hoops and bark when we wanted a handout.

"A complete new costume flashed across your eyeball for an instant has about as much show of getting away as a rabbit in a steel trap. You register it down to the last inch of basting thread on the underneath side of the hem. Why, if you were traveling in Tibet and met a Tibetan lady crossing the street attired in a western outfit she had inherited you would stop short and exclaim, 'There! I thought I'd seen that bunch of clothes the minute she turned the corner. That's the identical dress and hat that Seraphina Zoops wore to the reception given the new minister back in Chicago eleven years ago—and she spilled ice cream on it. There's the identical spot now. I declare!'

"And I'll bet you couldn't keep the glad news from the lady in Tibet, either. Some time or other you'd find a chance to beam at her and say, 'My dear, that color looks worlds better on you than it ever did on Seraphina when it was new.'

"Once seen, a garment is photographed forever. Whenever a thrifty, economical soul thinks to get away with a party frock a second season, trusting that the districting affairs of life have wiped its memory from the minds of her friends, she comes up against cold reality with a bump. Maybe she has lengthened the skirt and tied a wad of feathers on the left hip or sewed dofunnies around the neckline to lend it an insouciant air of novelty. Gritting her teeth, she sails into the festivities trying to give an imitation of a woman perfectly well satisfied with her stylish appearance.

"'Why Margerine!' her best friend cries admiringly as she kisses her, 'if you aren't the cleverest thing! You simply have done wonders with this frock of yours you wore so much last year! I declare! You certainly are original! How I wish I were as smart as you and I guess George would be glad if I were, because I just can't do one single thing with my worn-out gowns but give them away! Think what I could save!'

"After she has caught her breath and the room has stopped going around and around, Margerine totters on and runs into Cissie Flaxon, who wields a wicked tongue. 'Hello, dearie,' Cissie says, a tantalizing smile playing about her lips as she studies the point of attack. 'I believe I liked your dress better the other way,' she murmurs thoughtfully. 'You never looked better in your life than that night you wore it for the first time—let me see, wasn't it at Hannah's engagement party? That was two years ago—how time does fly!'

"You know, when one woman tells another that she looks sweet it is just the same as a slap in the face. You say that a woman looks sweet in the same kind spirit with which you say she is good hearted and kind to her folks, thus robbing her of any upsetting qualities of beauty, fascination, style or dangerousness, which every woman in her secret heart craves.

"The most mouselike little housewife would simply revel in the idea that any of her friends was really jealous of her!

"And didn't you come home from the bridge party furious because after you had disguised your old black satin toque with some clever new trimming across the front your dear friend, Mrs. Whooser, said right out in front of everybody that she liked it so much better trimmed as it was originally? You nearly cried with rage because you restrained yourself from retorting that the 16-year-old effect she was wearing on her head would be all the better for a little elderly abbreviation right away instead of waiting for another year!"

"I suppose you think you're smart," the sweet little woman retorted indignantly, tossing her head, "but, nevertheless, Nectarina's coat is made-over coat and I could tell it perfectly easily and I'm sure I don't know what you are making all the fuss about! Men are so stupid!"—Exchange

President Mary E. Woolley of Mt. Holyoke College, who was among the prominent participants in the world education conference just closed in San Francisco, will receive congratulations today on her 60th birthday anniversary. Miss Woolley has been identified with many civic movements during her career as an educator, and has been an effective shaper of public opinion, both in New England and in the nation. She is a native of Connecticut, and the daughter of a clergyman. She was one of the first women to be admitted to Brown university, from which institution she has her A. B. degree. After a career as teacher at Wheaton college and at Wellesley college, lasting from 1886 to 1900, in the latter year she was chosen president of Mr. Holyoke college. Miss Woolley is on the advisory boards of an unusually large number of civic and religious organizations. She is a prolific writer for the press, and, earlier in her career, was a writer of scholarly monographs.

Being diplomatic may seem expensive at times, but in the long run it pays.

I Have a Rendezvous With Life

"I have a rendezvous with life
In days I hope will come
Ere youth has sped and strength of mind,
Ere voices sweet grow dumb;
I have a rendezvous with life
When Spring's first heralds hum.

"It may be I shall greet her soon,
Shall riot at her behest;
It may be I shall seek in vain
The peace of her downy breast,
Yet I would keep this rendezvous,
And deem all hardship sweet,
If at the end of the long white way
There life and I shall meet.

"Sure some will cry it better far
To crown their days in sleep,
Than face the wind, the road, the rain,
To heed the calling deep.
Though wet nor blow nor space I fear.
Yet fear I deeply, too,
Lest Death shall greet and claim me ere
I keep life's rendezvous."

CHILD TRAINING

Children Need a Lot of Loving

By Mrs. Lydia Lion Roberts

"Why don't you go up to bed with me," objected the nine year old boy, "you go up with Kenneth every night."

"But he is younger and goes to bed earlier," the mother explained, "you are a big boy now."

"That doesn't make any difference," urged the oldest boy, "I like to be tucked in just the same."

After that, the mother saw to it that the biggest boy got a bedtime hug and a few minutes' quiet talk with her, and he was more particular to show him affection.

From the little toddler to the overgrown, awkward school child, most children know that we love them, but they like to hear us say so. They know we think more of them than any thing else in the world, but they want us to show it. Few children want a sentimental, gushing sort of love; but they need and appreciate constant unobtrusive evidences of our affection.

Love can often cure an irritable temper, and soothe delicate nerves. One mother had this experience, she said, "When my little girl's face grew flushed, and her voice rose high and sharp, I stopped my work, put my arm around her and talked in a low, tender tone about her games and dolls. I could feel the little form relax and see the tense, vivid face grow calm and happy as she felt my love flowing out to her."

"I like to visit her," laughed one friend to another as she entered the cheery home, "because someone is always loving someone else."

We are so busy and try so hard to be efficient and successful that sometimes we forget that,

"Folks need a lot of loving every minute
The sympathy of others and their smile!
Till life's end from the moment they begin it.
Folks need a lot of loving all the while."

A rosy-cheeked, curly-haired little girl came dancing into the room where her mother was working and throwing her arms around her mother said,

"Oh, muvver, I love you so much I dont know what to do!"

The mother returned the caresses and smiled, "That is just the way I feel about you too, dear. What happy times we shall always have together!"

The mother was laying a foundation for the confidences and trust of future years when she would wish to keep ever near her daughter's heart and guide her life.

Children grow up so quickly, plump little legs run away in long trousers, little pink feet fit happily into wedding slippers, and then we wish we had taken more time for just loving. As they grow older a reserve comes to children as their armor against the careless world, but dads will gladly be laid aside when alone with the mother who has done a lot of loving.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Does Anyone Know?

Mr. Editor: July 8, 1923 there was at Bennington, Vt., the dedication of a memorial to an historic church—the first Protestant church in Vermont, erected in 1763 by certain members of Congregational churches in Massachusetts and Connecticut, one group of these members being from Norwich, Conn. So says the Boston Evening Transcript of July 7.

Is there any record of these comeouters in the archives of Norwich?

I am cordially yours,
IDA E. SUTHERLAND.

Stories That Recall Others

Drawing a Fine Line.

Many people go to a certain charity worker for advice as well as aid. The other day a colored woman came in with a lacerated face. She told her story in plain language. Her husband had beat her whenever he wanted exercise. She wished the charity woman to tell her how to cure him of the "fault."

The charity woman looked at her a few minutes. Then she said: "A man who beats a woman needs pretty severe punishment. Have you a rolling pin?"

For a minute the colored woman stared at her. Then she caught what the other woman was suggesting. "No, I ain't got no rollin' pin," she returned, "but, lady, I has got a razor."

A Gambling Chance.

Arthur entertained a group of his friends at his summer home at the beach. A storm came up while two of them were out in the launch. The other guests were safely housed on the porch while the storm prevailed.

The men in the launch finally reached the house and exclaimed:

"You're a fine lot! I suppose you would have let us drown before you came to the rescue!"

A guilty hush fell over the porch loungers, then Bill remarked:

"Yes, Hen, we weresitting here betting on how many rings you and Walt would make as you went down."

This only way to make an end of a thing is to tell the truth about it.

NORWICH STORES BEGIN THURSDAY AFTERNOON CLOSING

In many respects the streets in the business section of the city presented a Sunday appearance Thursday afternoon, this being due to the closing of a majority of the stores in the district where most of the business of Norwich is done. The half day closing on Thursday, which began this week and is to continue through the months of July and August, was observed by all but one of the merchants who had agreed to close for the afternoon. Hundreds of employes enjoyed an opportunity to escape the heat of the city and go to nearby beaches, or remained at home.

Although the fish markets of the city did not close on Thursday afternoon, owing to the fact that this day is the busiest in the week, through the efforts of George S. Powers practically all dealers in the city have agreed to close their stores on Monday afternoons beginning next week, continuing through July and August.

CLARENCE AGARD HAS SHOCK IN NEW LONDON

Clarence M. Agard, formerly a resident of this city and at one time a reporter on the Bulletin, now an officer of the Connecticut Humane society, stationed at Bridgeport, was taken from New London to his home at Bridgeport Thursday by Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, believed to be suffering from a shock. Mr. Agard walked into the police station Wednesday and spent the night in the officers' locker room. Except for difficulty in his speech, nothing unusual in his appearance was noted, but outward evidence of illness Thursday morning resulted in Dr. W. D. Cronin being summoned.

While employed in this city Mr. Agard married a Norwich young woman by the name of Palmer who lived at the Falls.

TWO HANDCUFFED PRISONERS MADE ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE

Chester Martin, 21, colored, of New Haven, and Francis J. McNulty, 18, white of New Britain, the two young men who were accused of stealing Allen M. Brand's motor truck last Tuesday afternoon, added another chapter to their escapades Thursday morning.

As Officer Charles Smith was bringing them down from jail handcuffed together, the two made a break for liberty and ran away along Church street toward Washington square. Handcuffed as they were, the two youths could foot it faster than the officer, but they were recaptured when Joseph Lahn of Schwartz Bros. took the officer in his automobile, which overtook the fleeing pair on the West Side bridge.

They were brought back to the police court where they were ordered recommitted to the reform school at Meriden.

The two had previously claimed residence in Providence, but they confessed to Chief George Linton Thursday morning that they had escaped from the Meriden school last Saturday.

Officers from Meriden came here Thursday afternoon and took the young men back. They took no chances of any more attempts to escape as they had the pair handcuffed together in an automobile with the windows closed.

FORTY YEAR PASTORATE IN CHURCH AT MERIDEN

Rev. Arthur Truman Randall, a native of Poquetanuck, has completed 40 years in the pastorate of St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal church in Meriden, a record which stands unequaled by any other clergy in that section of the state.

Soon after his graduation from Berkeley Divinity school in 1850 Rev. Mr. Randall went to St. Andrew's church, starting as assistant pastor. He was ordained the following year at Litchfield and upon the death of Rev. Giles H. Deshon in 1853 became rector of the church and has continued in charge of the large parish.

He was born in Poquetanuck, September 23, 1854, a son of the Rev. H. C. and Mary Davis Randall and obtained his education in St. Stephen's college, Annandale, N. Y.

The combined rectorship of Dr. Deshon and Mr. Randall extends over a period of 73 years.

PARISHONERS MAKE $950 GIFT TO REV. W. A. KEEFE ON ANNIVERSARY

Thursday which marked the 20th anniversary of Rev. William A. Keefe's ordination to the Catholic priesthood was observed by the priest and made memorable by the laity at St. Mary's Memorial church. The day's observance began in the morning at 7.30 o'clock with a high mass offered by Father Keefe, at which a large congregation was present to join the priest with their prayers. The musical parts of the mass were well cared for by Henry J. La Fontaine. At the close of the mass Father Keefe thanked the congregation for their presence and offered a litany as his final prayer at the foot of the altar.

The rector received many congratulations throughout the day in person and by mail and at noon entertained a dozen priests at dinner who came to town to felicitate him on his anniversary day.

The big surprise of the day came in the evening. Although a reception was announced to be given by the laity the affair was linked with a testimonial presented to Father Keefe by his parishioners and a few intimate friends who sought to honor the pastor for his labors.

The affair for the evening was conceived by Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, who acted as chairman and aided by a committee of men and women of the parish brought about the enjoyable evening's affair over in two weeks' time. A large audience was assembled in the Memorial hall where the programme was rendered. While the people were arriving Spellman's orchestra rendered choice musical selections. Promptly at 8.15 Father Keefe was called from the rectory with his company and the esteemed pastor was given a fine ovation as the gathering rose in their seats. Filing onto the state platform were Rev. William A. Keefe, the guest of the evening, Revs. Michael H. May, Ignatius Maciejewski, of this city, Rev. Henri Chaghon of Taftville, Rov. William H. Kennedy, South Coventry, Rev. Richard P. Morrissey, Plainfield, Rev. John J. McCabe, Jewett City, and the church trustees, John T. Sullivan and Francis J. Murtha.

Decorating the speakers' table was a handsome bouquet of red ramblers and white hydreangeas, the gift of Mrs. Herman S. Case from her gardens on Robbins court.

Father Coholan called the gathering to order and announced the programme. Father May brought the greetings from St. Patrick's parish and paid a glowing tribute to Father Keefe's model, priestly life and said that while the world honors the politician, soldier and scientist, it is fitting that the church should honor its heroes such as Father Keefe.

Father McCabe was called upon for a few remarks and his witty sayings and gems of oration tendered to Father Keefe proved a treat to listen to.

The following programme was then carried out by the orchestra under the direction of Nicholas Spellman, with Frank Galligan, cornet, Joseph Farrell drums, Daniel Driscoll violin, including the following solo numbers Armourer Song, Horace F. Corning; Little Town in Ould County Down, Miss Sadie A. Driscoll; Joy of the Morning, Miss Eleanor I. Donovan; Irish Eyes, Edward T. Connelly; Love Song, Tosti, Henry J. La Fontaine.

It rested with Father Coholan to have a place not numbered on the programme when he arose and after reviewing the labors of Father Keefe, covering his 20 years in the priesthood, presented him a check and gold pieces to the amount of $950, as a gift from his parishioners and a few intimate friends for his labors in their behalf.

Father Keefe appeared dazed at this turn of affairs but quickly regaining his composure sought to thank the donors for their generosity, claiming that the example set by his former pastor, Father Smith, and aided by the wonderful assistance given by Father Kennedy, his former curate, had brought about the wonderful generosity and harmony in the parish and said that he always found it a great joy to his heart to work under such conditions. He paid fitting remarks to his present curate, Father Coholan.

Following the close of the programme which continued after Father Keefe's address, in which he said the gift of the evening would be returned in as a memorial to the donors for beautifying the convent chapel, wherein has been placed the altar from the old church at the foot of the hill, the audience was privileged to meet Father Keefe individually, by passing from left to the right of the speakers' desk. The orchestra rendered a selection as the gathering left the hall.

Father Keefe's Life.

Rev. William A. Keefe whose anniversary was observed Thursday, was born at Terryville, Conn., on Feb. 17, 1877, the son of Martin and Catherine (Ryan) Keefe, whose marriage was blessed with four children (one deceased) and has just passed his 46th birthday. The family lived at Terryville but a short period moving to Waterbury where the future priest spent the greatest portion of his boyhood life. His education was obtained in the grammar schools of the Brass City after which he graduated from the Waterbury High school. He chose Holy Cross college, Worcester, Mass., conducted by the Jesuits, to go higher and it was at this seat of learning that his plans were formed to choose the Catholic priesthood as his life work. He graduated at Holy Cross with honors in the class of 1899 and was then sent to the Grand Seminary at Montreal, Canada, for his courses in philosophy and theology for one year, after which he was sent abroad for a three years course at the College of Louvain, Belgium, and at the end of this period in the company of seven other young American students he was raised to the Catholic priesthood by Bishop Van der Stappen, bishop of the Diocese of Malines on July 12, 1903.

Returning to this country the eight newly ordained priests separated at New York city going to various dioceses throughout the country, Father Keefe being the only one to report for duty in the Hartford diocese. The late Bishop Michael Tierney gave him his first assignment as curate to Rev. U. O. Bellerose, then administrator, now pastor of the Sacred Heart church, Taftville, where he remained for about two years after which he was sent as curate to St. Anne's (French) church, Waterbury, Father Sinesat pastor, his native city, for a period of six months, following which he was further advanced to St. Augustine's church, Bridgeport, one of the largest parishes in that city, serving under Fathers Crimmins and McElroy as pastors. In the year 1905 Bishop Tierney promoted him to St. Mary's, Norwich, where he served for five years as curate under Father Smith.

The lines of a pastorate, due to his zeal and ability were now commencing to be drawn and in the fall of 1910, the present Bishop John J. Nilan gave him his first pastorate at St. Thomas' church, Voluntown, and following a period spent there he was advanced to St. John's church, in Plainfield, hitherto served as a mission church from Moosup. The war period found him in Plainfield, where he did excellent work preparing his parish boys for the seat of war and the work of the Red Cross chapter for others who were to remain at home.

Ex-President William H. Taft visited pastor and parish on one occasion of his war rallies. His voice and zeal for the betterment of men attracted the attention of Bishop Nilan who made him Diocesan Director of Holy Name societies and state lecturer of the Knights of Columbus. He is the Friar of Rev. Daniel Mullen assembly Fourth Degree, of this city. In August, 1919, Bishop Nilan made him pastor of St. Mary's church, this city, succeeding Father Fitzmaurice, transferred to Waterbury, rather unusual that he was to be pastor of the parish where he had served as a curate. He has done excellent work among his parishioners in keeping them well grounded as to the principles of their faith and his preaching ability is both attractive and to the point. He enjoys presiding over one of the most modern parishes of this diocese, keeping his people well organized and at various periods has conducted missions and retreats for their further spiritual enjoyment. Perhaps the culminating event of his priestly career has been the erection of the handsome memorial church in the hall of which the testimonial and reception was held Thursday night, which has been built and equipped within his four years pastorate. Critics of construction in this diocese pronounce the church to be a gem of architecture. Father Keefe came from the common working class of people and his parents labored well for their son's education. He was devoted to his father, Martin, who died rather suddenly a few years ago at Waterbury. He speaks three languages fluently, English, French and Italian, with which to meet the spiritual wants of his people. His mother, brother and sister reside at the family home, No. 97 Cherry street, Waterbury.

FIGHT FANS FILLED STREET TO HEAR BULLETIN MEGAPHONE

All indications Thursday night up to the eighth round of the 12-round fight between Firpo and Willard were that Willard was due for a win, and a crowd of about 1,000 in front of The Bulletin office cheered lustily at every announcement of a telling blow struck by the Kansas giant.

The crowd began to arrive early and long before the time announced for the beginning of the returns the street in front of The Bulletin office was jammed with men, and not a few women, eager to hear the news of the big fight at Jersey City. Traffic was diverted by the police through Water Path streets and the crowd was not annoyed by passing traffic. They stood close to hear the account of the fight as megaphoned by "Steve" Coffey, as ardent a fan as Norwich ever produced.

When the man at the small end of the megaphone announced that Willard had landed a telling blow the cheers were loud, but when the final announcement came that the big man had taken the count of ten there was some cheering and the crowd scattered. A few remained to hear the returns on the Johnson-McCluskie bout, but this was short and sweet, Johnson sending his opponent down for the count in one round.

There were hundreds of telephone calls during the evening and interest ran as high as when Dempsey met Gibbons.

The cry of the fight fans now is for the Dempsey-Firpo fight and Firpo rules a favorite with many of the fans here.

KNOCKED OUT NEIGHBOR WITH RAKE HANDLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, July 12.—Michael Renskowsky of 85 Ives street spent the night in jail and will be charged with breach of the peace and possibly intoxication this (Friday) morning for having struck his neighbor, Michael Bednarczyk, of 79 Ives street, over the head with a rake handle. The fight, which was staged in the middle of the street Thursday evening, started over a family row about children. Renskowsky had had a few drinks and after a heated argument the two men engaged in a fist battle. About the time that the Willard-Firpo knockout was being "radioed" about the city Renskowsky secured the rake handle and struck his opponent over the head, causing a severe wound. Bednarczyk fell unconscious and was later treated by a local physician. Renskowsky carried marks of the battle in the form of a bad cut under the right ear and scratches about the face. The police records showed that this was his second appearance in court.

John Wilcox of 30 Farmington avenue, Hartford, whose automobile struck and knocked down a gasoline tank owned by Mrs. Celia Chasen on Union street in the early hours of July 3rd, will be charged with reckless driving at the session of the police court this (Friday) morning. When notified to appear in court, Wilcox said that the car he was driving was insured against property damage and that he agreed to settle the damage but Mrs Chasen had failed to present him a bill.

PORTLAND WILL ENTERTAIN AD CLUBS' CONVENTION

Over a score of committees are actively at work making arrangements for the entertaining of the New England Ad Clubs convention in Portland, Me., Sept. 23-26. A fund of nearly $10,000 is being subscribed to take care of the expenses of the big meeting and the delegates and their guests will be kept constantly on the jump from the time they arrive in Portland until they depart.

The vacation idea in connection with the convention is making a decided hit, and already a large number have declared that they intend to spend from one to three weeks in Maine touring the state, visiting its various resorts, or staying in one place. Many will make Portland their headquarters for side trips to the White Mountains, to the various lakes and to the sea coast, all of which are located so close to Portland that they may be visited in single day trips.

Still others will stay over to enjoy the big game hunting season, which begins on October 16, while many others have stated that they are coming early to have some of the famous fall fishing in Maine's lakes and ponds before the season closes on September 30.

The last two weeks in September and the first three weeks in October are among the most beautiful in Maine. This is the season when the leaves are changing and the woods are a riot of gorgeous colorings.

It is also Indian summer and usually the weather is fair and the atmosphere invigorating.

Philathea Picnic.

The Philathea of the First Baptist church held its annual picnic Thursday, going to the home of Mrs. Frank Stager of Waterford, where a delightful day was enjoyed. About 30 enjoyed the day.

RESUMING TROLLEY LINE GUILFORD TO NEW HAVEN

The trolley line from New Haven to Guilford, which was once a division of the Shore Line trolley system under Morton F. Plant's ownership, is to be reopened probably on or about July 15.

This is the announcement of A. William Sperry, president of the Shore Line Electric company, which is the name the road will be operated under.

The road has been put back in order once more after suffering the deterioration, the sand and dirt of idleness. The roadbed has been reconditioned, the sand and dirt that had accumulated and covered the track in many places has been removed and the brush and weeds that were threatening to lay claim to the right of way have been cut down. The bridges that cross the numerous streams over which the road runs from New Haven have all been reconditioned so that the service may once more be resumed with the speed and efficiency for which the road was known several years ago. Mr. Sperry stated that as soon as the public service commission made its inspection the road would be opened.

The tentative schedule announced by the company offers a one-hour service, the cars arriving in New Haven one-half to one-quarter of an hour before the hour so that people working in New Haven may reach their places of employment before the hour. In addition to this many people along the line take New York trains and the proposed schedule works harmoniously with the train schedule. The trip from Guilford, a distance of 15 miles, will take 50 minutes. The cars will leave from the railroad station and go over the viaduct and out State street.

Five new cars, which are still under construction, will be ready in a short while. In the meantime the company has available enough cars to run until the specially constructed cars arrive.

For those who have forgotten how long it has been since the old company ceased to operate it was stated Wednesday that it will be exactly four years the twelfth of this month. In view of this fact Mr. Sperry is especially anxious to start the service on the twelfth of this month, which would mean that service was suspended four years to the day.

HEARD FIGHT RETURNS OVER HEROUX WIRELESS

About 35 friends of George Heroux of 77 Church street, among them Supt. E. D. Blake of the Connecticut company, gathered at his home Thursday evening and followed the Willard-Firpo fight by radio. The radio kept up with the fight all the way and the returns were clear, coming in better than any so far this year.

The radio, which is a powerful one, could be heard in the downtown section of the city during the evening, and not a few people heard the returns that way, as there was little trouble because of static.

APPLIED COMMON SENSE TO CONNECTICUT FINANCES

Requests for appropriations which were brought before the general assembly were about double the state's income, Senator E. E. Rogers of New London told the Rotary club of that city Thursday, but the adoption of a budget system with the application of common sense has put the state practically out of debt and on a sound business basis.

Senator Rogers held the responsible position of chairman of the appropriations committee in the recent legislative session and the common sense and thrift which he has always displayed in making of himself a successful business man, enabled him to do for the state what needed doing and doing it at the right time.

He was fortunate also in having associated with him other members on that committee who were men of affairs and who co-operated with him to the fullest extent in a policy of paying as you go, with results which exceeded the fondest anticipation of the legislators at the opening of the assembly.

Senator Rogers said that the total amount of asked for appropriations was $62,500,000. There was available for the appropriations committee $27,700, which was about one-half of the sum asked.

The first thing the committee decided upon was to provide for the absolute necessary things—things to which the state is committed, the invalids, and the sick.

One of the first bills approved was for $640,000 for additional buildings for the Norwich State hospital. Time was saved also on hearings by letting the towns and incorporated institutions know that the committee proposed to appropriate the usual sums for the various institutions, thus saving the trouble of having hearings on these individual bills. This method saved some three weeks of what otherwise would have been devoted to hearings on hospital bills, at the same time relieving the trustees from the worry or doubt of getting the usual appropriation. Not a single complaint was heard, and everyone was pleased, not only at getting the money but of the early assurance of having it.

Senator Rogers described the makeup of the appropriations committee and went into numerous minor details, and incidentally praised State Senator James H. MacDonald of New Haven, who introduced the bill for removing from tolls the highway bridges and he suggested that the Rotary club could do nothing more appropriate than to invite Senator MacDonald to New London and show him the appreciation of New London people for the work he did in seeing that bill safely through.

Today Connecticut's per capita indebtedness is approximately $3 61, which is a splendid showing. There is a sinking fund, all state institutions are free of debt and the next two years will be easier, declared the senator.

He was given a rising vote of thanks for his fine talk.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Advocates of removal of a row of shade trees in Reynolds street, between Main and Broad, were furnished further argument for their cause when the driver of a car with a New York registration hit one of the trees and damaged his machine while coming through the narrow way early Wednesday evening. He was trying to pass another car when the accident occurred. No one was injured, but a demonstration was given to bolster up the claim that the traveled way there is so narrow as to invite accidents, some of which are certain to be of a more serious nature than the one referred to here. The damaged car was towed to a local garage and underwent repairs during Thursday.

In another minor motor vehicle accident Wednesday evening, on the state highway between Danielson and Wauregan, a Massachusetts touring car and a truck owned in Putnam were involved in a sideswiping match. The top and one side of the touring car was considerably damaged, but the persons in the machine were not hurt.

Food sale this (Friday) afternoon, 3 p. m. at Mrs. C. S. Francis' Main street.—adv.

Newly elected officers of Danielson Chautauqua organization, which has increased strength for 1924, include Frank T Preston, president; Miss Elisabeth R. Woodworth, vice president; Mrs. F. O. Armington, secretary; Clifford H. Starkweather, treasurer; Miss Emma F. Pilling, junior Chautauqua leader; Herbert Chase, tickets; Walter Purvis, transportation and lights; Frank T. Preston, grounds; Mrs. J. H. Smith, hospitality; Mrs. L. S. Ingalls, advertising; Arthur W. Eddy, publicity.

There are 101 guarantors for Chautauqua in 1924, the largest number in several years and with the increased organization practically a guarantee that there will be no deficit next year.

Local friends have received announcements of the marriage Monday, July 2, of Miss Beatrice Staples, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis A. Staples of Mansfield, and Robert Greenleaf Bruce, who is a member of the faculty of Killingly High school. Mr. Bruce also coached the football, baseball and basketball teams here during the past school year and developed very creditable teams. The bride has been teaching at Lowell.

It was recalled Thursday that there was a terrific howl in Killingly over the proposal that the town purchase what is now the town hall building for $20,000 and that the town only voted to make the purchase after a long drawn out discussion and a very largely attended special town meeting. In the light of present building costs and property values in the business center of Danielson the buy is revealed as one of the finest investments that Killingly has made in her history. The building could not be replaced today for less than $150,000. It is in very good condition, fully occupied and in addition to furnishing offices for town officials, a police station and a large meeting hall, which is leased for more than $600 a year, also produces revenue from tenants. It is not likely that any citizen would have the temerity to advocate the sale of the building today for $20,000, and if he did he could not muster a corporal's guard to back the proposition.

No one could foresee the increase in property valuations at the time the town purchased the property nearly a score of years ago, but the increase is now a reality, nevertheless, and Killingly realizes that it scooped one of the prize bargainst of a generation.

It is of general interest that Amos H. Armington, for many years one of Danielson's best known business men, is to have as his guests here August 31, the members of Battery B, First Rhode Island artilleryq. The reunion here will be on the 61st anniversary of the battery being mustered into service for the Civil war.

The battery has a remarkable record of war service. Mr. Armington, as a stripling youth, stood with this now famous battery at historic Bloody Angle during the battle of Gettysburg and he was an eye witness of the brilliantly desperate, but futile charge of Pickett's brigade. Battery B suffered heavy loss in aiding in the repelling of the charge, but the men of the men who came through with their lives ever afterwards figured as real heroes of the great war and their annual reunion reflect the strength of the bonds of friendship that were forged in that inferno of shot and shell.

Danielson may feel honored that the surviving members of the battery are coming to Danielson as guests of one of its best known citizens.

The first prosecution this season for violation of the fishing laws was that of Lyman G. Hammond of Providence, who was fined $1.00 and costs for taking pickerel under 12 inches in length. Mr. Hammond was arrested at one of the ponds near East Killingly by Deputy Game Warden F. E. Kies of Danielson. Mr. Hammond explained that the law in Rhode Island fixes the minimum length of pickerel that may be legally taken at 10 inches, and he was under the impression that the law was the same in Connecticut. The fish he had were slightly in excess of ten inches in length.

Assessors of the borough of Danielson have completed their compilation of the grand list based on lists of taxable property filed during the spring. The grand list this year amounts tot $2,550,221, an increase of $26,896 over the figures for last year.

This week the Crystal Water company is engaged in installing water mains in Potter and School streets to replace small mains of insufficient capacity to meet the growing needs of that section of the borough. The excavating is being done rapidly. At the present time there is a carnival of street excavating operations under way in various parts of the borough, as the summer weather is improved for doing nevessary work.

Miss Emma F. Pilling's class of the Methodist Sunday school is ading in the effort to increase the piano fund of the church and with that end in view has arranged a food sale for this afternoon.

Michael Head, Sr., is confined to his home on Academy street by an attack of illness.

J. Carl Witter was one of the auctioneers engaged in the selling of the thoroughbrped herd of Holsteins at the Sayles farm in Mechanicsville Thursday, this sale attracting buyers from all over New England and from other parts of the country.

Mrs. Clarence A. Potter is visiting with relatives at Millbury, Mass.

Local boys who have been spending two weeks at Camp Woodstock, Black pond, will return here this (Friday) afternoon.

James A. Nearing of Providence was a visitor with friends in Danielson Thursday.

Rev. Charles Garves, of the First Unitarian church at Hartford, is to conduct a service at the Unitarian church in Brooklyn next Sunday afternoon.

PUTNAM

As though their experiences of the day were not enough, David Cote and Eugene Bellerose, local young men, were ordered into court Thursday morning for violation of the motor vehicle laws and were fined $5 and costs of $11.44 each by Judge M. E. Geissler.

The young men were accosted about 1 a. m. by a night officer who observed them and the difficulties they were having with a large touring car of ancient vintage. The machine was being run without tires on the rear wheels and there were other things about the outfit that constituted a violation of the law.

According to the story they told the police, they ventured forth Wednesday on a trip to Willimantic, where they hoped to dispose of the car. As the machine was not registered they put plates upon it that formerly were in use on a car owned by Jacob Wolf, who sold his machine and neglected to return the plates to the state motor vehicle department. There was also irregularity about the operator's license that one of them possessed—it being without signature on the reverse side, as the law requires.

On the trip to Willimantic the machine developed a series of tire troubles and change after change had to be made. The pair managed to get as far as the vicinity of Windham, when they finally deemed it best to put back to this port, their tire supply having become exhausted. In fact, the tire situation got so tough that they had to run the last few miles with no tires at all on the rear wheels. They arrived here about 1 o'clock and promptly fell under the eyes of the police. After being haled to court and fined it would be at least surprising if they turned a bit sour against the royal sport of motoring, though the thought that Old King Tut had to get about on a camel might relieve their feelings a bit.

The chase which the two local men led Willimantic officials is narrated in the Willimantic column this morning.

Many of the first group of more than 100 boys who went into camp at the Tri-County Y. M. C. A. location at Camp Woodstock, near Black pond, in Woodstock, will come out today (Friday) and their places will be taken by other eager boys who will remain for a period of two weeks, and possibly longer. Today rounds out the first two-week period of the summer encampment. It has been a great success. For the most part there has been splendid weather. The camp is well organized, ably directed and the program of activities is such that there can be no lagging of interest or enthusiasm. Good, clean sport, long days spent in the open air and opportunity for physical and mental development are all offered and all included in the program at the camp, which will remain open for another four weeks.

And on the subject of camping, it may be mentioned that 100 New York girls are at Camp Utopia, near South Woodstock, for shorter to longer periods of the summer. This camp was established last year and was such a great success that it likely will be continued indefinitely. Most of the girls in Camp Utopia are daughters of wealthy parents. The young people find this section of the country delightful and got about it a great deal, taking side trips to Webster lake, to the Wolf Den, to Alexander's lake and other attractive points about the territory. Large groups of them, the majority wearing knickers, frequently are to be seen in Putnam, which benefits financially by their presence, particularly the places that deal in candies, ice cream and refreshments tha tappeal during the hot weather period.

District Deputy Grand Master Kenneth C. Michie of Quinebaug lodge, I. O. O. F., of Danielson will come here with his suite Tuesday evening next to install the officers of Israel Putnam lodge. It is expected that a number of visiting Odd Fellows will be in attendance. The installation is to be in Odd Fellows' hall.

W. J. Bartlett, J. Otis Fox and Fred Bruce were among those from this section who were in New York Thursday to see the ring battle between Jess Willard, former world title holder, and Luis Angel Firpo, the giant South American who has recently created such a furore in flatic circles. Incidentally there was more interest here Thursday night in getting returns from the big bout than was manifested even in the go between Dempsey and Gibbons on the Fourth. In this city and throughout the entire countryside radios were tuned in to pick up returns from the fight and these were eagerly sought by fans as a diversion from baseball scores, in which there is a great slackening of interest because of the practical certainty that both New York teams will win pennants again.

The recent campaign for funds for the Salvation Army's home service fund amounted to $1,562 in money actually collected and in pledges obtained this amount will be increased to $1,800, which was the goal set at the outset of the drive.

Envoy Olivere and Sergeant Spencer, who have been on duty here for some time past, have been transferred. Sergeant Spencer is going to be attached to the Hartford headquarters and Envoy Olivere, after a vacation spent at his home in New York state, will return to Hartford to receive a new appointment. Capt. and Mrs. William Cushman of Winsted are now in charge of the Salvation Army work here.

A delightful outing at Roseland park Thursday was enjoyed by a large representation of the Congregational Sunday school of this city. A beautiful day spent in an ideal picnic location made a happy result. Sports featured the activities of the afternoon and supper was served toward evening. The return to this city was in time for the regular mid-week evening service, conducted by the pastor, Rev. S. E. Cozad.

The report of Captain Jarvis of the police department to the common council shows that there were 11 arrests for intoxication here during June and that four of those presented in court on that charge were sent to jail.

The combination of a sale of thoroughbred Holstein-Freisian cattle and the meeting of the State Holstein association at what is known as the Sayles farm, near Mechanicsville, drew a large and representative attendance of Holsetin cattlemen Thursday, many attracted by the sale coming from distant points in New England and from New York and Pennsylvania. The herd disposed of formerly was owned by the French River Textile company, which a few months ago was taken over by the Guerin textile interests. The new owners of the mill did not care to continue the long established policy of maintaining a mill farm, so the herd came on the market, and there were many ready buyers.

Members of Putnam Rotary club will be at Storrs Wednesday next for a field day in which all the Rotary clubs in eastern Connecticut will be represented. At the agricultural college much will be done for the entertainment of the visitors and a program of sports has been arranged.

The midweek dance at Wildwood park Thursday evening attracted many from this city.

Postmaster Archibald Macdonald has gone to Sydney, C. B., to spend his annual vacation.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich will be at the Day Kimball hospital Friday of next week to conduct one of his periodical clinics in the interest of tubercular persons.

Miss Katherine T. Thayer of this city is acting as telephone operator at the Connecticut Mills in Danielson during the month.

Frank Cloutier has been elected sachem o fWappaquasset tribe of Red Men of this city.

Franklin Perry will be one of the group of boys from this city to go into camp at Camp Woodstock today for a stay of two weeks.

Thursday was the last day fo qualifying rounds at Inwood for the national open gold championship and his Putnam friends are now interestedly awaiting the success that C. L. Booth of this city will have as the play goes on. He qualified Monday.

JEWETT CITY

A Jewett City man in New York Wednesday, having occasion to call at the foreign office, learned that the Lampert and Holt liner Vauban, on her trip from Buenos Aires to New York, ran on the rocks off Bermuda Monday, but was floated at high tide without damage. She is due to arrive in New York today (Friday.) John R. Tracy of Jewett City, is the purser of the Vauban.

The following interesting and entirely out of the ordinary bird notes have been reported in this section, and are issued in a printed report by the orinthological society.

An observer, watching with an 8-power glass, saw a male robin feeding a mother bluebird on two different occasions, when she came off her nest. A family of robins is reported consisting of three, one male and two females. One female is usually waiting to sit on the nest when the other leaves it. Sometimes one female sits alongside the other and sometimes on her back. At first there were five eggs in the nest, later eight eggs. No fourth robin has been seen near the nest. This looks like bigamy or polygamy.

A male house wren seems to have two mates, one with young and the other with eggs in 2epazate nests, in bird houses, while he encourages them by singing joyously at a station between the two. He seems to be popular with the opposite sex.

The indoor range of Jewett City Rifle club will be completed shortly. Gilbert Miner, Jr., has received a large number of supplies from the war department, for both the indoor and outdoor range and has the rifles issued by the war department already in transit from San Antonio, Tex., the nearest supply station for the target rifles desired by the club.

A meeting will be held shortly to decide what is to be done about constructing an outdoor range for the 22 calibre rifle and other important business. It is the hope of several members to pull off an old fashioned turkey shoot Thanksgiving day.

Several members of Jewett City Rifle club go to New Britain Saturday where they will compete in the three day shoot of the Southern New England Rifle association July 14th, 15th and 16th. The shooting will all be at 200 yards. Prizes, both cash and merchandise will be awarded the winners up to 30th place. The event will be both interesting and instructive to any members of the club desiring to go as they will be able to see H. M. Pope, A. Hubalek, T. R. Young, F. C. Rose, world famous rifle shots in action. Over 500 riflemen will compete. There will be fifteen targets in operation from dawn until dark. All shooting but the honor target is unlimited re-entry, each shooter shooting as much as he cares to. Prizes will make the competition keen as several hundred dollars in prizes are up on one target alone.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith and Mrs. and Mrs. Everettt Miller are away on an automobile trip to Boston and to visit relatives in Maine.

Louis Carden of Kitsmaug and James Watson of Norton, Mass., are guests at J. T. Stewart's.

Carl Melvin (not Benjamin) is at home from New Jersey on a vacation.

Stanley Grobofski, 12 jumped over the fence on Slater avenue, Tuesday evening, just as Horace Dawley drove by in his car. In order to save himself from going under the machine the boy grabbed the fender and was dragged along a short distance. As he had on a bathing suit one side was bruised and scratched and filled with tar and gravel. No other injuries resulted.

A fine exhibition of fireworks was given at Ashland Casino park, Wednesday evening, a large crowd assembling to watch them. Bad weather made the postponement of the fireworks from Fourth of July necessary.

NORWICH SOCIETY'S VISIT GIVES IDEA TO NEWBURGH

A former Norwich Town man, Edward Harland Miller, of New York, has been in Newburgh on the Hudson, visiting Dr. Wesley Wait at the latter's beautiful home. As Mr. Miller was a vice president of the Norwich Society in New York, he was interested in the recent trip of that society to Norwich, so mentioned it to his Newburgh friends. The Newburgh Daily News copied a portion of The Bulletin's account of the visit, also referring to the incident editorially as follows:

Many old versions of the Bible contain weird errors, or words used in quaint ways. One of these is the Vinegar Bible, which obtained its name by printing in the heading of St. Luke, Chapter XX., "The parable of the vinegar," instead of vineyard.

THE WOMAN POWER OF AMERICA is well illustrated by the thousands of women who are entering every profession, almost every line of business and politics as well. They are bound to make good, and there is no question but what health is their greatest asset. Many women, however, develop weak, nervous conditions and cannot stand the strain of a professional or business life. Such women should remember when beset with headaches, backache, nervousness, irritability or any ailment peculiar to their sex that the greatest of all remedies for such conditions is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For nearly fifty years this old-fashioned root and herb medicine has been restoring the women of America to health and strength. It holds the remarkable record of helping 98 out of every 100 women who try it.

W LONDON GIRLS; SAILORS' BRIDES MOURN TARS WHO SAILED AWAY

w London, July 12.—Albert Rad-55, an employe of the Thames ard, was found dead in the home s. Francis Williams of 37 Pearl this afternoon, death resulting a heart attack which Radcliff un-edly experienced approaching on the street and he expired af- had requested and obtained a n rest. Radcliff was residing Groton house, Groton, and had ployed as a caulker at the for several months. Radcliff ew London this forenoon and ter 12 o'clock he was on et when he probably suffered ing feeling for he approached Williams, who was going to a y store, and explained his ill- o her and requested that she pro-him with a place to lie down. Williams saw that Radcliff was turning to her home and provid-im with a place to sleep. Radcliff the woman 50 cents for the use e room and requested that he be 1 within an hour. About 1.30 o'- Mrs. Williams went to the room ndeavored to arouse Radcliff, but vered that he was dead. Mrs. ams notified the police and Med-Examiner Harold H. Heyer, af- n examination of the body, gave sion for its removal to an un-ding establishment. The police considerable difficulty in obtain-the identification of Radcliff for the body was found there was on it to provide a clue to the identity. A manila pay envelope bearing the typewritten words, "Radcliffe, 2 days, 8 hours, $8.30—109," furnished the only clue. Selectman Albert Hewitt of Groton was communicated with as it was known that the man had crossed the Thames river bridge during the forenoon. Selectman Hewitt came to New London and upon viewing the body, immediately identified it as that of Radcliff.

Roswell Brooks of Watch Hill, Miss Harriet Green of Ashaway, R. I.; Owen Bogue of the Thames shipyard, Harry Tisdale of Schenectady, N. Y., formerly of New London, and Mrs. Edward L. Clark of Lord's Point, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Teresa Sylvia died last night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Sylvia of No. 377 Bristol street. Mrs. Sylvia was the widow of Antone Sylvia and had been in ill health for a long time. Besides Mrs. Mary Sylvia, two other daughters, Mrs. A. Fries of West Philadelphia, and Miss Marion Sylvia of New London and a grandson, Leander Sylvia, also of New London, survive.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has caused the operator's license of Ferdinano Di Benedetti of 524 Bank street to be returned to the owner. The license was recently suspended following De Bendetti's automobile participating in an accident.

Miss Mary Hans of Pearl street, in the employ of L. Lewis, is a patient at Lawrence hospital, where she will undergo an operation the latter part of this week.

Julian D. Moran, administrator of the estate of Ella O'Neill, has sold the house at No. 90 Thames street to Angelina Di Luca.

William H. Bush has sold a house and lot on Stony Hill to Clara Crocker Johnson.

Edward McCabe of 34 Morgan street, was the man struck by an automobile driven by Miss Aphaline Spier, of Enfield, yesterday afternoon on Broad street, near Bishop street. McCabe was riding a bicycle when run down and left the place without revealing his identity. Thursday forenoon he reported the accident at the police station. McCabe sustained only minor injuries.

Officers of Mohegan lodge, I. O. O. F., were installed last evening at a regular session of the organization.

Mrs. Vina Klein, of 36 Reed street, is mourning the loss of a diamond ring, believed to have been stolen by an associate worker Friday last. The theft of the ring was reported to the police Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Neistat, also of 36 Reed street, sister of Mrs. Klein. According to Mrs. Neistat her sister placed a small handbag, which contained the ring and Mrs. Klein's marriage license on a shelf in one of the rooms of a pants factory, corner of Montauk avenue and Blinman street, a few minutes before the owner started to leave the place. When she went out on the street, the woman forgot to take her bag and it was several minutes afterwards that she discovered that the bag containing the diamond was not in her possession. Returning to the factory, Mrs. Klein found the bag and its contents missing. Thursday, when no trace of the diamond had been obtained the woman's sister decided to report the theft to the police.

The statement has often been made that New London has the most competent and efficient police force it ever has had. Much of their efficiency, however, has been brought about through the initiative of the individual members rather than by any stated method for the improvement of the force. The officers have never received instruction in their duties nor have they been drilled in the methods they are to pursue on occasion of special emergency. The school of the policeman is something they have not had acquaintance with thorough instruction. The officers themselves realize that such instruction, given to them as a body of policemen, would be of the greatest benefit. A scrapbook containing clippings from the local newspapers and from other newspapers would be of the greatest service imaginable to the officers but such is not in existence so far as known. No system of calesthenics or athletic exercises has ever been introduced for the men to follow or to which they should devote a specified interval every day or every week, a fact that is regretted by the younger and most progressive members of the force. A list of criminals wanted might be kept in view of the officers of the force and all the details connected with the offenses for which they are sought would be a help to the men. But such is unknown to them. The force is well supplied with officers who are capable of operating an auto and provision has been made for the housing of such a machine in the basement of the police station, but the patrol wagon which the department claims is so deficient in repair that it might as well not be owned by the city. New London will have a damage suit coming from the operation of the present patrol auto some day (or night) for the machine used is not reliable and is unsafe to run as it is at times is uncontrollable. It is worn out. Alderman H. C. Chappell and Alderman Morris Payne, the latter a military man, had in mind the instruction of the police weekly in their duties, but when they were relegated by the turn of the political wheel all the plans they made went with them.

Many of the marriage contracts entered into by New London girls and sailors in the service of Uncle Sam are practically null and void to the regret of the first mentioned parties. The sailors have gone to one section or another of the world and their wives have little or no knowledge of where their husbands are. They get no support from them and they are obliged to support themselves as best they can. One of these wives appealed today for information as to a way of getting her freedom from the man she married. She said she had not heard from her husband in nearly a year and that in that time he had only sent her $10, that being received last March. Many of the sailors have gone to the west coast of the United States while others have kept their whereabouts a secret from the girls they married.

Merchants whose stories are open at night declare that there are more people on the street after nine o'clock at night than there are there prior to that time. Whether they dine late and then get on the street for recreation or whether they stroll about after the heat of the day has passed cannot be determined.

It is noticeable to the police that fewer stores have been found unsecured at night of late than were formerly found unlocked. They may be due to the fact that the newspapers publish the reports made by the police when stores are found to have been carelessly left and those responsible for the conditions have become more careful.

The price of real estate in New London is advancing wherever houses in desirable localities are offered for sale. Many new residences have been erected or are in process of erection in those sections where real estate is well kept and where conditions are such that people seek homes. The run-down neglected property is depreciating in value as the well-kept advances.

There is a strong probability that an increase will be made in the initiatory fee for membership in the Masonic fraternity, also in the dues that will be exacted in the future in New London. No advance has been made in a long time and the lodges are growing so rapidly that an increase seems advisable.

The sewer work that is being done on Mitchell court and Montauk avenue bids fair to be the most expensive, the length of the sewer considered, that has been done in New London. A ledge was encountered soon after the work commenced in the court and the trenchmen have not been able to avoid ledges all the way. Blasting has been frequent and drilling has been continuous.

Enrico Megrini and Miss Josephine Bisconti of Shaw street were married this morning at 9.30 o'clock at St. Joseph's church, the nuptial mass being celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, rector. Samuel Conulisai was best man and Miss Bessie Ferossi attended the bride.

William Weinberg of 220 Montauk avenue complained to the police this evening that while his automobile was parked at Ocean Beach last night a thief stole the radiator cap and a water meter.

Harry Mitchell, 14, who claims to reside in New York, was arrested at the union station late this afternoon by Special Agent Bryan of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, charged with being a trespasser on railroad property. The youth will not be prosecuted, however, for he is a runaway and has been turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, who will have the boy returned to his home.

Special Agent James P. Brady of the Central Vermont railroad, this afternoon lodged complaint with the police that two youths and a girl, all residing in East New London, had been guilty of destroying property of the state, Brady alleging that the trio of minor had visited the state pier where they had demolished several windows of buildings. The officer supplied the names of the minors and later Motorcycle Officer John Cavanaugh ordered the youngsters to appear in juvenile court Saturday forenoon.

E. E. Harrington, residing at 64 Mountain avenue complained to the police this evening of the dangerous condition of the sidewalk in front of the buildings at Nos. 133-135 Bank street, owned and occupied by the Schwartz Furniture company. The company has caused advertising signs to be painted upon the granolithic walks and stepping on one of these signs, Harrington alleges, caused him to slip and fall. Harrington claims to have injured his knee and to have torn his clothing.

Mrs. John Fehay is in New York, called there yesterday because of the death of her sister, Miss Ella Cormier, following a brief illness.

John Rondomanski, 23, son of Mrs. Helen Rondomanski, of No. 60 Federal street, died suddenly at a military reservation at Portland, Me., where he was a soldier Sunday, from epilepsy. Mrs. Rondomanski has gone to Portland to claim the body and arrange for the funeral.

An automobile, owned and operated by S. J. Hall of 114 Union street, struck and knocked down an unknown youth on Howard street early this evening. The youth was uninjured and ran away without providing Hall with his identity, Hall, however, made a report of the accident at the police station.

A fellow is arranging a serious reception for himself if he does not abandon a practice he has adopted in the neighborhood of Georgiana street, for last night complaint was made to the police that the man was in the yard of Frederick Kopp of No. 30. Mrs. Kopp heard a strange noise in the vicinity of the rear windows of her home and investigating discovered the prowler. She summoned aid from neighbors and the man was chased to the property adjoining the Kopp house where he disappeared in the darkness. It later developed that Mrs. Howard Taylor, residing at No. 34, had been annoyed by a night prowler several times within a week. Patrolmen Augustus Ray and Clarence Wells were sent to Georgiana street and instituted a thorough investigation, but without finding the prowler. This evening Edward Reeves, residing at No. 40 complained to the police that the residents of the neighborhood who had put chase to the prowler trampled his garden. The complaint, however, will not deter the neighbors in running through Reeves yard if they obtain a glimpse of the window peeper for the neighbors are incensed over the fellow's conduct and are determined to capture him if such a thing is possible.

Sneak thieves continue to operate in New London successfully and as a result of the operations of one or more of a gang of house thieves it was revealed this evening that during the afternoon the home of Mrs. Grace Collins of No. 104 Montauk avenue, had been robbed, the thief obtaining two diamond rings, one stone weighing a carat and the other three-quarters of a carat, stone surrounded with small diamonds and a black opal ring with diamond atop the opal. This morning a man, giving his name as Hadley and who was sent to the house by the Y. M. C. A. called upon Mrs. Collins and stated his desire to rent a room. He was showed the rooms and had a good opportunity to inspect them and their contents. The crook decided to rent one of the rooms and later asked for a hand towel. This was provided him and he loitered about the bathroom a short time under the pretense of washing. While Mrs. Collins was in another part of the house the crook went to her room and stole the diamonds and opal. After obtaining his plunder the thief departed and has not been seen since. When the fellow did not return this evening the suspicions of Mrs. Collins was aroused and upon conducting an investigation she discovered her jewels missing. The police were notified and Motorcycle Officer William Babcock was assigned to the case. The officer's investigation revealed that the fellow had been recommended to two other houses to procure lodgings and he had already visited one of them but did not hire a room. The crook is described as being about 28 years of age and weighing approximately 160 pounds. He is about five feet nine inches in height and was attired in a blue suit, gray cap and tan shoes. The description tallies with the fellow that has burglarized several houses in various parts of the city within the past month.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

EARLY WEEDING IS MOST PROFITABLE

The proportion of gardens damaged and even abandoned at this time of the year by allowing the weeds to take charge is never recorded but it is evidently large.

One county agent states that this is the worst time of the year for many bad weeds and that gardeners who let the weeds get well started and large always find it difficult to get rid of them without severe damage to the crop. Barnyard grass, creeping bent grass, purslane, pig weed and ragweed are among the worst enemies of the garden at this time and they grow at an enormous rate when the weather is hot and moist.

Constant attention to the eradication of weeds when small pays well. The best and most economical weeding is done with the aid of tools or implements that stir and break the soil surface such as cultivators, wheel hoes, hand hoes and hand weeders. When weeds are destroyed through cultivation some of the most important plant food elements of the soil are enormously increased in their availability, and the plants show it at once in their increased vigor of growth and fruitfulness.

Thus if the garden were gone over once a week with the cultivator and hand weeder it would be perfectly logical to consider this only as adding fertility to the soil and as giving stimulus to the crop's growth. The weeds could then be counted as taken care of incidentally and at no expense.

Weeds not only rob the plants of food and water, but when large they cannot be removed without damaging the root systems of the crop plants left. They also shade these plants and so reduce growth. Another common loss from weeds is that by preventing the plants from drying off quickly after rains or dews they bring about the best conditions for the development and spread of disease. This was noted in many of the market gardens of the county last year. The celery fields which were kept clean of weeds throughout the season were most free from celery blight.

RIPE-ROT BANE OF ORCHARDS

Almost every householder who has a plum or peach tree in his backyard or orchard knows what it is to have a fine crop of these fruits grow almost to maturity on the tree and then suddenly begin to decay on the tree just before picking time. This disease is known as manilia rot or ripe-rot, and practically all varieties of plum grown in this section are extremely susceptible to this disease, as are early peaches. The later Elberta and some other varieties of peaches are not generally affected to a serious extent.

The remedy, according to one county agricultural agent, is to thin the fruit on the trees so that no two specimens touch each other, and then to spray with lime sulphur or to dust with a standard sulphur and lime mixture. Weak bordeaux mixture and ordinary lime-sulphur may be used on plums of the European varieties, but neither of these materials can be used on peaches or Japanese plums without serious damage.

FARMERS WARNED TO GUARD AGAINST POTATO BLIGHT

One of the greatest menaces to the potato crop, early blight, appears at this time of the year, according to one county agricultural agent, and to save the crop immediately steps must be taken to curb its spread. The great danger from early blight is that it will cause the early death of the vines with a consequent small yield.

Early blight is easy to distinguish from its late brother because if its peculiar method of development. It generally makes its attack between the ribs of the leaf, whereas the late blight will develop at any place on the leaf and attack the rib as well. When a plant is attacked by early blight it will turn yellow, but will not die immediately. Late blight attacks in the form of a brown spot which rapidly turns black, and the leaf will crumple and die within a few days.

One of the best means of determining the presence of blight is to look at the under side of the leaves early in the morning when the plants are moist. If there is a substance which looks like mildew, the presence of blight is assured.

This disease cannot be cured—it can only be controlled and the best known method of doing this is to thoroughly cover the plants with a mixture of copper sulphate, commonly known as bordeaux mixture, early in the season, and continue applications throughout the growing season. It is more efficient and desirable to cover the under side of the leaves, inasmuch as the disease starts there.

Bordeaux can be readily mixed at home, and this is advisable from the viewpoint of economy and efficiency. The mixture should consist of five pounds of blue vitriol (copper sulphate), five pounds of lump lime, and 50 gallons of water. The lime and copper sulphate should be mixed separately and poured together when in solution.

The greatest failure in spraying is found in the fact that spray nozzles do not work correctly. Countless sprayers are equipped with nozzles which clog, and only partial control of the disease is possible. The chief requisites for good spraying are an effective mixture, a good nozzle, and sufficient pressure so that the spray will completely cover the plant.

THE SILAGE TESTS

The third year's feeding trial with different types of corn silage in which Connecticut farmers are greatly interested is well under way. This investigation is being conducted by the departments of dairy husbandry and agronomy at the Storrs experiment station.

To date the third feeding trials show even more marked differences in feeding value than the first two. On April 25, at the seventy-fifth day of the experiment, the milk produced per pound of grain fed was about 5 lbs. with Pride of the North, about 4 lbs. with Learning, and a little less than 3 lbs. with Eureka silage. This difference is perhaps a little larger than the average will be for the entire period.

The first two years' trials have recently been combined and studied. For each 100 pounds of milk produced the Early silage furnished 56 per cent of the dry matter in the ration; the medium furnished 52 per cent; and the late furnished 40 per cent.

It has been found that 103 pounds of the medium silage and 135 pounds of the late silage is about equivalent to 100 pounds of the early.

The medium and late varieties yield more per acre than the early. Hence on the basis of the feeding trials it seems that 6.78 of an acre of medium (Learning) and 0.42 of an acre of late (Eureka) will equal an acre of early (Pride of the North) in feeding value.

On the basis of digestible dry matter it seems that 9.5 lbs. of early, 4.2 lbs. of medium, and 5.4 lbs. of late silage are required to make one pound of milk. Taking the average yields of these three varieties of corn of the station plots and on several farms (12.4 tons for P. of N.; 16.5 tons for Learning; and 20.8 tons for Eureka) it is found that the early corn silage produced, during the 100 day feeding trial, 7,078 pounds of milk per acre, the medium 7,663 pounds per acre, and the late 7,527 pounds per acre.

These figures are given, although it is realized that the third year's results will change the values somewhat.

The contracting firm expects to have all the walks contract [illegible]

1. Engineer E. E. Bucklin of Mystic has gone over the sidewalks establishing the lines and grades. The walks included in the present project where the adjoining property owner pays a half the cost and the other half is cared for by the fire district, are: Lincoln avenue, the west side thereof, West Broad to Liberty streets, also turning the corner on Stanton street, Palmer street, approximately 1,111 square feet, the north side thereof, Mechanic street to William street, and William street, 676 square feet, the east side thereof, Palmer street to Field street. The cost of this work was to be approximately .44 per linear foot for curb line and .21 per square foot for walk. It is the sentiment of the Pawcatuck Fire district that but one side of the street is to have a walk laid in a progressive program until all the main streets have been taken care of before any street has both sides laid with cement walks.

There was a report a few days ago that this plot of land was given back to the estate of the donor, but which is not the case. MYSTIC

The Groton-Stonington Traction Co. has issued a new schedule, which will go into effect today (Thursday). Additional service has been made possible by the arrival in Mystic last week of two new Fageol buses from California. A week or so ago the Groton selectmen were before the trolley officials at Norwich with petitions bearing names of people from Groton, Noank, Groton Long Point and Mystic, requesting the reinstatement of half-hourly service to points east and the move to be in effect today is designed to answer the petition of these. The trolley company now has five buses, four of which are Fageols, by whose purchase the company was able to install coach service. The other is the White bus, which formerly was operated on the route between Mystic and Old Mystic. Four coaches will be in use all the time. The other will be maintained in reserve to be used in case of an emergency. The Old Mystic bus will not be replaced and the Golden Spur service will not be exclusively coach. In compiling the coach schedule to accommodate Noankers a slight difficulty was met in that the direct route throughout to Mystic does not include the Noank waiting station. As a result, the situation will be met by running the coach into Brook street, turning to the right, including in the route Spicer avenue and then around a circle to the waiting station, retracing a short distance on Spicer avenue and continuing on the Mystic road thus delaying the trip slightly. Copies of the new schedule may be obtained at the Noank waiting room and trolley station at Mystic.

FARMING IS A GREAT ADVENTURE.

(Written Specially for the Bulletin)

Well, we manager to find some new potatoes from our own garden for the Fourth. It was a close squeeze, though. They had grown so slowly and the tops were so small that it wasn't till June 25th that we shoveled-plowed them and "hilled" them up. And they're only just beginning to blossom.

Yet the tradition of the John Farmer family calls for new potatoes for dinner, Fourth of July. New potatoes from its own garden. Any failure to live up to a tradition would seem to postulate farming degeneracy on the part of the present generation. Said present generation is markedly averse to confessing any such degeneracy. So we sallied out with the ancient potato hook, Mrs. John, Jr., with a fine air of bluff, bringing along a bushel basket. "We won't need it full," she said, "but I brought it in case."

The first hill pulled yielded seven tubers in sizes ranging up from a big hen's egg to a big butternut. The second hill showed up only nine, but one was as big as the regulation hen's egg. The third hill counted out nine-teen. Then I stopped my destruction. "Enough for a feast," I remarked, with that fine originality native to the breast of roast. It proved so, too. Washed, scraped, boiled and served with a white sauce, they were more than three of us could eat.

But they certainly did run small. Some reached more like a sort of bleached green peas than like potatoes. I think they averaged smaller than I've dug on the Fourth for thirty years. The tops all over the little garden patch are small, too. They look bright enough, but seem somehow dwarfed in comparison with previous years. The same is true of all my small garden crop. My neighbors agree unanimously in reporting a similar state of things. "Most backward season ever known" is the usual comment.

Now, "ever" is a long time and I'm not going to pin my reputation to so large and vague a word. But it must be confessed that the season is later than has been known in this bailiwick within the memories on the records of living farmers. It is so backward as to be actually freakish.

Such garden crops as lettuce, spinach, beets, cucumbers, green peas, string beans, etc., have been slow to germinate, slower still to grow and excessively contrarious in their behavior other ways. Lettuce and spinach, for instance, have both been tough and woody, with an irresistible inclination to run up to seed without stopping to make leaves or heads. Green peas grew feebly and stuntedly and bore sparsely a small crop which had to be treated gently with soda in order to cook tender. String beans, on the contrary, have grown with usual rankness, but are only just in full blossom. I have usually been picking edible pods earlier than this. My very earliest sweet corn is only just beginning to show tassels, while a customarily much later variety is already bigger and better tasseled.

Potato bugs and striped beetles have thus far, been very scarce and hardly dangerous. Currant worms haven't even been seen at all. Cut worms have not done any damage. But there is a destructive invasion of a so-called 'rose bug' which is attacking not only rose bushes but other shrubs in simply unconquerable hordes. The bug has not been unknown. It has occasionally been seen in other years, on raspberry and blackberry vines. The careless picker who happened to plop one into his mouth on the under side of a ripe berry promptly and nauseatedly discovered his blunder. But, hitherto, they have been sporadic and scarce. This year they are everywhere and in millions.

The freakishness of the present season has set me to recalling some of the freaks of past seasons. In retrospect, they seem quite interesting—indeed, they were "interesting" enough at the time, but more irritatingly so than they seem in memory. As I hark back over the past years, almost every one presents one or more outstanding examples of freakishness in some direction. As every star differeth from every other in glory, so every season, has differed from its predecessors or successors in the character of its freakishness. But they have all been tarred with that stick.

The garden experts tell us to plant certain seeds at weekly or fortnightly intervals, so as to have a succession of crops. I suppose all working gardeners do something of that sort. Anyway I always used to. As soon as my earliest sown peas showed above ground, I sowed for a second crop beside them. So on for a third and fourth succession. One year, when I did this, I picked my first peas from the sowing which was put in third in order and at least a month later than the first rows. The first, second and fourth sowings came on at practically the same time! This year, my first sowing has already been picked clean, the vines pulled up, the ground reworked and set to cabbages—while the second sowing is not yet in full blossom.

I have a special sort of extra early sweet corn, usually coming into edible use about two weeks before Golden Bantam. This year it is not now so far along in growth or tassels or general development as common Black Mexican, planted the same day.

I usually plant three kinds of potatoes—early, medium and late. One year that I can recall, the mediums came on first, the extra earlies and extra lates at the same time much later. All had been planted on the same day and in the same field.

One year I remember that the pesky cutworms forsook the corn and cabbages of which they are supposed to be specially fond, and attacked my onion-bed, absolutely destroying it before we could control them. Such a thing had never before been heard of in this vicinity as cutworms eating young onions, and it took us several precious days, after the plants began to die to discover the cause. I used bushels of poisoned bran, after the truth had become clear, but too late, as the sequel proved.

Doubtless we've all had queer experiences with the action of late frosts. One year my sweet corn was planted in a meadow with rather rank grass growing along the western and northern sides of the corn area. When the corn was about six or eight inches high, the grass along these borders was two feet high. There came a sharp frost. Every hill of corn in the row next to the grass was killed. Nearly all the hills in the second row were killed. Half the hills in the third row were killed. A few in the fourth row were killed. Not a single hill in all the two acres beyond this fourth row from the grass was even "nipped".

Another year my bean patch was beginning to bud when a similar late frost happened along. A half-moon shaped piece of the west side of the bean field was badly scorched. The hurt area might have been a hundred feet long at the edge of the beans and convexing out into them six or eight rows at its widest. Outside this symmetrically marked area the beans were barly touched.

Family tradition preserves the record of one year in the 1830's when a July frost killed all the corn on a three-acre lot, with the exception of one hill, which wasn't even scotched, and which later produced several ears of good seed corn, the only corn, tradition avers, which ripened that year in the whole township.

One year I planted six short rows of the same sort of sweet corn in my garden on six successive Saturdays, beginning with the last Saturday in April and ending with the first in May. All came up, grew and yielded. But I got my first roasting ears off the fourth or fifth planting. And the rows planted six weeks apart,—the very earliest and the very latest,—gave pickable ears the same day.

I used to have good fortune with an extra early wrinkled pea known as the Surprise. A gardening neighbor, a mile away, swore by Nott's Excelsior. One year we "swapped" a quart of seed. He planted a quart of my Surprise the same day and right beside his Nott's. I planted a quart of his Nott's the same day and right beside my Surprise. With me the Surprise came into full bearing ten days before a pod was pickable on the Notts; with him the two matured on the same day.

I remember one year sowing a small field to oats the same day that a neighbor sowed ten acres just over the fence. I harrowed my seed carefully, broadcasted the grass seed and "bushed" that in, and got to the barn just as the rain came down. My neighbor had barely got the seed on his ground. The rain persisted and kept the ground unworkable for ten days. At the end of that time, he managed to harrow his seed in. Meanwhile the neighbor's hens and the wild fowl of the forests had been feasting unchecked on his uncovered oats. But—when harvest came, he had twice the bushelage I secured, of heavier oats! So far as I can see, there isn't any difference between his land north of the fence and mine south of it. Both patches had been in corn, the previous year, and both given about the same fertilization and cultivation. What other word than "freak" can describe such an outcome?

One year, endeavoring to find out what sort of manuring for potatoes my soil wanted, I tried ten different methods on a two-acre field. Some had barn-yard manure; some hen manure; some just phosphate; some phosphate with potash; some lime alone; some lime with phosphate; some the highest grade potato fertilizer on the commercial market. As a "check," four rows through the middle of the field were left with absolutely no fertilization of any sort. And those four rows yielded a measured half-bushel more of marketable tubers than the four rows right beside them, treated with the highest-priced and most reputed commercial potato fertilized!—This I must add in simple fairness, is the only case when such a thing happened to me. I never had another instance when commercial fertilizer didn't in some degree increase the crop, though not always nor often to a paying extent.

Probably there isn't a single old farmer between Cos Cob and Quoddy Head who can't, by ransacking his memory, recall scores of similar freakishnesses in his own experience. What with varying seasonal temperature, which we can't forepee; with unlike amounts of rainfall, which we can't predict; with freakish frosts, which come unheralded; with epidemics of blight and invasions of insect pests from mysterious origins,—the farmer comes to feel himself almost the sport and plaything and victim of chances beyond his control.

And still some people talk of the "science of agriculture!"

Of course, in the eye of Infinite Wisdom there is no such thing as "luck" or "chance". But we practical farmers are not infinitely wise. We are very finitely ignorant. The few things we think we know we aren't absolutely sure of. The huge ocean of things we don't know surrounds and sometimes washes over us.

If we were infinitely wise we might make the wrath of the elements serve us. Being finite ignoramuses, we can't do anything of the sort. We can simply do our poor best, and feebly hope that some sort of luck, we know not whence or why, may smile our way.

It is still true of us that Paul may plant and Apollos may water but it is God alone who giveth the increase,—or doesn't give it. And He hasn't yet, let us know in April and May, which He is going to do in August and September.

"Farming," said my old friend George Hull, "is nothing but a gamble."

True enough.

Farming is also a Great Adventure.

Mull over that paradox a bit; if you will.

VOLUNTOWN

Sunday afternoon, Plainfield opposed the Briggs Manufacturing Co. team on the Voluntown grounds and was defeated 18 to 5, in a free hitting contest. The local team is fast rounding into shape and is putting up a good brand of ball for a newly organized team. The boys wore their new uniforms Sunday and looks like a snappy team.

The locals found Bosieg early in the game and assisted by errors at critical times piled up their big score, while Dupont held the visitors well in hand throughout the game. Score:

Voluntown	18	12	3
Plainfield	5	4	2

The Glasgo team will oppose the locals Sunday afternoon on the Voluntown grounds. These teams are old rivals and a red hot game is expected. Glasgo won the first game and Voluntown will try and return the compliment Sunday.

ATTORNEY WILL FILE BRIEFS IN LANE A SUIT

Taking of evidence was finished Wednesday in the superior court at New London before Judge George W. Hinman in the trial of the suit of Gordon and Sulman against P. Schwartz Co. of New London.

Attorney for the plaintiffs are to have two weeks in which to file briefs, after which attorneys for the defendant are to have to weeks to file their briefs and one week after that will be allowed for the plaintiff's attorney to file reply brief.

The suit is brought to restrain the Schwartz Co. from erecting and maintaining a fence across Lane A which the city claims is a public highway.

Judge Hinman declared an indefinite recess of the court.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

THE WITCH AND THE BROOMSTICK.

"Twinkle, twinkle, lantern bright
With your eyes of candle light,
First look here and then search there—
Scrutinize each spot with care."

Now, if you don't know what 'scrutinize' means, I'll tell you. It means to look thoroughly and please don't forget it, for if you learn something every time you read one of these stories you will become quite learned.

Well, by and by, Jack o'Lantern, who you remember in the last story was helping the Black Swan find his lost locket suddenly cried out: "Here it is!" and sure enough, half hidden under a withered leaf lay the lovely gold locket.

"Be careful! Mrs. Witch!" exclaimed Little Jack Rabbit

No sooner had the Black Swan opened it, than our little bunny boy and Jack o'Lantern crowded up close to him to see the picture inside, and, with the help of the little pumpkin lantern they saw the face of a lovely little princess.

"I thought you said it was the picture of a White Swan," said Little Jack Rabbit.

"Ah me!" sighed the beautiful Black Swan. "I'm not really a swan, but a prince. A wicked witch has changed me into this form and before I can marry the lovely princess whose picture you see in this locket, I must regain my natural shape. But how to do it, I know not."

Just then, all of a sudden, they heard a shrill laugh and in less than five hundred short seconds a little old woman stood before them. She was seated on a broom stick. On her head was a high peaked hat and in her right hand she carried a poker.

"What are you doing here, Black Swan?" she asked angrily, with a grimace at Little Jack Rabbit and a scowl at Jack o'Lantern. But she didn't frighten them in the least. No siree. The brave little bunny boy only grinned and Jack o'Lantern placed his little pumpkin lantern so close that her skirt almost caught fire.

"Don't do that, you mischievous Jack!" she screamed, but the poor Black Swan said nothing for he was dreadfully afraid of her.

"Be careful! Mrs. Witch," exclaimed Little Jack Rabbit politely doffing his khaki cap with the flaming feather in it, "I'm not afraid of you!" and the little bunny rabbit curled his whiskers and tried to look very fierce but the Broomstick Witch only laughed and stretched out her hand to lay hold of the poor Black Swan.

At once, Little Jack Rabbit touched her with his flaming feather, and would you believe it, she turned into a bat and flew away with a dreadful screech.

All at once, the Black Swan changed into a handsome prince and if the little pumpkin lantern doesn't burn out so that these three good friends can't find their way back to the Pumpkin house, I'll tell you another story tomorrow.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

THURSDAY'S MARKET DULL.

New York, July 12.—Extreme dullness characterized today's stock market, the quietest full day session in over a year. Price changes, as a rule, were narrow and irregular.

Stocks started off fractionally higher and early gains were extended as a result of short covering prior to the publication of Premier Baldwin's statement in the house of commons. Business was virtually suspended while a synopsis of the statement was being published on the financial tickers and Wall street's first reaction, as reflected on the ticker, was slightly unfavorable.

Large traders, however, seemed disposed to await the full text and make a careful study of the same before extending their commitments and there was a continued absence of public participation so that afternoon trading continued sluggish with price changes generally unimportant.

American Car and Foundry dropped 6 1-2 points on what was obviously forced liquidation. There was a think market for the stock which broke 2 1-2 points on 5 sales of 100 shares each, the day's total transactions being only about 2000 shares. Baldwin crossed 118 and then dropped back to 1177 1-8, where it was up 5-8 on the day. American Locomotive registered a small fractional loss.

Oils failed to make any appreciable response to the reported reduction in domestic production. Coppers were slightly firmer in reflection of a stiffening of commodity prices and an increased demand for the red metal. Steels showed little change on the day, U. S. Steel common again selling above ...

Rail shares continued to disregard the unusually favorable car loadings reports although the seasoned dividend payers showed the best buying support, gains of a point or more being recorded by Delaware & Hudson, Lackawanna, and Canadian Pacific.

Some of the other individual strong spots were American Agricultural Chemical Preferred, Famous Players, Liggett & Myers B, Air Reduction, Woolworth, South Porto Rican Sugar, Vanadium Steel and Pierce Arrow Preferred, up 2 to 5 points.

Call money held at 5 per cent throughout the day. Time money continued firm with brokers paying 5 1-4 per cent. New Commercial Paper was slow in coming in and the demand was moderate, the bulk of the prime names commanding 5 per cent.

Foreign exchanges held steady with no important changes in rates. Demand sterling sold just under $4.58 1-2 and French francs were uoted around 5.90 cents. German marks again climbed above the .0005 cent mark.

BONDS.

New York, July 12.—Further irregularity took place in today's bond market with trading dull and the high class investment issues displaying a firm undertone.

Except for a loss of 1 1-4 by the Paris Lyons & Mediterranean 6s and 1 point by Rio De Janeiro 8s of 1947, the foreign group were small and unimportant. U. S. government bonds held steady.

Losses exceeded gains in the active railroad issues, New York, Westchester & Boston 4 1-2s broke 2 1-2 points, Minneapolis & St. Louis Refunding 4s, 1 3-8, and Chicago Great Western 4s, 1. New Haven 7s and the 4s of 1957 each advanced about a point as did Chicago & Western Indiana 4s and Denver & Rio Grande Refunding 5s.

Industrials showed moderate improvement. Gains of one to two points were recorded by Virginia Carolina Chemical 7 1-2s with warrants, Producers & Refiners 8s, Peoples Gas Refunding 5s, Northern States Power 5s and Cerro De Pasco 8s.

Total sales (par value) were $8,044,000.

FAMILY MARKET

Furnished by the market reporter of the state of agriculture to the Norwich Bulletin.

Markets are still holding firm for the following products including peas, string beans, cabbages, oranges and new potatoes. Currants are supplied in moderate quantities to the markets at present. The demands for this product is slow. In spite of the liberal supply of new potatoes. Quotations still continue to advance. Asparagus and spinach on the markets at present are supplied in very small quantities. Peas are not supplied yet in such large quantities so as to warrant lower prices. Broilers are heavily supplied to the market and in most cases are working off well. Calves more than meet the demands at present, supplies at present are very heavy. Good prime beef is still scarce in the markets here and very high in price. Fancy spring lambs still continue to rule firm. Eastern eggs are decidedly higher on the markets, as well as natives, which at present sell for 35 cents, the same as westerns.

Good demand: Beets, carrots, cantaloupes, peas, string beans and broilers.

Fair demand: Connecticut eggs, lettuce, cabbages and oranges.

Poor demand: Rhubarb, spinach and asparagus.

AUTO HIT STONE WALL AT SACHEM ST. CORNER

A Hudson car driven by a Willimantic man hit a stone wall at the corner of Sachem and Washington streets Thursday afternoon about 2 o'clock with force enough to move a large stone about a foot, but the driver was not injured and the car received comparatively little damage.

The driver was on the way to New London and apparently lost control of his car at the corner, running up onto the walk and into the wall.

After a delay of about an hour the machine was driven back to Willimantic under its own power. It had received a bent fender and strained steering gear.

INSURANCE

YOUR MONEY AND YOUR LIFE

The other day when I reached home
I said unto my wife,
"I know you will be happy, dear,
I've just insured my life.
And so, if I should meet my death
Tomorrow, let us say,
A check for fifty thousand
Will be yours that very day."

I knew 'twould make her happy,
So I took her by the hand
And waited for her answer—
And she said, "Won't that be grand."

CORNERSTONES FOR TWO NORWICH CHURCHES LAID 50 YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week the corner stones of two Norwich churches were laid with impressive ceremonies in which practically all the clergy of the city took part. On July 13, 1873, the cornerstone of St. Patrick's church on Broadway was laid and three days before that the cornerstone of Park Congregational church on the Williams lot between Broadway and Crescent streets had been laid.

The story of the laying of the two cornerstones which marked the building of two of the first churches in the city was related in full in The Bulletin of that year, a summary of which follows:

Park Congregational Church.

Probably nothing shows the growth of a city or village more clearly than the erection of new churches. It is a sure evidence of growing morality, Christianity and civilization, and with the laying of the cornerstone of the new Congregational church on Williams street, the first of two to be laid this week, Norwich may indeed be proud of its advance.

The exercises began at 5 oclock when the band played appropriate music after which nearly 2,000 people bowed their heads and listened to the invocation by the Rev. William C. Schofield, pastor of the First Congregational church, who had taken the place of Rev. Mr. Merriman. The scripture was then read by Rev. John Davies of the Central Baptist church and Rev. William Morrison of the Central Methodist church read a hymn written and dedicated for the occasion.

Ebenezer Learned then read a list of the articles to be placed in the box and deposited in the stone, which were as follows: The Norwich Daily Bulletin of July 10; Norwich Daily Advertiser, July 9; Norwich Weekly Courier, July 10; Norwich Weekly Aurora July 8; Boston Congregationalist; New York Independent, New York Christian Union, New York Evangelist, Chicago Advance, Manuel of the First Church, Norwich Town; Manual of Second church, Norwich; Manual of Broadway church, Norwich; charter of the city of Norwich for 1873, copy of the Centennial jubilee, 1859; engrossed copy of the subscription for the church, and a program of the services in the laying of the cornerstone.

The Rev. M. H. G. Dana then stepped forward, and striking the stone three times with the trowel after it had been put in place, declared:

"In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, Amen, I lay the corner stone of an edifice to be erected for the worship of the Triune God.

On these foundation stones are to rise the walls of a sanctuary, to be dedicated to the service of the Lord, within which the reverent and believing, through coming years, may assemble to offer to Heaven's King their praises, and supplicate the grace needed to guide and comfort human hearts. The church, whose cornerstone I now lay, by invitation of those in authority, is to be devoted to the worship, the doctrine and the discipline of Christ, as the Lord hath commanded, and as the Congregational churches of the United States receive the same, according to the teachings of Holy Scripture, may the Father Almighty own and accept it, may the Eternal Son, our divine Saviour, through its services, impart the blessings of the covenant, sealed with His death on the cross. May the Holy Ghost, with His sanctifying, enlightening and comforting influences, overshadow this tabernacle, till, through the presence and protection of the Most High, whom we ever adore, it shall come to us none other but the house of God, and the gate of heaven. Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ, who is God over all, blessed forevermore, in whom we have redemption, through his blood, the forgiveness of sins according to the riches of his grace. Amen."

At the close of the corner stone address the Rev. N. G. Lippitt of the Sachem Street M. E. church read a choral, which was sung by the choir, the band playing a fine accompaniment to the final verse.

The prayer of consecration was then offered in a fervent manner by the Rev. Mr. Dana, concluding with the Lord's prayer, recited in union by the entire assemblage.

The Rev. E. J. Haynes of Brooklyn, N. Y., then read a hymn, O Lord of Hosts, Whose Glory Fills the Bounds of the Eternal Hills, which was sung by the choir and audience, also by the Norwich Singing club, led by Major B. P. Learned.

The services were concluded with a salutation and apostolic benediction by the Rev. Dr. Bond.

The stone is brown stone, and is about two feet square and eighteen inches deep. On the Broadway side the date 1873 is cut intaglio in ,while on the north face a Greek cross is cut in alto relievo.

The work of erecting the walls will be rushed and it is hoped to finish the edifice by the first of August 1874. The edifice will be built of brown stone from Long Meadow, near Springfield, Mass., of the Norman style of architecture with slate roof. The dimensions are to be 153x89 feet, with a tower on Broadway 144 feet in height. The church is to be finished inside with ash, and will have a seating capacity of 800, with a chapel at the south end of the church to seat 400. There are to be three entrances, one each on Broadway, Williams avenue and Crescent street. When completed the entire structure will be valued at about $100,000. The windows are to be of stained glass, and are to be donated by members of the society. The architects are Lord & Fuller of Worcester and the builders Norcross Brothers, of the same place.

St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

There will probably be no finer church in eastern Connecticut than St. Patrick's Catholic church on Broadway, when it is finished. The foundation walls are already up and are strong enough to hold a much larger edifice than the one that is to be built thereon. For a long time the parishioners of St. Mary's church have been watching them, anxious to see their temple of worship stand among the others of this beautiful city as one of its monuments of ornamental and architectural beauty.

Yesterday, the 13th of July, was the day fixed upon for the interesting ceremony and the cornerstone was to be laid at 5 o'clock. Long before that hour people began to arrive and when the procession arrived there was hardly room to pass around the walls nearly 8,000 persons being present at the opening of the ceremony. The procession started at St. Mary's church and headed by the Ancient Order of Hibernians, which was followed by the altar boys of the church in their robes, one bearing the cross; then came the Society of Mary, a Sunday school organization, and the Sunday school of the church, which was followed by the St. Mary's Total Abstinence society. As they passed the corner stone each dropped into a large basket an envelope with his or her name written thereon, containing their contribution to the church fund. Marching to the basement they listened to an address by the bishop.

The exercises began with the blessing of the sanctuary by the Rt. Rev. Bishop F. D. McFarland, after which he addressed the assembly for a few minutes. After the address the bishop assisted by Rev. Father O'Brien of Middletown, master of ceremonies; the Rev. Father Tierney of New London, deacon; the Rev. Father Van Laar of Sprague, sub-deacon, and the Rev. Fathers Mullen, pastor of St. Mary's church, with his assistants, Fathers Desmond and Kennery, Princeton, Fitzpatrick of Westerly, Reynolds of Jewett City, and DeBruycker of Willimantic, proceeded to lay the cornerstone, according to the ceremonies and rites of the Catholic church.

The services were as follows: Reading of 83d Psalm in Catholic Bible; prayer; blessing of the cornerstone, saying the Litanies; while preparing to lay the cornerstone the 126th Psalm was sung; laying of the cornerstone and depositing of the copper box which contained the articles to be placed in the foundation. At this time the Rev. Father Mullen stepped upon the stone and read as follows, which is a translation of the Latin copy:

July 13, 1873.—Pius IX. being the sovereign pontiff of the Holy Catholic church during the presidency of Ulysses S. Grant of the United States of America, Charles R. Ingersol, governor of the State of Connecticut; James Lloyd Greene, being mayor of the city of Norwich; the Rev. Daniel Mullen being pastor of St. Mary's church, assisted by the Rev. Dennis Desmond and the Rev. Peter M. Kennedy; the architect being James Murphy of Providence, R. I., and William Murphy, the mason.

The Rt. Rev. Francis P. McFarland, D. D., bishop of the diocese of Hartford, assisted by a number of the clergy, surrounded by a vast concourse of the faithful, laid this corner stone of a church to be erected to the glory of God under the invocation of the great Saint Patrick, the Apostle of Ireland, the Rt. Rev. Bishop making at the same time a most acceptable discourse.

Given at Norwich, this 13th day of July A. D. 1873.

DANIEL MULLEN,
Pastor of St. Mary's.

The following are the articles that are placed in the box: The Norwich Bulletin of July 12th; the Norwich Courier of July 10th; the Norwich Advertiser of July 12th; the Norwich Aurora of July 8th; New York Herald, Boston Pilot, Freemen's Journal; Catholic Review; New York Tablet Le Foyer Canadien; L'Avenir National, Catholic Almanac, Catholic Directory, different gold, silver and copper coins of the United States, British coins, a stone from Ireland, and a piece of cement that was taken from the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem. The Miserere was then sung after which the ceremony of going around the church and blessing the wall, stopping three times in the circuit once at each third, returning to the corner stone, during which circuit the 121st Psalm was read. After returning to the corner a prayer was read and the "Veni Creator Spiritus" was sung, followed by a prayer and the blessing.

The church is to be built of solid granite, cruciform, and of Gothic architecture, with colored glass windows and ornamental slate roof. The towers are to be 160 and 214 feet high, while the building when finished will be about 200 feet long from outside to outside. The buttresses and pinnacles are to be ornamented with crosses, and will be magnificent and commanding in appearance. There will be five entrances, three in front and two in the transepts. It is to be finished on the inside in oak and black walnut, and will seat about 1500 persons. The church is expected to be finished in two years, and will cost about $150,000

CORPORATIONS MUST PAY TAX BY JULY 31

Collector Robert Eaton has sent out a gentle reminder that every corporation doing business in the United States, except the few specifically exempt by law, is required under the revenue act of 1921 to file a return of its capital stock with the collector of internal revenue in its district on or before July 31 of each year.

This requirement exists even though the capital stock of the corporation has no taxable value or even though it is not carrying on business. The fair average value of the capital stock for the preceding year, ending June 30, is levied for the one year in advance of "the date of incidence of the tax."

Collector Eaton has mailed required forms to the corporations filing returns in Connecticut a year ago. Many forms have been completed and returned to the revenue office with payment of the tax, but the bulk of these forms will be filed during the next three weeks.

Corporations claiming to be exempt from this tax but whose claims have not yet been granted by the commissioner are required to file a return, together with a statement giving the reasons for claiming exemption. This claim is to be renewed annually when the return is filed.

Silk Manufacturers Optimistic.

In a statement issued this week, Charles Cheney of Connecticut, treasurer of Cheney Brothers, expressed entire confidence in the outlook for broad silks. "There have been a few quiet weeks on the part of wholesale producers," he said, "who are watching the situation carefully and who are looking for lower prices, following the production of the new season's crop of raw silk. I feel that, as the vacation period draws to a close, buyers will be forced into the market again and they will be rather lucky if they do not find it difficult to cover their requirements satisfactorily. I should not like to go as far as to predict a jam of orders, but I do believe that there will be a wholesome demand which will call for all that can be reasonably produced. One thing is worth noting and that is that the recent calmness has in no way been brought about by reluctance on the part of retail purchasers. In other words, there has been no such thing as a 'buyers' strike'—it has been purely a manoeuvre on the part of the wholesale purchasers."

Former Residents Are Welcomed.

Norwich, Conn., recently conducted a "home welcoming" for members of the Norwich Society of New York city. The former residents were tendered a banquet and given an opportunity to look the old town over and then they returned to the metropolis with new feelings of loyalty for Norwich and prepared to say a good word for it whenever occasion offered. The idea is good enough to be copied by Hudson river towns. Newburgh, for example, has a lot of former residents in the metropolis and they could be a big force for the city's advancement if they were so disposed, for some of them are prominent in finance, railroading, the practice of law and other professions.

Auto Chemical for Old Lyme

Edward F. Caulkins of Middletown, a native of Old Lyme, has presented the Old Lyme fire department an auto chemical hose wagon valued at more than $3,000. This gift is greatly appreciated by the residents of Old Lyme and will form the nucleus of a fire-fighting outfit for the department. It was expected a fund of $3,000 would have to be raised to provide the equipment desired.

The length of the day has decreased fifteen minutes. The sun shines now fifteen hours and four minutes daily.

FARM HAND RE-ENACTS MURDER OF AGED RECLUSE

Confessed Slayer Claims He Killed George Hultz in Self Defense—Dealt Hermit Death Blow Over Head With Canthook When Recluse Aimed Shot Gun at Him—Murdered Man, in Falling, Upset Stove Which Caused Fire That Destroyed Shack—Murderer Then Threw the Body Into Umpawaug Lake—Slaying Re-Enacted Before Coroner and State Police.

Topstone Station, Conn., July 13.—John Dandone, 26 year old farmhand, who has confessed to state police that he killed George Hultz, 70 year old recluse, last May 4, this afternoon re-enacted the slaying before Coroner John J. Phelan and state policemen at the edge of the ruins of Hultz's fire-demolished shack.

Dandone insisted before the coroner that he killed Hultz in self-defense. He had been picking dandelions near the hermit's shack, he said, when Hultz fired a charge from a shotgun at him from a window. Dandone says he hurried to the shack, wrested the gun from the aged man, and demanded an explanation.

He stayed in the shack a short time and was about to leave when Hultz again picked up the shotgun and aimed at him, he said. In self-defense, he maintained, he reached down and picked up a canthook, readiest to his hand, and dealt Hultz a blow over the head. When Hultz fell he hit and upset the stove, in which a wood fire was burning, Dandone said, explaining the fire that destroyed the shack.

When he realized Hultz was dead, Dandone said, he dragged his body out into the open and dropped it into Umpawaug lake.

APPROACHING AGREEMENT ON CHINESE INDEMNITY

Washington, July 13.—(By The A. P.)—Dispatches received in Washington indicate that the deplimatic corps in Peking is approaching an agreement as to indemnity to be asked of the Chinese government in behalf of the 27 foreigners captured by Chinese bandits May 6.

A figure suggested in the course of the discussion of indemnity in Peking was that each of the persons captured be paid $500 each of the first three days of capitivity and $100 a day for the remaining period.

The foreigners captured by the bandits included eight Americans, several of whom were held until June 12 when general release was effected on an agreement between the bandit leaders and the Chinese government. On the basis of the suggested indemnity payments those who were not released before June 12 would receive approximately $5,000.

No information as to the progress of the indemnity negotiations was available today at the state department, nor was there any definite word to indicate the figures given above had been finally agreed upon and formally accepted by the Chinese government. It is to be recalled, however, that the Chinese government already has made known its willingness to pay indemnity upon any basis which the representatives of the foreign powers decide as fair.

The attitude of the Washington government throughout the negotiations in Peking has been against any inflated indemnity demands. It also has been made clear that the case of each foreigner who was a victim of the bandit outrage should be weighed on its merits.

Inasmuch as the indemnity figures given above seem to have been generally regarded by the Peking diplomats as fair, it is assumed here that the other foreigners took the same position and that excessive claims which might be submitted by various nationals would be found acceptable by their governments.

ALLEGED MURDERERS GRANTED NEW TRIALS

Albany, N. Y., July 13.—Two alleged murderers awaiting the death penalty in Sing Sing prison were granted new trials by the court of appeals today.

Reversal of the judgments of conviction, granted because of errors said to have been committed at trials of both, was given William M. Creasy, charged with the murder of Edith Lavoy, a Freeport school teacher, and Antonio Montassanto, who was charged with shooting another alien at Rochester in November, 1921.

CREASY CONVICTED FOR MURDER OF WOMAN

New York, July 13.—William H. Creasy of Covington, Ky., who today was granted a new trial by the court of appeals, was convicted in November, 1922, of the murder of Miss Edith Lavoy, a Freeport school teacher.

He was charged with the crime when Miss Lavoy was found dead of pistol wounds in his presence. At the trial, the defense maintained that the young woman had killed herself when he refused to marry her.

NEW SCOUT CRUISER ARRIVES AT NEW YORK

New York, July 13.—A new 7,500-ton scout cruiser, the U. S. S. Richmond, arrived here today, fresh from the ways at Philadelphia, with a navy speed record of 35 knots per hour—seven knots per hour faster than the sea champion Leviathan—to her credit.

In addition to making a speed record, the Richmond set a new mark for horsepower development, producing 35,000 h. p., or 10,000 more than the Leviathan generated in her recent trial trip.

FOUR BURNED WHEN VARNISH VAT EXPLODED

New York, July 13.—Four men were burned severely tonight when a large vat of boiling varnish exploded during a fire in the Masbury Paint and Varnish company's plant in Brooklyn, showering them with flaming liquid.

William Schelling, the superintendent, although suffering intense pain, refused to go to the hospital and remained with the firemen to fight the blaze. Later he collapsed and a policeman carried him from the danger zone.

CLAIMS NO LIQUOR IN HIS MACHINE

Boston, July 13.—Joseph A. Jacques of Worcester, a dealer in church supplies, called as a witness in his own behalf at a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Hayes today on the question of his removal to Vermont to stand trial on a federal indictment for a rum-running conspiracy, said his automobile had been held up in June, 1922, near the Canadian border in Vermont by two armed parties who looked in vain for liquor. His two companions, who were with him at the

EFFORT TO RESCUE NEAR EAST CONFERENCE

Lausanne, July 13 (By the A. P.)—Joseph C. Grew, representative of the United States, continued throughout today his efforts to have the Near East treaty conform to the principles of the open door and equal opportunity for all nations. He interviewed Ismet Pasha, the Turkish spokesman, and the chiefs of the other delegations.

A general effort is being made to rescue the Near East conference from what admittedly is an exceedingly serious situation. The Turks say they object to the optional rights for British and French companies stipulated in the draft of the protocol on concessions, as inimical to Turkish sovereignty and liable to jeopardize Turkey's economic future. The American representatives want the rights eliminated altogether or modified in accordance with the American views.

The Turkish Petroleum company's concession, over which there has been some difference of opinion, chiefly affects the Mosul oil fields. The question of the sovereignty of Mosul, which England claims is part of her mandated Irak territory, has been left by the treaty to private negotiations between the British and Turkish governments, but if no agreement is reached within nine months, the question will be submitted to the league of nations.

The United States, claiming the Turkish petroleum concession is invalid, has negotiated in vain for three years to secure arbitration of the question, and pending solution, objects to any alleged rights of the company being ratified by the Lausanne treaty.

Tonight the conference stood with a disagreement between the allies and the Turks both on concessions and the question of withdrawal of allied warships from Turkish waters.

BROKEN RAIL CAUSED WRECK OF FLYER

Memphis, Tenn., July 13.—A broken rail, officials believe, caused the wreck of the Memphis Special, Southern Railway's New York to Memphis flyer, early today near Larkinsville, Ala., with the death of one person and injury of two score when four Pullman cars and two coaches jumped the track at a curve.

The wreck occurred shortly after one o'clock this morning. In the darkness bewilderment and confusion rather than terror characterized the victims, after a moment of unceremonity and growing concern, a tenor voice, strong and clear, coming from one of the wrecked cars poured fourth above disorder the strains of the old negro melody:

"Nobody knows what trouble I seen."

The owner of the voice presently was discovered to be the noted evangelical singer, Charlie Butler, of Springfield, Ill., who presently emerged through his window unhurt. A spirit of cheerful acceptance of the situation at once appeared to take charge and passengers laughed and joked as they aided their more unfortunate companions to dig themselves out.

TAMMANY LEADER SOUNDS WESTERN SENTIMENT

French Lick, Ind., July 13.—(By the A. P.)—Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall in New York, arrived here this evening for a series of conferences with middle western democratic leaders on the chances of Governor Al Smith of New York, for the nomination for the presidency.

While here primarily to sound out middle western sentiment toward a smith boom, it is known that the Tammany Hall chieftain is ready to insist that the name of the New York governor be placed before the national convention next year.

Tomorrow Mr. Murphy expects to confer with "Tom" Taggart, democratic leader of Indiana, and George E. Brennan, the Chicago leader.

French Take Over Town of Barmen

Surprise Raid Made Outside Occupied Area as Punitive Measure for Kidnapping of Two French Soldiers.

Duesseldorf, July 13 (By the A. P.).—French troops today made a surprise raid on Barmen, outside the occupied area, as a punitive measure for the kidnapping on Wednesday of two French soldiers and the sniping which is alleged to have been carried on by the Germans against the forces of occupation.

Detachments of infantry and cavalry, with one tank, a squadron of airplanes circling overhead, reached the town and left five hours later with a group of hostages and a number of secret security police documents, seized at the city hall.

Heavy artillery had been stationed at the Ruhr frontier, trained upon the town, ready for any eventuality.

WILSON MAY TESTIFY AT MORSE TRIAL

Washington, July 13.—A subpoena for Woodrow Wilson as a witness at the Morse trial, now in progress here, was prepared today, but service was delayed and it was considered doubtful whether he would appear in court to give testimony. Counsel for the defendants said they desired Mr. Wilson's statement regarding his observations of the Morse plant at Alexandria, Va., when he visited it in May 1918, to participate in ceremonies launching the shipbuilding work there.

The former president's appearance at the trial, it was said tonight, will depend upon his condition. Attorneys obtaining the subpoena said they would consult with Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Mr. Wilson's physician, as to the advisability of his responding either on the witness stand or by deposition. Defense counsel indicated that they would not press for his personal attendance in court, if advised that it would be unwise for him to appear there.

In accordance with local federal court practice, the subpoena was drawn by Wilton J. Lambert, one of the defense attorneys, and handed to the court clerk for entry, being returned later to counsel for transmission to United States Marshal Snyder in case its service should be determined upon. The subpoena tonight was in the hands of defense counsel who had not determined whether to give it to the marshal for service.

On his visit to the Alexandria plant Mr. Wilson made a detailed inspection of the yard.

WALLINGFORD WOMAN CAUGHT SHOP LIFTING

Meriden, Conn., July 13.—A trunk full of women's clothing, jewelry and furs, valued at not less than $1,000 was found at the home of a Wallingford woman after she had been arrested here tonight for shop lifting.

Caught in the act of stealing goods valued at $8, in a local store, the woman was held pending a search of her home. The goods found are said to have come from department stores in several other cities of the state.

The woman, Mrs. Mary Kowalski, of 226 South Colony street, Wallingford, in explaining the amount of goods found said she has been working in a factory for six years, investing all her money in finery, which she said she intended some day to take back to her home in Europe.

SAYS MEX. DIFFERENCES GREATLY EXAGGERATED

New York, July 13.—The New York financial agency of the Mexican government made public today the text of a statement issued by Mexican Finance Minister De La Huerta in Mexico City to the effect that reports of a difference between the Mexican government and the international committee of bankers on Mexico had been greatly exaggerated and that the "utmost harmony exists between all parties to the debt agreement."

The reported differences between the Mexican government and the bankers' committee grew out of a despatch from Mexico City recently in which attention was called to an alleged erroneous interpretation of one of the paragraphs in the advertisement for the call for bonds.

NEGRO MURDER SUSPECT GIVEN HIS FREEDOM

Suffern, N. Y., July 13.—William Wiggins, a negro arrested today as a suspect in the murder of Dorothy Kauffman, governess in the Scarsdale home of Magruder Craighead, was released tonight after experts had declared his finger prints did not tally with those on a blood-stained knife found near the body.

Jury Acquits Woman On Murder Charge

Mrs. Mary F. Creighton Found Not Guilty of Poisoning Mother-in-Law Two Years Ago

Newark, N. J., July 13.—Mrs. Mary F. Creighton, on trial here for the alleged poisoning of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Annie Creighton, more than two years ago, was acquitted by a jury early tonight. The jury went in at 4.05 and returned its verdict after four hours' deliberation.

As the foreman pronounced the words "Not guilty," Mrs. Creighton collapsed, but was revived in a few minutes. Her husband, John Creighton, for a moment misunderstood the verdict and stood dazed until he was informed that his wife had been acquitted.

The streets outside the courthouse were filled with a large crowd waiting for Mrs. Creighton to leave the building.

After thanking her counsel and receiving the congratulations of her family and friends, Mrs. Creighton's first thought was for her two children, John, who was born two months ago in the house of detention, and Ruth, three years old, whom she had not seen since her arrest.

It was the second time within a month that Mrs. Creighton, who is but 24 years old, had faced a verdict of death or life imprisonment on a charge of murder by poisoning. Three weeks ago she was acquitted of the charge of poisoning her brother, Charles R. Avery, for the sake of insurance. In that trial she was a co-defendant with her husband, John Creighton, who also was acquitted. The charge of poisoning her mother-in-law she faced alone, her husband not having been accused of aiding in the alleged poisoning of his mother.

RULES CIRCUMSTANCES DETERMINE DISABILITY

Helena, Mont., July 13.—Circumstances and not the schedule of injuries in the 1919 act of congress for veterans' relief determine "total permanent disability" and any effort by the director of the veterans' bureau to apply the schedule literally violates the spirit of the act, Federal Judge G. M. Bourquin ruled here today. Judge Bourquin awarded Dewitt Law of Missoula, Mont., judgment for $3,335 against the insurance bureau.

Regardless of the statute defining total permanent disability as the "loss of both legs, or both arms, or one arm and one leg, or an arm and one eye," etc., in any case when earning ability or capacity is destroyed to an extent that no substantial portion remains on its merits to serve demand and to secure market, there is total disability, and if it be reasonably probable that this status will long continue, is not temporary, the disability is total and permanent in legal contemplation, and within the meaning of article four of this act," the court held.

EMPLOYMENT GAINED SLIGHTLY LAST MONTH

Washington, July 13.—Employment in 50 selected industries increased one-tenth of 1 per cent. last month, compared with May, but total earnings of employes decreased six-tenths of 1 per cent., it is shown by figures made public today by the bureau of labor statistics.

The United States employment service and the department of labor agency yesterday reported a slight decrease in employment throughout the country from May to June, basing its estimates on conditions in 1,428 establishments employing 500 or more persons in 65 industrial centers. The bureau of labor statistics bases its analysis on reports from 6,441 establishments in 50 industries.

ROADS HAVE MORE SERVICEABLE ENGINES

Washington, July 13.—Railroads on July 1 had more serviceable locomotives and fewer in need of repair, the American Railway association announced tonight, than at any time since its car service division began compilation of reports on such equipment in August, 1920. Serviceable locomotives totalled 52,456; those in need of repair, 11,450, or 18 per cent. of the total.

SOVIET REPUBLIC SEEKS PEACE AND FRIENDSHIP

Moscow, July 13 (By the A. P.).—The federal parliament today sent a proclamation to all peoples and governments in the world referring to the recent formation of the constitution of the United States of Russia, saying that the united soviet republics seek peace and friendship with all the nations of the world.

FOSTERS BUSINESS GROWTH

Advertising has played an all important part in fostering business growth. Without it we would retrograde a half century or more. Business would stagnate; large institutions which build cheaply by large production would fade into oblivion; we would live in total ignorance of many things which might add to our wealth, health and happiness.

The bread and butter of business depends upon advertising, and your interest in it.

Read the advertisements in The Bulletin. They will be as productive of results to you as to the companies that pay for them. In half an hour, or less, you can metaphorically visit the progressive stores of the city,—the various places that supply the things that go to make life what it is.

Read the advertising. It enables you to get more for your money by telling you what, where and when to buy. It is your daily guide to what's good to get.

Read it—reflect on it—it pays.

FOREST FIRES WIPE OUT TWO IDAHO MINING TOWNS

Thousand Persons Reported Homeless in Flame-Swept District—Town of Mace in Ruins and Business Section of Burke Blazing—Attempts to Block Fire by Dynamite Proves Futile—Tourists on Yellowstone Trail Highway Said to be in Path of Unchecked Flames—Early Estimates Place Loss at Between $300,000 and $400,000.

Spokane, Wn., July 13.—The mining towns of Mace and Burke, east of Kellogg, Idaho, are reported destroyed by forest fires sweeping up the western slope of the Bitter Root mountains. Wire communication with the fire-swept district is down. Fear is felt for the lives of tourists on the Yellowstone trail highway, which is understood from meagre reports to be in the path of the flames.

A thousand persons are reported homeless in the two towns. Mace is destroyed. The business section of Burke is in flames and little hope is held of saving what remains of the town. Loss up to 4 p. m. was estimated at between $300,000 and $400,000, and the progress of the fire is said to be unchecked. Attempts to block the fire by dynamiting homes, business houses and mine structures proved futile because of the high wind.

Built along the bottom of a narrow canyon east from Wallace, the center of the Coeur D'Alene silver-lead mining district, Burke and Mace were little more than collections of frame store buildings and miners' boarding houses built around the big wooden structures which housed the machinery for a number of big ore producing companies.

A thousand persons are reported homeless in the two towns. Mace is destroyed. The business section of Burke is in flames and little hope is held of saving what remains of the town. Loss up to 4 p. m. was estimated at between $300,000 and $400,000, and the progress of the fire is said to be unchecked. Attempts to block the fire by dynamiting homes, business houses and mine structures proved futile because of the high wind.

The tracks of the branch line of railroad run up the center of the canyon, crossing and recrossing the little stream which carries away the water from the ore-treating plants. The principal business buildings of the two towns fronted along the railroad tracks. On either side the hills, with their covering of timber scarred by forest fires and by snowslides which have more than once literally buried the towns, rise at a sharp angle.

OBJECTS TO DEFENSE WITNESS IN CHEMICAL SUIT

Wilmington, Del., July 13.—Objection by government counsel to a defense witness testifying as to information he had received while serving the government brought a statement today from Federal Judge Morris that he would have to take into consideration in the government's suit against the Chemical Foundation whether the government had attempted to prevent the disclosure of evidence in the possession of one of its agencies which, if produced, would tend to disprove the charges in the government's bill.

"The situation is very unusual," Judge Morris said, addressing Assistant Attorney General Anderson, "and I do not want you to put yourself in that position without being conscious of my immediate reaction to it."

Defense counsel had sought to elicit from Dr. Julius Stieglitz of Chicago whether he was adviser to the public health service and federal commission during the war he had visited a plant which did not succeed for a long time in making salvarsan because it did not start with a pure ingredient.

Mr. Anderson's objection led to a long discussion between the court and counsel in the course of which Judge Morris declared that if the testimony should be sufficient to establish that in the salvarsan and other seized enemy plants, which the government is seeking to recover, there was insufficient disclosure as to make the patents worthless therein would be no question of conspiracy or the power to make the sale of the patents to the Chemical Foundation.

PHONE COMPANY FLATLY REFUSES STRIKERS' OFFER

Providence, R. I., July 13.—The striking telephone operators through their leaders, Miss Julia W. O'Connor, of Boston, and Miss May Brady, of this city, agreed to forego their claim for increased wages and shorter working hours provided they could return to work en bloc with their former status, at the mayors' conference held at the city hall here today.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph company, however, represented by President Matt B. Jones and Vice President and General Counsel Charles S. Pierce, when the strikers' offer was submitted, flatly refused to agree to the proposition.

PAPPAS PAYS DEATH PENALTY IN CHAIR

Boston, July 14.—Paul Daskalakis alias Pappas was executed in the electric chair in the state prison at 12.20 a. m., today.

Just before entering the death chamber Pappas reiterated to Rev. William Bradley Whitney, prison chaplain, that he was innocent of the murder of Alice Arsenault of which he was convicted. He said nothing after entering the death chamber. He did not falter as he walked to the chair.

At 12.02 a. m., the legal witnesses and Warden Hendry entered the death chamber.

Pappas followed Rev. William Bradley Whitney, private chaplain at the prison, into the death chamber. The chaplain recited the 23d Psalm. Pappas was supported by Deputy Warden James L. Hogsett but walked firmly.

At 12.10 a current of 2,000 volts, of 10 amperes was applied and passed through Pappas' body for one minute and 15 seconds. The doctors made a careful examination and then a second current of the same strength was applied for five seconds. After the second application the physicians agreed that life was extinct and Warden Hendry officially pronounced Pappas dead at 12.20 o'clock.

The crime for which Paul Daskalakis, alias Paul Pappas, was sentenced to die in the electric chair at the state prison was the murder of Mrs. Alice Arsenault, whose body was found buried under a pile of ashes in the cellar of a lodging house in the South End of Boston, on May 11 1920. Pappas, who had bought the lodging house from the woman had disappeared late in the previous December and the state charged that he had murdered her on or about Christmas day, 1919.

Pappas was arrested in Montreal in September, 1921. He was sentenced to die in the week of March 19, 1923. His counsel offered no evidence in defense, contending that the state had failed to establish Pappas' guilt.

Then began the long and unsuccessful fight for his life. The first motion for a new trial was denied, and in January of this year Judge Braley, of the supreme court denied a writ of error. In March Governor Cox refused a petition by a large delegation of Greek residents of this state for commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment. Later in March the governor refused to grant a stay of execution to permit the investigation of alleged new evidence and on March 22 the superior court denied another motion for a new trial. The next day Judge Braley announced that the full bench of the supreme court might hear the writ of error petition which he had denied and the governor hastily summoned his council, which granted a reprieve until May 1.

Early in May Pappas was again reprieved, until July 11, to permit the supreme court to hear exceptions to the superior court's decision. The supreme court later overruled the exceptions and Governor Cox refused to intervene further in the case. Pappas, maintaining his innocence, showed eagerness to obtain a new trial but refused to make any personal request for commutation of his sentence to life imprisonment.

ACQUIT SIXTEEN OF CONSPIRACY TO DEFRAUD

Chicago, July 13.—Fred Lundin, picturesque figure in Illinois politics, and fifteen co-defendants were acquitted today of conspiracy to defraud Chicago schools of nearly $1,000,000. Among those acquitted with the former congressman and political associate of former Mayor William Hale Thompson, were Edwin S. Davis, president of the school board under Thompson, and Albert Severinghaus, former vice president of the board.

Attorneys for the state said that pending indictments against persons involved in the trial probably would be dismissed.

Lundin and 25 others were indicted last January by a special grand jury that investigated school board affairs.

Those indicted were charged with conspiracy to defraud, it being alleged that nearly $1,000,000 had been taken from Chicago school funds in a conspiracy by which members favorable to the defendants were appointed to the school board and contracts for school supplies were awarded to some of the defendants at exorbitant prices.

The woman was charged with possessing narcotics and the husband, Rosario Marchesi, with carrying concealed weapons.

Opposition to the petition came from the Willimantic-Danielson auto bus line, represented by an attorney, who objected to the grant in that it would offer competition to that line, between Willimantic and North Windham, but withheld any objection to the collection of fares from North Windham to Eastford. MEXICAN RECOGNITION CONFERENCE TO CONTINUE

Mexico City, July 13 (By the A. P.)—The end of the ninth week of the recognition conference finds the American and Mexican delegates entering upon consideration of the ultimate details in the mutual understanding which it is hoped will form the basis for recognition of the Obregon administration by the United States government.

Charles B. Warren, of the American delegation, today manifested continued optimism that satisfactory assurances would be given by Mexico relative to safeguarding American sub-soil and agrarian rights in this country.

The announcement of last week that the conference would end by July 14 unless further extension was necessary to arrange the final details was coupled with today's statement that the conference would continue as indicating that a satisfactory result was in sight.

Beyond admitting that they would not leave before next Tuesday, the American delegates declined to commit themselves. It is understood, however, that they desire to have the two claims conventions, which are intended for signature after recognition is granted, acceptable in form to both governments before adjournment is taken, thus eliminating any subsequent protracted negotiations.

Another cause for the extension of the conference beyond tomorrow is the determination of the American delegates to take to Washington a complete agreement, thereby eliminating the possibility of minor misunderstandings cropping up later to prevent completion of what, it is hoped, will become the foundation of perpetual friendly relations between the two countries.

For the purpose of accomplishing this, the minutes of the conference, containing the Mexican interpretations of sub-soil and agrarian laws acceptable to the United States and assurances of enforcing them in good faith, are being subjected to rigid examination to correct any errors and include whatever additional details are deemed necessary.

CHAUFFEUR ROBS WOMAN AFTER ABDUCTING HER

New York, July 13.—Miss Helen Murphy, buyer for a Boston store, today caused the arrest of Arthur Otto Ange, a chauffeur who was charged with having abducted her after she had had a fainting spell at Sixth avenue and 35th street last night, taking her to Long Island and robbing her of rings valued at $900 and $35 in cash.

A crowd of persons saw Miss Murphy collapse, Ange, who was driving by, was said to have offered to take her to her hotel. She was lifted into the car which sped away. Miss Murphy said she soon realized she was not going toward the hotel and in answer to her protest the driver told her he was taking her for a ride to "clear her head up."

Miss Murphy got busy. She took notes on the number of the car's speedometer and other facts to aid her in a description of her abductor.

Reaching a lonely road Miss Murphy said, the driver stripped three rings from her fingers and took the money from her purse and drove away. She then put down the car's license number.

Miss Murphy made her way to the Astoria police station where she gave a complete description of the car and its driver.

Ange, who was arrested today, was chauffeur for a piano manufacturer who said Ange had taken the car without his permission. He was identified by Miss Murphy and was said to have admitted driving the car but denied having seen the young woman.

PRESS COMMENT ON BALDWIN'S STATEMENT

Paris, July 13 (By the A. P.)—The British prime minister's statement of policy lost some of its sugar coating for the French newspapers over night, and this afternoon's editions had become rather acid, with a strong flavor of sarcasm and some ridicule, in their comments.

The semi-official Temps prints a two-column blast concluding: "England persists in her policy of maintaining a balance of power between the nations on the European continent."

All the newspapers emphasize that Premier Baldwin condemned the Ruhr occupation but did not reprove Germany for her passive resistance.

L'Intransigeant calls the statement "only another in a long string of documents," reminding Great Britain that the French are in the Ruhr and that "we are not going to spoil the operation when it is half finished."

The paper admits that France would be greatly distressed if the entente were broken, but adds: "If its maintenance is to be at the price of our abdication and the cancellation of the German debt, we would deem the cost too dear."

MRS. BERGDOLL WANTS TO VISIT SON GROVER

Philadelphia, July 13.—Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll filed an application in the federal district court today for a passport to make a voyage to Germany to see her son, Grover C. Bergdoll, fugitive draft evader. The application was sent to the state department at Washington and if granted Mrs. Bergdoll plans to sail on the Hanover from New York next Tuesday.

Grover is living in Switzerland at present and spends most of his time in the Alps, Mrs. Bergdoll said. "He doesn't know I'm coming," she added. "I want to walk in on him and surprise him." The alien property custodian holds property belonging to Grover valued at nearly $1,000,000. It was seized after his flight from the country.

Erwin Bergdoll, a brother, recently was released from the federal prison at Leavenworth after serving less than three of a four-year sentence for draft dodging.

URGE INCREASED INCOME TAX EXEMPTIONS

Portland, Ore., July 13.—Increase of the exemption from income tax liability for unmarried persons from $1,000 to not less than $1,500, was urged in a resolution submitted today to the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

The resolution proposed by the Ohio Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, set forth that the income which unmarried persons and heads of families may receive without being subject to income tax has been substantially increased, that the tax upon large incomes has been substantially decreased, and that as the necessary expense of a single individual are proportionately equal to those of married persons or heads of families, there should in justice be some relief for unmarried persons.

The western women are contending for the honor of president., Miss Adelia Prichard, of Portland, and Miss Edith M. Thornton, of Whatcome county, Washington.

Palais Royal.

The "Swanee Serenaders" heralded in Boston as the greatest dance orchestra in New England, opened an extended engagement at the Palais Royal, 900 Wethersfield avenue, Hartford, last Monday night. The ovation with which they were greeted was tremendous, and their popularity was assured from the very start.

Coming to the Palais Royal direct from such famous vaudeville circuits as Keith's, the Orpheum and Poli's, there is hardly much more that can be said to convince of their ability. Many of them are record makers for the big phonograph companies. "Swanee," the director, plays one of the "meanest" saxophones ever heard, and he is one of those follows whose playing is so good you can't describe it.

One of the strong points of the orchestra is the quartette composed of four members of the company, and who intersperse singing numbers with the instrumental.

There are many orchestras in the country who lay claim to the fact that they can play either classic or jazz, and there are some others who can really do it, but when it comes to giving the correct interpretation to a classic or operatic number and then temporizing jazz to suit the most critical, the "Swanee Serenaders" have the edge on them all.

The food served at the Palais Royal is par excellence and, as the prices are consistently low for the quality, there is hardly a more fitting place to spend a merry evening.

BREED THEATRE

In Mad Love, which will be the feature at the Breed Sunday only, there may be found warm-blooded action, vibrant beauty and throbbing reality of character, the like of which the silver sheet has rarely seen. Pola Negri, the star of this production made by the great Russian director, Dimitri Buchowetzki, is unmatched in her field. And never before—even in that sensational success, Passion, by which she first captured the hearts of the American public—has her beauty, her eloquence of gesture and her magnetic personality been seen to greater advantage than in the present vehicle put out under the auspices of Goldwyn Lisze, a Parisian beauty, has driven one lover mad by her infidelity and seeks new worlds to conquer. She meets the young brother of her discarded lover, and, as often happens to those who play at love, feels a genuine and overwhelming affection for the first time. The young man, unaware of her real identity and drawn by the magnetism of her beauty leaves the girl to whom he is betrothed and weds Liane. The bubble of her new happiness bursts when her identity is revealed to her husband by a jealous admirer. The tragedy that follows is inevitable. In a widely beautiful setting of a gay carnival the madman tracks her down and destroys her, the color and warmth of the carnival scenes providing a fitting scene for the end of his creature of fire and beauty. The direction is of excellent standard already evidenced by Buchowetzki and the supporting cast is admirable. Mad Love provides a thrilling adventure to the theatre goer.

Other pictures on the bill include Topics of the Day and an Educational comedy.

COMING TO THE BREED

One of the most interesting features in "The Last Hour" which is coming to the Breed theatre Monday and Tuesday is a clever escape managed by several law violators who have just been caught by the police. Several prominent police officials who have seen The Last Hour in New York where it held its world premier claimed that the escape in the picture was not only very ingeniously managed but actually possible and cited several instances where criminals had secured freedom by ruses that amounted almost to sheer genius.

Milton Sills, Carmel Myers and Alec Frances compose the little group among whom the police suddenly burst They are handcuffed. An argument starts between the police leader and one of the captives. Suddenly the lights go out. When the the lights are on again Milton Sills is no longer in the room. A search of the premises follows which takes all the police but one out of the room. How the guarding policeman is taken off his guard and how a few minutes later Sills in full view of the corps of unsuspecting policemen directs his companions from the room and into freedom forms one of the most intriguing bits of screen action.

The Last Hour, is said to be a powerful treatment of the present day life interwoven with a tender love story.

The Pathe news and a Metro comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Today's bill consists of Ralph Lewis in Westbound Limited, Pearl White in Plunder, the Pathe news and a Torchy comedy.

Betty Compson and Richard Dix Featured in The Woman With Four Faces.

One of the most thrilling dramas ever shown on the screen is The Woman With Four Faces, featuring Betty Compson and Richard Dix, which will be the attraction at the Strand theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. It is a Herbert Brenon Paramount production.

To bring to book a ring of dope traffickers, men of wealth and powerful, the district attorney resigns his job and gains the aid of a clever girl crook to open a safe which contains a paper incriminating these nefarious operators.

Betty Compson as the girl, Richard Dix as the district attorney, and a cast of favorites as the other parts, make this a superb excellent mystery drama. The supporting company is quite capable.

A comedy and news will round out the program.

JOCK HUTCHISON LEADS FIELD AT INWOOD IN FIRST ROUND FOR TITLE

Inwood, N. Y., July 13.—(By the A. P.)—Jock Hutchison, of Chicago, a genial Scot with eyes deep furrowed at the edges with laugh wrinkles, and Robert T. Jones, of Atlanta, a youth famous in the golfing world, led a field of 77 aspirants for the national open championship over 36 holes on the Inwood links today. Hutchison set a new record for the course, with his score of 142, a seventy and a seventy-two, and Jones with two strokes away with 144, a card that equalled Joe Kirkwood's low mark in the qualifying rounds.

Thus, with the championship play half completed, the Scot, a close finisher in other championship tournaments, and Jones, who was within a stroke of the winner at Skokie last year, stood from 9 to 11 strokes ahead of the favorites, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Joe Kirkwood and MacDonald Smith.

But there are others besides the big guns pressing the Chicagoan and the young Georgian. Bob Cruickshank, pro at the Shackamaxon club at Westfield, N. J., who played in the qualifying round with Jones yesterday and exhibited extraordinary ability as a shot maker, finished the first half of the play in 145, one stroke worse than Jones, and appeared the most formidable contender. Jack Forrester, of Hollywood, another Scot of the Hutchison type, and Francis Gallett, of Port Washington, N. Y., who came from Scotland only recently, shot an excellent game and tied for the fourth place with 148.

Al Watrous, Canadian open champion, Willie Ogg, of Worcester, Mass., and Cyril Hughes, of Lancaster, Pa., were close by the leaders. Walter Hagen was around in 152, MacDonald Smith, the San Francisco "come-back" stroke worse, while Leo Diegel and Joe Kirkwood, with George Sargent, of Columbus, president of the Professional Golfers' Association, were in the first twenty with 154's. Gene Sarazen, champion at Skokie, was around in 157.

Jones was the only member of the amateur brigade in the first ten. William Reekie, of Upper Montclair, N. J., was tied for fourteenth place. Eddie Held of Webster Groves, Mo., Francis Quimet, "Chick" Evans, Jess Sweetser and Richard Walsh, were running behind, some far behind. Walsh, the public links champion of the nation, used 174 strokes today and it was doubtful if he would continue tomorrow.

A. A. Armour, Rye, N. Y., had 162.

Eight of the starters today withdrew before the round was ended. These included Peter W. Henry, of Cleveland; Fred Brand, of Allegheny, Pa.; S. A. Sagan, Port Chester, N. Y.; George Jacobous, Ridgewood, N. J.; Charles Norms, Columbus, Ohio; W. R. Noon, New York; Dave Spittal, Toronto, James West, New York.

Jones, the Georgian, playing with Hagen, had great galleries both morning and afternoon. Jones' brilliant 71 for the morning round was due, to a great extent, to his accuracy in pitching to the pin. He had four birdies on that card, on the third, 10th, 14th and 18 holes. He would have had another on the second but for a missed shot putt.

There never was a more serious young man at work than the Jones of today. There was determination written across his brow as he started out. In troublesome places he was imperturbed, cool and deliberate. The most difficult lies only made him smile. Off the tees he was powerful and accurate. Even the powerful Hagen could not outdo him in the shots. But for two unlucky putts on the afternoon Jones would have equalled his morning rate and been in a tie with Hutchison. On the fourth and fifth greens his second putts rested on cup lips. His 73 gave him 144.

Hagen was a poor putter and an inaccurate iron shot in the morning and was in trouble on a majority of the holes in the afternoon. He had to make many remarkable recoveries to keep his score down to 152.

Jock Hutchison started singing at breakfast this morning and wouldn't stop at supper time. He composed limericks on all his golfing friends and sang them. When his strokes began going beautifully in his morning round, nothing could stop him. And he had the good natured John Black, of Wichita, for a partner. The two of them made merry over all the 72 holes. Black's voice wasn't as pleasing as Jock's but he could jig and make funny faces. Every time Jock had a bad lie he whistled a merry tune then swung. There were some greens where he had to sink 25 and 30 foot putts for par, but he sank them. There were some where he had long putts for birdies and he made them.

Black didn't have such a low score, his 158 strokes including such things as penalties for lost balls and out of bounds, but he had a good time.

Cyril Hughes, Willie Ogg, Al Watrous and Jack Forrester played safe and steady golf.

In the final 36 tomorrow Hutchison will have Joe Kirkwood for a partner. Jones will play with Gene Sarazen. Cruikshank is paired with Hagen.

Today's leaders and their scores follow:

Jock Hutchison, Chicago, 70-72—142.

Robert T. Jones, Atlanta, 71-73—144.

BOSTON BREAKS EVEN WITH TIGERS IN SERIES

Detroit, Mich., July 13—Boston got an even break on a four game series with Detroit here today when two runs in the eleventh gave the visitors the game by a score of 6 to 4. Detroit tied the score in the ninth with three runs, but Quinn, who relieved Piercy in the ninth after two were out, did not allow another hit. Score:

SENATORS BEAT BROWNS IN FINAL GAME

St. Louis, July 13—Washington pounded three local pitchers hard today and won the final game of the series from St. Louis, 8 to 4. Gerbers error in the fifth inning paved the way for one of the Senators' runs and they annexed three more runs off Shocker in the ninth. Bluege had four hits in as many times at bat. Score:

TWO BASEBALL ATTRACTIONS ARE SLATED FOR NORWICH ON SUNDAY

On Sunday there will be two games of major importance to baseball fans of Eastern Connecticut, one at the Fairgrounds between the Norwich club and the Danielson Town team and the other at the new J. B. Martin field at Taft's station between the Taftville A. A. and the Hartford A. A. Both games will be worth seeing and will provide unlimited baseball thrills.

The Danielson Town team is bringing down a fast aggregation of practically all college ball players to stack up against the Norwich club in the second game of the series between these two teams.

At the Taftville game will be seen Davis, the Submarine Base hurler, who this year has beaten the Norwich club and Georgetown University team against the best semi-pro team from the Capitol city.

The Game at the Fairgrounds

Danielson is depending on the famous Brown university battery, Cornell and Holden, to hold down the slugging Norwich team and in back of this combination will be "Bud" Ford of Providence college at first; "Nap" McGee, also of Providence college at second; "Joey" Kendricks of Wyre at short, "Shoots" Murratto of New Haven, third base; Ford of Providence college, left field; "Joey" Strike of centerfield; and Bill Liberty of Jewett City. This aggregation looks good and should give the locals a real battle.

To go against the college battery the local team will have Tony West who has been making such a remarkable strike out record with the Riverview club. His battery mate will be Bond, a former college and league player. Fay, formerly with South Manchester will be at first; Massey at second; "Shorty" Faulkner at short; Danny Silva at third, completing an exceptionally fast infield. In the outer gardens will be Drohan in left; Mills in center and Clabby in right, completing a well balanced team.

Taftville Attraction Looks Good

The Sunday attraction at the J. B. Martin grounds is one that is attracting considerable notice not only in Taftville, but in Norwich as well. The Taftville team has been going strong during the present season and in all probability the feud between Taftville and Norwich will be settled on the diamond later in the season. Taftville has suffered through the loss of Mike Morin but in getting Davis of the Sub Base, the management has secured one of the best pitchers in semi-pro ball in the state. Davis has everything that a good pitcher should possess. On Sunday he will be up against a set of real ball players and a slugging team. The Hartford A. A. has gained a reputation for hard hitting and the team comes to Taftville Sunday with the express purpose of knocking the ball out of the lot. Hartford will have Hannaphy, a former member of the pitching staff of the Newark nternational team several years ago. Hannaphy has beaten such teams as Middletown, All Insurance, Corbin Lock, American Chain and the Rosebuds. Doing the backstop work will be Fallon, a catcher rated high in semi-pro circles in the state.

Taftville will depend upon the regular lineup and a good game can be expected when these two teams clash on Sunday.

BLANKENSHIP WINS OWN GAME FROM YANKEES

Chicago, July 13—Ted Blankenship won his own game today when he cracked out a single which sent Mostil home from second in the tenth inning and gave Chicago a 4 to 3 victory over New York. Mostil had singled and went to second on Smith's fumble just before Blankenship's drive settled the game. Robertson and Bush engaged in a pitching duel until the ninth when Robertson weakened and was relieved. Score:

JACK JOHNSON VERY MODEST IN HIS CLAIMS

Indianapolis, Ind., July 13—Jack Johnson, negro pugilist and former heavyweight champion, discussed the ring sport with county officials today while attempting to obtain the release of his automobile, which was attached by the sheriff, while he was appearing here in vaudeville in 1921.

"There are three people in the world who can knock out Jack Dempsey," the former champion asserted. "They are Firpo, Harry Wills and Jack Johnson."

TESTING HEADLIGHTS.

There are many kinds of headlights on the automobiles at the present time. Probably most of them conform to the law as to lens, but even so it is easy for others to note when they are lighted that they have not received the attention they should as to adjustment.

Much is to be commended therefore in the arrangement which has been made by the Automobile club of Hartford, whereby it will make tests of all headlights by the latest methods for the purpose of overcoming faulty adjustment. This testing is not for the club members alone but for anyone who drives their car to the designated testing places in that city and to show that the lights have passed the tests stickers stating that fact and the date will be supplied to the car owners.

Such efforts as that deserve a general response on the part of the auto owners. Unless there is a certainty concerning the light adjustment the protection against arrest and the assurance of safer night driving are worth securing.

Probably many outside of Hartford, who are in a position to do so, will take advantage of this excellent offer. Lights are important when driving at night, but lights should be so adjusted that they render full benefit to the driver of the car they are on and do not bother the driver of the car going in the opposite direction. Improper lights are next to being without lights.

Before the Hartford effort, which begins Monday, goes into operation it can be readily seen that just such a testing would be an excellent thing in every city. What is being done by the Hartford club may well serve as an inspiration for similar organizations in other cities, while the state police or local authorities would be rendering desirable safety service if such a plan were put into operation. Prevention of trouble from faulty headlights is much preferable to contributing to unsafe conditions.

THE BRITISH NOTE.

Finding that a joint reply is not possible and believing that there should be a reply to the German note that will set forth the weaknesses of the proposition from Berlin and put emphasis upon the demands of the allies Great Britain is to undertake that responsible job.

It doesn't take the position that it desires to antagonize France, Belgium and Italy. In stating his position Premier Baldwin points out that the draft of the reply will be first submitted to the other allies in the hope that it will win approval. Whether that will be given will depend upon the text. Great Britain is acting with the idea of maintaining harmony and getting the differences among the allies eliminated. It is undertaking this new task while France and the others have the experiences in the Ruhr freshly in mind. It is endeavoring to make the most of the existing situation to bring about a general understanding, by first explaining its intentions and then endeavoring to get an endorsement of the plan from those who are similarly concerned.

It is clearly set forth that it is the desire of the British for unanimous action. With all striving for the same object but differing somewhat as to the method employed it remains to be seen whether the British note will deal with the problems and make demands of Germany that will accord with the views of France and the others. The time is more favorable for it than the following other notes. If the method to be recommended carries conviction with it there ought to be little time lost on the part of the other allies in expressing themselves favorably.

It seems to be a case of either continuing the present endeavors with results which cannot be considered satisfactory, or employing new methods. If the British can handle the situation in such a manner as to convince France of the wisdom of making a change and standing unitedly and actively for German payments to the limit of that country's ability valuable progress will be made.

FIGHTING THE CROOKS.

Much disturbed have been others than New Yorkers over the revelations that have come to light concerning certain stock brokers in that city and the manner in which they have been using the money placed with them by trusting investors or speculators. These disclosures have shown not only that the money has been lost but that it has been lost because of a misuse of the funds. Those who speculate realize what chances they are taking and are prepared in case the market goes against them. They are not going to take a philosophical view of the situation when their money is lost because those with whom it was placed employed it for purposes other than designated.

Those who gamble in stocks must take a gambler's chance, but they haven't even gotten a gambler's chance from the bucketshops. Their funds have been employed for the bucketshop's schemes or a double risk in violation of the law.

There will therefore be widespread gratification over the fact that the federal grand jury at New York has brought indictments against seven involved in such activities, whose operations were revealed through failures. This means that the government is interesting itself in these matters for the protection of the public even as the state had. There has been a violation of the federal law in addition to the state law. The crooks have been revealed in their mishandling of funds, if the federal jury is correct in its view, and must now stand trial and take the consequences in case of conviction.

It is unfortunate that such conditions cannot be revealed in advance of failures. It is one of those instances where experience counts, or should count. There is a lesson for the fellow with funds to invest which should teach him to make certain of the honesty of those with whom he deals, while warning should go to any others engaged in similar business or contemplating it that crooked work doesn't pay.

WHAT CARELESSNESS COSTS.

Just what a little bit of thoughtlessness will do is well illustrated by the case in Haverill where the tossing of a cigarette out of a window onto the wooden roof of an adjoining structure caused a fire which not only entailed a loss of $30,000, but threw 15,000 out of employment and the fracturing of the skull of one fireman.

No one will contend that the person who threw the cigarette did so with the idea of starting a fire. It was, however, a firebrand that had the possibilities of doing just what it did and care enough was not exercised to prevent it. Time and again just such heedless acts are responsible for extensive losses when the mere choking of that butt would have prevented all the trouble. It is the wrong attitude to take to give no consideration to where such things are thrown, or to neglect the little care that is needed to avoid kindling various types of fires in just such a manner.

What the cause of the forest fires was that are now sweeping out of existences valuable woodland and several villages in Idaho is not indicated, but it might easily have been just some such careless act on the part of a smoker, who dropped his cigarette into the finest kind of kindlings for a roaring and disastrous fire.

A large number of lives and a vast amount of money are lost each year because of the continued failure to exercise just a trifle more care, and a corresponding failure to profit by the acts and the examples of others showing what carelessness acts.

NO STEAMSHIP RACES.

Races and tests of speed are resorted to in many instances. The ambition to demonstrate a fleetness of foot that will excel all others, to own and operate yachts that will outsail the rest of the fleet, to possess the fastest horses, the speediest power boat, automobile or flying machine is by no means an acquisition of the present day. It is an old, old story and will continue to arouse interest and competition.

When, however, it comes to racing steamships, such as has been proposed by the captain of the Mauretania to the captain of the Leviathan it is another matter. The speed of those vessels may be in question but there is more than speed to be considered when it comes to involving the lives of the hundreds aboard to the risks that might be taken in connection with a race of such ocean greyhounds.

Without a doubt the time will come when a test of the relative speed merits of those ships can be made. For such to be fixed for a definite time regardless of what conditions may be involved in the way of weather and fog is not likely to take place. Far more important than the speed is the safe landing of the human cargo.

On the eastward passage of the Leviathan it was noted by wireless that the captain reduced the speed because of fog. It was a wise precaution. The safety of the passengers, crew and ship was respected and that is what must be taken into consideration at all times. Where for instance would it rest in the case of a race should the question of speed be placed ahead of safety? There may be such things as trials for records but they cannot be permitted to disregard the importance of safety.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

There are many things in this world that have only a relative value. Standing by themselves, they are nothing. For instance, if you have in your pocket a promissory note issued by the United States government stating that the Chase National bank of New York "will pay to the bearer on demand five dollars"—that note is worthless unless the bank possesses five dollars' worth of negotiable property. Merely stamping a bit of paper with the above word doesn't make money. The bank note cannot stand alone. Two halves of an arch cannot stand alone; they must be joined by the keystone. A cypher means nothing standing alone. It doesn't mean much when it stands on the left of a unit; it means a great deal when it stands of the right side. A man isn't much better than a cypher if he goes through life alone. He takes on value when he stands by the side of a good woman, especially if he is on the right side.

At this season of the year the birds are strongly in evidence and we naturally get interested in bird lore. A jenny wren has a summer cottage on my premises, and every day sings herself into my good graces. When she practices runs up into the higher regions of the chromatic scale she makes high C sound like a bass viol. The little dear has a right to sing in honor of her intuitive cuteness, because she has turned a trick that is worthy of self laudation. Now the wren is one of the birds that has put an extension on the migratory instinct. Of course she wants to go south winters. But how? It is a long way for her tiny wings, but she is able to fly as far south as the Jersey coast, and, watching her chances, she flies out to some craft and takes free passage to some desired port, it may be Charleston, Jacksonville, Miami, or even Havana. Then she deliberately flies ashore, singing defiance to custom house inspectors, quarantine physicians, cabmen and all other human inquisitors.

The writer of these paragraphs is not a crank in regard to the tobacco question, although he personally has no use whatever for the weed. He believes, however, it is a question that every mature mind should settle for himself. For children under parental care it is of course another matter, and should be settled as all other questions are that pertain to their welfare. He is, nevertheless, of the opinion that those who smoke at all greatly overdo it. Every physician knows perfectly well that in many cases excessive smoking leads to bad heart action. If this is true, then every inveterate smoker runs a risk. Of all forms in which tobacco is used doubtless the cigarette is the worst. If the young fellow is at it most of the time when he is awake he soon develops that sickly sallow look which certainly does not bespeak the soundest physical health. Is it a habit that generally tends to moderation?

While on the tobacco question one might as well carry it to a logical finish. What about smoking among women? Haven't they just the same right to indulge in the pleasure as men? There is no evidence going to show that tobacco has any more injurious effect on women than on men. It is not a matter that involves the sex problem in the least. And yet the fact remains that the general public does not take so kindly to woman's smoking as man's. The position may be inconsistent but the fact remains. For a dear old grandmother, possibly born across the water, sitting in a chimney corner, with a white cap on her head and a pleasant smile on her wrinkled face, puffing away at a long clay pipe, may be one thing, but for her handsome young granddaughter, with bobbed hair, dressed in the height of fashion, walking along the street with an old black pipe in her mouth, for some reason seems to be another proposition. Honestly, young fellow, would you select her for a wife?

These two previous paragraphs present to our minds the radical difference between expediency and legality. It is perfectly lawful for us to do many things that are neither expedient nor wise. It is just as lawful for young women to smoke on the streets as young men, but is it expedient for them to do so in the light of their higher and larger interests? Some people and some ages can do things and get away with them that others cannot. To illustrate, if President Harding, Chief Justice Taft and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge should squat down on Pennsylvania avenue and indulge in a game of marbles, there would be some hot debates at the headquarters of the republican party, and possibly some of the Hearst newspapers might gently refer to it. If their grandsons did the same, not the least notice would be taken of it, or if they themselves should play golf—as I believe all three do—nobody would criticize it adversely. Why the distinction? Well, it's not expedient to butt against ingrained opinions

An informing article has recently appeared in a well known journal showing that a new estimate ought to be put on land values for the purpose of readjusting the rate of taxation. That a rank injustice now prevails is evident to all who are familiar with the present situation. The effect of strikes and the increase of wages in shoving up the price of commodities fro which the consumer and the taxpayer are always the ultimate sufferers is only one phase of the perplexing industrial question. Now the place of the farmer in the present activities of labor is a growing perplexity. Suppose he throws himself with great energy into the improvement of his rocky farm, what immediately happens? How is he rewarded for the improvements made by way of new buildings, irrigation, cattle, machinery and other things? He is "at once penalized by heavy taxation." While the man who keeps an equally valuable farm idle is taxed at a lower rate. Is this justice?

Discoveries made of late of old tombs along the Nile valley serve an educational value in awakening a new interest in the life and times of thirty centuries ago—or whatever was the age in which his majesty Mr. Tut lived, moved and perspired in this hot old world of ours. In spite of its dreary wastes, Egypt will never cease to be a land of charm. Its very age entitles it to widespread consideration. We must remember that Tutankhamen, the turncoat king, who was a "mere puppet in the hands of wily priests," had been lying in his palatial tomb four hundred years before King David was born. The memory of this mediocre monarch is hardly worthy of the attention he is now receiving. It is not this king but the high degree of workmanship of his age that amazes us. The handicraft of the articles found in his tomb is worthier of immortality than the king himself. Whence did they receive this wonderful artisanship?

Among the notables born in the latter part of June, no one is worthier of lasting remembrance than Henry Ward Beecher, born up in the hills of Litchfield June 24, 1813. Considering all the elements that enter into the makeup of an inspirational speaker, Henry Ward Beecher was probably the greatest pulpit and platform orator this country has yet produced. At the time of Beecher's death Phillips Brooks remarked that he was the greatest pulpit orator of all time. He will always be held in grateful memory for the part he played in the Civil war in converting Great Britain to the Union side by his powerful speaking. Probably no other orator accomplished so much by public appeal. Beecher was also great in releasing American theology from the severe type of Calvinism. It is hardly too much to say that no other man in his day and generation left such an impress on his fellows.

DOLLAR BILLS OF RUBBER PAPER.

Making money in rubber dates back nearly one hundred years; making it of rubber nearly as far. The former is still extensively practiced; the latter only in the most limited way. In fact, the only actual rubber money in use today is the hard rubber coin of the states of Central America save the India Rubber World. With the present world-wide interest in rubber paper, magazine, book, and even newspaper, the subject of rubber bank bills comes again to the front. The suggestion for such use came from the alert mind of Charles Goodyear. It is probable that he was not familiar with the modern phase "elastic currency," but that is what he tried to bring about—not very elastic but damp-proof, sanitary, and durable. His effort to interest bankers did not meet with a particularly cordial reception either in the early stages of his work or even when he had proved the possibility of such production. He was of course dealing with state banks who could do practically what they chose in issuing currency. They, however, were just as stiff-necked as bankers of today and hated innovation. The primal difficulty was in the rubber paper itself.

The indefatigable inventor, however, went ahead in the production of a rubber bank note paper that should pass muster. The requirements were lightness, toughness, the ability to take ink clearly, the quality of so holding the impression that water, acids, or alkalies should not affect it. The early experiments involving the use of early materials and metallic oxides did not bring about the desired result. In all cases the product possessed too much elasticity. The primary mixtures which were based upon the "triple compound"—that is, the Goodyear vulcanization patent—consisting of rubber, white lead, and sulphur were of no use. The vulcanized sheet even if heavily loaded with magnesia was black or at least a dirty brown. Moreover, the free sulphur "bloomed," covering the surface with a misty film most difficult to remove.

After many experiments a compound consisting of rubber, magnesia, finely divided white cotton fibre or "flock," and a very small amount of sulphur was evolved. This was sheeted very thin and cut up into small squares. These were placed between smooth metal plates, put under a powerful press, and left for several days. Then they were taken out and given the old fashioned dry heat cure that lasted some seven hours. This was followed by exposure to the sun for several hours and another pressing.

The vulcanizer called the "heater room" was a closet separated from the main factory building for the sake of safety. It was some eight feet long and six feet wide. It was double walled, built with boards tongued and grooved, the air space between the walls line with paper. The furnace for heating was beneath the heater and the fuel used was hickory or rock maple wood. The floor was of iron plate from which rose four heating pipes fitted with dampers the ends of which projected above the roof. In the door of the heater was set a pane of glass so that the thermometer which hung inside could be read without opening the door.

The product was acknowledged to be as good, indeed better, than any bank note paper in existence. It took ink perfectly, could be washed, would not tear, and was but a trifle heavier than ordinary paper. The bankers, however, put the inventor off. Some even said the product was too good; that it was to the bank's advantage for the bills to be less durable. The cost of the product also stood in the way of its acceptance. Finally the New Haven County Bank printed up a few bills, which were cautiously put into circulation. To Mr. Goodyear's disappointment they were received with the mildest sort of enthusiasm or not noticed at all. The editor of the New London (Connecticut) "Star" in 1847, who evidently had a scent for news and saw in the rubber dollars an interesting paragraph, writes:

"I have been shown a one dollar bill, of the New Haven County Bank, genuine, the paper of which was of India rubber manufactured in Lisbon. It was slightly elastic, but little thicker than the ordinary paper, and perfectly impervious to water. Indeed to so great perfection had it been brought, both in the filling up and in the ink used for the signatures, that it seems to have defied the common and even some uncommon methods of obliteration. It has been soaked and boiled in strong potash lye with scarcely any perceptible effect."

Goodyear left no record of the number of bills issued or circulated. Samuel Felton, the veteran superintendent of the Hayward Rubber Co., told the writer that one of the directors of the company possessed one. Whether, however, it was Governor Buckingham, James Carew, or William Hayward, he did not recall. Lewis Elliott, also a veteran, recalled seeing one and knew about the difficulties experienced in making them. He was also sure that the work was done in Naugatuck. Emory Rider possessed one but destroyed it in trying to find out as nearly as he could what it was made of. Careful research fails to disclose even one of the rubber paper dollars. The fact that they existed is, however, beyond dispute. Perhaps, and this is by no means an idle thought, rubber latex paper for all bank notes may one day become an accomplished fact, and for the good of the users of paper currency, a product that contains a goodly percentage of caoutchouc.

The details of this story are from notes of conversation along in the '80's, between the editor of the India Rubber World and pioneers in the rubber trade, contemporary with Charles Goodyear. Those who knew of the rubber dollar bills were Lewis Elliott, superintendent of the Candee Rubber Co., New Haven, Connecticut; Samuel Felton, superintendent of the Hayward Rubber Co., Colchester, Connecticut, and Emory Rider, 52 New street, New York, N. Y.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Miss Olive M. Jones, the new president of the National Education Association, has been for seventeen years in charge of probationary correction in the public schools of New York city, and is said to have handled more than 10,000 of New York's "worst" boys and girls. There are about 900 children enrolled under her direction. Specializing on "problematic" children was originated by Miss Jones when, at eighteen, she took her first teaching job in one of the public schools in the lower East Side of the metropolis. Her predecessor the boys had literally chased from the building, throwing their shoes at her as she fled. Miss Jones, faced by a small army of little toughs, coped so successfully with them that she was assigned permanently to this class of pupils. The methods she employed have since been adopted in many cities.

Wives of Famous Men

Simonetta, Wife of Americus Vespucci.

The fate of Simonetta Vespucci, wife of the man for whom this country is named, stands out a clear, delicate cameo among the host of beautiful stories of her day. Chroniclers of American history, giving high place to the voyager who reached these shores, never to return, scarcely, if at all, make mention of the beautiful girl-wife he had left behind in Italy, but the weavers of romance devote themselves to the wondrous Simonetta, the Genoese, beloved of Giuliano de Medici, brother of Lorenzo, the Magnificent, and inspiration of Sandro Botticelli, the great painter.

A girl in her teens when she came from Genoa to the court of Lorenzo in Florence, Vespucci's bride, Simonetta was a frantic, exquisite creature, tall and slender, with skin of ivory and a wealth of wondrous hair. Simple and girlish, she was despised by the other women of the court, who made no secret of their jealousy. Giuliano, prince of the reigning house, loved her in vain.

One day, as she wandered silently about the garden, she was seen by Master Sandro. Her radiant beauty overwhelmed him, and she became his inspiration. She consented to act as the model of his paintings and the central figure of "The Spring," probably the best known Botticelli today, is Simonetta. She was the original of all his succeeding madonnas, and although he loved her with a deep fervor, he never attempted to win her for himself.

While still in her early twenties Simonetta died, the victim of a plague. As beautiful in death as she had been in life, Simonetta was drawn in state through the city, while all Florence mourned.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Thrift During Vacations

Vacation time is here, and for the next two or three months the question of how best to spend this period of rest and recreation will engross the attention of millions of people throughout the country.

In the days of our forefathers, vacations were of small consequence and were looked upon as a form of indulgence that could be enjoyed only by the chosen few. Time spent in absolute idleness and money utilized in mere pleasure seeking were frowned upon generally by serious minded persons who regarded such experiences as unjustifiable examples of idleness and waste.

But viewpoints change with progress. We are living more scientifically and with broader vision in such matters now than was the case fifty years ago.

The vacation, if rightfully made use of, if a form of thrift thoroughly in keeping with the rightful standards of current life. But to come within the scope of this definition, one's vacation must be spent either in complete rest or in time given to physical and mental upbuilding. Travel, if kept within the bounds of one's finances, is a splendid type of vacation because it gives a change of environment, gets the mind away from the usual routine and broadens one's educational equipment. On the other hand, the man who tages his every day problems with him and keeps his mind still riveted on the questions that are before him during the entire year cannot gain much benefit from such a vacation.

One's fitness for work throughout the year depends to some extent upon choosing the right kind of vacation. Therefore, to arange and carry out one's plans for the annual relaxation period with the same prudent consideration given to all important problems of life, constitutes a very good example of thrift.—American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

A Guiding Friend.

A well known citizen recently went to the hospital for a minor operation. One of his friends, calling to see him, asked what he could bring him when he came again.

"Bring me something to read, John."

The next day John returned to the hospital. He carried with him a guide to the city.

"Why did you bring this?" the patient asked slightly peeved.

"So you can find your way around town, when they finally let you out," was the consoling reply.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
by DAVID CORY

The little bunny boy bade the Prince and Princess goodbye.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT AT A WEDDING.

"Little Pumpkin lantern, don't burn out I pray, Made the Forest Pathway light as though t'were day."

tooted a small owl as our little bunny boy with the prince and Jack O'Lantern started off for the Pumpkin house, as I told you in the last story.

And it was a mighty good thing they had the little pumpkin lamp for by this time it was very dark and the moon was hidden behind a bank of black clouds.

Well, pretty soon, not so very far, they all came to Jack O'Lantern's house and as it stood on the edge of the forest, near the King's Highway, it wasn't so dark but what one could see the road. So the handsome prince asked Little Jack Rabbit to come with him to his castle, and, after saying goodby to Jack O'Lantern and thanking him for finding the lost locket, they set out and by and by, after a while they came to a stately castle.

It was the castle where lived the lovely princess whose picture the prince carried in his locket, you know, and, as soon as she heard that he was outside the walls she ordered the great gates thrown open. Then, taking the prince by the hand and Little Jack Rabbit by the paw, she led them into her beautiful palace and gave orders that the kind priest who lived in a cloister nearby should marry her to the handsome prince.

And oh dear me, I wish I could relate what a beautiful wedding it was. Little Jack Rabbit gave the bride a blue stone necklace which he had bought one day at the Three-in-one-cent store in Rabbitville some umpty 'leven stories ago.

After the wedding feast was over, the little bunny boy bade the prince and princess goodbye and went upon his way, and after a while, not so very long, he heard a little yellow bird singing:

"Little people, fleet of wing,
When you hear the blue bells ring,
You will know its time to play
In the woodland all the day.
Little people, swift of feet,
When the morn is fresh and sweet,
Frolic underneath the shade.
'Ere the sun has dried the glade."

"Little bird! Little bird!" called the little bunny boy for he had heard its song so many times that he wished to see its pretty form, but all he saw was a ash of yellow as it disappeared among the leaves of the quiet forest.

"Dear me!" sighed Little Jack Rabbit, "so many times have I heard that little bird, and yet it never stops to speak to me." And in the next story, if you're good, I'll tell you what happened after that.

POETRY

THE SOUL OF JEANNE D'ARC.

She came not into the Presence as a
Sainted saint might come,
Crowned, white-robed and adoring, with
Her Presence dumb,—
She stood as a straight, young soldier, confident, gallant strong,
Who, after a boon of his captain in the sudden heat of the drum,

She said: "Some hours I prayed too long
In this my place of bliss,
With those dead Dear Ones comforted, to forget whose sorrows
Upon that world whose stony stairs they climbed to come to Jesus

"But lo, a cry hath reached The peace
wherein so long I have stayed,
Like a trumpet's call at heaven's wall from a herald unafraid—
A million voices in one cry, 'Where is the Maid, the Maid?'

"I had forgot from too much joy that cleave task of mine,
But I have heard a certain word shatter
the chant divine,
Have watched a banner blow and grow before mine eyes for sign.

"I would return to that my land flung in the teeth of war,
I would cast down my robe and crown
that pleasure me no more,
And don the armor that I knew, the valiant sword I bore.

"And angels militant shall sing the gates of heaven wide,
And souls new-dead whose lives were shed like leaves on war's red tide shall cross their swords above our heads cheer us as we ride.

"For with me goes that soldier-saint,
Saint Michael of the sword,
And I shall ride on his right side, a page
beside his lord,
And men shall follow like swift hinds to reap a sure reward,

"Grant that I answer this my call; yes,
though the end may be
The naked shame, the biting flame, the last, long agony;
I would go singing down that road where fagots wait for me.

"Mine be the fire about my feet, the smoke above my head;
So might I glow, a torch to show the path my heroes tread;
My Captain! Oh, my Captain, let me go back!" she said.

—Theodosia Garrison, in Scribner's Magazine.

AFTERNOON TEA.

Afternoon tea from eggshell cups of blue,
A currant bun and cakes all frosted white,
And silver steaming in the yellow light
Of candles in a world of just us two.
And tea and cakes forgotten when our eyes
Meeting above the teacups glance away.
Then meet again, while little sunbeams
strav
Between the hair closed blinds—the swift hour flies.
It's time to go—"Thursday at 4?"—I say,
Trusting to your assent yet never quite Sure that your answer will be, "Yes, you may."
You nod your head—the world is made all right—
And as I go away the sky's more blue
Because of this one hour I've spent with you.

—Abigail Cresson, in New York Herald.

"Another candidate," yelled a voice from the rear.—Boston Transcript.

"I know it," said the departed shade wearily. "But it allows me a stop-over here. For see I'm from Texas, and I've got to make the change gradually."—Houston Post.

CENTRAL INDIA STATE LIKES PROHIBITION

New York, July 13 (By the A. P.)—Bhupal, that rugged little native state of Central India which has been ruled for three-quarters of a century by a line of "invisible" princesses, wielding the power of life and death over their subjects, has taken to prohibition—and likes it.

At least, the present ruler, Her Highness Jehan Begum Nawab of Bhopal, says she likes it. And, with her powers of life and death, what she likes is all right with her subjects.

The spread of prohibition to faraway, mystical India is described in a letter from the Nawab Begum herself, ndited, at her royal direction, by her secretary in the political department (of undecipherable name), on an obviously venerable typewriter. The letter, bearing the Begum's royal crest, was made public today by the committee on conservation and advance of the council boards of benevolence of the Methodist Episcopal church.

"I am directed by her highness," the missive read, "to convey to your board her highness' many thanks for their kind appreciation of her policy in prohibiting liuor manufacture and sale in the state. It may interest you to know that the measure has already met with remarkable success. Great as the loss of income is from this source, her highness feels amply compensated for it by the visibly improved moral and material condition of her dear subjects."

OBITUARY.

Miss Bertha Sabrowski.

After an illness of about three years Miss Bertha Sabrowski, daughter of August and Marie D. Sabrowski, of 34 Boswell avenue, died Friday morning at 8.30 o'clock. She had been seriously ill but four days.

She was born in Germany, May 27, 1899, and at the age of three years came to this country with her parents, locating in Norwich where, except for short periods, she has always made her home. She received her education in the public schools of this city and later attended business school. Later she entered the training School for Nurses at the Backus hospital, graduating with the class of 1914. She became a member of the Backus Hospital alumnae and practiced nursing in Norwich, later entering the Women's hospital of New York for further study, and for a number of years was superintendent of the Guilford Sanatorium, Guilford, Conn.

Later she returned to Norwich, again taking up her profession at which she achieved great success. She was a member of the First German Lutheran church of Norwich, and before her illness took an active interest in all church affairs.

She is survived by her parents, six sisters, Mrs. John Wischnewske, Mrs. John Karkutt, Mrs. Paul Winkel, Mrs. Daniel Devine, Mrs. Edick Werth, all of Norwich, and Mrs. August Mursch of Jersey City; four brothers, Charles of Jersey City, August, Arthur and Harry Sabrowski of Norwich, also several nieces and nephews.

Miss Sabrowski was a young woman admired by everyone with whom she came in contact in her profession and social life. She was of pleasing disposition, ever thoughtful of the needs of those for whom she cared, and her reputation as a nurse stood high in Norwich. There are many left to mourn her loss and sympathize with her family in this sad time.

Matters of interest will be discussed and it is probable that the petitions from citizens complaining of the playgrounds at the Elizabeth street and Thamesville schools will be taken under consideration.

CANADIAN HUNTING LICENSE FEES RAISED

Ottawa, July 13.—Hunting license fees have been increased by the government to discourage the growing influx of foreign trappers into the northwest territories.

Instead of the former $2 fee, bonafide residents of the northwest territories will pay $5; non-resident British subjects, $150, compared with $75 under the old regulations, and other non-residents will be called upon to pay $300, which is an increase of 100 per cent.

CITIZENS VOTE TO TAKE UP DRIVE FOR $250,000 FOR BACKUS HOSPITAL

A group meeting of citizens called for Friday evening at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, with President H. M. Lerou of the Chamber of Commerce presiding, voted unanimously to take up a drive for $250,000 for the William W. Backus hospital in October, and showed an enthusiastic spirit to carry it through to success.

President Lerou opened the meeting with a brief explanation to the 35 men present of the purpose in calling the meeting to consider the financial conditions and needs of the hospital.

H. A. Tirrell, president of the board of trustees of the hospital, spoke of the large service which the hospital is constantly rendering to the city and town and the residents of the surrounding territory and said that he felt that the hospital was peculiarly near to all and that an appeal on its behalf would be an appeal that would reach all. In other places in the state similar drives have met with success. The hospital trustees have felt that $250,000 would be the least sum to be considered, of which $100,000 would be for a new nurses' home and $150,000 to add to the hospital's maintenance fund. To supply a new building without an addition to the maintenance fund would not meet the situation but would actually be a hindrance to the hospital.

There is an imperative need for the money, said Mr. Tirrell, if the hospital is to supply the community service that is expected of it, for there is no desire on the part of the hospital management to limit that service. As it is now, the hospital is running behind from $4,000 to $5,000 yearly on its maintenance expenses, and in the past few years it has used up $35,000 of its principal in this way.

W. S. Allis, one of the corporators of the hospital, read a statement along financial lines in which he said that when the hospital was founded and endowed in 1893 a substantial part of the money that was given by Mr. Backus and Mr. Slater had been used for buildings. Because of the liberal endowment the hospital had been able to meet expenses up to about 1916. In 1915 the maintenance expenses were $39,673.67 and the normal income $42,667.87. In 1922 the maintenance expenses were $79,799.86 and normal income $67,425.03. Per capita cost per patient in 1915, when 890 patients were admitted, was $15.68, and in 1922, when 1,258 patients were admitted, was $27.75.

The Backus hospital is no exception in this increase of maintenance costs. It has been the same experience everywhere in other hospitals in the state. The Backus hospital also has had only a small increase in its endowment, this increase amounting to less than $25,000 in the first 25 years, and about $30,000 in five legacies in the last five years.

The two great needs of the hospital now, said Mr. Allis, are additional general endowment and enlarged accommodations for nurses.

In a general discussion that followed Abner Schwartz expressed his great appreciation of the hospital and his pleasure that a meeting had been called to make plans to help it.

In reply to a question from John F. Rogers whether an addition to the present nurses' home was to be built or an entirely new building erected, Mr. Tirrell stated that both plans had been considered and that it had been decided it would be better economy to erect a new building which would release the present nurses' home for other hospital uses. The new building would provide accommodations for about 54 people, including the nurses and some hospital employes.

Superintendent F. Leon Hutchins was called on by Chairman Lerou, responding with an informing statement of the situation that confronts the hospital management. As to the crowded accommodations in the nurses' home, Mr. Hutchins said that only today he had an illustration of the need of better provision along that line. Two mothers with their daughters who were thinking of becoming nurses asked the same question: Has my girl got to sleep with someone else. The same thing had come up as an objection a number of times with those who would be student nurses. At the present time at the hospital there is one room that three nurses occupy and another room where there are two. It is hard to get nurses but we have got to have them.

Since he became superintendent, Mr. Hutchins said, the work has more than doubled, expenses in some lines have trebled and the hospital has to pay salaries to its employes that are higher than in war times. It is a wrong condition when salaries paid employes are more than what are paid to the nurses.

There is need also of additional equipment and for renovation of some of the rooms, said Mr. Hutchins.

Vote For $250,000.

W. F. Lester spoke of the territory which might be expected to contribute in the drive and L. M. Crandall moved that the sum be $250,000 after he had spoken briefly of the need which was apparent in the case of the hospital and saying that he believed Norwich would sustain its fine record of making a success of this drive. The vote in favor of $250,000 as the sum was unanimous.

When Chairman Lerou asked if it was thought that October would be a good time, the meeting voted for that time on motion of Max Hanover, who endorsed the effort and said that it meant plenty of work but it could be accomplished.

Mr. Tirrell mentioned that some preliminary work that had been done some time ago had resulted in about 20 people indicating pledges of $20,500 that they were willing to make.

In response to an inquiry from John F. Rogers, it was brought out that the hospital received state aid in the sum of $3,500 for two years and that this was about as much as could be expected. Mr. Rogers said he thought it was logical to expect that the industries would help materially, but he thought also that it was logical to expect that the town and city ought to help. The money ought to come from those who could well afford to give rather than from those whose circumstances were different.

His suggestion that the town might be expected to give something towards the hospital was taken up with much interest, the idea being that this would not be anything in the drive but a regular yearly appropriation towards maintenance expenses. Such a yearly sum would be equivalent to a substantial increase in endowment.

Mayor Milo R. Waters said he believed several thousand dollars for maintenance might be voted by a town meeting and would amount to very little in any increase in the tax rate.

On motion of Mr. Tirrell it was voted that the chairman appoint a committee of five to proceed to form plans for the drive in consultation with the hospital trustees. An amendment by Dr. R. R. Agnew made Mr. Lerou be an ex-officio member of the committee.

After a suggestion from C. V. Pendleton that a series of baseball games between the chamber of commerce and the Rotary club might be arranged to bring in money for the drive this summer the meeting adjourned subject to the call of the committee.

Those attending the meeting included President H. M. Lerou of the chamber of commerce, H. A. Tirrell, president of the hospital trustees; Treasurer F. W. Lester, Supt. F. Leon Hutchins, T. C. Murphy, J. F. Rogers, A. M. Van Wagenen, H. F. Bawley, Dr. R. R. Agnew, George W. Carroll, A. Schwartz, A. Edward Smith, C. V. Pendleton, F. H. Pulin, Max Hanover, R. D. Judd, W. B. Young, W. F. Lester, Dr. George Thompson, Dr. A. C. Freeman, Wallace S. Allis, Rev. W. A. Keefe, E. O. Rodier, John M. Lee, Dr. Sussler, Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, C. J. Twist, Dr. La Pierre, M. Rabinoviteh, C. F. Wells, William Cruickshank, John Porteous, John J. O'Rourke.

WOMAN THROUGH WINDSHIELD MAN IN THE HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 13.—Lycurgus M. Sistare of No. 18 Franklin street, manager of Edward R. Smith and Company, of 231 State street, stock brokers, is at the Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital suffering from probable internal injuries and lacerations of the face and head, sustained when his automobile was in collision with a trolley car of the Connecticut Company on Broad street tonight. Mrs. Eva Dixon, of 101 Truman street, who was a passenger of the automobile, sustained lacerations of the hands and arin bruises and contusions.

The accident occurred near Cedar Grove cemetery when the automobile traveling northward and a trolley car headed in the opposite direction sideswiped each other, wrecking the automobile and throwing Mrs. Dixson through the windshield. At the point where the accident occurred, the trolley tracks run from the middle of the street to the side of the highway and it was while attempting to pass the trolley car that the machine was struck. The auto, a runabout, was towed away to a local garage following the accident.

Sistare will be under treatment at the hospital indefinitely. Mrs. Dixson went to her home after her wounds were treated at this hospital.

LEGHORNS TAKE LEAD FROM ENGLISH WYANDOTTES

The Wyandottes have been pushed back into second place. Lady Anderson's pen from Harrold, England, has been at the top for ten weeks but now loses the lead to a pen of Leghorns entered by Pussy Willow Egg Farm from East Moriches, L. I. Not only this but another pen of Leghorns owned by Hollywood Farm at Hollywood, Wash., is only six eggs behind the Wyandottes and going strong. Thus it looks as if the race for the next few weeks would be between these two pens of Leghorns with the Wyandottes back in third place. There is this to be said, however, that the Wyandottes have proven themselves good layers in September and October and there is always the chance that they may at that time recoup their losses.

The Leghorns again made a clean sweep in the thirty-sixth week. A Connecticut pen entered by Andrew L. Ohr of Wallingford was first with a production of 66 eggs. Four pens of the same breed owned by Emory H. Bartlett of Enfield, Mass., D. E. Walls, of Petaluma, Calif., Hollywood Farm from Hollywood, Wash., and Pussy Willow Egg Farm of Long Island all tied for second place with 61 eggs each. Meadowedge Farm from Cedarhurst, L. I., and Rapp's Leghorn Farm from Atlantic Highlands, N. J., tied for third place with 50 eggs each. F. M. Johnson from Waldoboro, Maine, and James O. LeFevre of New Paltz, N. Y., tied for fourth position with 40 eggs each. The total production for all pens was 3551 eggs or a yield of nearly 31 per cent.

The four leading pens in each of the principal breeds are as follows:

BRITISH LABOR PARTY SUPPORTS BALDWIN

London, July 13.—(By The A. P.)—The question raised yesterday in the house of commons by Ramsay MacDonald, the opposition leader, and Commander Kenworthy, liberal member for Hull, concerning the extent to which the United States was actively concerned in the formation of a new reparation policy by the British government, remained unanswered when the commons rose from its sitting this afternoon. Premier Baldwin had held out the hope that the interrogations might be answered today.

It is generally assumed that the United States will be included among the powers to which drafts of the proposed reply to Germany will be communicated. But there is nothing officially known on this phase.

Further consideration of the government's statement made in both houses yesterday brought expressions of opinion tonight that it betrayed divided counsels in the cabinet. Although the premier's statement is regarded as a very short step in advance it nevertheless is interpreted as a step not unlikely to give France an opportunity to protract Anglo-French negotiations.

Universal credit, however, is given the premier for his tact in avoiding a presentation to France of an excuse to make a sudden break in the negotiations.

The prime minister will have a strong asset in the full support of both the liberal and labor parties in the house in pursuance of his new policy. A meeting was held in the commons today at which representatives of the labor party and executive of the trades union congress fully endorsed his statement but at the same time deprecated any attempt to create ill-feeling with France.

The criticism of the Lloyd George section of the liberal party arises only because the premier's new policy is not considered strong enough, as that the only section in parliament likely to oppose the prime minister consists of a few strongly pro-French members in both houses.

HARTFORD AUTO CLUB ARRANGES HEADLIGHT TESTS

Plans have been perfected for an intensive campaign of headlight testing and adjusting free to all motorists, according to the following announcement made today by the Automobile club of Hartford:

"Believing that nearly all automobiles are equipped with headlights that are legal, but that many of these devices are unsafe for night driving through faulty adjustment, the safe traffic committee of the Automobile club of Hartford has undertaken to provide means for the elimination of this danger so far as the cars in and around Hartford are concerned.

"Beginning Monday, July 16, and continuing for six days, from 8 p. m. to 11 p. m., this committee will conduct an intensive campaign of headlight testing and adjusting. Five testing stations located at convenient and scattered points in Hartford will be equipped with special devices for testing headlights by the most recent and legally approved methods. Specially trained men will do the necessary adjusting for which no charge will be made. The only effort and expenditure required of the car owner is that involved in driving to and from the testing station. The tests may be participated in by all motorists regardless of whether they are club members or not.

Through the courtesy of the Dixie Filling Stations, Inc., the tests will be held at the five following Dixie gasoline stations:

673 Farmington Ave., near Prospect avenue; 135 Allyn street, Hotel Bond Plaza; 550 Albany avenue; Wethersfield ave.; 285 Conn. Blvd. East Hartford.

Large white screens with heavy black cross lines will be erected at each station. Runways will be constructed at a distance of 25 feet from the screen to make certain that the headlights are in correct position with respect to the black cross lines. The tests will be made in accordance with the requirements of the Connecticut motor vehicle department and the men making the adjustments will follow the instructions of state representatives.

To assist in proving to police and others that headlights are in accordance with the law, each motorist will on completion of adjustments. This seal is to be given a small sticker seal upon completion of adjustments. This seal is to be pasted on the windshield and will read, 'Lights O. K. Date ——— Automobile club of Hartford.

SOVIET EMERGING FROM CURRENCY CRISIS

Moscow, July 13.—(By the A. P.)—Soviet Russia is emerging from her currency crisis.

Eighty-eight per cent. of the expenditure from the government treasury next year will be paid with revenues and the remaining 12 per cent. with an emission of paper. But the country is trying to do business on about only 10 per cent. of the gold value in circulation in 1914.

These salient points of Russia's financial condition were brought out in an interview granted to the foreign correspondents by J. Sokolnikov, the finance commissar.

Strictly limited issuance of unsecured paper together with the shutting down of credit by banks in the provinces to prevent speculation before the harvest has created a money famine which the government considers necessary, but as the state's bank securities continue to roll up, more and more secured notes will be issued.

"Germans who were lucky enough to invest marks in Russian rubles six months ago made money," said Sokolnikov, "for the depreciation of the ruble has been much under that of the mark. In the last six months of 1922 all money depreciated 25 times but in the first six months of this year only 5 times.

"In April, 1922, our total paper issue was worth only 16 millions gold but it has now risen to an exchange value of 100,000,000 and we have state bank notes in addition. We plan to gradually issue secured notes until the currency is stabilized."

The Chernovets, a form of secured note, now has a nominal value of a little over 15 and is above par based on the British pound sterling in Moscow, M. Sokolnikov told the correspondents.

The soviet now is minting new gold coins but like the silver coin minted they will not be circulated perhaps for a year or two as the government desires that the metal shall not find its way into the stockings of the peasants who still have two or three million gold rubles hidden away. The government has set the example of accepting its own paper money instead of goods for taxes, and the natural tax, which was abolished, this year reached 25 per cent. of the normal amount in pre-war years. Exports for the first half of 1923 slightly exceeded imports. The soviet budget from October, 1922, to October, 1924, calls for an expenditure of 1,500,000,000 in gold.

URGES TREATY AGREEMENT FOR LIQUOR MOVEMENTS

Washington, July 13.—Unusual interest was evidenced in diplomatic circles here today in a cablegram quoting in part a communication to the London Times, signed by Lord Birkenhead, former lord high chancellor of England, strongly urging that the British government accept Secretary Hughes' proposal for a treaty agreement which would permit the movement of sealed liquor stores in American territorial waters and the search and seizure fo suspected rum-running craft up to the 12-mile limit. While comment on Lord Birkenhead's argument was withheld when the message was referred to state department officials, it was obvious that they viewed it with great interest.

Significance was attached to his contention that the supreme court's construction of the Volstead act was "almost certainly right and indisputably final," and his suggestion that a convention "could be made between the two countries plainly recognizing in the preamble the existence of the binding force of the three-mile limit rule; asserting that both nations are prepared to maintain it, but placing it on record that without prejudice to the maintenance of the rule the British government concedes to the United States government for the temporary purpose of dealing with bootlegging the right of treating waters around the American coast for a distance of twelve miles as if twelve and not three were the international rule."

Lord Birkenhead's statement that "a renewabl eperiod of about twelve months might be suggested in the first instance" for the duration of such a convention also was viewed with interest.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

This is an age of skeptics. Tyler Andrews, of Center street and Riverview will testify to this. Mr. Andrews happens to be one of those persons in whose hands a divining rod will tug until it almost pulls the arms out by the roots, when he walks across a field holding tightly in his hands a forked-shaped cutting of an apple or peach tree and at the moment he passes over a point where water is flowing in abundance underneath. The divining rod in his hands simply insists on pointing toward the ground even though it be held pointing toward the skies, though no sign of influence can be felt when the same device is held in the hands of rank unbelievers.

Ernest L. Perry of Riverview has purchased land and is engaged with preparations for building a home near Dayville Four Corners. The Crystal Water company does not furnish service in that territory, so Mr. Perry is put to the necessity of locating it on his property, and with that end in view C. A. Andrews, who has had much success with divining rods, and his son, Tyler, went over to the property and tested it out according to the honored and time-tried methods. In the hands of the senior Andrews and his son, the divining rod readily pointed at a point that promised water and digging there produced four and a half feet of clear, cool fluid at a depth of 12 feet. Naturally, the junior Andrews talked about the achievement and in so doing started a storm of controversy as to whether there is really anything in the use of the device or whether, as some contend, one can find water anywhere if he digs deep enough.

In any event, the talk that has resulted promises an interesting series of experiments, for the junior Mr. Andrews has agreed to be blindfolded and walked about the Perry lot on a wager and while he does not know the exact location of his footsteps the divining rod will pull down as promptly and as insistently over the water vein as it does when he walks about the field with his eyes wide open.

All interested parties are entitled to make side bets on the outcome.

Owners of radio sets were having a great fanning bee during Friday, over the results obtained in getting returns from the Firpo-Willard match at Jersey City Thursday evening. Dozens of owners of radio sets in this territory were at their instruments promptly on time and, in most instances, had no difficulty, in keeping closely in touch with proceedings in the big bowl, where 100,000 people were congregated for the events of the night.

Harold B. Atwood said Friday afternoon that the radio party at his home were kept well informed of the progress of the match and the transmission of information was so clear that he could hear Announcer Joe Humphries, standing in the ring, give the weights of the contestants in the different bouts.

While there was intense interest in the outcome of this important boxing match, it is of passing interest to mention that few to take the trouble to pick up the big league baseball scores this season. The high financed New York teams are so well assured of winning again that the average man has lost interest in baseball as a mere money-making proposition in which only the fat bankroll has a chance of coming through at the head of a big league. Amateur baseball seems to hold as much attention as ever.

The Danielson Rod and Gun club has given official notice that Norman Ross of Danielson, one of the youngest members of the club, has been awarded the fine trout rod, valued at $25, for taking the largest trout in Windham county streams accredited to any member of the club during the season just closed. George E. Whitney of North Grosvenordale is winner of the second prize and is entitled to his choice between a rod, reel, line and hooks and a level winding reel, while Dr. William Saretzki of Putnam comes in for third prize. The trout that won for Master Ross weighed 2 pounds 2 1-2 ounces. Mr. Whitney's trout weighed 2 pounds 2 1-2 ounces. Mr. Whitney's trout weighed in at one pound and seven ounces and Dr. Saretzki's at 1 pound 3 1-2 ounces.

The club now has a list of prizes for its members who make good during the bass fishing season.

Classed in the same category with the flippant boy who tosses a giant firecracker under the heels of Old Dobbin on the Fourth to determine just how much pep the four-footed friend still retains in his ancient and decrepit system, is the automobile driver who sports a spotlight on his machine and delights in flashing it in the windshield of approaching cars—with never a care as to whether his lawlessness will cause a serious accident or some other untoward happening—and without regard to the fact that he is committing a serious violation of the law.

A few such performers continue to drive cars in this territory, though flashing spotlights on another machine is now rated cheap stuff among honorable drivers of cars. Serious consideration was being given during Friday to the proposal that the number of car reading 128,——, be turned over to the state police with a view to asking prosecution for violation of the laws pertaining to the use of spotlights. The would-be complainant has the complete number of the violating car, but only enough of the registration is reproduced here to show that what is written is based on fact and not on an ambition to fill up space.

PUTNAM

John Heenen, 70, who might be described as a Shakespearean inebriate, possibly saved himself a jail sentence by his quotations from the great English bard when he faced Judge Mahlon H. Geissler in the city court Friday morning. Heenen was being severely lectured by the court for being brought in as a drunk at his advanced age and listened with attention to what the court suggested the world expected in the way of good example from men of his years.

In his own defense, however, he remarked that "Life is but a castle in the air," and then launched forth into quotations from Shakespeare to set up a bulwark of wisdom tending to establish that existence here is no more than an empty dream and that all achievement is only relative and has little or no bearing on the hereafter—and its possibilities of rewards or punishments.

There is nothing of the radical or bolshevist about Heenen. He has taken life as he found it, riding the ebbing and flowing tides without concern as to their cause or effect. As to life's responsibilities, he might be considered as carefree as the birds of the air. Somewhere along life's long pathway Heenen has catered to his love of literature and out of the written glories of the past has evolved a philisophy that must indeed be a comfort to one who can view the world without thought of what it is all about or what life really leads toward.

Heenen does not live in Putnam. He has made his home for some time past during the cold weather seasons of the year at Quinebaug, in the town of Thompson, and has spent his summers in Union. He did not explain how he happened to be here.

Impressed with the intellectuality of Heenen, Judge Geissler let him off with the standard fine of $20 and costs—and gave him time to pay. Heenen does not appear the type of man that will shirk paying the assessment made against him, and in all probability in his own good time will pay the amount he owes the court.

Among fishermen here and in other towns of the county there appears to be a great deal of misapprehension relative to the fishing license statute enacted by the last Connecticut legislature. To relieve this it may be stated that the legislature did pass an act making it obligatory for all citizens over 16 years of age to take out a fishing license before angling in the waters of the state, but this law does not become effective until Jan. 1, 1924. For the remainder of the year no fishing license is required.

Next year all citizens of 16 years of age or over will have to take out a fishing license if they are to pursue a favorite sport. For citizens the fishing licenses will cost $1, plus a fee of 25 cents for recording by the town clerks. Non-residents and aliens will have to pay $2 for their fishing licenses, and in addition a fee of 25 cents for recording.

The great majority of fishermen hereabouts favor the fishing license regulation, especially because the large amount of revenue that likely will be obtained will be used by the state fish and game commission in restocking lakes, rivers and brooks and improving fishing conditions generally. Rhode Island and Massachusetts already have fish license laws in effect.

An advance of three cents an hour has been granted employes of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. who are in what in a general way may be termed the clerks' department in the local yards. As this advance is on a basis of seven days a week for some of the men it will add a considerable bit to their pay envelopes each week. Men in the department referred to have not received as high a scale of wages as some other classes of railroad workers, so the advance is particularly welcome to them and can be used to very good advantage.

Radio fans in this territory had what approximated ringside seats under the absent treatment system for Thursday night's heavyweight go at Boyle's Thirty Acres. While no enthusiast heard commenting during Friday attested that he could hear the crash of padded gloves against reinforced steel ribs, there were fans aplenty who distinctly heard the coaching by the crowds, the applause and the blare of band music. "Go get him!" "Atta boy!" "Sock him, Luis!" and other such comment came clearly to many who were listening on radio sets in this territory. The sensation for such radio owners must have been much the same as for the patrons who thrill into the highest degree of excitement when viewing a real movie achievement or who stop and applaud an enthralling billboard adv. It's a great age and a great life! Woodstock Valley farmers were as well informed as to the progress of the fight as those who stood in newspaper rows the country over and watched the animated boards or listened to the megaphoned returns of the fight. Really, there isn't any exclusiveness in living in the country nowadays, notwithstanding that scores of thousands of city dwellers pay out a lot of money of Frank E. Kennedy, Rolan H. Gray and Richard D. Bannigan.

There's no denying that it is hot— uncomfortably hot—most of the time these July days, but there are many citizens whose coal bins are empty that are worrying about the hard coal supply for next winter. Only a small percentage of the borough's residents have their next season's supply on hand, though many of them placed orders for it long ago. There are days now—all news from the coal conference at Atlantic City considered—when some of us here in Danielson contemplate with all seriousness the necessity of trading in our motor cars for a supply of fuel for the winter months.

Among the fine large bass so far taken this season in this territory was one weighing 4 1-4 pounds that was exhibited Friday by Eli J. Dagenias.

It is likely, though he has not definitely decided yet, that Attorney Louis A. Woisard of this town, just admitted to the bar, will divide his time when he begins practice between Danielson and Willimantic. Attorney Woisard will rest during the summer after his long and arduous period of study and will begin practice in the fall.

Michael Head, who has been ill, was reported Friday as resting more comfortably at his home on Academy street.

As school census enumerators, F. L. Bennett has been appointed for Attawaugan and Ballouville, George A. Williams for Dayville and Goodyear, Henry Lague for Danielson and Alcott D. Sayles for East Killingly.

Under the auspices of the state department of child hygiene a well baby conference was held Friday afternoon from 2 to 4 at the school on the West Side, in the town of Brooklyn.

Mrs. B. C. Young of Cleveland, O., arrived here Friday for a visit. Mrs. Young is at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Judson.

The Service battery baseball team will go to Goodyear Sunday afternoon for a game with the team representing that village.

A late telephone call Friday evening notified the writer that another exponent of the divining rod had discovered a mine of wild bananas within four miles of Danielson. Yes, we have no persimmons today!

Round the World in a week

All the labor of veterinarians, in testing dairy herds twice or more a year, to absolutely insure purity—

all the labor of barn and milk inspectors in maintaining cleanliness, which is a revelation to those who have not visited a dairy supplying Tait Bros—

all the labor of Research Laboratories in watching and guarding this purity and cleanliness—all the tremendous investment in creamery, milk and ice cream plant-equipment, essential to purity and cleanliness—and all the care of the receiving stations, creameries, milk and ice cream plants to keep them immaculate—would be lost without rapid, unfailing transportation.

Deliveries, often several times daily, are made to more than three thousand Tait Bros dealers. Cabinets for Venetian and Guest Ice Creams are furnished, and dealers see that their supplies are fresh and properly iced at all times.

Tait Bros Standards permit no compromise. Milk and cream is never hauled long distances in open trucks without ice, and Tait Bros pledge of purity, quality and cleanliness has no reservations.

MAN DROWNED NEAR NEW LONDON WAS BURIED UNIDENTIFIED

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 13.—It is said today that the proposal of the city council to buy land at Main street and Crystal avenue, in order to remove the danger that exists at a blind corner has not been abandoned. The city proposes to buy a portion of the land there, but it is adverse to taking all that was offered, though the council once voted to buy the property at a price of $5,000. Then it developed that the occupant of a store there has a lease that has yet three and a half years to run and with that encumbrance the city would buy. It is agreeable to taking 14 feet on Main street, the land running back to the cove, at a proportional price of the entire tract. This arrangement does not seem to be satisfactory to the owner of the land.

The police court will have two cases in which an attempt to kill is alleged when it convenes Saturday morning. One of the cases occurred at East New London where a man shot at Policeman Ray when his arrest was sought and the other was in the Fort Neck section when a shooting and cutting affray took place.

New London lodge of Elks is soon to begin a drive for a fund to meet the expenses of their charity department. The drive will go on for some six weeks.

The officials of the enforcement department of the treasury whose duty it is to seek out violators of the Volstead act have been unusually quiet of late. Their last job of consequence was when they seized the liquor on a small craft that went ashore at Fisher's Island. The liquor then confiscated is understood to be stored in the custom house, but the case has not yet got to the courts. Then the owner of the Bayside Inn at Noank was grabbed when he was on the road with a quantity of liquor in his automobile, and that case too has yet to get into the common pleas court to which it was appealed when Louis Weld, a former state policeman, who is the owner of the inn and who is the man found with the liquor was in the police court here. The seizure was made at the bridge crossing the Thames.

One of the shrewdest investors in New London phophesies the withdrawal of trolley cars from the streets within the next five years. He is of the opinion that the buses will drive them away and take the business that now goes to the street cars. Pointing out that the buses can do the business of the trolleys at a price below what is now ruling and that they can do the work of cars so much quicker than it is now done. He points out that the buses have no rails to place and replace, that they have no overhead wires and no expense for the care of any portion of the highway.

Hedden reported to the police last night that while he was standing on State street, at the corner of Green street, to board a trolley car, an automobile bearing registration 137-187, backed from alongside the curb and struck him. He was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. There is more superstition connected with St. John's wort than with most any other flower. It was formerly gathered on St. John's eve and was hung at the doors and windows as a safeguard against thunder and evil spirits. A belief prevailed that on this night the soul had power to leave the body and visit the spot where it would be finally summoned from its earthly habitation. GERMAN VIEWS OF BALDWIN'S STATEMENT

Berlin, July 13.—(By the A. P.)—Extreme caution and a pronounced desire not to be brusque to France or force her to show her hand appear to have been the motives which inspired the British prime minister's statement in the house of commons yesterday, according to the view entertained in German official quarters, where the statement is frankly appraised as a sympathetic utterance and one destined to have an early and perhaps decisive bearing on the Ruhr impasse.

Although Premier Baldwin failed to make specific reference to such issues as termination of the passive resistance, intervention by the league of nations or the American suggestion of an international commission of inquiry, German foreign office opinion, as informally expressed, reflects appreciation of the outspoken manner in which the British statesman stressed the economic aspects of the situation, as well as his declaration that the Ruhr occupation should be ended as soon as possible.

"While temporarily postponing active procedure by the entente," Mr. Baldwin's statement nevertheless contributes to revivifying the stagnating reparation discussions," declared one foreign office official, speaking in the absence of Foreign Minister Baron Von Rosenberg, who is on a holiday in Bavaria.

This official added that, pending receipt of the note which the English government has volunteered to draft, the German government could not undertake decisive steps and was compelled to continue its "diplomatic passive resistance," until the path to the next conference chamber has been cleared.

NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Norwich people had plenty of worries along with a number of joys in 1873 and the files of the Bulletin show some of them to be as follows:

Monday, July 7, 1873—Norwich is in the grip of a drought that is causing laying to waste all of the crops around the city. It has been over three weeks since rain has fallen and fields that were seared because of the drought are now black and meadows that gave hopes of a hay crop will disappoint expectations entirely.

Potatoes are shriveling up under the intense heat like the foliage of a burnt forest and the corn curls up to keep out of the rays of the sun. Cabbage plants have gone into the ground and tobacco crops are ruined. The drough is also effecting the mills around for they can not operate only half time because of the extremely low water.

At the north there have been some showers, even as near as Plainfield but there are many parts including Preston, a part of Norwich, Lisbon, Sprague and so westward, where there has not been a drop of rain since the 13th of last May.

Farmers realizing that they must get in crops to feed their stock are cutting the hay now dropping the finger-bar of the mowing machines to the ground instead of holding them two inches off the soil. Everything is being done to avert calamity, and people are eagerly looking for rain before all is lost.

The Norwich Advertiser in a recent story tells of the terrible condition of the New London Northern railroad, how accidents have been numerous, and that all the old and trusted men on the line have resigned for fear of accidents endangering their lives.

This story has proven false and we have learned that numerous side tracks are being laid to accommodate trains and that new rolling stock has been purchased. Nearly all the old conductors are back on the line and it is evident that the management of the line will take care of the passengers in the future. The sum of $400,000 has been set aside for repairing the line and the work is being pushed as rapidly as possible.

Tuesday, July 8, 1873—One of the most striking illustrations of "the eternal fitness of things," was seen in a load of express matter taken from the office of the Adams express company yesterday. It consisted of two barrels of whiskey accompanied by two sets of gravestones. Verily, they go well together.

A handsome silver cup was offered as a prize for the quarter-of-a-mile handicap of the Hartford Caledonian club, by Messrs. Hislop, Porteous & Mitchell, of this city, who formerly did business in that city.

The report of Chief Engineer Carsier made to the common council last evening shows the department apparatus to be as follows: 3 steamers, 5 four-wheel hose carriages, 3 two-wheel jumpers, 1 hook and ladder truck, 1 hand engine and 8,000 feet of hose. S. L. Geer also petitioned to erect some coal houses on his property on Thames street. An ordinance was also passed at the meeting changing the closing time for billiard parlors and saloons where lager is sold from 11 o'clock until midnight.

Wednesday, July 9, 1873—A man in this city is working upon the problem of multiplying nine times nine and so on, using each succeeding product as its own multiplier until the operation was performed nine times. He figures that he can do it in about three months. When we take into consideration the magnitude of the sum and the large number of figures required to work it out we consider that it is a good day's undertaking. It requires upwards of ninety thousand figures to go the same correctly and the last product would number 1,048 figures which allowing 15 figures to the inch, would be a string of five feet and 33-36ths of a foot in length.

A $5,000 check was dropped in the contribution box in a church in this city a short time ago and the man who passed the platter fainted when he saw it.

Selden, in behalf of the class, presented to Senator Buckingham for the Academy a cast in plaster of the "Acropolis of Athens As It Now Stands."

Two months ago yesterday ground was broken for the new Congregational church on the Williams lot between Broadway and Crescent street and yesterday afternoon the cornerstone was laid with appropriate exercises, all clergymen in the city taking part. The Academy baseball nine defeated the Muffins in the first game of a series for the junior champion bat.

Saturday, July 12, 1873—A single scull race came off at the dock Thursday evening between John Cyrill and James Garrity for $20. The race was easily won by Garrity.

A slight rain fell yesterday afternoon which effectively laid the dust, but was not of sufficient proportion to help vegetation to any great extent. It was the first rain Norwich has seen since May 14th, nearly two months ago.

Pulls Uncle Sam Out Of Family Debt

Col. H. C. Smither, of the U. S. A., who is responsible for pulling this country out of debt. He is America's greatest saver and is officially known as the Chief Coordinator of the U. S. Government. During the year in which he has held this post, his handling of Federal appropriations has been almost miraculous. Eleven months ago it was estimated there would be a deficit of from $500,000,000 to $800,000,000. This has been eliminated and in its place is a very comfortable cash surplus. His task has been one of monumental proportions requiring the hardest and closest sort of work.

Life Needs Us All

There is so much that we can do—
A kind word spoken here and there
Will ease another's weight of care.
Life needs us all. The splendid few
Who rise to fame, with all their skill
Your zeal and mine can never fill.

If we who have not wealth or fame
Should fail in our little deeds,
The world would sink beneath its needs.
Not by the greatness of a name,
Nor by the splendor of success,
Are hearts restored to happiness.

About us all are those who need
The gifts which we have power to give;
We can be friendly while we live,
And by some thoughtful, kindly deed
Can help another on his way—
And that is service, come what may.

What though we miss the heights of skill,
The splendor of the greater few,
There is so much that we can do.
There is a place that we can fill—
Always about us while we live
Are those who need what we can give.

THE SOLDIERS' PARTING HYMN

A Canadian paper says that when the regiments bound for the war were leaving Belleville the band played the familiar strain of the old hymn, "Abide With Me."

"Abide with me, fast falls the even tide."
Keep safe my loved ones—be their strength and guide.
I never more my own dear land I see,
O Lord, who changest not, abide with me.

The life I have to live, it is my all—
And God be with me if I live or fall,
When other helpers fail and comforts flee
Help of the helpless, O Lord, abide with me.

Shall to its close ebb out life's little day,
Dear hearts, forget me not when far away
Upon the battlefield, upon the sea,
Whate'er my fate, O Lord, abide with me.

So breathed the sad strains of the parting Hymn,
Farewells were said, and eyes with tears grew dim;
"Abide with me"—a prayer it seemed to be—
"In life, in death, O Lord, abide with me."

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS.

July 16.—Picnic at Wildwood Park above Danielson for Corner Members.

VERSAILLES STILL ON THE MAP

Dear Cornerites: Time for me to add my mite to The Corner. First, I want to thank those who sent me cards. I had several.

E. L. M.: Wish I knew your birthday. I know we come near together.

Was greatly interested in Jennie's and Sister Ready's letters on our annual picnic. Perhaps no one there was more interested in that picnic than Sister Ready, meeting many for the first time since childhood and finding out who was who in our old home.

As I left the car I looked back farther up the hill to see the little house where three happy years were spent, thought of the time other children now gone from the place and myself used to go back and forth to church and school in winter, taking our sleds and sliding nearly to the schoolhouse. While eating our dinner I could see the table set almost in the same position for the strawberry suppers, and oh such suppers! for Versailles was noted in those days for its good cooks. The mail help would come right from the mill, have supper, then go home and dress for the entertainment.

Then on Sundays after meeting and Sunday school, would drive with father to Baltic for service. There was where Aunty No. 1, Biddy, Polly Wintergreen, Bugsful and others became fast friends and have been drawn during all these years.

I wonder how many of the sisters, while sitting on those steps waiting for the horse to be hitched, knew they were within a little more than a stone's throw of where Jerry-the-time-bug once read about a short time ago in The Corner—made his headquarters as he passed through the town. How we children would run by the place when he was there, while the boys would bother him until he would chase them with a stick.

We have been told never to look backward, but ever forward, I confess since our annual picnic I have been looking backward over tender memories; they are sweet memories.

Yes, Student, Versailles is still on the map, and we have you and your helpers to thank for that lovely day and trust you were not sick afterward. Dear Auntie, I would like to meet there again.

Eatery Ivorwode: Let us have a word from you, and many others that are silent so long.

Best wishes for The Corner.

GRACE.

AFRAID OF WASH TUB

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: The business of the dry cleaners is booming, and all because so many people are afraid of the wash tub.

"I am sure it won't wash," they say, and off goes the garment to be cleaned. I first learned wash-tub courage from a friend who washed everything, from georgette evening gowns to her husband's suits; and, strangely enough, she never had a failure.

It is soaps used the wrong way and rubbed directly on the fine materials—that spoils things.

Preparations should begin the day before when a soap lather should be made. Shred the soap very fine, and is preferable for delicate fabrics—and cover with boiling water. This will cool into a jelly that can be used a handful at a time as required.

The water should never be too hot, and the garments should be squeezed, but never twisted, in the water. Two or three rinsings should be given, and after wringing in the hands the garments should be dried as rapidly as possible.

A man's suit can be washed like this, and if ironed beneath a damp cloth will look as good as new.

This is the season for making cider-downs, which should be treated as above, with the addition of a handful of salt in washing and rinsing to prevent the colors running.

Am sending a recipe for cold slaw:

Cold Slaw: One cup vinegar, 4 eggs, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon flour, 1 teaspoon mustard (prepared preferred). Let vinegar and sugar come to a boil and add beaten eggs slowly, then flour wet with a little later, then mustard and a small piece of butter. Before using for slaw, add sweet cream to thin.

Clove Cake: Here is also a recipe for a quickly made clove cake: One pound of brown sugar, 1 pound of flour, 1 pound of raisins, 1-2 pound butter, 1 cup of milk, 2 large teaspoons baking powder, stirred well into the flour, 1 tablespoon of cloves, 1 tablespoon of cinnamon, 1 tablespoon of nutmeg, 4 eggs. Chop the raisins. (For lesser quantity divide proportionately.) Will make two loaves.

CENTURY PLANT.

FROM A RAINY DAY COOK BOOK.

Dear Friends: Did I ever write you about my "rainy day cook book?" Nearly every housekeeper has one and it is far better to be prepared for an emergency than to be caught without adequate provision for the occasion, for the occasion demands something to be made almost as the ancient Israelites made their bricks—without the ingredients that are necessary to success.

To meet such emergencies I have also my rainy day shelf as well as the rainy day book book, the recipes of which I use only on rainy days. My staples on this shelf are carefully reserved at the first moderation of the special pressure, whatever it may be. Moreover, the supplies are invariably replaced by fresh goods every two weeks, save in the case of articles which are proof against deterioration in quality. My list of staples includes potatoes, four quarts, cornmeal, three pounds, crackers one pound, salt pork one-half pound, onions one quart, sardines two boxes, rice one pound, sliced bacon small jar, jar of dried beef, jar of nut butter.

Here is one of my rainy day recipes which have been frequently tried and their value has been proved:

Smothered Potatoes: Slice two onions and fry them in bacon fat, being careful not to let it scorch. Add three or four potatoes which have been boiled. Stir carefully. Add one quart of milk or milk and water. Salt to taste. Thicken with two level tablespoons of flour mixed smooth with water. Cover the vessel in which they are cooking closely and remove it to a part of the stove where there is no danger of contents burning long steamed or baked instead of a hurried cooking.

ETHELYN

DOING HER BIT

Dear Corner Sisters: Feeling that I must do my bit, and that Mrs. Suze is right when she says there are too few letters, I will send to the Corner this week two recipes I like:

Summer Squash and Onions: Wash 2 summer squash and remove the seeds. Dice and measure (there should be 2 quarts). Melt 4 tablespoons butter in a stewing kettle, add 1 cup minced white onions and cook until the onions are a light brown color. Then add the squash, 2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper. Cover the kettle and allow the mixture to cook over a low flame without stirring for 15 minutes. Then continue cooking for 30 minutes, stirring frequently to prevent burning. Sprinkle the squash with paprika when ready to serve.

Halibut Steak and Milk—Three halibut steaks, about 1 pound each; 3-4 cups flour; 4 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 2 medium sized Bermuda onions, 6 strips bacon, 1 1-2 cups milk, 3 tablespoons vegetable oil. Sprinkle the steaks with pepper and salt and dredge with flour. Place the steaks in a dripping pan, cover with the milk and put in an over registering 350 degrees F. Meanwhile cut the onions into thick slices and fry in oil until a delicate brown, keeping each slice in one whole piece, if possible. After the fish has baked for ten minutes, remove from the oven and cover the slices with the browned bacon across each piece of fish. Return to oven and continue baking until fish is done—about ten or fifteen minutes. Serve garnished with tomatoes cut in sections.

Best wishes for the Corner.

MARY J.

WHY NOT WRITE?

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I had not intended writing again so soon but when I opened the paper a week ago Saturday and saw half of our page given up to an advertisement which read—Men, Men, Men—the thought occurred to me that it should have read, Women, Women, Women.

They still make pens, they still make ink, and paper, too, so you needn't think that we have moved—Now Honor Bright, what's the reason you never write?

Student: I wish to say I enjoyed every minute of the day at the picnic at Versailles. The dinner was excellent, the programm was fine, and you proved a charming hostess. It was an ideal spot and I presume a sacred one to a great many of you who have witnessed your baptisms, weddings, their and cherish the hallowed memory of the dear ones gone before. It is my intention to attend service there in the near future.

Now I wish to thank the editor for the yellow slip. I was very happily surprised.

I also want to tell what I did with it. I purchased a fancy work basket, something I can always keep as a memento of the many nice people I have met, and the social meetings I have enjoyed, since becoming a member.

Chelsea: Call at my house some afternoon and I will teach you to make monkey faces.

With success to the corner I remain.

TRUE BLUE. (Nov. 11.)

MAKING OVER DRESSES.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Dressing well is not nearly so much a matter of money as it is of knowing how, and the knack of making over one season's clothes for another is one of the chief assets.

This season the styles are peculiarly well adapted to the making over process because they allow for three distinct silhouettes, the long, straight line of the past several seasons, of extreme simplicity, the draperies and the full-skirted models with much trimming.

There are a few inexorable rules to follow in regard to making over. Never undertake to make over material that a thorough cleaning, pressing and turning do not make look like new. A successful "made over" never looks a made over. On the other hand, let's making what can be done with seemingly impossible materials.

Always determine upon a model that requires as little extra expense as possible. It rarely pays to buy much that is now to go with what is old, although there are exceptions to this rule. Also choose a model for reproduction that involves as little cutting up of the original as possible. Yet keep in mind the fact that you can dare to be original with used material when with new you would hesitate to experiment.

For example, suppose we make two last year's frocks into one up-to-the-moment creation. Let us say you have a dark blue tricotine of straight line and long, fitter sleeves, but with a slightly full skirt portion, and a tan or gray slip-on tricotine with short sleeves. There are innumerable ways of combining them, but the easiest would be to make a Directoire model, using the dark blue for the coat over-dress and the gray or tan underneath as a foundation.

Simply slash the blue blouse up from the waistline, moving the gathers along where it is attached to the skirt, giving an inverted V-shape, facing the edges and disclosing the gray or tan tricotine beneath. Cut the blue skirt up in the same way, moving the fullness to either side and facing the edges of the blue with gray material cut from the back of the gray blouse.

Remove the gray sleeves entirely and cut them into gauntlet cuffs for the sleeves and a Peter Pan collar for the neck. The result of a little work is a dress that bears no resemblance to either of the original frocks.

PINOX.

EFFICIENCY SYSTEMS.

Dear Sisters: Our page has lacked so much of being filled recently that I am sending some of my views in regard to efficiency system as applied in shops, stores and schools.

I think the efficiency system idea must have been conceived by some college president or high school principal after seeing the ever increasing number of young people pass through the institutions of learning each year, and practically demanding a chance to earn (or get) their livelihood without soiling their hands. And so several can become efficiency experts, and if employed in factories can stand with a stop watch and time an employe down to the half minute for certain operations, very little allowance being made for changing conditions such as the stock to work with running bad, or a dark day and lights poorly placed. Never mind, the operator must keep up the speed and not lose even a half minute while the expert of high salary wastes hours visiting and having a good time.

In the schools my experience has been with the working out of the system in the country schools, when under the old fashioned district management teachers were doing good work and getting scholars ready for high school in due season. Then came the state supervisor with the system all changed. A plan book must be kept with strict record of what the next day's lessons are to be. And remember to tell what your aim is in teaching that two and two are four. Then there are numerous charts to be printed by hand, also poems printed for the little ones.

Result: That the honest, conscientious teacher, sits up until 12 o'clock or past to get her work done. While the pretty looking little last year's normal graduate, can wink at the supervisor and usually "gets by" without doing all the tasks he sets. And so whether it be school, mill or store, the faithful, conscientious employes, who was trained to do quality service, is being driven to frenzy, while the unscrupulous employe is turning out quantities of work regardless of quality, and will perhaps be promoted to being one of the arms of the system octupus.

True efficiency in moderate doses is good of course.

But beware of the false brand.

ARRANGING CUT FLOWERS

Dear Sisters: When filling big jars with armfuls of such delicious things as Canterbury bells, sweet Williams, delphiniums, and giant red poppies, and daisies from the herbaceous border, remember to put some good-sized knobs of charcoal into each jar to keep the water sweet. Then it will only be necessary to fill up the jars daily (the herbaceous things drink such a lot of water), instead of having to wash out the jars at least every other day—a heavy and tedious task, which one is glad to avoid.

When filling up delicate specimen vases of roses or other choice flowers try the tip given me by a Japanese girl and use a tea-pot for the purpose—the short, curved spout is far better than any jug ever invented.

A big tea-pot, with a large jug at hand, from which to replenish it, is equally useful when watering ferns and pot plants, or filling up vases on the dinner table.

For a rather deep bowl a good plan is to place a small oranged piece of rather small-meshed wire netting into the bottom of the bowl, concealing it with a few short sprays of green before arranging the flowers.

When arranging a wide bowl of roses, first fill the bowl with short twiggy sprays of rose-bush foliage. This enables one to get them to stand up a little higher in the centre of the bowl than at the edges—a result often impossible to obtain without some sort of support.

Where a very large bowl is in question it is sometimes a useful "tip" to stand a smaller bowl in the middle of the wide one. This makes it easy to arrange, when both bowls have been first filled with foliage.

MARTHA.

GREETINGS FROM SCOTTIE.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: How are you all after the annual picnic at Versailles? The day was very hot but it was such a nice cool place where dinner was served that we had a very nice time.

Thanks and Practical Polly: Hope you got home safe before dark.

Jeanie: I think you are brave and interested to come so far. Did you find Keziah Doolittle that day? Wasn't that big cake that Sister Ready made for the clubs, with the club colors and decorations, very nice? It looked like a wedding cake. It seemed too bad to cut into it, but we all wanted a piece, and got it, and it was good.

Necia: Where are you this nice weather.

True Blue: Hope to meet you again and have a nice little chat.

Chelsea: Hope you are not faint-hearted. Come, follow suit.

I am sending a recipe for

Fudge Cookies: One-half cup butter, one and one-fourth cup brown sugar, one egg, one-half cup sweet milk, two squares chocolate, melted, one-half pound walnuts, chopped, one cup of flour or more, one teaspoon soda, two cups of flour or more. Bake in moderate oven. Try them; very good.

CARING FOR RUBBER GOODS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Rubber good are expensive, and deteriorate more or less whether used or not. Since every household possesses some rubber things it is well to remember that the manner in which they are stored when not in use has much to do with lengthening or shortening their usefulness. Choose a cool and rather damp place for storage. Rubber kept where it is dry and hot will crack in a short time and become useless. The cellarway of the average country home is usually both a good and a convenient place for keeping rubber goods. Arrange a sufficient number of handy hooks and pockets.

Rubber boots and coats may be hung up out of the way. Rubber gloves, bathing caps and the like may be placed in wall pockets. Here should be kept hot water bottles if they are to serve a reasonable term of usefulness. Sometimes rubber caps, gloves and bottles collapse and the sides stick together so persistently that they are torn in the process of separating them. To prevent this keep a can of talcum powder or corn starch at hand and sprinkle a little inside the garment before laying it away. This prevents the adhering of the sides.

CUTE THINGS CHILDREN SAY AND DO.

Dear Friends: Seems to me the Social Corner Sisters are "falling down on the job" but I can't talk about others for I have been silent a long time. I have the same old excuse—"I've been too busy." And that reminds me of a little four-year-old girl who lived near me. She would run in and out of the house twenty times a day if I allowed her to. Whenever she came in and I did not want to bother with her (she was always looking in boxes or anything else handy) I would say "Run out now E——, I am busy." She would go and ten minutes later would "pop in" again. One day I was writing a letter and she came in and I told her to "run out," etc., and she shut the door with a bang, then opened it a crack and said, "Busy, busy, busy." So I think if I don't get another excuse for not having written the sisters will say as E—— did.

Our boy has passed his second birthday and he is a "lively one," and wants to be doing something every minute. He talks very plain and says and does such cute things. He is very fond of cows and likes to look at pictures of cows. One night his grandpa took him to the barn to see the cows after they had gone to bed and it was hard to make him believe the cows had gone to bed. He seemed to think the cows should have beds, just like his bed.

One night his grandpa was sprinkling the lawn with the hose and Richard wanted to help, which he was allowed to do. Before he finished the job he sprinkled grandpa and did it so quickly grandpa didn't have time to dodge it and he had to change his clothes. Richard has always wanted to do whatever he saw the older ones doing, and last winter every time his daddy went out to make paths in the snow Richard would go out with his tiny spade and hoe and "help daddy."

Now I must stop but when I get started talking or writing about our boy I could go on for an hour. I wish more of the sisters would write of the cute things the "kiddies say and do."

THE SEASON OF THE ROSE

Dear Corner Members: Did anyone ever see a more beautiful rainbow than the one after the heavy shower on June 26th? Being so bright, it seemed like so many different colored ribbons stretched across the sky.

As it is now the season of the roses I am reminded of the following verse about the rose:

"The rose is fairest when 'tis budding new,
And hope is brightest when it dawns from fears;
The rose is sweetest washed with morning dew,
And love is loveliest when embalmed in tears.
I bid your blossoms in my bonnet wave,
Emblem of hope and love through future years."

It is some years since I found this and I never learned who was the author, but it sound quite old fashioned, does it not?

When the summer is over we will hope to see more letters in the Corner page.

Best wishes to all,

HEPATICA.

FRUIT CAKE READY FOR PICNIC.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: The fruit cake is all made ready for the picnic of club No. 4 at Wildwood park. I am looking forward to meeting again many I have met before. I want to tell Rural Delivery how much I enjoyed her letter giving a description of her trip to the Pacific. Wish I might be lucky enough to go sometime. I have friends and relatives in California and my uncle framed the first house built in Sacramento City many years ago.

That was before the railroad was built. He made the trip overland, and it took many weeks then. Now all is changed. Autos go in a short time and airplanes in a few hours.

Verily the world is moving.

SOME FINE TIPS ON SALADS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am sending in a few salads.

Apples, cherry, and grapefruit combine well. I find by removing the pith from the shaddock or grapefruit I can serve it in very large pieces and like it so much better than the small pieces.

A quick and easy way to prepare this fruit is to cut it in halves and scoop out the contents with a spoon.

I make a salad from the large Californian variety which is simply delicious. I split each cherry open, remove the stone, and a blanched hazel nut is tucked in the place of the pit. I serve three or four of these cherries on a lettuce leaf with French dressing.

White grapes make a dainty and inexpensive salad. I find by using a very sharp knife you can cut the grapes open so the edges will be smooth. Remove the seeds from the grapes, then put a portion of walnut or pecan nut inside and serve on a heart of lemon, with a dressing made of oil, a little lemon juice and a suspicion of salt.

I make a salad that is charming to the eye, as well as delicious to the palate. I make this with white grapes. Remove seeds of white grapes, fill them with nuts, then take your grapefruit and remove all pulp and fill the grapefruit with the grapes. Now arrange the shells on lettuce leaves. The dressing I use is mayonnaise without mustard.

For a really unusual fruit salad, there is a lemon jelly salad. I make this the night before with galatine. Take small cups, rinse out with cold water and pour the liquid jelly into them. When the liquid begins to set, drop into it a half dozen pieces of fruit, say of orange, banana and white grapes. To serve this salad, have a little mound of lettuce hearts on each plate, and turn one of the jelly forms upon it. On each jelly form put a tablespoon of mayonnaise (without mustard). Sometimes I make a dessert of this dish by mixing cream cheese with raspberry jelly, straining the seeds out of it. I warm the jelly to soften it. Then make small bread and butter sandwiches, neatly turned, of course. Sometimes I serve with little toasted water crackers. I also make this same lemon jelly salad by dropping pecan nuts in the jelly in place of fruits.

I make a yellow and red banana salad with nut meats, and grapefruit. I take half of a banana cut it in slices and then put on a heaping tablespoon of grapefruit pulp. Heap this up in a little nest of green on a plate.

Here is another salad that I think is exquisite. Take a banana, red or yellow, dip in French dressing and roll in peanuts that have been ground in the meat chopper. This I serve with more of a dressing, poured over it, substitute lemon juice for vinegar and using one-fourth as much oil as I have lemon juice, and I put in just enough seasoning to make it palatable.

A simple half of an orange, cut up, with pith and seeds removed, and served on lettuce with French or oil dressing make a salad for the home table that is not to be despised. When the little sweet blood oranges are used for it they give a flavor all their own.

Orange and grapefruit rinds make attractive little bowls for many kinds of fruit salads.

I have used lemon skins when I have had large lemons. A great many times I run my pinking iron around the top. That prinps the edge so you can use your scissors.

In my vegetable salads I put celery, beets and cucumbers with mayonnaise.

I have a friend who is a chef and he makes a salad, a combination of orange, grapefruit, pineapple and tangerine pulp in a single salad. This is his own invention. This he served with the juices of the four fruits, without other additions.

About two tablespoons of pulp were heaped up in the center of a nest of white lettuce leaves for each portion.

I make what I call a novel salad. Take some sprigs of watercress and arrange them on a plate, and on these lay a thick slice cut from the circumference of an orange. I dress this with oil and lemon juice. If I want something extra I put two or three walnut meats on the top of the circles.

One important fact about fruit salad is to be sure everything which goes into the making of the salad is thoroughly cold. Another point, when serving such salads on lettuce is to use the freshest and most delicate heart lettuce.

STILL ENJOYING THE CORNER.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It has been a long time since I sent in my mite but am still reading the Corner letters and enjoy them very much. I was quite pleased with what the sister wrote about making things out of "nothing." Now I quite often do that and nearly always have good success. Am now making an afternoon dress out of the same "nothing" and I think it will be all right.

If it is not too late should like to thank Keziah Doolittle for the Easter card. "Better late than never."

Isadore: Have not seen anything from you in a long time. Hope you have not forgotten the Virginia reel.

WENT TO SCHOOL IN LEBANON

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Corner: Hope you all had a jolly Fourth.

Now I wonder who Silver Locks is. I went to Mr. Edward Hinckley two terms in Lebanon, one down by the Congregational church. We used to recite once in the town hall. The other time I went to Sarah Peckham in the little white school house up by the Baptist church in Lebanon. I have known Mr. Gillette's widow and sister ever since I was a little girl. They are old friends.

Kitty Lou: Thank you for your kind words. I certainly appreciate them.

Best wishes to all.

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY

Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Other Mothers

Windom, Minn.—"I was so run-down that I was just good for nothing. I was to become the mother of my ninth child, and I thought I did not have the strength to go through with it. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has surely done all I could ask it to do and I say, telling all my friends about it. I have a nice big baby girl and am feeling fine. You may use this letter to help other sick mothers."—Mrs. C. A. Morse, Box 634, Windom, Minn.

My First Child

Glen Allen, Ala.—"I have been greatly benefited by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for bearing-down feelings and pains. I was troubled in this way for nearly four years following the birth of my first child, and at times could hardly stand on my feet. A neighbor recommended the Vegetable Compound to me after I had taken doctor's medicines without much benefit. It has relieved my pains and given me strength. I recommend it and give you permission to use my testimonial letter."—Mrs. Ina Ayer, Glen Allen, Alabama.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

ELKS.

In the dress parade and competitive maneuvers of the drill teams attending the 58th annual reunion of the Benevolent and protective Order of Elks at Atlanta, the Whittington Zouaves of Jackson, Mich., present holders of the trophy, again won the first prize. Buffalo, N. Y., was second with 85 per cent. and San Antonio, Texas, third with 84.2. White Plains, N. Y., Detroit, Mich., and Rochester, N. Y., followed.

The annual report of Grand Secretary Fred Robinson showed that the order now has a membership of 826,525, an increase of 14,188 since the last meeting. Fifteen new lodges were chartered during the year, making the last numbered lodge 1,470.

Total income for the year ended May 31 last was given as $413,302.75 a net gain over expenses of $107,428 and the total assets of the grand lodge were placed at $1,099,012.25.

The Elks have four lodges in Alaska with a membership of 1,734. Lodges also have been formed in the canal zone at Agana, Guam; two in Hawaii territory and one each in the Philippines and Porto Rico. The Brooklyn, N. Y., lodge leads in membership with 11,636.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS.

Raymond W. Harris Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of Bridgeport contemplates sending Andrew T. Hollinger, champion bugler of the United States, to the 24th annual encampment of the overseas organization to be held in Norfolk, in August. Hollinger was official bugler to President Wilson during the early days of the war.

MASONIC.

At the blue lodge summer outing July 28 at Momanguin the big feed will happen about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. A grand spectacular thing it will be to see thousands of Masons all seated and served by an army of waiters.

A special programme has been scheduled for the ladies. Beginning about 4.30 o'clock, D. S. T., to a midnight hour, every minute will be occupied with entertainment of the best kind. Band concert, eight high class Broadway vaudeville acts, fireworks, moving pictures, etc.

This affair is sponsored by the cut and a committee of 60 members representing different clubs throughout the state have been actively engaged in perfecting the details of their plans for the past six weeks. The executive chairman is C. W. Childs of Olive Branch lodge and the executive secretary is John Scott of Wooster lodge.

This is the second annual event of its kind, and when the idea was originated and introduced by Mr. Childs, it was generally evvepted with much enthusiasm about the entire state. Because of the remarkable impression created by the result of this affair in 1922, that will long be remembered by thousands of Masons who attended, the committee is determined to make this one "bigger and better"—an occasion unprecedented by Masonic accomplishments of this nature.

FORESTERS.

At a well attended meeting of Court City of Norwich, No. 63, held Tuesday night, it was voted that the parade and entertainment held June 30th was a great success and advertisement for the court as nine candidates were initiated and twelve applications were received at this meeting and more were promised. The entertainment committee is making plans to join with all the courts in eastern Connecticut for a big field day and an old fashioned clambake with all the fixin's. All members will be notified when and where it will be and it will be the biggest and best time the Foresters ever had in this part of the state. All kinds of amusements including baseball games between the seven or eight courts present, will furnish plenty of excitement. All are welcome — the merrier.

MOOSEHEART LEGION.

Women of Mooseheart Legion, Norwich Chapter, No. 124, held its regular meeting at Moose home Thursday evening with Sister Rose Carter presiding. There was a good attendance and regular routine of business was transacted. The annual picnic of the lodge will be held Friday, July 20, at Happyland, further particulars to be published later.

SUMMER HINTS FOR DIET AND CLOTHING

Summer suggestions for diet and clothing are offered as follows by the Connecticut department of health.

The heat from the sun on a hot summer day makes the majority of us at times uncomfortable, and we immediately seek relief in the way of cooling beverages and wonder what we can eat to make us less uncomfortable. The body heat is regulated in many ways so that we may normally stand the heat of 100 degrees F or zero weather in winter, with proper clothing, and so carefully is the regulation of body heat conducted that little injury is received by such extreme temperatures.

We can do a great deal toward being comfortable during the hot weather by wearing clothing light in weight, coarse in texture, and light in color. In general, dark colored clothes retain more heat than light material of the same texture and weight.

Do not blame the sun for all your discomforts in the summer time, if you eat the same food in the icy blasts of January and the heat of July. The mere thought of a plateful of wheat cakes, with a plentiful supply of maple syrup and butter on the side, or a dish of baked beans, even so carefully prepared Boston standard, makes you hot; while the sight of a large slice of delicious red watermelon just off the ice is like a cool breeze. But this is only the psychology of it. Important a factor as this may be in this matter, that has not the sustained influence as has food actually eaten. Apropos of the wheat cake, baked bean diet, these make a great demand on the digestive system, taxing its powers in prolonged effort. Summer is the time for vacations, and less strenuous working days. Why not give the digestive system a little "time off" by arranging for it shorter hours? It is a pity it does not oftener go on a strike for shorter hours and less work. What with the large, rich and heavy meals and its in-between-times haze of peanuts, candy and ice-cream sodas —but, as Kipling says, that is another story.

Let us consider the hot day with the temperature mounting to the eighties or nineties, and the tired business man. What shall he eat? He must take energy for his days work. Doubtless his energy will be reduced somewhat as the mercury creeps up, so his food can also be reduced. Instead of the three or four slices of bread and butter with each meal half this will be sufficient. Sugar, starchy foods and fats are the energy foods. With less expenditures of energy, or in other words with lessened activity, all these may be reduced in quantity. When the food intake exceeds the energy demands, the excess is stored as extra fat. Extra weight beyond the normal means an added load to carry about. In summer is the time to lighten the load rather than increase it.

The meats and protein foods in hot weather can be safely and wisely cut down. A certain minimum is reuired to keep up the body need for nitrogen but this can be met by milk and eggs and some fish instead of the heavier meats. It is a well-known fact that an excess of protein marks a perceptible rise in temperature. A group of girls was fed on a diet containing a very high per cent. of protein. This resulted in a pronounced rise in temperature, which fell only when the protein was again reduced. So the summer diet should have less meat, and not an excess of protein.

Nature is rather wonderful in providing for man's need. In the summer months she lavishly supplies green vegetables and fruits. There is no limit to the amount of these that may be taken—except, perhaps, the pocketbook. These provide valuable mineral salts, iron, calcium and phosphorous, as well as the essential vitamins, all of which lend their aid to the proper functioning of the body. The fruits and vegetables are refreshing because of their large water content. They add to man's well-being since water is continually being lost through evaporation.

Not all men conform to the same working habits each day. Some are necessarily active, others of sedentary habits, so the apportioning of their food cannot follow a thumb-rule. It is well for the hearty breakfast to make way for a lighter one in the summer-time. Always some fruit or berries, a dish of cereal—perhaps of the ready-to-eat variety, such as shredded wheat—with milk, buttered toast and coffee,—this is an ideal combination. Some bacon or an egg may be added for the actively engaged man. For lunch which should be taken leisurely, a salad or vegetables, glass of milk and bread, or a bowl of bread and milk will send the busy man back to his desk feeling fit for the two or three hours of work still to be turned off. For dinner, may come that reduced portion of meat, or in place of it a glass of milk or cheese, one potato instead of two, a plentiful supply of vegetables, such as carrots, spinach, string beans, or a salad, topping it with ice cream or a light milk or fruit dessert, which should replace the heavy puddings or pies of the winter diet.

You men at the desk—try some of these changes in your summer diet. You will find your brain clearer for your work, and your steps lighter when it is time to catch the car.

Those who entered the church through a window in the rear, the night before the Fourth, and got no response when they pulled the bell rope, cut it in pieces and thus destroyed it.

Much grass here which should have been cut before this is still standing because of the need of help to harvest it. It seems impossible to get men to work on farms.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

STOCK PRICES RALLY

New York, July 13—Friday the 13th did not have any superstitious effect on buyers of stocks, prices of which rallied briskly in today's late dealings after having drifted aimlessly most of the day. It was the first real spurt in nearly two weeks and carried a number of the leaders 2 or more points above yesterday's closing prices.

While an overnight study of Premier Baldwin's speech had dissipated some of the pessimism aroused by the garbled summary published by ticker serves in the financial district yesterday, the turn of the market did not appear to be influenced by any news developments. Three months of reactionary prices, with but few conclusive rallies, had resulted in the building up of a large short interest so that there was a scramble to cover when signs of good buying appeared.

Net gains of 2 to nearly 3 points were registered by such prominent issues as Baldwin and American Locomotives, American Car & Foundry, American Can, Corn Products, Dupont, Venadium steel and Woolworth while a number of others were up a point or more.

Squeezing on the shorts in Delaware & Hudson sent that stock up 4 1-2 points to 107 but it fell back to moderate progress. Gains of a point 105 before the close. Other rails made or more being recorded by Canadian Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, St. Paul common, Chesapeake & Ohio, Lehigh Valley, Missouri Pacific preferred and Union Pacific.

Sugar shares ruled higher despite further reductions in the prices of the refined product. Buying of these two leading authorities. Coppers also shares apparently was influenced by a reduction in the crop estimates of pointed upward in response to an increased demand for the red metal. Motors were influenced somewhat by the report of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce showing total production in the first six months of this year of 2,029,000 passenger cars and trucks as compared with 1,161,000 in the corresponding period last year, an increase of 74 per cent.

Call money again held at 5 per cent. all day. The time money market was dull with a few loans arranged at 5 1-4 per cent. Out-of-town banks are the principal takers of commercial paper the ruling rate for which is 5 per cent.

The London financial community's favorable impression of Premier Baldwin's address was reflected in the higher sterling exchange rate, demand bills getting as high as 4.60, a net gain of about 4 cents on the week. Doubt over the French attitude on Great Britain's proposals caused some selling of the continental currencies, but the recessions were small.

BONDS

New York, July 13—Today's bond market was a dull affair. Fluctuations generally were very small but the undertone seemed firm.

There was some selling of public utility company bonds, losses of a point each being recorded by Utah Power & Light 5s, Northern States power 5s, and Columbia Gas 5s. International mercantile marine 6s also yielded 1 1-8.

Railroad mortgages were quiet with most changes fractional. New York Central consolidated 4s and Minneapolis & St. Louis refunding 4s each gained a point. New York Westchester & Boston 4 1-2s lost two points. Chicago railway 5s were in demand, moving up a point.

United States government bonds, with the exception of the tax exempt 3 1-2s which eased slightly, were improved moderately. Foreign government bonds were steady.

Total sales (par value) were $7,664,000.

There were reports of a $10,000,000 intermediate credit bank 4 1-2 per cent. bond offering next week.

WHEAT

Chicago, July 13—Wheat showed a tendency to rise in price today owing to an absence of selling pressure. Closing quotations were unsettled at 1-8 to 1-2c. Net gain, September 99 5-8 to 39 3-4 and December 1.02 1-2 to 1.02 5-8. Corn finished 3-8 to 3-4c up, oats 1-2c decline to 1-8c advance and provisions 7c and 12c down.

In view of recent sharp declines in price, the majority of wheat traders showed a disposition to avoid the selling side. The volume of hedging appeared to have fallen off, and this circumstance was generally taken to mean that farmers as far as possible, were holding their grain for an upturn in values. Some optimism in various quarters that a settlement of the Ruhr problem might be looked for counted likewise as a bullish factor, as did a renewal of talk about possible damage by blackrust in the Dakotas and Canada.

Estimates that the 1923 Canadian crop would be the largest on record, 500,000,000 bushels as against 396,000,000 bushels harvested last year, made the market here ease down a bit in the late dealings. Meanwhile, export demand continued unimpressive, despite some business by way of the Gulf of Mexico and 1-4c advance in premiums there for wheat available to be loaded during August.

TAFTVILLE

The Jewett City Speed Boys will clash with Troop 4, Boy Scouts Saturday afternoon, and from all accounts, the game will be a thriller from the minute it is called. The locals have been putting in some hard practice and believe they can give the team from up the Quinebaug a hard tussle.

The annual Sunday school picnic will be held today (Saturday) weather permitting. The committee in charge have chartered three special cars so that there will be plenty of room for all. These cars will leave from the foot of North B street at 8.45, and will arrive at Ocean Beach about 10.30. Oscar Mathewson, Jr., is chairman of the sports committee, and there will be races and games, when the party arrives at the beach.

The Ocawasin Camp Fire Girls held a meeting in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church, Thursday evening to discuss plans of their vacation, which they are to enjoy for the next two weeks at the summer home of Senator and Mrs. James Graham at Fishers Island, N. Y. As the committee in charge of the Sunday school picnic was meeting at the church also, the Camp Fire Girls assisted in getting ready the tickets to be distributed to the scholars of the school.

Court Wenonnoc, No. 88, Foresters of America, held an interesting meeting Thursday evening in their court rooms on Dion street, with Chief Ranger William Smith presiding. Plans are underway for a big clambake and outing to be held in the near future. This will be a joint affair with some of the other courts in this vicinity. It is said that both Court City of Norwich and Court Sprague of Baltic have signified their intention of taking part.

The usual Sunday morning service at the Taftville Congregational church will be omitted this coming Sunday, as the church has decided to unite with the United Congregational church of Norwich, for morning worship, at which Dr. Barton, recently returned from the Near East, will be the speaker. Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis has announced that the usual meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society will be held in the evening, and Robert Schmidt will lead.

The swimming hole across the Ponemah mills dam draws a big crowd of youngsters daily, many of whom only leave the water to get their meals. Some find the two sand banks ideal places to take their dip, and either go up the river in boats or canoes, or hike the distance on the opposite side of the river. A year or two ago, much of the wood was cut from the river banks, and in drawing it away, a fair road was cut through the woods, which makes the walk to the sand banks much less difficult, than when the youngsters had to scramble over the stones and through the briers.

The Loomfixers Union met Wednesday evening in their rooms in the St. Louis hall on Dion street.

Miss Clementine Graham, a teacher in the public schools at Cristobal, Canal Zone, Panama, is at the home of her parents, Senator and Mrs. James Graham of Lisbon.

Percy Noyes of South Second avenue has resigned his position with the machine department of the Ponemah Mills.

Alfred Poyerd, Jr., of North B street has accepted a position with the state highway department.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dosh and family have taken a house on Terrace avenue.

Mrs. Rosanna Stevens has taken a house on South C street.

A well known sporting journall publishes a picture of Denny Murphy of the Vernon (Cal.) team, with the following, "Photo more accurate than umpire. Unusual play in recent game in Los Angeles. Catcher Murphy (Vernon) drops ball and umpire reverses first decision." Murphy is the son of Postmaster and Mrs. Dennis C. Murphy of South A street.

A young man who gave his name as Hartley, and claimed to be looking for Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hartley, formerly of Voluntown, was in town on Friday, but could get no information regarding the whereabouts of his parents. Mr. Hartley claimed that he was employed in a lumber camp, in Vermont, and was engaged in hauling logs with a pair of horses down a steep grade, when the brakes on the wagon failed to hold, and the horses and wagon were thrown off the edge of a cliff. The horses were killed outright, as the drop was about 150 feet, but Mr. Hartley fell into a large hemlock tree, and escaped with several broken ribs. He was for several months in a hospital, and upon his discharge wrote to his parents in Voluntown, but the letter was forwarded to New Britain, and returned to him. He visited New Britain, but was unable to find any trace of his parents, and is now going about the state inquiring in villages that have cotton mills, in an effort to locate his parents.

In a closely contested game Thursday evening, the J. B. Martin Co. came out the victors over the Army & Navy Club, on the J. B. Martin Co. grounds. A large number of spectators were on hand to see the re-opening of the Twilight league games. * * * * * *

TIBBETTS ESTATE IN CASH BY SALE OF FARM AND PERSONAL PROPERTY

The estate of William Tibbetts, the Fitchville farmer who disappeared on April 19 without any explanation yet having been found for his sudden dropping out of sight, has now been converted into cash by Trustee Charles L. Stewart, who has now sold the missing man's farm. The personal property consisting of his farm stock and machinery and household property was sold by auction in May. The proceeds of the two sales, said Trustee Stewart, Friday, will approximate $20,000, which is the sum reported to have been offered Tibbetts for his farm and stock some time before his disappearance.

The Tibbetts farm has been sold at private sale by Trustee Stewart to Gilbert S. Raymond of this city and at the same time he has sold the so-called creamery property to Palmer Bros., the Fitchville quilt mill proprietors.

Tibbetts bought the farm in 1904 from William Kilroy and later acquired the creamery property. The farm consists of about 138 acres lying on both sides of the road for 1,300 to 1,400 feet. The dwelling house is on the easterly side with the barn and sheds across the road. The so-called creamery property is a plot of about one-fourth to one-half an acre with a two-story tenement house and an old barn on it. It lies on the west side of the road nearer Fitchville than the farm house.

Mr. Raymond said Friday night that he had made no definite plans regarding the property. Since Tibbetts disappeared, a caretaker was in charge of the cattle until the auction, but no crops have been planted this season.

The amount realized by the sale of the property will remain in Trustee Stewart's hands as a fund which will eventually be disposed of to the heirs of the missing man under direction of the court.

CONGREGATIONALISTS TO HEAR OF CONDITIONS IN TURKEY

Rev. Dr. James L. Barton, who is to address the union meeting at the United Congregational church at the morning service Sunday upon conditions in Turkey, has been foreign secretary of the American Board since 1896. He is a native of Vermont. He graduated from Middlebury College and from Hartford Theological Seminary. In 1885 he was appointed a missionary of the American Board to Turkey and was located at Harpoot, where he served until 1892. During the latter part of his missionary life he was president of Euphrates College in Harpoot.

As secretary of the board he has been a leader in missionary circles. He represented the board in official visits to Japan in 1895, to Ceylon and India in 1901, and to China in 1907. As chairman of the committee of reference and counsel which was appointed by the Edinburgh conference, he has had a large share in shaping missionary policies.

Among his wider activities it may be noted that he has been for a number of years one of the trustees of Hartford Theological Seminary and also a trustee of the Clifton Springs sanatorium. He was chosen moderator of the international Congregational council held in Boston in 1920.

Call for Fire Department

A supposed fire at the home of Edgar H. Allen at 17 Elmwood Avenue Friday morning at 9.39 o'clock brought out the fire department for its first call this month. A brick or piece of wood had probably fallen down the chimney causing smoke to issue from the base. There was no damage.

NORWICH SOCIETY'S VISIT GIVES IDEA TO NEWBURGH

A former Norwich Town man, Edward Harland Miller, of New York, has been in Newburgh on the Hudson, visiting Dr. Wesley Wait at the latter's beautiful home. As Mr. Miller was a vice president of the Norwich Society in New York, he was interested in the recent trip of that society to Norwich, so mentioned it to his Newburgh friends. The Newburgh Daily News copied a portion of The Bulletin's account of the visit, also referring to the incident editorially as follows:

Former Residents Are Welcomed.

Norwich, Conn., recently conducted a "home welcoming" for members of the Norwich Society of New York city. The former residents were tendered a banquet and given an opportunity to look the old town over and then they returned to the metropolis with new feelings of loyalty for Norwich and prepared to say a good word for it whenever occasion offered. The idea is good enough to be copied by Hudson river towns. Newburgh, for example, has a lot of former residents in the metropolis and they could be a big force for the city's advancement if they were so disposed, for some of them are prominent in finance, railroading, the practice of law and other professions.

PROGRESS IN LAYING LAUREL HILL CEMENT

The street department is making progress in the laying of cement on Laurel Hill avenue, laying it first between and to the east of the rails of the trolley track which is now in the center of the street. The cement work has been begun on the hill at a point opposite the Moose home and has reached a point beyond the Heyrick residence further along the street towards the Winchester street corner.

All the trees on the west side of Laurel Hill avenue have now been taken out as well as one tree on the easterly side near Walnut street. The trolley rails have been laid in the center of the street as far as Walnut street.

The new 8-inch gas main, about 1,000 feet in length, has now been laid and connected and the gas department is putting in services below Walnut street.

SHETUCKET CO. MILL POSTPONES REOPENING DATE

The Shetucket Co. mill in Greeneville, which has been shut down for two years, is to remain shut down for at least another week, but is expected that the mill will re-open then, according to a statement from one of the officials of the company Friday evening.

In the present condition of the market, it was not considered advisable to reopen the mill next Monday but by the time another week has gone by it is believed conditions will be favorable for resuming operations.

While the mill has been closed repairs have been made to the water wheels and the main shafting.

MADE MOTOR TRIP OVER MOHAWK TRAIL

Mrs. A. B. Stockdale, the Misses Stockdale, and Master Raymond Stockdale, of this city, have returned after a week's motor trip to Saratoga Springs, Lake George, and Albany, making the return trip over the Mohawk Trail.

While at Saratoga Springs, Mrs. Stockdale and family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Curtis. Mr. Curtis is employed as a railroad officer in Saratoga Springs.

They had the pleasure of meeting Jack Dempsey and Floyd Johnson of California, at Saratoga Lake, where the latter was getting his final training for his bout with Jack McAuliffe at Jersey City, July 12.

PLAYGROUNDS TEACHERS ARE GIVEN INSTRUCTIONS

Teachers at the Norwich playgrounds were given helpful suggestions and instruction by Superintendent Harold A. Bruce at a meeting held Friday morning at his office at the Norwich Commercial school. An interesting and instructive talk was given by Miss Helen B. Royce. In her talk Miss Royce pointed out the educational value of the various industrial crafts to be carried out in the programs of the playground centers. Miss Royce accompanied her talk with practical demonstrations of the industrial work.

Fewer Bankruptcy Cases.

A decrease in the number of bankruptcy cases in the state during the fiscal year ending June 30 is shown in a report in the office of the United States court clerk at New Haven. There was a total of 555 as compared to 597 in the previous year. The money involved is about $4,000,000.

CLAIMS HE BOUGHT AUTO FROM JOHN L. BEERS

John L. Beers, who travels under numerous aliases, is being sought by the Middletown police to straighten out the ownership of an Overland automobile taken from him when arrested in Middletown several days ago for the Norwich police. Tuesday R. H. Powers of Southington called at the Middletown police station and laid a claim to ownership in the vehicle, disclosing papers proving that he had entered into a transaction to buy the car. The car will be held until disposition is made of the case by the authorities.

Beers was placed under arrest in Middletown on the morning of July 5, charged with operating without a license and operating under false registration. The man was locked up at police headquarters and as the Norwich police sought him for defrauding a jitney driver in that town, Beers was turned over to them.

Beers was released on a cash bond of $100 furnished by Attorney Earl Mathewson of Norwich and it is understood has vacated his bond. The man formerly lived in Middletown and has traveled under the following names: John L. Beers, Jack Baer, John Hubbard and John Blake.

REV. DR. GEORGE C. POLLOCK REACHES 89TH BIRTHDAY

The many friends of Rev. George C. Pollock, D. D., father of Dr. H. M. Pollock, former superintendent of the Norwich State hospital, congratulated him Friday on rounding out 89 years of life. Rev. Dr. Pollock celebrated the event in a quiet manner at his home at 30 Spaulding street, and besides the greetings from local friends received many remembrance cards from friends throughout the country made during his 30 years in the ministry.

Although many years past the three score and ten Dr. Pollock is today active and as progressive as many men his junior by several years. He keeps up with the news of the day and his memory of things of the past provides entertaining subjects for his friends.

Born in Monaghan County, Ireland, July 13, 1834, Dr. Pollock received his early education in schools in that country. He came to New York at the age of 21 and taught school in Northampton, Pa., while preparing for college under private tutors. He entered Lafayette College, graduating in 1861 and in the fall continued his studies at the Princeton Theological seminary, taking a full course and graduating in May 1864. He was popular among his classmates and his friendships were always held.

Following his graduation he was called to the Presbyterian church of Lyons Farms, N. J., then a village, midway between the cities of Newark and Elizabeth. This village has since included in Newark and the church is now known as the Elizabeth Avenue Presbyterian church of Newark. Dr. Pollock was ordained and installed by the Presbytery of Passaic on Nov. 15, 1864, and remained pastor for 18 years, winning the devotion of his people.

In Lyons Farms, June 18, 1867, he was unite din marriage with Miss Martha B. Meeker, daughter of Henry Meeker, an elder of the church and leading man in the Lyons Farms congregation. Mrs. Pollock died in May, 1915, leaving besides her husband, three children, two sons and a daughter.

After serving in Lyons Farms, in 1882 Dr. Pollock was called to the Presbyterian church of Mankato, Minn., and five years later accepted a call to Fergus Falls, remaining there for six years. While in this place the University of Galesville, Wis., conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity. He then went to Litchfield, Minn., his pastorate there being for eight years. Concluding his pastoral relation, Dr. Pollock remained in Litchfield for several years, acting as supply pastor and served for one year as chaplain of the Minnesota senate.

Because of a breakdown in health he left Minnesota and spent the winters in Florida, coming to Norwich in 1912 to live near his son, Dr. H. M. Pollock, who was then superintendent of the Norwich state hospital. Since being in Norwich he has often been requested to preach in this vicinity, doing so less than two weeks ago in the Hanover Congregational church.

As a preacher Dr. Pollock stands high among the ministers of the city, his sermons are carefully composed bringing home a powerful message. His personality and friendly advice has made for him a host of friends and they, with the people of Norwich extend to him a wish that he might enjoy many more years of a happy and useful life.

Warning of Bank Swindlers

Police Chief George Linton has received warning from the Hartford police department of two swindlers by the name of Nat Lowe, 35, and I. Goldsmith, 36, who came to Hartford on June 20 and worked a game on a Hartford bank by which they got about $600. The men were traveling in a Wyllis Knight touring car with Pennsylvania numbers, 832-777.

Lowe appeared first at the bank and made a deposit of about $500, which he gradually increased to $2,500 and subsequently drew checks till he had a balance of about $600. Meanwhile he had introduced Goldsmith and had guaranteed any checks Goldsmith might draw. One day both men presented checks to two different tellers for about $600, within a few minutes of each other, and both checks were cashed before it was discovered that Lowe's balance had been wiped out.
